THIS Church is a Gothick Building upon Stone Arches, it was repaired and beautified Anno 1651; and again, being altered moſtly at the Charge of Perſons of Quality, and others, in the Year 1682. The North Gallery was built Anno Domini 1641, and the South Gallery at the ſole Charge of Sir John Cutler, Knt. and Bar. Anno 1682, who gave the ſame for the Benefit of the Poor of this Pariſh. The Steeple is now rebuilding, upon a Report being ſpread that the Tower was in Danger of falling; but it is the Opinion of a very ingenious Architect, that this was without any Foundation; and that the Materials were as ſound as the firſt Day they were laid, except ſome Decay in the Montins to the Bell Windows, and the Battlements of the Tower, which a ſmall Expence would have repaired; and if the Surface of the Tower had been ſculp'd, by taking off the Outward half an Inch, or thereabouts, it would not only have appeared with the ſame Beauty, and been as ſtrong as the Day it was firſt finiſhed, but would, in all Probability, have remained ſo for as many Years to come, as it hath done already.

MONUMENTS.

ON an antient Monument in Braſs, at the upper End of the North Iſle, is thus written:

Sacrum doloris.

Shall Teares, the ſilent Meſſengers of Death,
  Diſſolve their Streames into a Sea of Moane?
No, no, in vain you ſacrifice Reliefe,
  Over his Tombe, with Eyes, with Voice with Groane.
For Cole (aſſign'd by God the Poore to pity,
  The Widow's Comfort, and eke the Orphan's Sire)
Who tun'd each String of Hate to Love's ſweet Ditty,
  Is dead. Ah me! will Death the Beſt deſire?
Remorſeleſſe Death, thy Wrath in him is ended,
  Maugre thy Darts, his Praiſes cannot dye;
Thou has his Body, but his Soul aſcended
  Into the Place of Joy's Eternity.
And tho' his Corps interr'd lies dead in Grave,
  Yet ſtill his Virtues Life and Being have.
An. Dom. 1597.
In Parliament, a Burgeſs Cole was placed,
  In Weſtminſter the like for many Years,
But now with Saints above his Soul is graced,
  And lives a Burgeſs with Heaven's Royal Peers.
O bleſſed Change! from Earth, where Death is King,
  To be united there where Angels ſing.

Ejuſdem in eundem

Terra tegit Corpus, meus ſcandit ad Æthera Cœli, Fama virens floret, Cætera mors rapuit.

Thus in Engliſh:

The Grave my Body, Heaven my Soule doth keepe,
The World my Fame, the reſt in Death doth ſleep.

MARGA-

MARGARET COLE poſuit.

In another Column of the ſame Table:

This Monument unites two conſtant Lovers,
He that is dead, and her that lives in Death:
His Body ſhe, his Spouſe, in Honour covers,
Wiſhing her Days were ſhorten'd with his Breath.
But ſhe muſt live, yet living ſhall be mated,
With him in Death, while Death her Life hath dated.
Full twenty Years and odde, their League was firm,
Witneſs the World, their Children and their Love;
Nothing but Death by Death ſhould give the Tearme
Of Farewel to their Faith by falſe Remove.
Of Breach of Concord no Tongue can accuſe them,
Unleſs baſe Envy by her Saints abuſe them.
O envy not the Dead, but die to Sin,
Expect the Harveſt of this dead Man's Bliſs,
Deſire the Crown which Envy cannot winne,
Amend in you, not others, what's amiſs;
Sad Death ſhall be your Herald to procure
Reſt to your Soules, with Chriſt for to endure.
Margaret in Woe, diſtill thoſe Tears to Comfort,
And in thy Childrens Love redreſs thy Anguiſh:
Three live with thee, then love their Conſort,
No longer in thy Husband's Sorrow langniſh.
But imitate thy Cole in Virtue's Laws,
That thou may'ſt live where Virtue pleads her Cauſe.

This Monument is in the North Iſle, and hath this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Lady Dorothy Stafford Knight, Daughter-in-Law to Henry Lord Stafford, the only Son of Edward the laſt Duke of Buckingham: Her Mother was Urſula, Daughter to the Counteſſe of Salisbury, the only Daughter to George Duke of Clarence, Brother to King Edward the Fourth. Shee continued a true Widow from the Age of 27 till her Death. She ſerved Queen Elizabeth 40 Years, lying in the Bed-Chamber, eſteemed of her, loved of all, doing Good, all ſhe could, to every Body, never hurted any; a continual Remembrance of the Suits of the Poor. As ſhe lived a religious Life, in great Reputation of Honour and Virtue in the World, ſo ſhe ended in continual fervent Meditation and hearty Prayer to God; at which Inſtant, as all her Life, ſo after her Death, ſhe gave liberally to the Poor, and died aged 78, the 22d of September, 1604; in whoſe Remembrance Sir Edward Stafford, her Son, hath cauſed this Memorial of her to be in the ſame Forme and Place as ſhe herſelfe long ſince required him.

On a Monument on the North Side of the Chancel is this Inſcription:

To the Memory of Robert Peter, Eſquire, Auditor of the Receipt, her firſt Husband, who gave to the Uſe of the Poor of this Pariſh, one hundred Pounds: And of Edward Engliſh, her ſecond Husband, a Gentleman, kind, courteous, and of great Hoſpitality, who gave twelve Pounds in Annuity for ever to the ſame Uſe.

Margaret their loving Wife, Daughter of Sir John Tyrill of Gipping, Knight, who likewiſe hath bequeathed one hundred Pounds for the purchaſing of one Yearly Annuity of twenty Nobles for ever to the foreſaid Poor; lamenting their Death, and for Teſtification of her dutiful Love, hath erected this Monument.

Another Monument in the ſame Iſle, with this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of Thomas Arneway, buried the 8th of September, Anno Dom. 1603. And Margaret Arneway, his Wife, who was buried the 9th of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1596. near the other.

In a fair Plate is this following Epitaph:

A Memorial on the Death of John Varnam, Gardiner, who deceaſed the xi. Day of December, 1586, Ætatis ſuæ 46.

O mortal Man that lives on Earth,
conſider well thy End;
Remember that thou muſt depart
when God for thee doth ſend;
This Life is but a Pilgrimage, ſo ſoon it doth decay,
And all the Riches of this World
ſhall fade and paſs away.

As by Example daily ſhew'd before our Eyes we ſee,
That Rich and Poor to Earth are brought for their Iniquity.
Let us that live on Earth behind to God for Mercy call,
With woeful Heart and wringing Hands and he will bleſs us all.

And now to ſpeak of this good Man,
John Vernam called by Name,
Who in his Life he lived well
by Labour, Travaile, and Paine:
In helping of the Fatherleſs and Widows very poor,
And ſetting ever them on Worke which went from Door to Door.

A Gardiner by Art he was, great Skill he had therein,
And proſpered well in all his Life,
with every living Thing
That he at all Times took in Hand, to God be given all Praiſe,
That did increaſe this honeſt Man with Riches many Ways.

The Poor they had great Work of him,
by weeding of his Ground,
And he to them was well content to leave Aſſurance found
Of Land and living to releave
The Fatherleſs in Need,
So he confirmed this his Mind
by Will it was decreed.

Agnes Varham left behind
his loving Wife moſt ſure,
By her he had four Sons likewiſe four Daughters, Virgins pure,
Who all being dead, and none alive,
by Elizabeth by Name,
And, in Remembrance of his Life,
they have ſet up this ſame.

He willingly did yeeld himſelfe,
in God was all his Truſt;
And in the laſt Houre of his Death,
he ſhew'd his Faith moſt juſt,
To leave this World moſt cheerefully, deſirous to depart;
Asking Forgiveneſſe of the World, and forgiving with his Heart,

To thoſe which he at any Time in Deed or Word offended:
Moſt joyfully his Soule was then unto the Lord commended.
And thus he left his mortal Life,
in Brieſe, to tell you plaine;
Hoping in Heav'n to be receiv'd, for ever to remaine.

IN the ſame Iſle, in the Body of the Church, is this Inſcription:

Cornelius Vandun lieth here, borne at Breda in Brabant, Souldier with King Henry at Turney, Yeoman of the Guard, and Uſher to King Henry, King Edward, Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth: Of honeſt and virtuous Life, a careful Man for poore Folke. Who in the End of this Towne did build for poor Widowes twenty Houſes of his owne Coſt.

Obiit Anno Dom 1577. Buried the 4th of September. Ætatis ſuæ 94.

AT the upper End of the South Iſle in the Chancel, as follows:

Frances Haughton, in Token of her Love to her Husband, cauſed this Monument to be erected.

Here reſteth in aſſured Hope to riſe in Chriſt, the Body of Hugh Haughton, the fourth Son of Thomas Haughton of Haughton, in the County of Cheſter, Gentleman. Who married Frances, Daughter of William Coothe of Sherbourne, in the County of Dorſet, Gentleman, and by her had Iſſue two Daughters, Elizabeth and Frances. He departed this Life the 17th Day of October, 1616. Aged 50 Years. And Elizabeth departed this Life the 28th of Auguſt, 1615, aged ſeven Years, and lyeth here alſo interred.

ON an antient Braſs Monument, cloſe by the other, is thus written:

Give Thankes to God for Edward Courtney, Eſquire, Sonne and Heire to Sir Peter Courtney of Devonſhire, Knight, who living a Life agreeable to his Eſtate and Stocke, ended the ſame like a faithful Chriſtian, the 27th Day of November 1566, and is buried before this Stone.

ON another near to that, is thus written:

Here lyeth the Body of Alexander Tomkins, the fifth Sonne to Richard Tomkins of Momington upon Wye, in the County of Hereford, Eſquire, who was buried in Auguſt, in the Year of our Lord God 1615.

ON another near to that is thus written:

Underneath lyeth the Body of James Tomkins, ſecond Sonne to James Tomkins of Momington upon Wye, in the County of Hereford, Eſquire, buried in December, in the Year of our Lord God 1613.

CLOSE to this a very fair Monument in the South Wall of the Chancel, thus written on:

Here-under is entombed Blanch Parry, Daughter to Henry Parry of New-Court within the County of Hereford, Eſquire, chief Gentlewoman of Queen Elizabeth's moſt Honourable Privy-Chamber, and Keeper of her Majeſty's Jewels, whom ſhe faithfully ſerved from her Highneſs's Birth; beneficial to her Kinsfolk and Countrymen, charitable to the Poor, inſomuch that ſhe gave to the Poor of Bacton and Newton in Herefordſhire ſeven Score Buſhels of Wheat and Rye yearly for ever, with divers Sums of Money to Weſtminſter, and other Places, for good Uſes. She died a Maid in the 82d Year of her Age, the 12th of February, 1589.

ANOTHER fair Monument in the ſame Iſle in the Chancel, thus written on:

Here-under reſteth, in Expectation of a glorious Reſurrection, the Body of Thomas Bond, Gentleman, ſome Time a Burgeſſe of this City of Weſtminſter; and alſo the Bodies of Ellen his Wife, of Thomas Bond their Sonne, and of Ellen their Daughter.

To the Memory of whoſe Chriſtian Vertues, their dutiful Sonne and loving Brother John Bond, hath erected this Monument.

A Father, Mother, Sonne, and Daughter deere,
Cover'd with Earth, their Corps be buried here:
Two aged died, and two in Prime of Strength,
To teach that Death will conquer all at length:
A vertuous Life they liv'd, made Chriſtian Ends,
And now a Crown of Glory them attends.

AT the four Corners of this Monument are theſe Inſcriptions:

Thomas Bond, the Father, dyed the 7th of April, 1616.

Ellin Bond, the Mother, dyed the 31ſt of May, 1628.

Thomas Bond, the Sonne, dyed the 26th of May, 1627.

Ellin Butts, the Daughter, died the 12th of Auguſt, 1625.

ON a fair Stone, in the Middle of the Chancel is thus written:

Here reſteth in God the Body of Anna Ellis, borne in Denmarke, who ſerved our gracious Queene Anna in her Bed-Chamber, was married to Maſter Thomas Seringe, her Majeſty's Chaplaine, the 28th of April, in the Yeere of our Lord God 1598, and died at Weſtminſter the 26th of February, 1608, unto whom God Almighty give a joyful Reſurrection.

Mœrentis muſa Mariti.

Aſtri tuam foveant Animam, bona fama ſepulta
Reſtet in his terris, capiat tandem omnia Cœlum.

Johannes Seringius, Thuringius.

A fair Monument at the lower End of the North Iſle in the Wall, thus written on:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Edward Reynolds, Eſq; late Clearke of his Majeſty's Privy Seale, and Regiſter of the Court of Requeſts; who departed this Life the 18th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1623. By him alſo lyeth the Body of his Brother, Maſter Owen Reynolds, who deceaſed the 16th of April 1610. To whoſe Memories, Edward and Launcelot Reynolds, Gentlemen, have here placed theſe enſuing Verſes, made by the ſaid Edward Reynolds in his Life-time.

Gloria,

Gloria, vita, decor, theſaurus fama voluptas,
Vana, brevis, fragilis, fluxus, temeraria, mollis,
Fumus, bulla, iris, fax, ventus, dulce venenum,
Vaneſcit, perit, areſcit, liquefit, fugit, angit.
Orbe nihil toto ſtabile eſt, cito corruet orbis,
Et vaſti in nihilum vaneſcet fabrica mundi.
Sola fides firmam parit, æternamque Coronam,
Sola fides Chriſti meritis, ſunt cætera nugæ.

Hac vixi, hac morior fide, mihi Chriſtus in vita, & morte lucrum.

In the Middle of the ſame Iſle, in the Wall, is a fair Monument, thus written on:

M. S.

Hic ſepultus jacet Johannes Corbettus de Sprowſton, in Com. Nort. Baronettus. Qui uxorem duxit piiſſimam Annam, filiam Arthuri Capel de Hadham, in Com. Hartford Militis. Ex qua ſuſcepit filios tres totidemque filias, vitam vixit integerrimam, Rei aſſertor publicæ, Chriſtianæ columen, Mecænas literariæ, hinc migrans, Anno Dom. Milleſimo Sexcenteſimo Vigeſimo Septimo (Ætatis trigeſimo Septimo) die decimo nono Januarii. Abunde illud ſupplevit, in quo Marmor deficit, famam & memoriam indeptus terris diutius, ac Cœlo in æternam victuram.

On the ſame Wall, in a Table, is this Epitaph:

In the Memory of the late deceaſed Virgin, Mrs. Elizabeth Hereicke.

Sweet Virgin, that I do not ſet
Thy Grave Verſe up in mournful Jet,
Or dappled Marble, let thy Shade
Not wrathful ſeem, or fright the Maid,
Who hither at her weeping Howres,
Shall come to ſtrew thy Earth with Flowers:
No, know, bleſt Soule, when there's not one
Remainder left of Braſſe or Stone;
Thy living Epitaph ſhall be
Though loſt in them, yet found in me:
Deare, in thy Bed of Roſes then,
Till this World ſhall diſſolve (as Men)
Sleepe, while we hide thee from the Light,
Drawing thy Curtains round——Good night.

On a Table, hanging at the upper End of the South Iſle, is thus written:

In Memory of the right vertuous and beautifull Gentlewoman Miſtreſs Margaret Radcliffe, Daughter to Sir John Radcliffe, Knight, one of the Maids of Honour to Queen Elizabeth, who died at Richmond the 10th of November, and was here buried with Solemnity the 22d of the ſame Month, Anno Dom. 1599.
An. Reg. Eliz. 41.

Tell thou my wailing Verſe, and mourning Show,
What beauteous Frame lies here interred below,

Here underneath entomb'd a Dazie lies,
The Pride of Nature, with Perfection fill'd;
O Woe, whom Zephyres blaſts can ne'er make riſe,
Being by Death's black Storms untimely kill'd.
Ratcliffe's thy Name; the Glory of the Court;
Vertue and Beauty ſtrove t'adorn thee moſt;
Though here inclos'd, yet Fame ſhall ſtill report
Thy Virtue's Praiſe, thy Grace's Time ſhall boaſt;
Thou dy'd'ſt a Virgin pure, and ſpotleſs Liver;
Grief caus'd thy Death, Death makes thee live for ever.
If any ask, who ſigh'd this ſad Complaint?
Say, one that liv'd, that lov'd, that joy'd, now faint.

There is another handſome Monument at the upper End of the Chancel, erected to the Memory of Sir Francis Egioke, of Egioke in the County of Hereford, Baronet, who died at Uxbridge the 21ſt of November, 1622.

This Monument is near unto another, having this Inſcription:

Here lyeth entombed Mary Lady Dudley, Daughter of William Lord Howard of Effingham, in his Time Lord High Admiral of England, Lord Chamberlaine, and Lord Privy Seale. Shee was Grand-childe to Thomas Duke of Norfolke, the ſecond of that Sur-name, and Siſter to Charles Howard Earl of Nottingham, Lord High Admiral of England. By whoſe proſperous Direction, through the Goodneſs of God, in defending his Handmaid Queen Elizabeth, the whole Fleet of Spaine was defeated and diſcomfited.

She was firſt married to Edward Sutton Lord Dudley, and after to Richard Mountpeſſon, Eſquire; who, in the Memory of her Vertues, and laſt Teſtimony of his Love, erected this Monument. Shee ſlept in Chriſt Jeſus in the Yeere of our Lord 1600, the 21ſt of Auguſt, attending the joyful Day of her Reſurrection.

A fair Monument at the upper End of the North Iſle, with this Inſcription:

Here in Peace reſteth the Body of Thomas Seymour, ſecond Sonne to the Right Honourable Edward Earle of Hartford, and Iſabel his Wife, eldeſt Daughter to Edward Meley of Katesby in the County of Northampton, Eſquire; which ſaid Thomas departed this Life the 8th Day of Auguſt 1600; and the ſaid Iſabel the 20th of Auguſt 1619, in the true Faith of Jeſus Chriſt, and in the bleſſed Hope of a joyful Reſurrection.

On a fair Marble in the Chancel is thus written:

Depoſitum

IN the ſame Church is a new Monument lately erected in the North Iſle, and this Inſcription on it:

In Expectation of a joyful Reſurrection, neere this Place reſteth the Body of Robert Golding, Gentleman, borne in this City of Weſtminſter, and ſome Time Chiefe Burgeſſe thereof: His Honeſty and charitable Life, gained good Eſteem; his Age drew and deſerved Reſpect of all. And in the Houſe where he took Beginning in his Infancy, he moſt peaceably and piouſly ended his Days on the 22d of November 1629. Being always careful of his Wayes, charitable to the Poore, and very judicious and ready in diſcharging of all Offices incident to the Civil Government of this City, wherein he fully proceeded long before his Death. He lived to ſee the Change of foure Kings and Queenes: And yet in aſſured Hope of never-changing Bliſſe, by the meritorious Paſſion of his only Mediator Chriſt Jeſus, hee never altered or changed from the now truly profeſſed Religion, wherein he moſt conſtantly died in the 78th Year of his Age, leaving behinde him two Sons and three Daughters.

To whoſe pious Memory William Golding, his eldeſt Sonne, and ſole Executor, hath, at his own Charge, erected this Monument, June 1631.

IN St. Margaret's Weſtminſter Pariſh are three Charity-Schools, ſet up for Poor Children. Upon a Propoſal made by the Truſtees of theſe Schools, the Church-wardens have allowed them a large Houſe belonging to the Pariſh, Rent-free for ſeven Years; and have given them as many of the Pariſh-Children (with the uſual Penſions they gave to their Nurſes) as the Truſtees would undertake to maintain and employ with Work. Whereupon they took in the fifty poor Boys that belonged to their Charity-School, and at ſeveral Times ſince fifty more Boys and Girls, upon the Pariſh Account, and have ſet them all to Work, ſome to Spinning of Wool, others to mending and making of Shoes; others to Sewing, Knitting, &c. and the Income of the Charity and their Earnings, have been ſufficient to find them Diet, Lodging, and all other Neceſſaries, with an Overplus of ſome ſmall Matter towards a Stock to put the ſaid Children out Apprentices.

NOT far off, in King-ſtreet, ſtood another antient Pariſh Church, dedicated to the Holy Innocents, as appears by theſe Extracts following, taken out of the Records belonging to the Court of Exchequer.

THIS Church (as is gueſſed) now is deſecrated, and made Uſe of for a Wine-Cellar, belonging to the Quaker's Tavern in Thieving-lane. The Front is at the farther End of the Great Sanctuary, the whole Croſs being the Form of the oldeſt Churches.

NEXT to the famous Monaſtery of St. Peter was the King's Palace.

THE Grandeur of the Royal Britiſh Court and Palace, in antient Times, may appear in the Quality as well as the Number of the Officers and Perſons, Eccleſiaſtical, Civil and Military, belonging to it, viz. a Lord High Almoner, a Dean of the Royal Chapel, a Clerk of the Cloſet, Chaplains in Ordinary forty-eight, four waiting each Month in their Turns; Lords and other of his Majeſty's Privy Council; to which belong ſeveral Clerks, ordinary and extraordinary; Lord High Steward of his Majeſty's Houſhold, Treaſurer ſurer of the Houſhold, Comptroller of the Houſhold, Cofferer, Maſter of the Houſhold, Clerks of the Green-Cloth, two; Clerks Comptrollers, two; Knight-Marſhal, Serjeant-Porter, Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold, Vice-Chamberlain, Secretary to the Chamberlain, Clerk to the Lord Chamberlain, Lords of the Bed-chamber, Groom of the Stole, and Firſt Gentleman of the Bed-chamber, Grooms of the Bed-chamber, Pages of the Back-ſtairs, Cup-bearers, four Carvers, four Gentlemen Sewers, Gentlemen-Uſhers, Daily Waiters, Grooms of the Privy Chambers, Gentlemen-Uſhers, Quarterly Waiters, Yeomen of the Removing Wardrobe, Clerks of the Wardrobe, Maſter of the Robes, Treaſurer of the Chamber, Maſter of the Jewel-houſe, Hiſtoriographer, Poet-Laureat, Principal Painter, Surveyor of the Royal Gardens and Water-Works, Keeper of the Library, Maſter of the Ceremonies, Aſſiſtant Maſter, and Maſter Groom-Porter; Maſter of the Revels, Maſter of the Tennis-Court, Knight-Harbinger, Maſter of the Muſick, Phyſicians in Ordinary, Apothecary to the Perſon, Apothecary to the Houſe, Serjeant-Surgeons, Surgeons to the Houſe, Chief Juſtice in Eyre North of Trent, Chief Juſtice in Eyre South of Trent, Chief Ranger of St. James's Park, Chief Ranger of Hyde-Park, Out-Ranger of Windſor-Foreſt, Keepers of Windſor Park, Great and Little Greenwich Park, Hampton-Court Park, New Foreſt, and Sherwood Foreſt; Surveyor-General of his Majeſty's Houſes, Caſtles and Lordſhips, and Surveyor of his Works; Pay-maſter of the Works, Comptroller of the Works, Houſekeepers at White-hall, Windſor, New-market, Palaces of Weſtminſter, St. James's, Hampton-Court, and Kenſington. Servants to the King in the Way of Trade; Goldſmith, Jeweller, Serjeant-Painter, Perfumer, Hatter, Druggiſt, Diſtiller, Perſpective and Optick Glaſs-maker, Maſter Bricklayer, Lockſmith, Printer, Bookſeller, Binder and Stationer, Watch and Clock-Maker, Joiner of the Privy Chamber, Commiſſioner for executing the Office of Maſter of the Horſe, Gentleman of the Horſe-Equerries, Maſter of the Great Wardrobe, his Deputy, Captain of the Band of Gentlemen-Penſioners, Lieutenant, Standard-Bearer, Clerk of the Check, Pay-maſter, Gentleman-Harbinger, Enſign, Principal Secretaries of State, three; Under-Secretaries, five; Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, Clerks of the Privy Seal, Clerks of the Signet, Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, Secretaries of the Treaſury, Chief Clerks, Solicitor of the Treaſury, Chancellor, and Under Treaſurer of the Exchequer, Auditor, his Deputy, Clerk of the Pells, Tellers of the Exchequer. All theſe are Officers of the King's principal Palace, which was antiently ſituated in Weſtminſter.

Of what Antiquity, it is uncertain: But Edward the Confeſſor held his Court here, as appears by the Teſtimony of ſundry; namely, of Ingulphus, as hath been ſaid before. The ſaid King had his Palace, and for the moſt Part remained there; where he alſo ended his Life, and was buried in the Monaſtery which he had built. It is not to be doubted, but that King William I. as he was crowned there, ſo he built much at this Palace, for he found it far inferior to the Buildiug of princely Palaces in France.

And it is manifeſt, by the Teſtimony of many Authors, that William Rufus built the great Hall there about the Year of Chriſt 1097. Amongſt others, Roger of Windover, and Matthew Paris, do write, that King William, being returned out of Normandy into England, kept his Feaſt of Whitſontide very Royally at Weſtminſter, in the new Hall which he had lately built; the Length whereof (ſay ſome) is 270 Feet, and 74 Feet in Breadth.

And when he heard Men ſay, that this Hall was too great, he anſwered and ſaid, This Hall is not big enough by the one half, and is but a Bed-chamber, in Compariſon of what I mean to make.

A diligent Searcher (ſaith Matthew Paris) might find out the Foundation of the Hall which he was ſuppoſed to have built, ſtretching forth from the River of Thames even to the Common Highway.

This Palace was repaired about the Year 1163, by Thomas Becket, Chancellor of England, with exceeding great Celerity and Speed, which before was ready to have fallen down.

It ſeems to have gone to Decay in the Times of King Edward IV. King Richard III. began the Repairs of it, and gave for an Order to Thomas Tyrrel, Keeper of the Park of Wildegolet in Eſſex, to ſuffer no manner of Perſon to embezel or purloin, or carry away out of the ſaid Park, any Timber, Boards, Laths, Shingles, or any other Stuff, ordained for the Works at Weſtminſter, and other Places; but ſuffer ſuch as they ſhould ſend thither, to fell and carry away as much Stuff as they ſhall think behoveful for the ſaid Work, Anno 2do, 16 March, Weſtmr.

This hath been the principal Seat and Palace of all the Kings of England ſince the Conqueſt; for here they have, in the great Hall, kept their Feaſts, of Coronation eſpecially, and other ſolemn Feaſts, as at Chriſtmas, and other Times. For Proof whereof, Stow ſays he finds it recorded, that in the Year 1236, and the 20th of King Henry III. on the 29th of December, William de Haverbull, the King's Treaſurer, is commanded, that, upon the Day of the Circumciſion of our Lord, he ſhould cauſe 6000 poor People to be fed at Weſtminſter, for the State of the King, the Queen, and their Children. The Weak and Aged to be placed in the great Hall; and, in the leſſer, thoſe that were more ſtrong and in reaſonable Plight. The Children, in the King's and Queen's Chambers: And when the King knew the Charge, he would allow it in the Accounts.

In the Year 1238, the ſame King Henry kept his Feaſt of Chriſtmas at Weſtminſter, in the great Hall; ſo did he in the Year 1241, where he placed the Legate in the moſt honourable Place of the Table, viz. in the Middle, which the Noblemen took in evil Part.

The King ſat on the Right Hand, and the Archbiſhop on the Left, and then all the Prelates and Nobles, according to their Eſtates; for the King himſelf did ſet the Gueſts.

The Year 1242, he likewiſe kept his Chriſtmas in the Hall.

Alſo in the Year 1243, Richard Earl of Cornwall, the King's Brother, married Cincia, Daughter to Beatrice, Counteſs of Province, and kept his Marriage Feaſt in the great Hall at Weſtminſter, with great Royalty and Company of Noblemen, inſomuch that there were told (triginta Millia) 30,000 Diſhes of Meat at that Dinner.

In the Year 1256, King Henry ſat in the Exchequer of this Hall, and there ſet down Order for the Appearance of Sheriffs, and bringing in of their Accounts; there was five Marks ſet on every Sheriff's Head for a Fine, becauſe they had not diſtrained every Perſon that might diſpend 15 l. Land by the Year, to receive the Order of Knighthood, according as the ſame Sheriffs were commanded.

Alſo the Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of LONDON, being accuſed of Oppreſſion and Wrongs done by them, and ſubmitting themſelves in this Place, before the King ſitting then in Judgment upon that Matter, they were condemned to pay their Fines for their Offences committed; committed; and farther, every one of them diſcharged of Aſſize and Ward.

In the Years 1268 and 1269, the ſame King kept his Chriſtmas Feaſts at Weſtminſter, as before; and alſo in the ſame Year 1269, he tranſlated (with great Solemnity) the Body of King Edward the Confeſſor, into a new Chapel at the Back of the high Altar; which Chapel he had prepared of a marvellous Workmanſhip, beſtowing a new Tomb or Shrine of Gold.

And on the Day of his Tranſlation, he kept a Royal Feaſt in the great Hall of the Palace. Thus much for the Feaſts of old Time in this Hall.

We read alſo, that in the Year 1236, the River Thames overflowing the Banks, cauſed the Marſhes about Woolwich to be all on a Sea, wherein Boats and other Veſſels were carried by the Stream; ſo that, beſides Cattel, the greateſt Number of Men, Women, and Children, Inhabitants there, were drowned. And in the great Palace of Weſtminſter, Men did row with Wherries in the Middle of the Hall, being forced to ride to their Chambers.

Moreover, in the Year 1242, the Thames overflowing the Banks about Lambeth, drowned Houſes and Fields, by the Space of ſix Miles; ſo that, in the great Hall at Weſtminſter, Men took their Horſes, becauſe the Water ran over all.

A great Fire happened on the King's Houſe at Weſtminſter, An. 1263, in the King's Abſence; of which Henry de Sandwich, Elect of LONDON, ſent him Word in Condolance, viz. "That hearing of the Burning of his Houſes "at Weſtminſter, he much grieved, as knew the "moſt High, fearing leſt it might diſturb his "Mind, when it ſhould be made known to him; "and might change the State of his Body, and "make it worſe than it was; which he prayed "God to mend and preſerve". King Henry was now, it ſeems, abroad, perhaps in France, and not current in the Health of his Body, no more than in his Mind, by Reaſon of the Diſturbance made by his Barons.

This Palace was (in the Year 1299, the 27th of King Edward I.) burnt by a vehement Fire, kindled in the leſſer Hall of the King's Houſe, the ſame with many other Houſes adjoining, and with the Queen's Chamber, were conſumed, but after that repaired.

In the Year 1313, the 31ſt of King Edw. I. the King's Treaſury at Weſtminſter was robbed; for which, Walter, Abbot of Weſtminſter, with 49 of his Brethren, and 32 others, were thrown into the Tower of LONDON, and indicted of the Robbery of 100,000 l. but they affirming themſelves to be clear of the Fact, and deſiring of the King ſpeedy Juſtice, a Commiſſion was directed for Enquiry of the Truth, and they were freed.

In the Year 1316, King Edward II. did ſolemnize his Feaſt of Pentecoſt at Weſtminſter, in the great Hall, where, ſitting Royally at the Table, with his Peers about him, there entered a Woman adorned like a Minſtrel, ſitting on a great Horſe, trapped as Minſtrels then uſed; who rode round about the Tables, ſhewing Paſtime, and, at length came up to the King's Table, and laid before him a Letter; and forthwith turning her Horſe, ſaluted every one, and departed. The Letter being opened, had theſe Contents:

"Our Sovereign Lord the King hath nothing "courteouſly reſpected his Knights, that in his "Father's Time, and alſo in his own, have put "forth their Perſons to divers Perils, and have "utterly loſt, or greatly diminiſhed their Subſtance, for the Honour of the ſaid King; and "hath enriched abundantly ſuch as have not "borne the Weight (as yet) of the Buſineſs, &c.

This great Hall was begun to be repaired in the Year 1397, by King Richard II. who cauſed the Wall, Windows, and Roof, to be taken down, and new made, with a ſtately Porch, and divers Lodgings of a marvellous Work, and with great Coſts; all which he levied on Strangers baniſhed, or flying out of their Countries, who obtained Licence to remain in this Land by the King's Charters, which they had purchaſed with great Sums of Money, (John Boterell being then Clerk of the Works.)

This Hall being finiſhed in the Year 1399, the ſame King kept a moſt Royal Chriſtmas there, with daily Juſtings and Runnings at Tilt; whereunto reſorted ſuch a Number of People, that there were every Day ſpent 28 or 26 Oxen, and 300 Sheep, beſide Fowl without Number. He cauſed a Gown for himſelf to be made of Gold, garniſhed with Pearl and precious Stones, to the Value of 3000 Marks. He was guarded by Cheſhiremen, and had about him commonly 13 Biſhops, beſides Barons, Knights, Eſquires, and others, more than needed; inſomuch, that to the Houſhold came every Day to Meat, 10,000 People, as appears by the Meſſes told out of the Kitchen to 300 Servitors.

Thus was this great Hall, for the Honour of the Prince, oftentimes furniſhed with Gueſts, not only in this King's Life-Time, (a prodigal Prince) but in the Time of others alſo, both before and ſince, though not ſo uſually noted. For when it was ſaid, the King held his Feaſt of Chriſtmas, or ſuch a Feaſt at Weſtminſter, it may well be ſuppoſed to be kept in this great Hall, as moſt ſufficient for ſuch a Purpoſe.

It is noted by Robert Fabian, the Chronicler, (ſome Time a Citizen and an Alderman of LONDON) that King Henry VII. in the 9th of his Reign, holding his Royal Feaſt of Chriſtmas at Weſtminſter, on the Twelfth-Day, feaſted Ralph Auſtry, then Mayor of LONDON, and his Brethren the Aldermen, with other Commoners in great Number: And, after Dinner, dubbing the Mayor Knight, cauſed him, with his Brethren, to ſtay and behold the Diſguiſings, and other Diſports, in the Night following, ſhewed in the great Hall, which was richly hanged with Arras, and ſtaged about on both Sides; which Diſports being ended in the Morning, the King, the Queen, the Ambaſſadors, and other Eſtates, being ſet at a Table of Stone, 60 Knights and Eſquires ſerved 60 Diſhes to the King's Meſs, and as many to the Queen's, (neither Fleſh nor Fiſh) and ſerved the Mayor with 24 Diſhes to his Meſs, of the ſame Manner, with ſundry Wines in moſt plenteous wiſe: And finally, the King and Queen being conveyed, with great Lights, into the Palace, the Mayor, with his Company in Barges, returned, and came to LONDON by Break of the next Day. Thus much for the building this great Hall, and feaſting therein.

At the upper End of this Hall was a long Marble Stone of 12 Feet in Length, and three Feet in Breadth. And there alſo was a Marble Chair, where the Kings of England formerly ſat at their Coronation-Dinners, and at other ſolemn Times, the Lord Chancellor; but now not to be ſeen, being built over by the two Courts of Chancery and King's-Bench. At this Marble Stone divers Matters uſed to be tranſacted. Here Henry de Cliff, Clerk of the Rolls, took his Oath in the Preſence of the Lord Chancellor.

It moreover appeared, that many Parliaments have been kept there; for it is noted, that in the the Year 1397, the great Hall at Weſtminſter being out of Repair, and therefore, as it were, new built by King Richard II. (as it is afore ſhewed;) the ſame King Richard, in the mean Time, having Occaſion to hold a Parliament, cauſed (for that Purpoſe) a large Houſe to be built in the Middle of the Palace-Court, betwixt the Clock-Tower and the Gate of the old great Hall. This Houſe was very large and long, made of Timber, covered with Tile, open on both Sides, and at both Ends, that all Men might ſee and hear what was both ſaid and done. The King's Archers, in Number 4000 Cheſhire Men, compaſſed the Houſe about with their Bows bent, and Arrows nocked in their Hands, always ready to ſhoot; they had Bouch of Court (viz. Meat and Drink) and great Wages of Six-Pence by the Day.

The old great Hall being new built, Parliaments were again there kept as before; namely, one in the Year 1399, for depoſing of King Richard II.

And now, of a long Time, the Place of the Sitting of the Parliament remains at the King's ſaid antient Palace; the Lords in a fair Room, and the Commons in that which was formerly St. Stephen's Chapel.

The Parliament is the higheſt and moſt abſolute Court of Record in the Kingdom; the Power and Authority thereof, a great Stateſman in former Times, as well as of excellent Learning and Knowledge in the Manner of the Government of England, thus ſets down: That which is done by this Conſent (viz. of the two Houſes, and the Prince himſelf, in Preſence of both Parties) is firm, ſtable, and ſanctum. It abrogates old Laws and makes new; gives Order for Things paſt, and for Things hereafter to be followed; changes Rights and Poſſeſſions of private Men; legitimates Baſtards; eſtabliſhes Forms of Religion; alters Weights and Meaſures; gives Forms of Succeſſion to the Crown; defines doubtful Rights, whereof is no Law already made; appoints Subſidies, Tailes, Taxes, and Impoſitions; gives moſt free Pardons and Abſolutions; reſtores in Blood and Name; and as the higheſt Court, condemns or abſolves them whom the Prince will put to that Trial. And, to be ſhort, all that the People of Rome might do, either in Centuriatis Comitiis, or Tributis, the ſame may be done by the Parliament of England, which repreſents and has the Power of the whole Realm, both the Head and the Body.

The Acts of Parliament, publick or private, are kept and remain in the Cuſtody of the Clerks of the Parliament.

A great Part of this Palace at Weſtminſter was once again burnt in the Year 1512, the 4th of Henry VIII. ſince which Time it has not been re-edified: Only the great Hall, with the Offices near adjoining, are kept in good Reparations, and ſerves, as afore it did, for Feaſts at Coronations, Arraignments of great Perſons charged with Treaſons, keeping of the Courts of Juſtice; but the Princes have been lodged in other Places about the City, as at Baynard's Caſtle, at Bridewell, and Whitehall (ſome Time called York-Place) and ſome Time at St. James's.

This Royal Hall has, of later Times, been uſed for the hanging up Trophies taken from the Enemy, in Sign of Victory. A noted Author ſays, he remembers when he was a Boy, that he ſaw the great Hall hung full on one Side with Colours and Standards taken from the Scots at Worceſter Fight; but upon King Charles II's coming to his juſt Right, all taken down.

On Wedneſday the 3d of January, 1704, were brought from the Tower, through the City, and paſſed by the Exchange about 'Change-Time, 34 Standards and 128 Colours, taken from the French at the Battle of Bleinheim in Bavaria, attended by Horſe-Grenadiers, one Troop, a Detachment of the Troop of Horſe-Guards, and many other Soldiers.

They were brought through Pall-Mall, and ſo through St. James's Park, where the Queen and his Royal Highneſs took a View of them, and ſo conveyed to Weſtminſter Hall, where they were hung up, and do fill both Sides of the Hall: The Motto's of ſome of them ſhewing the boaſting and ſomewhat blaſphemous French Spirit, were theſe:

Ingenito ſolem veneratur amore.
Jovis obruit Hoſtes.
Victoria pinget.
Arduus ad ſolem.
Alter poſt Fulmina Terror.
In Regnum pugnas.
Pugnatur pro Deo & Rege.
In lillii fortior.

This great Hall has been the uſual Place of Pleadings and Adminiſtration of Juſtice, whereof ſomewhat is to be noted.

In Times paſt, the Courts and Benches followed the King, whereſoever he went, as well ſince the Conqueſt as before, which Thing at length being thought cumberſome, painful, and chargeable to the People, it was in the Year 1224, the 9th of King Henry III. agreed that there ſhould be a Standing, or common Place appointed, where Matters ſhould be heard and judged, which was in the great Hall at Weſtminſter.

In this Hall he ordained three Judgment-Seats, viz. at the Entry on the Right Hand, the Common-Pleas, where Civil Matters are to be pleaded, eſpecially ſuch as touch Lands or Contracts. At the Upper End of the Hall, on the Left Hand, or South Eaſt Corner, the King's-Bench, where Pleas of the Crown have their Hearing: And on the Right Hand, or South Weſt Corner, ſits the Lord Chancellor, accompanied with the Maſter of the Rolls, and with certain other of the eleven Men (learned for the moſt Part in the Civil Law, and called Maſters of the Chancery) who have the King's Fee.

The Times of Pleading in the Courts are four in the Year, which are called Terms.

The firſt is Hilary Term, which begins the 23d of January, if it be not Sunday, and ends the 12th of February.

The ſecond is Eaſter Term, and begins 17 Days after Eaſter Day, and ends four Days after Aſcenſion Day.

The third Term begins ſix or ſeven Days after Trinity Sunday, and ends the Wedneſday Fortnight after.

The fourth is Michaelmas Term, which begins the 23d of October, if it be not Sunday, and ends the 28th of November.

And here it is to be noted, that the Kings of this Realm have uſed ſometimes to ſit in Perſon in the King's-Bench, namely, King Edward IV. in the Year 1462, in Michaelmas Term, ſat in the King's-Bench three Days together, in the open Court, to underſtand how his Laws were miniſtered and executed.

Within the Port or Entry into the Hall, on either Side, are Aſcendings up into large Chambers, without the Hall adjoining thereunto; wherein certain Courts are kept, namely, on the Right Hand is the Court of the Exchequer; a Place of Account for the Revenues of the Crown. The Hearers of the Account have Auditors under them; but they which are the Chief for Accounts of the Prince, are called Barons of the Exchequer, chequer, whereof one is called the Chief Baron; the greateſt Officer of all is called the High Treaſurer of England. In this Court are heard thoſe that are Delators (or Informers) in popular and penal Actions, having thereby Part of the Profit by the Law ſigned to them.

THE great Officers and Judges, and other Miniſters of this Court, are thus ſet down by that great Lawyer Coke, in his Inſtitutes.

I. The Lord Treaſurer of England; which Office he has by the Delivery of a White Staff, at the King's Will and Pleaſure; formerly by Delivery of Golden Keys. II. The Treaſurer of the Exchequer; this Office he has by Letters Parents. III. Chancellor of the Exchequer, that keeps the Seals. IV. Capital Baron, and the other Barons. V. The Under-Treaſurer; he names the two Praiſers of all Goods, ſeized, or not cuſtomed, and orders whether the Party ſhall have them at the Praiſe, or not: He appoints the Steward, Cook, and Butler, for the Proviſion of the Star-Chamber; and in the Vacancy of the Treaſurer, does all Things in the Receipt that the Treaſurer does.

THE Office of the Lord Treaſurer appears by his Oath, that ſtands in eight Articles. I. That well and truly he ſhall ſerve the King and his People, in the Office of Treaſurer. II. That he ſhall do Right to all Manner of People, Poor and Rich, of ſuch Things as concern his Office. III. The King's Treaſure he ſhall ſurely keep and diſpend. IV. He ſhall truly counſel the King. V. The King's Council he ſhall layn (an old French Word, to hide) and keep. VI. He ſhall neither know nor ſuffer the King's Hurt, nor his Diſheriting, nor that the Rights of the Crown be decreaſed by any Means. VII. That he may not let it, he ſhall make Knowledge thereof clearly and expreſly to the King. VIII. He ſhall do and purchaſe the King's Profit in all that he may reaſonably do.

OTHER Officers of this Court are theſe: I. The Chamberlains of the Exchequer: To this Office belongs one of the Door-Keepers of the Receipt. II. Comptroller of the Exchequer. III. Remembrancer of the King, of the Treaſury, of the Firſt-Fruits. IV. Clerk of the Pipe. V. Five Auditors of the King's Revenue; with many other Officers.

THERE is a Court of Equity in the Exchequer-Chamber; the Judges of this Court are, the Lord Treaſurer, the Chancellor, and the Barons of the Exchequer.

IN this Court of Exchequer, if any Queſtion be, it is determined after the Order of the Common Law of England, by twelve Men; and all Subſidies, Taxes, and Cuſtoms, by Account; for in this Office the Sheriffs of the Shire do attend upon the Execution of the Commandments of the Judges, which the Earl ſhould do, if he were not attending upon the Prince in the Wars, or otherwiſe about him; for the chief Office of the Earl was to ſee the King's Juſtice to have Courſe, and to be well executed in the Shire, and the Prince's Revenues to be well anſwered, and brought into the Treaſury.

IF any Fines and Amerciaments be extracted out of any of the ſaid Courts upon any Man, or any Arrearages of Accounts of ſuch Things as is of Cuſtoms, Taxes, and Subſidies, or other ſuch like Occaſions, the ſame Sheriff of the Shire does gather, and is anſwerable therefore in the Exchequer.

As for other ordinary Rents of Patrimonial Lands, and moſt commonly of Taxes, Cuſtoms, and Subſidies, there are particular Receivers and Collectors, which do anſwer it into the Exchequer.

THIS Court of Exchequer has, of old Time, (and ſince the Conqueſt) been kept at Weſtminſter; notwithſtanding ſometimes removed thence by Commandment of the King for a Time, and after reſtored again; as namely, in the Year 1209, King John commanded the Exchequer to be removed from Weſtminſter to Northampton, &c.

ON the Left Hand, above the Stairs, is the Dutchy Chamber, wherein is kept the Court for the Dutchy of Lancaſter, by a Chancellor of that Dutchy, and other Officers under him.

THE Chancellor is aſſiſted by his Majeſty's Attorney of that Court; and two Judges of the Common-Pleas adviſe them for Matter of Queſtion of Law. The Rolls and Records of this Court's Proceedings are in the Cuſtody of the Clerk of the ſame, to whoſe Office they do appertain; but the King's Evidences, Leaſes, and Grants of the Dutchy Land, as well his Poſſeſſion and Copyhold, as Fee-Simple and Fee-Farm, are in the Keeping of the Auditors, who are divers, but two moſt principal; one whereof for the Lands of the Dutchy on this Side Trent, and another for the Lands beyond Trent. There are divers Surveyors alſo of the Dutchy Lands, for the Survey of them.

THEN is there in another Chamber, the Office of the Receipts of the King's Revenue for the Crown.

THEN was there alſo the Star-Chamber, where, in Term-Time, once every Week at leaſt, which was commonly on Friday, and ſometimes alſo on Wedneſday, and on the next Day after the Term ends, the Lord Chancellor, and the Lords and other of the Privy-Council, and the two Chief Juſtices of England, from Nine o'Clock till Eleven did ſit, (but this Court is now diſſolved.) The Star-Chamber.

THIS Place was called the Star-Chamber, becauſe the Roof thereof was decked with the Likeneſs of Stars gilt. There were Plaints heard of Riots, Routs, and other Miſdemeanors, which, if they were found by the King's Council, the Party Offender was cenſured by theſe Perſons, which ſpoke one after another, and he was both fined and commanded to Priſon.

IT was ſo called, either by Derivation from the old Engliſh Word Steoran, which ſignifies to ſteer, or rule, as doth the Pilot of a Ship; becauſe the King and Council did ſit here, as it were, at the Stern, and did govern in the Ship of the Commonwealth: Some derive it from Stellio, which ſignifies that ſtarry and ſubtil Beaſt ſo called; from which comes the Word Stellionatus, that ſignifies Couſenage; becauſe that Crime was chiefly puniſhable in this Court by an extraordinary Power, as it was in the Civil Law; or, becauſe the Roof of this Court was garniſhed with gilded Stars, as the Room itſelf was ſtarry, or full of Windows and Lights: In which Reſpect, ſome of the Latin Records name it Camera Stellata; the French, Le Chambre Des Eſtoilles; and the Engliſh, The Starred Chamber.

THIS Starred Chamber antiently was the Council-Chamber, within the King's Palace of Weſtminſter, where the King's Council ſat; and here the Kings uſed to ſit perſonally in Council, being the ordinary Council-Chamber, whenſoever he did lie and ſojourn at his Palace at Weſtminſter, with Deliberation, as well of Matters of State, as for decreeing extraordinary Suits and Cauſes of Complaint.

THIS Court was of much antienter Erection than the Beginning of King Henry VII. in which ſome Men being much deceived, have aſſerted to be the firſt Original of it, becauſe of his Statue in his third Year concerning it.

IN former Time it was of great Uſe for puniſhing of Riots; and they were often committed by Noblemens or Gentlemens Servants, too common in thoſe Days, by Reaſon of Quarrels begun by their Lords and Maſters. For the remedying dying of which, Orders were made in this Court, in the Beginning of King Henry VII. by the King, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal here aſſembled, which was thus as it ſtood in the Record.

In Camera Stellata, An. 1° & 2° Regn. Reg. Henrici Septimi.

The KING.

Names of the Counſellors of the Spirituality.	Names of the Counſellors of the Temporality.
Elien, Wigorn, Norwicen, Lincoln, Mr. Fox, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Aynſworth, Mr. Baylie, Mr. Gunthorp,	Lincoln, Derby, Nottingh. Hunt. Liſley, Wellis, S. Jones, Ormond, Dinham, Beauchamp, De la War, Audley, Matrevers, Sir Tho. Bourchier, Doun, Joh. Gilford, Rich. Gilford, Bray, Lovel, Naunfaut, Ratcliff, Hody, Cornborough, Dymock, Toketts.

IT is concluded and agreed, That every Lord and Gentleman, if any of his Servants make a Riot, or other Exceſs, the Maſter of the ſame Treſpaſſer ſhall have in Commandment to bring forth the ſame Servant: And if he ſo do not, to abide ſuch Direction and Punition, as by the King and his Council ſhall be thought convenient. And over that, if the ſame Riot, or Exceſs ariſe by Cauſe or Occaſion of any Quarrel or Diſpleaſure concerning the Maſter of him that ſo exceedeth, the ſame Maſter ſhall anſwer for the ſame Exceſs ſuchwiſe as ſhall be thought to the King and his ſaid Council expedient.

ANOTHER Order to the ſame Purpoſe was made under Queen Elizabeth, thus:

In Cam. Stellat. coram Concil. ibm xxix° die Jan. An. xvi. Dne. ure. Elizabeth. Rne.

IT is ordered, That in all Matters of Riot hereafter, where the ſame is committed by the Servant by the Maſter's Procurement, or by any other principal Rioter, the Fine taxed upon the Servant, or him ſo procured, ſhall be paid by the Maſter, or principal Rioter; or elſe the Maſter or Principal ſhall bring forth the Servant, or Perſons ſo procured, to be committed to the Fleet for their Offence; which doing, they ſhall be diſcharged of the ſaid Fines, and the Servant or Perſon procured, ſhall remain in the Fleet, till he have found Sureties for his Fine ſo taxed into the Exchequer. And all Rioters convict not to be enlarged before their Fines paid, or Sureties put in for the Payment thereof, as before, into the Court of Exchequer.

AND as Cognizance was taken of Riots here, ſo alſo of Forgeries. Several Inſtances there were of the Puniſhment of Pillorizing Inflicted for this Crime by the Star-Chamber, in the Times of King Henry VIII. Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth.

THIS Court was held in the Terms, and the Star-Chamber Days in Hilary Term, were ſix; in Eaſter Term, eight; in Midſummer Term, ſix; and in Michaelmas Term, ſixteen.

WHEN this Court ſat, the Nobility, and Perſons of Quality, Judges of it, uſed commonly to dine together at the Prince's Coſt. In the Year 1587, the Queen's Charge for the Dinners were,

	l.	s.	d.
In Hilary Term	103	13	6
In Eaſter Term	138	04	8
In Midſummer Term	103	13	6
In Michaelmas Term	276	09	4
	622	01	0

THESE Expences were paid by the Under-Treaſurer, who appointed a Steward of the Star-Chamber; and he, among other Duties incumbent, had a Right to the Lord's Diet here, as belonging to his Office; and his Fee was payable out of the Receipt. The Names of ſome of theſe Stewards were:

Sebaſtian Hilary, an. 14 H. 8.
Richard Brown, an. 28 H. 8.
William Staunton, an. ult. Edw. 6.
John Dodington, an. 14 Eliz.
Francis Guilpin, an. 27 Eliz.

THEY had a Right to be continued in their Places, however the Under-Treaſurer was changed: Concerning which, when ſome Doubt was raiſed while Guilpin was Steward, a Preſcription was ſhewn of ſeventy Years in his Behalf. Let this ſuffice for this antient Court of Star-Chamber, now diſſolved.

THEN, at the upper End of the great Hall, by the King's Bench, going up to a great Chamber, called the Whitehall, was kept the Court of Wards and Liveries. This Court was founded 32 H. 8. and called, The Court of the King's Wards. The Office of the Livery was annexed to the Court of Wards, 33 H. 8. and adjoining thereto was the Court of Requeſts.

BOTH theſe are now diſſolved: But we ſhall ſay a few Words concerning this laſt named Court. In this, all Suits made to the King or Queen, by Way of Petition, were heard and ended. This was called alſo, The Poor Man's Court, becauſe there he ſhould have Right without paying any Money. And it was likewiſe called, The Court of Conſcience. The Judges of this Court were called, The Maſters of Requeſts, one for the Common Laws, and the other for the Civil Laws. Stow ſays, that he finds it was a Court of Equity, after the Nature of the Chancery, but inferior to it. There were Judges of it; commonly the Lord Privy Seal was Chief: And there were Maſters of Requeſts that were ordinary Judges. The Judges were commonly Divines, Civilians, Knights, and Gentlemen. This Court began 8 H. 7. For the Hearing of Cauſes in this Court, from the eighth Year of that King, and ſo downwards, ſome of the firſt were theſe:

The Biſhop of Bath, Privy Seal.	Warham, afterwards Archbiſhop.
The Biſhop of Roff. Elect.	Lovel.
Janne, afterwards Biſhop of Norwich.	Reed.
Baylie.	Dymock.
Middleton.	Mr. Arundel.
Blyth.	Guilford.

In the Ninth of Henry VII.

Lord Privy Seal.	Warham.
Dean of the Chapel.	Richard Bray, Knt.
Lord Daubeney.	Empſon.

THE ſame Year of the King there was a Change, and others appointed, viz.

Lord

Lord Privy Seal.	Lord Steward.
Biſhop of Sarum.	Bray.
Biſhop of Roff.	Lovel.
Dean of the Chapel.	Reed.

THE ſame ninth Year of the King they were changed again; that is, as it ſeems, for another Term, viz.

Keeper of the Privy Seal.	Earl of Kent.
Biſhop of Sarum.	Bray.
Biſhop of Rocheſter.	Lovel.
Dean of the Chapel.	Reed.
Dr. Sheffield.	Mordaunt.
Dr. Mayowe.

AGAIN, the ſame ninth Year, another Set of Judges of the Requeſts, viz.

Biſhop of Bath, who was Lord Privy Seal.	L. Dawbeney.
	L. De Brooke.
Biſhop of Exeter.	L. Will. Huſſey.
Biſhop of Roff.	Rob. Reed.
Lord Prior of St. John's of Jeruſalem.	John Kingſmel.
	Dr. Janne.
Andrew Dymock.	Dr. Ainſworth.
Reginald Bray, Rich. Guilford, Tho. Lovel, } Milites continui	Dr. Warham.

COMMONLY the Court-Biſhops and Chaplains, and other great Courtiers, were theſe Judges and Maſters.

HERE is now the Houſe of Lords, where the Lords Spiritual and Temporal meet and ſit in Parliament-Time.

ADJOINING to the Houſe of Lords are the Princes Chambers. Here was the firſt Meeting of the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty for the Augmentation of poor Livings. Who theſe Governors are, appears from the ſaid Queen's Letters Patents, dated Nov. 3, 1704, whereby ſhe incorporated all the Lords of her Privy Council, the Lords Lieutenants, and Cuſtodes Rotulorum, the Biſhops, and all Deans of Cathedrals in the Kingdom of England, the Judges, and Queen's Council learned in Law, the Chancellors and Vice-Chancellors of both Univerſities, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON, and all Mayors of Cities in the Kingdom of England, by the Name and Title of, The Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne, for the Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy.

UNDER the Hall are certain ſubterraneous Apartments, which are called, one Paradiſe, and another Hell; conſiſting of Tenements, Houſes, and Manſions: Which, with other Tenements and Lands, were held in King Edward VI's Days by one William Fryes. Theſe were given by that King to Sir Andrew Dudley, Brother to the Great Duke of Northumberland, with other Lands and Tenements in Weſtminſter, to him, for the Term of his Life, An. Regn. 3. in Conſideration of Services.

BESIDES this Treaſury for Money, there was within the Palace another Treaſury of Records, relating to the Kingdom's publick Affairs, preſerved in certain Chambers and Rooms. Here are repoſited many antient and precious Records. As within the Place called particularly, The Treaſury, where once the Court of Wards was kept, are the Records of Leagues with the Realms of Arragon, Flanders, Germany, and ſome of France, and other Places. Alſo, there are many Records relating to the caſting off the Biſhop of Rome's Authority in this Kingdom of England; and the Subſcriptions of almoſt all the Prieſts of the Realm to the King's Supremacy: And the Books of the Orders of St. George and St. Michael: The Covenants of Marriage between King Philip and Queen Mary; and ſundry Books of foreign Accounts, and other Matters of State.

ALSO, within the Abbey of Weſtminſter (that we may lay theſe Things together) there was an older Treaſury than that of the Palace, which was called, The Old Treaſury, a Place always deſigned for the Cuſtody of the Leagues of the Kingdom. It was vaulted with Stone, and had Cheſts and Preſſes that were empty.

THERE is alſo another Treaſury within the Abbey of Weſtminſter, vaulted alſo with Stone, and ſo out of Danger of Fire, but it wanted Reparation both in Glaſs and Lead. Here were kept all, or the moſt Part of the Records of the King's Bench and Common-Pleas, Fines, Writs, and Aſſizes, of all the Kings ſince the Conqueſt, until the moſt Part of the Reign of King Henry VII. fairly arrayed up in Cheſts for that Purpoſe.

ALSO in the Cuſtody of the Lord Treaſurer and the Chamberlain of the Exchequer, were abundance of Records in Bags; as Records of Pleas and Preambulations, and Inquiſitions of Foreſts; Records of many Mens Lands in the Realm of England and Wales; as namely, Court Rolls, Auditors Accounts, Accounts of ſundry French Counties; alſo Deeds of Purchaſe, made by ſundry of Queen Elizabeth's Progenitors, for ſundry their Honours, Manors, and Lands.

CONCERNING theſe Records, &c. it was moved for the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, by ſome certain Perſon well verſed in them, that whereas theſe were put up in Bags together confuſedly, whereby, when a Search was made among them, it was an eaſy Matter for a Stranger, finding a Roll, or Leaf, inconvenient and againſt them, to convey it away, as it ſeemed the like had been done; which could not be miſſed, becauſe there was no certain Note how many Rolls there be: And furthermore, the often toſſing, ruffling, ſearching, and lapping up of the ſame Rolls, had ſo ſoiled and worn many of them, as they could not be well read: For avoiding of which Inconveniencies, it might pleaſe his Lordſhip to appoint one to peruſe the ſame Rolls, and to array them into Shires and certain Foreſts; and the ſame to put into Bags ſeverally, writing thereon the Country, the Foreſt, and the Number of Rolls, and how many Leaves every Roll contains; that this would be a great Preſevation of them, and a ready Help to find any Thing, upon Commandment of the Court of Exchequer, or otherwiſe upon Occaſion: The ſame Perſon adviſed, that the old Records remaining in the Palace Treaſury, being a Place ſubject to Danger of Fire, might be removed thence into the old Treaſury within the Palace of Weſtminſter, a Place deſigned for the Cuſtody of the ſame, and where they might be more ſecure, being vaulted with Stone.

THE Original Paper, wherein the aforeſaid Motion was made to the Treaſurer (which was Anno 1573) may deſerve to be here inſerted, viz.

Matters mooſt neceſſary to move the Right Honorable my Lord Theaſarour, and the Chamberleynes of Theſchequier in, for the reducynge of her Majeſties Records, being in theire Cuſtodie, into muche bettre Suretie, and ſpeedier Redynes in ſearch, upon Commandment, &c.

IMprimis, That the Records of Leagues with the Realmes of Arragon, Flaunders, Germanie, ſome of Fraunce, with others now remeyinge in the Theaſaurie within the Pallaice of Weſtminſter (wheere the Courte of Wardes was) beinge ſubjecte to the Daunger of Fyre, maye be removed into th' olde Theaſaurye within the

Abbaye

Abbaye of Weſtminſter, a Place always deſigned for the Cuſtodie of the ſame Leagues, and vaulted with Stone, whereby that ſemithe (yf it ſo pleaſe God) that theye be without Danger of Fire, and where there is Rome enough for them in Cheſts and Preſſes that be now emptye.

Alſo, there are in the ſame Theaſaurie in the Pallaice, ſundrye Records, mentyoninge the deposinge of the Biſhop of Rome; and Bookes of Subſcription of the mooſte Part of the Preeſtes thoroughe the Realme to the Kinges Supremacye, &c. Alſo Books of the Order of St. George and St. Michael. The Covenauntes of Marriage betwixt Kinge Philip and Queen Marie, with other Mattres of States, which weere very needfull to be calendred, and to be layed up in the Theſaurye among the Leagues, for their bettre Suertye.

Alſo, there are certeyne old Fynes in the Cuſtodie of Cirographer at Bridewel Church, there kept ſecreatlie, where in Righte the ſame Fynes ought to be in the keeping of the Lorde Theſarour, and the Chamberlynes of Theſchequier: In which Reſpect yt myght pleaſe your Lordſhip to call the ſaid Cirographer before you; and to know by what Righte he keapeth the ſame; and thereupon to geve Order for their Removings, if it ſhall ſo ſeme convenient and lawfull.

Alſo, it appeareth by Indentures and Writtes, remeyninge in the Cuſtodie of the ſaid Lord Theſaurour and Chamberleynes Deputies, that the Records of the King's-Bench and Common-Pleas, Fynes, Writtes and Aſſyze, ought to be in the Cuſtodie of the ſaid L. Theſaurour and Chamberleynes; and according to the ſame, are all, or the mooſte Parte of the laſt ſaid Records of all the Kings ſince the Conqueſt, untill the mooſt Part of the Reigne of King Henry VII. in the keaping aforeſaid, in another Theſaurie, within the Abbaye of Weſtminſter, faire arrayed up in Cheſtes for that Purpoſe, where there is Rome enough in Cheſtes provyded for the reſte, if they might be brought in. The ſame Theſaurie is alſo vaulted with Stone, whereby the ſaid Records ſhould be in gretter Saifetie. It wanteth Reparatyons both in Glaſſe and Leade. It may pleaſe your Lordſhip to have ſpedie Regarde thereunto.

Alſo, where the Recordes of Pleas, Perambulations, and Inquiſicyons of Forreſtes, are preſentlie put al up together into Bagges, confuſedlie, whereby when a Searche is made amongſte them, it is an eaſy Thinge for a Straunger, fynding a Role or Leaf, inconvenynt, and agaynſt him, to conveye yt awaye, (as yt ſemethe the like hath bene done) which cannot be miſſed, becauſe there is no certen Note how many Roles there bee, &c.

And furthermore, the often toſſing, rufflynge, ſearchinge, and lappinge up of the ſame Roles, hath, in Effect, ſo obfuſked and worne many of them, as they cannot be well red: For avoiding of which Inconveniences, if yt pleaſe your Lordſhip to appointe one to peruſe the ſame Roles, and to araye them into Shires and certen Forreſtes; and the ſame to be put into Baggs ſeverallye, wrytynge thereon the Countye, the Forreſte, and Nombre of the Roles, and how manye Leaves every Role conteyneth: This (we ſaye) would not only bee a great Preſervacyon of the ſame Records, when no mo Roles ſhould bee opened than concerned the Forreſtes, which ſhould be ſearched, but alſo would be a redye Helpe to fynde any Thing upon Commaundemente of the Courte of the Eſchequier, or otherwyſe upon Occacyon.

Alſo, there are ſoundrye Records of many Mens Lands in the Realme of England and Wales, as namelye, Court Roles, Auditors Accompts and Parcos, Miſes, Accomptes of ſoundrye Frenche Counties; and alſo Deeds of Purchaſe, made by ſoundrye the Queens Majeſtie Progenitowrs, for ſoundrye their Honours, Manours and Lands, which were very convenyent to be peruſed, and a Repertorie thereof to be made for the ſpedie fynding thereof upon Commaundement.

The lyke to be donne with ſoundrye Books of Forreyne Accompts, remeyninge in the foreſaid Theſaurie in the Pallayce.

Alſo, it appearethe by ſoundrye Recordes, remeyninge in the ſaid Theſaurie, that there hathe bene geven Allowance unto the Clerkes and Deputies of the ſaid Lord Theſaurour and Chamberleynes, for the arrayinge and removing of the Recoordes of the Tower, and now latelye in Queen Marie's Tyme, the old Lord Stafforde (beyng one of the Chamberleynes of Th'eſcheſquier) complained unto the Councell, that in Mr. Boyer's Time certen of the ſame Records in the Tower were imbecelled, alledging how dangerous a Thing it is to the Queen and to the Realme, that the ſame were under one Kaye: whereupon the ſaid Lord Stafforde had a Kaye appointed him with Mr. Boyer, which he kept a longe Tyme.

WITHIN this Palace alſo, towards the South Weſt Side of it, was the Augmentation Office, occaſioned by a Court of Augmentations, which was ſet up by Act of Parliament, upon the Diſſolution of Monaſteries, whereby thoſe religious Houſes, and the Revenues of them were granted to the King. In this Office, being an antient capacious Place, are kept all the Deeds, Inſtruments and original Writings belonging to the Abbeys, Priories, &c. and the ſeveral Surrenders and Reſignations of the reſpective Abbots and Priors, with the Values of the Lands and Rents of thoſe Foundations; whence much Light may be given into Church Lands, Vicarages, and ſuch like.

THIS Court of Augmentations was erected by Authority of Parliament, 27 Henry VIII. conſiſting of a Chancellor, Treaſurer, Attorney and Solicitor, and all Lands, &c. belonging to the Monaſteries, and purchaſed Lands, were within the Survey and Governance of this Court. This was diſſolved, and a new Court of Augmentations was erected by the Letters Patents of the King, 38 H. VIII. Q. Mary, in the firſt of her Reign, did, by Letters Patents dated Jan. 23, diſſolve the ſaid Court, according to Power given her by Act of Parliament holden the ſame Year: And the next Day, by other Letters Patents, united the ſame to the Exchequer, which was utterly void, becauſe ſhe had diſſolved the ſame before: And ſo reſolved all the Judges, Dier. 4. Eliz. 16.

St. STEPHEN's Chapel.

THEN for St. Stephen's Chapel, of old Time founded by King Stephen; King John, in the ſeventh of his Reign, granted to Baldwinus de London, Clerk of his Exchequer, the Chapelſhip of St. Stephen's at Weſtminſter, &c.

This Chapel was again ſince, of a far more curious Workmanſhip, new built by King Edward III. in the Year 1347, for thirty eight Perſons, in that Church, to ſerve God; to wit, a Dean, twelve ſecular Canons, thirteen Vicars, four Clerks, five Choriſters, two Servitors; to wit, a Verger, and a Keeper of the Chapel. He built [Lodgings] for them from the Houſe of Receipt, along nigh to the Thames, within the ſame Palace, there to inhabit. And ſince that, there were alſo Building for them, betwixt the Clock-Houſe and the Wool-ſtaple, called the Wey-Houſe, ſtill called Chanon-Row.

[Philip, Wife of this King, alſo was a great Benefactor to the Chanons of this Chapel.]

HE alſo built to the Uſe of this Chapel (tho' out of the Palace Court) ſome Diſtance Weſt, in the little Sanctuary, a ſtrong Clochard of Stone and Timber, covered with Lead, and placed therein three great Bells, ſince uſually rung at Coronations, Triumphs, Funeral of Princes, and their Obits. Of thoſe Bells Men fabuled, that their Ringing ſowred all the Drink in the Town. More, that about the biggeſt of which was written;

King Edward made mee
thirty thouſand and three Take me down and weigh mee, and more ſhall ye find mee.

BUT theſe Bells being taken down indeed, were found all three not to weigh twenty Thouſand.

THE ſaid King Edward endowed this Chapel with Lands to the yearly Value of five hundred Pounds. Doctor John Chambers, the King's Phyſician, the laſt Dean of this College, built thereunto a Cloiſter of curious Workmanſhip, to the Charges of eleven thouſand Marks. This Chapel, or College, at the Suppreſſion, was valued to diſpend, in Lands, by the Year, One thouſand eighty five Pounds, ten Shillings, five Pence, and was ſurrendered to King Edward VI.

THERE is to be ſeen in the Monaſticon, King Edward III's Charter for St. Stephen's Chapel: And by Patent, dated 22. of his Reigns he gave it to his great Houſe in Lumbard-ſtreet, LONDON, with ſome Advouſons. By another Patent, 32. of his Reign, he gave the Dean and Canons a Tower in Bokelesbury, LONDON, called Sewtes Tour, with the Appurtenances. In the 43. of his Reign, he gave them another Houſe in LONDON, called The Reol. And in further Augmentation of the ſaid Foundation, he granted them all the Ground from the ſaid Chapel Northward, to the Receipt of the Exchequer, between Weſtminſter-Hall and the Thames, for making a Cloiſter and other neceſſary Buildings; with free Entrance Day and Night at the Gate adjoyning to the King's Bridge: Alſo a Chamber within the ſaid Gate, formerly belonging to his Clerk of the Kitchen, with the Houſes formerly uſed for Stables of War-Horſes, and other Horſes; and with a free Paſſage to the ſaid Chapel, by Day-light, through the Great Hall. And laſtly, he exempted the ſaid Dean and Canons, and all their Lands, from the Payment of any Aids or Taxes whatſoever. Richard II. compleated the full Endowments of this College, by ſettling on it divers Lands and Manours in Kent, according to the Direction and Deſire of his Grandfather in his Teſtament.

IT was called The Free Chapel of St. Mary the Virgin and St. Stephen. The Dean was commonly of great Confidence with the King, and often preferred to ſome Biſhoprick. Such was Sampſon, Biſhop of Litchfield and Coventry. It was richly endowed, but the Revenues were made away, and alienated upon the Diſſolution of religious Houſes. Among which was a Meſſuage, called The Helmet, in King's-ſtreet, belonging to it, which was granted to Richard Audely and John Rede, in the 2. Edw. VI. There were alſo certain Manours and Lordſhips belonging to it, called The Manours and Lordſhip of Eſſhetisford, alias Aſſheford in the County of Kent; which, with other Lands, were ſold to Sir Anthony Aucher and Henry Polſtred, Eſquires, in 3. Edward VI.

SINCE the Diſſolution, the ſame Chapel hath ſerved as a Parliament-Houſe: The High Court of Parliament, conſiſting of Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes of Parliament, was formerly in the Chapter-Houſe of the Abbot of Weſtminſter: And this continued till the Statute of 1. Edw. VI. which gave to the King Colleges, Free-Chapels, &c. Whereby the King enjoyed to his own Uſe this antient Free-Chapel of St. Stephen. Since which Time it hath ſerved, by the King's Permiſſion, for the Houſe of Commons to ſit in.

BY this Chapel of St. Stephen was ſome Time one other ſmaller Chapel, called, Our Lady of the Piew: To the which Lady, great Offerings were uſed to be made. Amongſt other Things, King Richard II. upon the Coming of the Rebel Wat Tyler, with his Rout of Kentiſh Men in Arms to LONDON, went firſt to Weſtminſter, to the High Altar there, and offered; and, after that, confeſſed himſelf to an Anchorite, and then betook himſelf to this Chapel of our Lady in the Piew, and there ſaid his Devotions, and then went to Smithfield to meet this Fellow and his Company.

AFTER the Overthrow of Wat Tyler, and other the Rebels, in the fourth of his Reign, he went to Weſtminſter, and there giving Thanks to God for his Victory, made his Offering in this Chapel; but, as divers have noted, namely, John Pigot, in the Year 1252, on the 17th of February, by Negligence of a Scholar, appointed by his School-maſter to put forth the Lights of this Chapel, the Image of our Lady, richly decked with Jewels, precious Pearls and Rings, more than any Jeweller could judge the Price of, (for ſo ſays my Author) was all this Apparel, Ornaments, and Chapel itſelf, burnt; but ſince again re-edified by Anthony Earl Rivers, Lord Scales, and the Iſle of Wight, Uncle and Governor to the Prince of Wales, that ſhould have been King Edward V. &c.

THERE is a Warrant from King Richard III. to this Tenor: Sir John Cave, Prieſt, Keeper of our Lady of Piew, an Annuity of ten Marks, until the Time he be better promoted.

IN the Paſſage out of Weſtminſter-hall into the Old Palace-yard, a little beyond the Stairs going up to St. Stephen's Chapel, (now the Parliament-Houſe) on the Left Hand, was the Houſe belonging to the antient and noble Family of the Cottons; wherein was kept a moſt ineſtimable Library of Manuſcript Volumes, famed both at Home and Abroad. The Cotton Library.

THIS choice Library in Cotton-houſe, had for its firſt Founder Sir Robert Cotton, of Connington in the County of Huntingdon, Bart. who, at his own great Charge and Expence, and by the Aſſiſtance of moſt learned Antiquaries of the Time, collected and purchaſed (as it runs in the Act for the Settlement of this Library) the moſt uſeful Manuſcripts, written Books, Papers, Parchments, Records, and other Materials in moſt Languages; of great Uſe and Service for the Knowledge and Preſervation of our Conſtitution both in Church and State. Which Manuſcripts, and other Writings, were procured as well from the Parts beyond the Seas, as from ſeveral private Collectors of ſuch Antiquities within the Realm, and are generally eſteemed the beſt Collection of its Kind now any where extant.

THERE was therefore, for the Preſervation of it for After-times, an Act of Parliament, made 12 and 13 Will. 3. for ſettling and preſerving the ſaid Library in the Houſe at Weſtminſter, called Cotton-houſe, in the Name and Family of the Cottons, for the Benefit of the Publick. This Library hath been preſerved with the utmoſt Care and Diligence, by the late Sir Tho. Cotton, Son of Sir Robert, and Sir John Cotton of Weſtminſter, his his Grandſon; and very much augmented and enlarged by them. The ſaid Sir John, in Purſuance of the Deſire and Intention of his Father and Grandfather, was content and willing that the ſaid Manſion-Houſe and Library ſhould continue in the Family and Name, and not be ſold, or otherwiſe diſpoſed and imbezzeled; and ſhould be kept and preſerved by the Name of the Cottonian Library, for publick Uſe and Advantage.

And ſo, by the ſaid Act, immediately upon the Death of Sir John Cotton, it was, together with the Manſion-Houſe, Garden, &c. ſettled and veſted in Truſtees, who were to take Care of the ſaid Library, and appoint Orders and Rules for the reading and uſing the ſame, and for the better Preſervation of Books: And to nominate and appoint a good and ſufficient Perſon, well read in Antiquities and Records, to have the immediate Care and Cuſtody of it, and to give Security to the Value of 500 l. by Recognizance with certain Sureties, that none of the Manuſcripts, written Books, &c. ſhould be loſt or imbezzeled; and likewiſe to take an Oath before the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, to uſe his utmoſt Care and Endeavour for preſerving the ſame. That the ſaid Houſe, with the Appurtenances and Library, be never ſubject or liable to any Judgments, Statutes, Recognizances, or any other Incumbrances. The Truſtees to be the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper for the Time being, the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons for the Time being, Sir Robert Cotton of Hatley, St. George in the County of Cambridge, Knt. Philip Cotton of Connington in the ſame County, Eſq; Robert Cotton of Giddin in Huntingdonſhire, and William Handbury of the Inner Temple, LONDON, Eſqrs; And in Caſe of the Deceaſe of the laſt four Perſons, the ſaid John Cotton, or other Heir Males of the ſaid Family, who ſhall be in Poſſeſſion of the Manſion Houſe, ſhall nominate or appoint one or more fit Perſons to ſucceed him or them. And that all Bargains, Sales, Gifts, Grants, Deviſes, or other Alienations whatſoever, of any of the Manuſcripts, Parchments, &c. or other Memorials, in the Schedule now remaining in the ſaid Library; and alſo all Coins, Medals, and other Rarities, therein contained, are hereby declared to be abſolutely void, and of none Effect. That within ſix Months after the Library-Keeper ſhall undertake the ſaid Office, he ſhall cauſe another Schedule to be made in Parchment, which ſhall contain the Names and Titles of all the ſaid Manuſcripts, &c. and all the Number of Pages and Folio's thereunto belonging, and cauſe the ſame to be enrolled in the High Court of Chancery.

There was a new Catalogue of this Library printed at the Oxford Theatre, Anno 1696, from a careful and ſerious Review thereof, taken by Tho. Smith, D. D. prefixing the Life of Sir Robert Cotton, the learned Founder, and an Hiſtory and Survey of the ſaid Library.

The ſaid Palace, before the Entry thereunto, had a large Court, and in the ſame a Tower of Stone, containing a Clock, which ſtruck every Hour on a great Bell, to be heard into the Hall in Sitting-time of the Courts, or otherwiſe: For the ſame Clock, in a Calm, could be heard into the City of LONDON. King Henry VI. gave the Keeping of this Clock, with the Tower, called The Clock-houſe, and the Appurtenances, unto William Walsby, Dean of St. Stephen's, with the Wages of Six-pence the Day, out of his Exchequer.

It was firſt built and furniſhed with a Clock out of a Fine which one Juſtice Ingham was obliged to pay, being 800 Marks, for eraſing a Roll: For that a poor Man being fined in an Act of Debt at 13 s. 4 d. the ſaid Juſtice, moved with Pity, cauſed the Roll to be eraſed, and made it 6 s. 8 d. This Caſe Juſtice Southcote remembered, when Catlyn, Chief Juiſtce of the King's Bench in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, would have ordered a Raſure of a Roll; Southcote; being one of the Judges of that Court, utterly denied to aſſent to it, and ſaid openly, That he meant not to build a Clock-houſe.

By this Tower ſtood a Fountain, which, at Coronations and great Triumphs, was made to run with Wine out of divers Spouts.

On the Eaſt Side of this Court was an arched Gate to the River Thames, with a fair Bridge and Landing-place, for all Men that had Occaſion.

On the North Side was the South End of St. Stephen's-alley, or Chanon-row, and alſo a Way into the Old Wool Staple: And on the Weſt Side was a handſome Gate, began by K. Richard III. in the Year 1484, and was by him built a great Height, and many good Lodgings in it; but left unfiniſhed, and was called, The High Tower at Weſtminſter.

In the Palace-yard were antiently Pales, within which were two Meſſes, the one called Paradiſe, and the other called the Conſtabulary; both which were granted to John Duke of Bedford, 13 Hen. 6.

The Keeper of the Palace of Weſtminſter was alſo cuſtomarily the Keeper of the Priſon of the Fleet. This Place Edmund de Cheny had granted to him, with the Fee, 5 and 13 Edw. 3.

Thus much for the Monaſtery and Palace may ſuffice. And now we will ſpeak of the Gate-houſe, and of Tothill-ſtreet, ſtretching from the Weſt Part of the Cloſe.

The Gate-houſe is ſo called of two Gates, the one out of the College-Court toward the North, on the Eaſt Side whereof was the Biſhop of LONDON's Priſon, for Clerks convict: And the other Gate adjoining to the firſt; but towards the Weſt, is a Jail or Priſon, for Offenders thither committed. Walter Warfield, Cellerer to the Monaſtery, cauſed both theſe Gates (with the Appurtenances) to be built in the Reign of King Edward III.

On the South Side of this Gate, King Henry VII. founded an Alms-houſe for thirteen poor Men, one of them to be a Prieſt aged five and forty Years, a good Grammarian; the other 12 to be aged fifty Years, without Wives. Every Saturday the Prieſt to receive of the Abbot, or Prior, four Pence by the Day, and each other two Pence Half-penny by the Day for ever, for their Suſtenace: And every Year to each one a Gown and a Hood ready made. And to three Women that dreſſed their Meat, and kept them in their Sickneſs, each to have every Saturday ſixteen Pence, and every Year a Gown ready made. More to the thirteen poor Men yearly fourſcore Quarters of Coals, and one thouſand of good Faggots to their Uſe. In the Hall and Kitchen of their Manſion, a diſcreet Monk to be Overſeer of them, and he to have forty Shillings by the Year, &c. And hereunto was every Abbot and Prior ſworn.

And the ſaid King, in his laſt Will, mentioning this Hoſpital, aſſured to the Abbot and Convent of Weſtminſter, for the Maintenance thereof, in Lands, to the yearly Value of one thouſand Marks.

Near this Houſe Weſtward was an old Chapel of St. Anne, over-againſt which the Lady Margaret, Mother to King Henry VII. erected an Alms-houſe for poor Women. Which was afterwards turned into Lodgings for the ſinging Men of the College. The Place wherein this Chapel and Alms-houſe ſtandeth, was called the Eleemoſinary or Almonry, now corruptly the Ambry; for that the Alms of the Abbey are there diſtributed to the Poor.

And

AND therein Iſlip, Abbot of Weſtminſter, firſt practiſed, and erected the firſt Preſs of Book-Printing that ever was in England, about the Year of Chriſt 1471. W. Caxton, Citizen of LONDON, Mercer, brought it into England, and was the firſt that practiſed it in the ſaid Abbey. After which Time, the like was practiſed in the Abbeys of St. Auguſtine at Canterbury, St. Alban's, and other Monaſteries.

FROM the Weſt Gate runneth along Tothill-Street. Wherein was a Houſe of the Lord Gray of Wilton; and on the other Side, at the Entry into Totehill Field, Stourton Houſe, which Giles, the laſt Lord Dacre of the South, purchaſed and built new. Whoſe Lady and Wife Anne, (Siſter to Thomas Lord Buckhurſt) left Money to her Executors, to build an Hoſpital for 20 poor Women, and ſo many Children to be brought up under them; for whoſe Maintenance ſhe aſſigned Lands, to the Value of one hundred Pounds by the Year. Which Hoſpital her Executors built in the Field adjoining.

FROM the Entry into Totehill Field, the Street is called Petty France: In which, and upon St. Hermit's Hill, on the South Side thereof, Cornelius van Dun (a Brabander born, Yeoman of the Guard to King Henry VIII. King Edward VI. Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth) built twenty Houſes for poor Women to dwell, Rent-free: And near hereunto was a Chapel of Mary Magdalen, now wholly ruinated.

IN the Year of Chriſt 1256, the 40th of Henry III. John Manſell, the King's Counſellour, and a Prieſt, did invite to a ſtately Dinner the Kings and Queens of England and Scotland, Edward the King's Son, Earls, Barons, and Knights, the Biſhop of LONDON, and divers Citizens. Whereby his Gueſts did grow to ſuch a Number, that his Houſe at Tothill could not receive them, but that he was forced to ſet up Tents and Pavilions, to receive his Gueſts; whereof there was ſuch a Multitude, that ſeven hundred Meſſes of Meat did not ſerve for the firſt Dinner.

THERE was antiently an Houſe in Weſtminſter, called The Mote, (but where it ſtood is not known at preſent); it is called in the Records, Le Mote in Villa de Weſtminſter, granted to John Stonere, 13 Rich. 2.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Government of the City of WESTMINSTER.

THE City of Weſtminſter, for Civil Government, is divided into twelve ſeveral Wards: For the which, the Dean of the Collegiate Church of Weſtminſter, or the High Steward, do elect twelve Burgeſſes, and as many Aſſiſtants, that is, one Burgeſs, and one Aſſiſtant, for every Ward. Out of the which twelve Burgeſſes, two are nominated yearly, upon Thurſday in Eaſter Week, for Chief Burgeſſes, to continue for one Year next following, who have Authority given them by the Act of Parliament in the 27th of Queen Elizabeth, to hear, examine, determine, and puniſh, according to the Laws of the Realm, and lawful Cuſtoms of the City of LONDON, Matters of Incontinency, common Scolds, Inmates, and common Annoyances; and likewiſe to commit ſuch Perſons as ſhall offend againſt the Peace, and thereof to give Notice within twenty-four Hours to ſome Juſtice of Peace within the County of Middleſex.

WE ſhall give ſome farther Account of this Government, particularly as it was in the Days of Queen Elizabeth: The Burgeſſes, which were alſo called Headboroughs, and their Aſſiſtants, Anſwer to the Aldermen of the Wards of LONDON, and their reſpective Deputies. The Wards belonging to each Burgeſs or Headborough were not called as they are in LONDON, by ſome certain fixed Name, but after the Names of the Burgeſſes that were appointed over them. And here we ſhall firſt ſhew how the twelve Wards of Weſtminſter were bounded, and the Conſtables belonging to each; and then the Manner of chuſing Burgeſſes, and their Aſſiſtants, with other Officers, for the better governing of the Wards.

IN St. Margaret's Pariſh were eight Wards; in St. Martin's, three; and in St. Clement's and the Strand, one; which were thus bounded, beginning with thoſe in St. Margaret's Pariſh: The firſt Ward was from St. Stephen's Alley to the Sanctuary Gate on the Eaſt Side of King-Street, the Round Woolſtaple only excepted. Of this Ward John Dodington, Gent. was Headborough; and it was commonly called John Dodington's Ward. The ſecond Ward was from the Clowſon to the Sanctuary Gate, on the Weſt Side of the ſame Street, and St. Stephen's Alley. Of this Ward John Fiſher, Yeoman, was Headborough, and commonly called John Fiſher's Ward. The third Ward was from the Queen's Majeſty's Gate in King-ſtreet to the Clowſon on the Weſt Part, and to St. Stephen's Alley on the Eaſt Part of the ſaid Street. Of this Ward, William Staunton, Gent. was Headborough, and commonly called William Staunton's Ward. The fourth Ward was Thieving-lane and Longditch. Of this Ward, John Savage, Yeoman, was Headborough, and it was commonly called John Savage's Ward. The fifth Ward was the new Palace, and Long Woolſtaple. Of this Ward, Richard Garret, Ale-brewer, was Headborough, and it was called Richard Garret's Ward. The ſixth Ward was the Old Palace, Round Woolſtaple, and the Bowling-alley. John Jennings, Inn-keeper, was Headborough of this Ward, and it was called John Jennings's Ward. The ſeventh Ward was Tothill-ſtreet, and Petty France. Thomas Clarke, Cook and Servant to her Majeſty, was Headborough of this Ward, and called it Thomas Clarke's Ward. The eighth Ward was the Sanctuary. This Ward was called the Sanctuary Ward. John Collier was called Headborough of this Ward. And then there were three Wards more in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, and the Headboroughs were as follow: The firſt Ward here, being the Ninth in Number, was from the Manſion-Houſe of John Shortridge, called the Goats's-head, unto the Houſe of Thomas Fowel, over-againſt Durham-place, on the Land-ſide, and from the Houſe of Robert Mansfield, over-againſt St. Martin's-lane, unto Durham-place on the Water-ſide. Of this Ward, Ward, Thomas Fowler, Gent. was Headborough, and it was Thomas Fowler's Ward. The ſecond Ward in this Pariſh, being the tenth Ward in the City of Weſtminſter, was from the Houſe of Thomas Fowel, over-againſt Durham-place unto the Lord Treaſurer Burghley's Houſe, on the Land-ſide; and from Durham-place unto Ivy-Bridge, on the Water-ſide of this Ward; John Colbrand, Gent. was Headborough, and it was called John Colbrand's Ward. The third Ward in this Pariſh, being the eleventh in Number, was from the Goat's-head aforeſaid unto the Mews on the Land-ſide; and from the Mews to the Timber-yard on the Land-ſide; and from the ſaid Mansfield-houſe unto the Wall called Scotland-wall, on the Water-ſide; of this Ward, Davy Powel, Gent. was Headborough.

The twelfth and laſt Ward was in the Pariſh of St. Clement's and Strand, within the Liberty of Weſtminſter. The Bounds of this Ward were from Temple-bar to the White Hart in the Strand. Chriſtopher Gibſon, Inn-keeper, was the Headborough of this Ward, and it was called as the reſt, by his Name, viz. Chriſtopher Gibſon's Ward.

To this City and Liberties belong one High Conſtable, and to theſe twelve Wards thirty Petty Conſtables; that is, to the firſt Ward, two; to the ſecond, three; to the third, three; to the fourth, three; to the fifth, one; to the ſixth, two; to the ſeventh, five; to the eighth, four; to the ninth, two; to the tenth, one; to the eleventh, one; to the twelth, which contains St. Clement's and the Strand, three.

In Caſe any Ward fell vacant by the Death of the Headborough, or otherwiſe, the Court uſually held in Eaſter Week, preſented three Perſons, Inhabitants of the ſaid Ward, to the High Steward, to chooſe one of the three, according as he thought good; and it was done by them in theſe Words in Writing, as is found in the Year 1585. "May it pleaſe your Honour "to be informed, that whereas at this preſent "there is wanting one of the Headboroughs, and "ſo hath continued ſince the Death of Richard "Gibbes; for the Supply whereof may it pleaſe "your Honour to accept any of theſe three Per-"ſons, whoſe Names follows." [And then the Names and Qualities of them are ſet down.]

The Way of chooſing Aſſiſtants, was, that the Names of three Perſons reſiant in each reſpective Ward, were written down, and preſented likewiſe to the High Steward, for Choice by him to be made of one out of the three for each Ward.

And an High Conſtable being alſo to be elected at the aforeſaid Court, three fit Perſons were likewiſe preſented to him to chooſe one; and in this Form of Words written: Alſo there is to be elected and choſen for the ſaid City and Liberties, one other to be High Conſtable in Place of ——— Staunton. "May it therefore pleaſe "your Honour to accept one of theſe three Per-"ſons, whoſe Names follow." [And their Names and Qualities are ſubſcribed.]

At the ſame Court, after the twelve Burgeſſes were elected, then out of them two were elected, which are called Chief, or Head Burgeſſes.

There is alſo a Chief Officer, which is called the Bailiff of Weſtminſter, who hath his Deputy.

The preſent Government of Westminster.

The City of Weſtminſter it ſelf conſiſts but of one Pariſh, called St. Margaret's, which is of large Extent; but the Liberties comprehend nine Pariſhes beſide, viz. St. Martin's in the Fields, St. James's, St. George's in Hanover-ſquare, St. Anne's, St. Paul's Covent-Garden, St. Mary Savoy, St. Mary le Strand, St. Clement Danes, and St. John Evangeliſt in Weſtminſter. For the Government of both the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of St. Peter, are inveſted with Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Juriſdiction, and not only within the ſaid City and Liberties, but likewiſe within the Precincts of St. Martin's le Grand, near Cheapſide, LONDON, and in ſome Towns of Eſſex, exempted as well from the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of LONDON, as from that of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury: But the Management of the Civil Part, ſince the Reformation, is left in the Hands of Laymen, elected for that Purpoſe from Time to Time, and confirmed by the Dean and Chapter.

High Steward. Of theſe Magiſtrates, the Principal is the High Steward, uſually one of the Prime Nobility, who is choſen by the Dean and Chapter, and holds this Office durante vita, the Nature of it being not much unlike the Chancellorſhip of an Univerſity: But upon his Death and Reſignation, a Chapter is called for the Election of another, in which the Dean ſits as High Steward, till the Election is over. Deputy Steward. The Deputy Steward, or Under Steward of Weſtminſter, is likewiſe an Officer of great Note, choſen by the High Steward, and confirmed by the Dean and Chapter. He holds this honourable Office durante vita, and, as it were, ſupplies the Place of a Sheriff; for he keeps the Court-Leet, or Town-Court, with the other Magiſtrates, and is always Chairman at the Quarter-Seſſions. High Bailiff. Next to him is the High-Bailiff, an Officer of Honour, named by the Dean, and confirmed by the High Steward, holding likewiſe for Life: He ſummons the Juries, manages in chief the Election of Members of Parliament for the City, and has all the Bailiffs of Weſtminſter ſubordinate to him. In the Court-Leet he ſits next to the Stewards. All Fines, Forfeitures and Strays belonging to him, which makes his Place beneficial; but is commonly managed by a Deputy Bailiff, a Perſon well verſed in the Law.

Burgeſſes. There are alſo ſixteen Burgeſſes for the City, and nine for the Liberty, and each of them has an Aſſiſtant, whoſe Office is much like that of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, every one having a proper Ward under his Juriſdiction; out of their Number two are elected by the Title of Head Burgeſſes, one for the City, and the other for the Liberties, who take Place in the Court Leet, next to the Head Bailiff. High Conſtable. Then there is an High Conſtable, choſen as the ſaid Burgeſſes, by the Court Leet, who has all the other Conſtables under his Direction, and uſually continues two Years in his Office.

For Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes and Probat of Wills there is a Royal Juriſdiction, under a Commiſſary, from whom no Appeal muſt be, only to the King in his High Court of Chancery.

Eccleſiaſtical Government.

Joſeph Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, Dean.
The Rev. Mr. Edward Willis, Subdean, together with eleven other Prebendaries.

Mr. Richard Bridge,
Mr. Geo. Shakeſpear,
Mr. James Gordon,

Mr. Arthur Rawlinſon, Oilman, High Conſtable.

THE Senior Aſſiſtant Burgeſs is always choſen High Conſtable, at the Eaſter Court-Leet, and holds his Office for a Year or longer: All the Petty Conſtables in Weſtminſter are in Subordination to him.

Clerk of the Court, Mr. Humphrey Drew.
Coroner, Robert White, Gent. appointed by the Dean and Chapter, and holds his Office for Life.

THE City and Liberty of Weſtminſter have their Common Jail, the Keeper whereof is appointed by the Dean and Chapter.

THEY have likewiſe their General Quarter-Seſſions of the Peace and Jail-Delivery.

Peter Forbes, Eſq; is Clerk of the Peace, and appointed by the Cuſtos Rotulorum.
His Deputy, Samuel Benſon, Gent.
Aſſiſtant, Mr. Higgs.

AND now to gather up a few Things relating to this City in former Times: Certain Orders were taken at a Court-Leet holden at Weſtminſter the 8th Day of October, in the 25th Year of Queen Elizabeth, by the Right Hon. William Cecil, of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, Knight, Baron of Burghley, Lord High Treaſurer of England, and High Steward of the City and Liberties of Weſtminſter; and the Right Worſhipful Mr. Gabriel Goodman, D. D. and Dean of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter in Weſtminſter, with the Aſſents and Conſents of Richard Gybbes, Thomas Fowler, John Colbrand, &c. Headboroughs of the ſame City and Liberties, to be obſerved, performed and kept by the Butchers and Poulterers, as well inhabiting within the ſaid City and Liberties, as all others that ſhould at any Time hereafter utter or ſell any Fleſh-meat or Poultry-wares within the ſaid City.

Firſt, That there ſhould be choſen, at the Court holden for the ſaid City yearly, and every Year hereafter, two or more diſcreet and honeſt Inhabitants, being Reſidents within the ſaid City and Liberties, Butchers or others, as ſhould be thought moſt meet, by the Advice, Conſent, and Agreement of the ſaid Court; which being elect and ſworn, ſhould well and duly, every Market Day, and oftner, as Need ſhould require, ſearch, view, overſee, and peruſe all the Butchers and Poulterers, and others, that ſhould put to Sale any Fleſh-meat, or Poultry-ware, as well in their ſeveral Shops, as alſo in the Markets: To the Intent that they might not ſell any Fleſh, or Poultry-ware, but only ſuch as ſhould be wholeſome and good for Man's Body: And if they ſhould find any corrupt or unwholeſome Fleſh, or Fiſh-meat, or Poultry-ware to be ſold or put to Sale, then it ſhould be lawful for them to take it away, and to give it preſently among the poor Inhabitants of that Pariſh where the ſaid Offence ſhould happen to be committed; to be done by the Advice of the Bailiff of the ſaid City, or his Deputy, or one of the Headboroughs.

Item, No Butcher, Poulterer, or Fiſhmonger, ſhould hang, or lay forth upon their Stalls, any of their Fleſh, Fiſh, or Poultry upon any Sunday, or other uſual Holiday; nor upon any other Day not uſually accuſtomed within the City of London; nor to let their Shop Windows ſtand open after the Hour of Eight of the Clock in the Forenoon, upon any Sunday, or any other uſual Holiday, upon Pain to forfeit 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to kill any Bull, to the Intent to ſell the ſame, except every ſuch Bull were firſt chaſed and baited, preſently before the Killing, upon Pain of 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to ſell or put to Sale any Pieces of Fleſh-meat upon the Saturday, which happened to be left upon the Thurſday before, only except the ſame be a whole Quarter of Beef, upon Pain for every ſuch Piece ſold or put to Sale, to pay 2 s.

Item, No Butcher or Poulterer, nor any other Perſon, to put to Sale their Meat or Poultry-ware, but only in their open Shops, and in the common and uſual Market-place, and upon the uſual Market Day, viz. Saturday, upon Pain to forfeit all ſuch Meat and Ware, and the ſame to be employed to the Uſe of the Poor. Notwithſtanding this Article, it might be lawful for any Butcher inhabiting within the Pariſh of St. Margaret's, and not having any Shop in King-ſtreet, to keep a Standing in the Market-place in King-ſtreet, every Monday, and there to put to Sale their Fleſh-meat.

Item, No Butcher nor Poulterer, during ſuch Time as they have any Shops in King-ſtreet, not to keep any Standing, nor put to Sale any Fleſh or Poultry in the Market-place, but only in their Shops. No Butcher to kill any Fleſh-meat out of their Slaughter-houſe or Shop, in the common Street, nor to ſcald any Hogs in any of the common Streets and Highways; nor to kill and put to Sale any Pork before the Feaſt of All Saints. And if any ſhould do to the contrary in any of the ſaid Premiſes, to forfeit for every ſuch Offence 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to pelt or propt any Veal, or cut up the Lean of the Veal with the Kidney, upon Pain to forfeit every Time 12 d.

Item, No Butcher to kill any Yow after the Feaſt Day of St. Andrew, until the Week next before the Feaſt of Eaſter, upon Pain to forfeit, for every Yow ſo killed, 12 d.

Item, No Butcher, nor any other, to kill and put to Sale any Lamb, after the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, before the Feaſt of the Nativity of our Lord, nor blow nor ſtopte the Kidney of any Lamb, upon Pain to forfeit 12 d.

Item, If any Butcher or Poulterer, their Wives, Families, or Servants, ſhall hereafter diſobey or miſuſe thoſe Perſons now authorized, or hereafter to be authorized, for the Search and Survey, as aforeſaid, in the executing of their ſaid Office, every ſuch Perſon, ſo offending, to forfeit for every Time 10 s.

Item, No Butcher, his Wife or Servants, to caſt or lay, either in the common Street, or common Sewer, the Head, or Chawld-bone of any Ox, Cow, Bull, or other Beaſt; neither the Offal of Sheep, or other Beaſt; neither the Horns of any Beaſts, upon Pain to forfeit for any ſuch Offence 12 d.

Item, The Bailiff of the ſaid City, or his Deputy, when, and as often as the ſaid Offences ſhould happen to be committed, and found by Verdict, or otherwiſe, upon ſufficient and apparent Proof, to collect, receive, and take of every ſuch Inhabitant, and others offending in any of the Premiſes, the Penalties and Sums of Money:

Money: And, according to the Rates aforeſaid, the one Moiety to be to the Uſe of the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter, and the other Moiety to the Uſe of the poor People of that Pariſh where any of the ſaid Offences ſhall be committed.

And if any Perſon offending in the Premiſes, refuſe to make Payment to the ſaid Bailiff or his Deputy, according to the Rates as aforeſaid, then it ſhall and may be lawful for him to diſtrain ſo much of the Goods Chattels of every ſuch Perſon offending, as ſhall be ſufficient for the anſwering of the ſame according to the ſaid ſeveral Rates; and the ſaid Diſtreſs to take, drive, or bear away, and the ſame to detain and keep, until ſuch Time as he be fully ſatisfied and paid according to the Intent, Effect and true Meaning of theſe Preſents.

Now to add a few Things concerning the State of the Poor of this City and the Liberties in former Times, and what the Expences were by the Inhabitants in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof for their Maintenance, and what Care hath been taken for erecting Work-houſes and Hoſpitals, for the poorer Sort, whether Beggars, Vagabonds, or antient decayed People and poor Children.

Here follows a brief Abſtract of the particular yearly Receipts and Payments for the Poor as well of the City of Weſtminſter and Liberties of the ſame, as alſo of the Pariſhes of St. Clement's Danes and Strand, Parcel of the Dutchy of Lancaſter; made November 14, 1572.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the poor People within the Pariſh of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, 115 l. 5 s. 5 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipt of the Pariſhioners within the ſaid Pariſh for the Relief of the ſaid Poor, 119 l. 5 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, amounted to 29 l. 8 s.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipt of the Pariſhioners within the ſaid Pariſh for the Relief of the ſaid Poor, 27 l. 1 s. 8 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Pariſh of St. Clement's Danes amount to 32 l. 1 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipts of the Pariſhioners within the ſaid Pariſh, for their Relief, 32 l. 18 s. 2 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Pariſh of Strand, alias Savoy, amounted to 10 l. 16 s. 8 d.

The Sum Total of the Receipts of the Pariſhioners within the ſaid Pariſh for the ſame, 10 l. 15 s. 1 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the poor People within the Savoy Rents, amounted to 3 l. 9 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipts of the Inhabitants within the ſaid Rents, for their Relief 4 l. 6 s. 8 d.

So that the Sum Total of all the Yearly Charge of the Poor aforeſaid, within the ſeveral Pariſhes aforeſaid, viz. in the City of Weſtminſter, and the Liberties thereof, for the Year 1572, amounted to 190 l. 13 s. 4 d.

And the Sum Total of all the Yearly Receipts of the ſeveral Pariſhes aforeſaid in the ſaid City and Liberties, for the Uſe of the poor People aforeſaid, was 194 l. 7 s.

Whence, among other Obſervations that may be made hence, this is one, how by the vaſt Increaſe of the Charges for Maintenance of the preſent Poor in theſe Parts, may be conjectured the vaſt and prodigious Increaſe of the Inhabitants within an 160 Years, or little more.

The following Account was brought in to the Lord Burghley, High Steward of Weſtminſter, of the Quantity of Corn and Meal weekly brought, uttered and ſold in the Markets at Weſtminſter, and of ſuch Meal as is brought, uttered and ſold to the ſeveral Bakers at their ſeveral Houſes, Dec. 8. Ann. Reg. Eliz. 29. 1586, and in a Time (as it ſeems) of Dearth.

Sum Total of all the Wheat Meal, uttered and ſold in Bread by the ſaid Bakers weekly during the Term Time, CLVI Quarters.

Sum Total of all the Wheat-Meal uttered and ſold in Bread by the Bakers weekly, out of the Term Time, as aforeſaid, LXXXXVI Quarters.

Sum Total of all the Meal uttered and ſold weekly as aforeſaid, CCLII Quarters.

Sum Total of the Meal and Bread ſold in the Market, and the Meal in the Chandlers Shops weekly, XII Quarters.

Sum Total of all the ſaid Meal uttered and ſold weekly, CCLXIV Quarters.

Memorand. That there be ſundry of the Inhabitants of the ſaid City (who uſually from Time to Time do make their own ſeveral Proviſions of Meal, as well of Wheat as of Rye, and do bake and make Bread of the ſame for their ſeveral Houſholds); the Sum thereof is great, but the Certainty and Number of the ſame is not perfectly known.

Memorand. The ſaid Bakers, nor any of them will confeſs, that they bake or put to Sale any Bread made of Rye, but only of Wheat, as aforeſaid: And as touching any Store of Corn or Meal as yet it doth not appear, that the ſaid Bakers have any other Proviſion, but as they from Time to Time make their Proviſion as aforeſaid: And that they do pay for every Buſhel of Wheat-Meal, bought as aforeſaid, 5 s. 8 d. and ſometimes more.

In the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, about the Year 1560, for the employing of the Idle Poor, and for the relieving of the honeſt Poor, decayed through Age or Miſfortunes, an Hoſpital was propounded to be erected: Whereof Sir William Cecyl, Knt. Secretary of State, and High Steward of Weſtminſter, was a great Mover. The Way thought on for raiſing Money to do it, was by a voluntary Contribution of the Inhabitants: And that every Conſtable ſhould be authorized to gather in their Wards as they could obtain willingly for ſuch an Uſe; and that thoſe they found backward, and refuſing to give, ſhould have their Names taken, and to make Uſe of a Statute upon them, namely, to ſeſs them 12 d. for every Day's Abſence from the Church at the accuſtomable Service there performed: And, moreover, to take by Way of Loan, a Portion of Money to this Uſe, to be repaid by a reaſonable Space, as ſhould be convented and agreed upon.

That 40 l. at leaſt might reaſonably be expected of Cox, Biſhop of Ely, who being Dean of Weſtminſter in King Edward VI's Time, had voluntarily promiſed that Sum for the ſaid Uſe.

That there ſhould be appointed certain Aſſiſtants, as one Prebendary, four Headboroughs, ſeven Conſtables, and five Commoners, to be Overſeers of the ſaid Hoſpital, privy to all Things in the Houſe, both of receiving and laying out.

Then for the Works of ſuch as ſhould be taken into the Houſe: That old Women, or middle Aged Aged, that might work, and went a Gooding, ſhould be Hatchilers of the Flax; and one Matron over them.

That common Hedgers, and ſuch like luſty naughty Packs, ſhould be ſet to Spinning: And one accordingly to be ſet over them.

That Vagabonds, ſuch as were ſtout, ſtubborn, and ſtrong, ſhould make clean the Streets; ſome to carry away with Wheelbarrows, as the reſt did fill them.

Among whom, if any chanced to be Taylors or Shoe-makers, theſe to be likewiſe ſet to their Stitch, to work for the Houſhold.

That young Springals, of whom might be good Hope hereafter, ſhould learn to weave, by one of the Science, who ſhould have a Stipend, and be as Maſter to them.

Likewiſe, that Children that were above ſix, and not twelve Years of Age, ſhould be ſet to wind Quills to the Weavers.

BUT what Iſſue and Effect this good Propoſal had, is uncertain. Many Years after, Gregory Fines Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, intended the founding of an Hoſpital in Weſtminſter, for which Queen Elizabeth granted Letters Patents to confirm it. This was to have been for the good Education and Nurture of poor Children and Boys, born and to be born within the Pariſh of St. Margaret in the ſaid City; and for the Relief and Nouriſhment of poor aged People, and lame and diſeaſed Perſons, and for the Correction and Reſtraint of ſturdy Beggars, and idle Vagabonds within the City and Liberty, and Precinct of the ſame, and within the Pariſhes of St. Margaret's, St. Martin's in the Fields, the Savoy, and St. Clements Danes. That by this Means poor Children deprived of their Parents, being well educated and inſtructed, when they ſhall attain to elder Age, may learn honeſt Arts and Trades, whereby they may themſelves live honeſtly, and get their own Living: And likewiſe, that infirm, aged People, weak, lame, and ſick Perſons, might want nothing neceſſary to their Life; and other being ſtrong in their Limbs, might be compelled to Labours, and to honeſt and wholeſome Works and Exerciſes, whereby they might maintain and cheriſh themſelves and others, for the Profit and Benefit of the Commonweal, and not be permitted to live idly, and wander about the Streets and beg, to the great Offence and Trouble of the Nobles, honourable Perſons, Juſtices, Judges, and Officers of the Queen and her other Subjects, frequently paſſing towards Weſtminſter, and returning thence, as well in Time of Parliament, as of the Terms.

THIS Hoſpital was in the Letters Patents to be called, The Hoſpital of Jeſus, in the Pariſh of St. Margaret in Weſtminſter. And was by Virtue thereof, to be governed by eight diſcreet and honeſt Men, who ſhould be called, The Maſters the ſaid Hoſpital of Jeſus. The firſt Maſters whereof to be nominated by the ſaid Gregory Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, or their Executors, after the Foundation thereof. And the ſaid Maſters, and their Succeſſors, to be one Body Corporate and Politick for ever, and to have a common Seal. And upon the Death of any of theſe eight, or Vacancy of any of their Places, the Survivors and thoſe that remain, might nominate and elect others out of St. Margaret's Pariſh to ſucceed: And upon their not ſo nominating and electing in ſix Months, the Dean of Weſtminſter to put in one or more fit Perſon or Perſons.

THAT moreover the ſaid Gregory Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, might make Statutes and Laws for the Government of the ſaid Hoſpital, with the Conſent of the Dean of Weſtminſter, or Biſhop of London. Four Acres of Land, beſides Gardens and Orchards, allowed to be laid to the ſaid Hoſpital; and the value of five hundred Marks in Manours, Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, Rectories, Tithes, or other Hereditaments, for the ſuſtaining and Maintainance of it. This Hoſpital was founded in Totehill Fields, where it ſtill is; but the preſent Uſe of it different from the Contents of theſe Letters Patents, as will be ſeen afterwards.

THERE belonged to the Inhabitants of Weſtminſter divers peculiar Privileges and Liberties, which one Thomas Bland, an Under-Sheriff, in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's Reign invading, viz. 1593, complaint was made thereof to the Lord Burghley, the High Steward: What thoſe Liberties were, and what the Wrongs done thereunto were, the two or three following Papers will ſhew.

ARTICLES objected againſt Thomas Bland, Under Sherife of Middleſex, for Wronges done againſte the Libertie of Weſtminſter, 22 May, 1593.

1. Item, That the ſaid Underſherife refuſeth to make Warrants upon Writts unto him directed, being thereunto required: Whereby the Baliffe is damnified, and the Plaintiff hindered.

2. Item, That he reſteth by himſelfe and his Officers, in both Pallaces at Weſtminſter.

3. Item, That he chardgeth Priſoners in the Gatehouſe with Writts, the Priſon being within the Libertie of Weſtminſter, and wholly to the Uſe of the Officers there.

4. Item, That he removeth out of the ſame Priſon by Writ of Habeas Corpus, Priſoners committed by the Baliffe.

5. Item, That upon a Capias ut legat. he arreſteth within the Libertie by ſpecial Baliffes, notwithſtanding that the Graunt made and confirmed by her Majeſtie, to the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter; wherein Authoritie is geven to the Baliffe, to execute and retorne all Bills, Warrants, Precepts, and Writts, although they concerne any Way the King's Perſon; and that it ſhall not be lawfull for any Steward, Marſhall, or Sheriffe, to enter, for any Cauſe, without Licence of the Officers for the Time being, as more at large appeareth in the Graunt.

And theſe are the Cauſes that he mainteyneth, and partly to be anſwered in the Common Pleas.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Burghley, Lord High Treaſurer of England.

MAIE it pleaſe your good Lordſhip, to be informed, that Thomas Bland, now Deputie Sheriffe of the Countie of Middleſex, hath, within three Daies paſte, called in Queſtion, before the Judges of the Common Pleas, your Lordſhip's Authoritie within the Libertie of Weſtminſter; and ſummoned me, as Deputie to your Lordſhip's Baliffe there, to hear and anſwer his Objections; which I cannot do, without your Lordſhip's Pleaſure therein knowne. And foraſmuche as the like Enterpriſe hath not been done by any Underſheriffe that I can learne of, ſince her Majeſtie came to the Crowne, nor any Time before, for the Space of one hundreth Yeres. It maie therefore pleaſe your Lordſhip, in reſpect that the Baliffe of Weſtminſter hath the executing and retorning of all the King's Writts by ſpeciall Wordes, to direct your honourable Letters to the ſaid Underſheriffe; that he may ſurceaſe his Suite at his Perill untill further Councell maie be taken of of the Cauſe: Or elſe ſuch further Order as unto your Lordſhip's Wiſdome ſhall be thoughte meete.

Your Lordſhip's moſt bounden,

RALPHE DOBBINSON.

UPON which Petition, the Lord Burghley made this Order: "To repaire to Mr. Sergeant "Owen, whom I pray to report to me his Opi-"nion touching this Cauſe.

W. BURGHLEY.

Laſtly, let me ſubjoin the Act or Acts of Parliament for the ſtanding Government of this City.

IN the 27 Eliz. was an Act of Parliament made for the good Government of the City and Borrough of Weſtminſter. This was but temporary; but it continued from one Parliament to another, until the 17 Car. I. then to continue till ſome Act of Parliament ſhould be made touching the Continuance or Diſcontinuance of this and other Acts and Statutes made in the 3d of the ſaid King. The Act 27 Eliz. was printed Anno 1678, the Contents whereof are, "That this City and Bur-"rough, and the Liberties thereof, be for ever "hereafter ſevered and divided, as it hath been "accuſtomed, into twelve Wards. That the "Dean of Weſtminſter, or High Steward, or his "Deputy, yearly, on Thurſday in Eaſter Week, "for ever, do nominate or elect twelve ſufficient "Perſons to be Burgeſſes; and they to be Mer-"chants, Artificers, or others uſing any Trade "within the City or Burrough, or other Perſons "as are willing thereunto. The Dean and High "Steward, or his Deputy, to appoint the Go-"vernment of a Ward to every one of the ſaid "Burgeſſes. They to continue for one Year: "And ſo from Year to Year, during their natural "Lives; except for ſome Offence or Miſmanage-"ment: Then to be diſplaced by the Dean or "High Steward. Any Perſon reſiant, refuſing "to accept the ſaid Room, to forfeit 10 l. to "the Uſe of the Poor, to be levied by the Bailiff "of the Liberties of the Dean and Chapter, by "Way of Diſtreſs. The Burgeſſes to take the "Oath of Supremacy, and a Corporal Oath, to "do and execute all Things to them appointed "and authorized by this Act. The Dean, High "Steward, or Deputy, with the Burgeſſes, or "the better Part of them, within ten Days after "the Election of the ſaid Burgeſſes, to nominate "twelve other able Perſons within the ſame "Burrough, Merchants, Artificers, &c. to be "Aſſiſtants to the twelve Burgeſſes. They to "accept the ſame Charge, upon Forfeiture of "5 l. to be employed as before; and to take "the like Oaths as beforeſaid. Unto every of "the twelve Wards, one of theſe Aſſiſtants to "be appointed. The ſaid twelve Burgeſſes and "twelve Aſſiſtants, and every two of them, "within the ſeveral Wards to them appointed, "to deal in every thing as Aldermen's Deputies "in LONDON do, or may do. Theſe Aſſiſtants "to continue in their Places one whole Year. "If any of the Burgeſſes or Aſſiſtants die, or "otherwiſe upon reaſonable Cauſe be removed, "then the Dean, High Steward, or his Deputy, "from Time to Time to nominate and appoint "other meet and able Perſons of State, Faculty, "and Quality, as aforeſaid, to ſupply the Place, "to continue in the ſame until Thurſday in Eaſter "Week. On that Day, the Dean, High Ste-"ward, or his lawful Deputy, to appoint two "Perſons out of the ſaid Burgeſſes, to be called "or known by the name of the two Chief Bur-"geſſes, to continue one Year. And this upon "pain of 10 l. to be paid as aforeſaid. The "Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, the two "Chief Burgeſſes, the ten Burgeſſes, or any three "of them, whereof the Dean, High Steward, or "Deputy, to be one, and, one of the Chief "Burgeſſes to be another, may hear, examine, "determine, and puniſh, according to the Law "of the Realm, or laudable and lawful Cuſtoms "of the City of LONDON, all Matters of In-"continency, common Scolds, and of Inmates, "common Annoyances, &c. And to have Au-"thority to commit to Priſon ſuch Perſons as "within the ſaid City offend againſt the Peace, "and within 24 Hours to give Notice of it to "ſome Juſtice of the Peace of the County. All "good Orders, and Ordinances, made by the "Dean and High Steward, with the Aſſiſtance "of the Burgeſſes, concerning the Government "of the ſaid Inhabitants, not repugnant to the "Queen's Prerogative, nor the Laws of the "Land, ſhall ſtand in full Force and Strength. "Nothing in this Act to be prejudicial to the "Steward, Marſhal, or Coroner of the Queen's "Houſhold, nor to the Authority of Juſtices of "Peace, nor to the Dean and Chapter of Weſt-"minſter, nor to the High Steward there, or his "Deputy, nor to the Mayor, Society, and Clerk "of the Staple, High Conſtable, Bailiff of the "Liberty, Town Clerk, or Clerk of the Market: "Nor any Search to be made by any other Of-"ficer in the City of Weſtminſter.

"If the Dean of Weſtminſter, and the High "Steward, or his Deputy, be remiſs and negli-"gent in chuſing and nominating the Burgeſſes "at the Time limited, then it ſhall be lawful "for two Juſtices of the Peace of Middleſex to "nominate and chuſe the ſaid Burgeſſes: Who "being ſo choſen, ſhall occupy and enjoy the "ſaid Rooms upon Pains aforeſaid. Theſe Bur-"geſſes not compellable by this Act to remain in "their Place above one Year next after ſuch "Choice. And ſuch Perſons as have paid any "Sums of Money for Refuſal, ſhall not be no-"minated again to any the ſaid Place, within "the ſpace of five Years next following. The "Chancellor or Steward of the Dutchy of Lan-"caſter to have Power as the Dean of Weſtmin-"ſter, &c. within that Dutchy Liberty. This "Act not to extend to the College or Cloſe of "Weſtminſter, for any Offence within the Circuit "thereof. The Burgeſſes not to hear or deter-"mine any thing without the Conſent of the "ſaid Dean, or High Steward, or Deputy. The "Searchers of the Sanctuary of Weſtminſter ſhall "have, within the ſaid Sanctuary, the Execu-"tion and ſerving of all Proceſſes, Command-"ments, and Warrants, and the Attachment "and Apprehenſion of all Manner of Offenders "within the Sanctuary, and within the Scite, "Circuit, and Precinct thereof.

The preſent State of the City of WESTMINSTER.

WE are now to ſhew the modern and preſent State of this City, which is grown vaſtly populous, and improved within theſe hundred Years. For whereas antiently it was about a Mile from LONDON, Fields lying between, except Houſes thinly built in the Road from one City to the other, now all is built contiguouſly, in Length and Breadth containing a great Compaſs, and that with very noble and magnificent Structures. This City is of great Renown, containing two Royal Palaces, namely, St. James's, and Somerſet-houſe, the ordinary Places of Reſidence for the Kings and Queens of England; likewiſe many other noble Palaces for the Habitation of the Peers, and Perſons of the higheſt Rank in the Kingdom: Famous alſo for the Tribunals, and publick Courts of Juſtice, where the Lord Chancellor, the Lords Chief Juſtices, and the reſt of the King's Judges ſit, to hear and determine the Cauſes of the People of the Land, according to Equity and Truth, and the Laws, Statutes, and original Cuſtoms: And, laſtly, a City of peculiar and extraordinary Honour for the Parliament-Houſes of Lords and Commons ſituate here; whereby is occaſioned a frequent Reſort hither of all the great Eſtates of the Kingdom.

We ſhall now deſcribe the ſeveral Parts, Pariſhes and Places as they now are:

St. Margaret's.

This Pariſh is of large Extent, and bounded moſtly by the Pariſhes of St. Martin's in the Fields, and St. John Evangeliſt. It has in it the following Streets, Lanes, &c.

In Petty France Diviſion are: Chapel-ſtreet, Dacre-ſtreet, Caſtle-yard, White-hart-yard, Pipe-alley, St. Ermin's-hill, the Broad-way, Petty France, Codpiece-court, George-and-Plough-yard, Gardener's-lane, Pump-alley, Smith's-court; Part of Knight's-bridge; Part of Kenſington, Edward's-court, Horſe-ſhoe-alley, Hopkin's-row, Kitter's-yard, White-hart-lane, Caſtle-lane, Powder-beef-court, Muſtard-court, James's-ſtreet, Ship-yard, Queen's-ſquare.

In Sanctuary and Deanry Ward, are:

Part of King-ſtreet, Little-ſanctuary, Broad-ſanctuary, Green's-alley, Love-lane, St. Margaret's-church-yard, Dean's-yard, part of Stable-yard, part of College-ſtreet.

In Long Ditch Ward, are:

Thieving-lane alias Bow-ſtreet, Bell-alley, Star-alley, Roſe-court, Broken-croſs, Long-ditch, Ogleby's-court, Angel-court, Prince's-court, Queen-ſtreet, Park-proſpect, John-ſtreet, Bennet's-ſtreet, Cork-cutter's-alley.

In King-ſtreet Weſt Ward, are:

In King-ſtreet North Ward are:

Part of King-ſtreet; Part of Duke-ſtreet; Part of Charles-ſtreet, Crown-court, Bell-yard, Sea-alley, Axe-yard, Duffin's-court, Downing-ſtreet, Privy-garden, Tilt-yard, Battersby's-court, Penſioners-alley, Brewers-yard, and Rheniſh-wine-yard.

In Tothill-ſtreet North Ward are:

Tothill-ſtreet, Wyatt's-alley, Dartmouth-ſtreet, Carteret-ſtreet, Park-ſtreet, Broad-way, Little Almonry, Dukes-court, Great Almonry, New-way, and New Tothill-ſtreet.

In New Palace-yard Ward are:

Number of Houſes in this Pariſh are about 2350.

King-ſtreet begins at the Confines of the Palace of Whitehall, and leads from thence to Weſtminſter Abbey: And by a turning Paſſage Eaſtward through the Gatehouſe, leads into the New Palace-yard; which is a ſpacious Place, convenient for the Reception and Standing of Coaches in the Term-time, and Seſſions of Parliament; and is graced with Buildings well inhabited. Here is the common Entrance into Weſtminſter-hall, where the Judges ſit; and here is Weſtminſter-bridge, for taking Boat, for ſuch as are minded to go to LONDON, or elſewhere, by Water. On the South is a narrow Paſſage into Channel [or Chanon] Row. Out of this New Palace-yard is a Paſſage on the Weſt through St. Margaret's-lane, North into the Old Palace-yard, a ſpacious Place, alſo well built. Here, toward the Eaſt, the Lords of Parliament, brought in their Coaches or Chairs, go up to their Houſe, as do the Kings and Queens, when they go to Parliament. More on the Left Hand is a narrow and darkiſh Paſſage, in which is Cotton-houſe, wherein was kept that invaluable Collection of Manuſcripts, known by the Name of the Cotton Library. A little farther in this Paſſage on the Left, is a Pair of Stone Stairs leading up to St. Stephen's Chapel, now the Houſe of Commons. By the ſame Paſſage we are led into Weſtminſter-hall, entering Northward. In this Old Palace-yard, in the North-Weſt Corner, is an Houſe, where the Originals of the Rolls of Parliament are repoſited. Weſtward from this Palace-yard is a Paſſage along by King Henry VII's Chapel into Weſtminſter Abbey, by the little Eaſt Door.

King-ſtreet is better inhabited than built, the Houſes being generally built after the old Way, with Timber and Plaiſter, and the Street ſomewhat narrow, which cauſes Stoppage ſometimes by Reaſon of Multitudes of Coaches paſſing backwards and forwards; for it is a very great Thorough-fare, being the common Paſſage to Weſtminſter-hall, and the Parliament-houſe. And, for the Accommodation of ſuch as come to Town in the Terms, here are in this Street ſome good Inns for their Reception, and not a few Taverns for Entertainment, as is not unuſual in Places of great Confluence.

On both Sides of this Street are ſeveral Alleys and Courts, and we ſhall begin with thoſe on the Eaſt Side, next the Gatehouſe.

The ſaid Gatehouſe is a Priſon for the Liberty of Weſtminſter, the Priſon being ſome Years ſince removed from the old Gatehouſe by Tothill-ſtreet, this being more convenient. The Market, called King-ſtreet, or Weſtminſter Market, a large open Place, with a Market-houſe in the Midſt, with Stalls and Shops round about, made uſe of by Butchers, Poulterers, and others, for Sale of Proviſions, the Market being well ſerved and reſorted unto. Whitehouſe-yard has a Paſſage into Channel-row; but ſince the laſt Fire that happened there, moſt of the Houſes ſtill lie in their Rubbiſh. Ladyes-alley, very ſmall and inconſiderable. Stephen's-alley, a handſome Street, it being the Paſſage for Coaches into Channel-row. The Rheniſh-wine-yard, an ordinary Place, ſo called from the Rheniſh-wine-houſe at the upper End, ſeated in Channel-row. Brewers-yard, a Paſſage for Carts to the Wood-wharf by the Thames towards the upper End, where it hath a Paſſage into Channel-row, indifferent good. Penſioners-alley, a very narrow Paſſage out of King-ſtreet; but the upper End, where it falls into Brewers-yard, is indifferent broad: Out of this Place there is a Door into the Privy-garden of Whitehall, generally kept open during the Seſſions of Parliament, and in Term-times, by Favour; which much facilitates the Paſſage to Weſtminſter-hall from Whitehall.

Channel, or Chanon-row, running from South to North, formerly called St. Stephen's-alley, as belonging to the Dean and Canons of St. Stephen's Chapel, who were there lodged; but afterwards became inhabited by divers of the Nobility and Gentry, having then good Houſes, with Gardens towards the Thames; amongſt which, was one belonging to the Earls of Derby, which was made uſe of in the Reign of King Charles II. for the Admiralty Office, now the greateſt Part being converted converted into Dwelling-houſes, which are well inhabited, and bears the name of Derby-court, which goeth as far as the Thames, having a good Freeſtone Pavement, always cleanly kept, and lying ſomething higher than Channel-row. Near where the Lord Derby's Houſe ſtood, was another handſome Houſe belonging to Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln; alſo another large Houſe belonging to the Montagues, lately built into a very fine Court, which hath a handſome Freeſtone Pavement, and good Houſes well inhabited, and bears the Name of Mancheſter-court, very pleaſant towards the Thames. Dorſet-court, built on the place where Dorſet-houſe ſtood: It is a very handſome open Place, containing but ſix Houſes, which are large and well built, fit for Gentry to dwell in; of which thoſe towards the Thames have Gardens towards the Water ſide very pleaſant, The Woolſtaple, a very ordinary Place or Lane, but lying on the Backſide of the new Palace-yard, unto which it hath a Paſſage out of Channel-row, and another into the Market, as alſo into King's-ſtreet by the Gatehouſe: This Place was of greater Note when the Woolſtaple was here kept than now it is, only now retaining its old Name: At the upper End of this Place, near the Thames, are the King's Alms-houſes for eight Men, each having two Rooms, which they let out to profit, beſides about 5 l. per Ann. Bennet's-court, a very handſome place, with good built Houſes, well inhabited, with pretty Gardens before them, and hath a handſome Freeſtone Pavement to the Thames ſide; but the Entrance into this Court is narrow, and not ornamental, as thoſe of Derby or Mancheſter-courts. The other ſide of Channel-row is but ordinary.

We ſhall next ſpeak of the Places on the Weſt Side of King's-ſtreet, beginning with thoſe next Whitehall, and the firſt that offers itſelf is,

Downing-ſtreet, a pretty open Place, eſpecially at the upper End, where are four or five very large and well built Houſes, fit for Perſons of Honour and Quality; each Houſe having a pleaſant proſpect into St. James's-park, with a Tarras Walk. Duffin's-alley, which at preſent hath but a few Houſes; but thoſe are well built, and in time the whole Alley, without doubt, will be built. Ax-yard, a Place of no great Beauty for Buildings, having a very narrow and ill Entrance; but the Part towards St. James's-park is the beſt, as enjoying ſomething of a Proſpect into the Park: The Houſes here are much uſed by Lodgers. Sea-alley of mean Account in all Reſpects. Bell-court, a pretty large Place, with good Buildings; at the upper End, aſcending by Stone Steps, is Roſe and Crown-court, a fine, large, and well built Place, the Houſes fit for Gentry, with a good Free-ſtone Pavement: The upper End of this Court cometh into Duke-ſtreet, and hath a Paſſage into Charles-ſtreet. Gardiner's-lane, of a great length, running up into Duke-ſtreet; a Place not over well built or inhabited: On the North ſide is Poultry-yard, very inconſiderable; and on the South ſide is Bowman's-court, a pretty handſome ſquare, and well built Place; and on the other ſide is Cherry-court, an indifferent good Place; Antelope-alley, indifferent good; Blue-boar-inn, a place of good Cuſtom, the Yard being large, with ſome Houſes in it. George-yard and Inn, alſo a conſiderable large Place for Stablings, and hath a Paſſage, as hath the Blue-boar-inn into De-la-hay-ſtreet, adjoyning to Duke-ſtreet. Bell-alley, but ſmall and ordinary, the greateſt Part at preſent not built. Fountain-court, very inconſiderable. Thieving-lane, ſo called, for that Thieves were led that Way to the Gatehouſe by Tuthil-ſtreet, whilſt the Sanctuary continued in force: This Place by ſome is called Bow-lane, from its turning paſſage into Broken-croſs or Long-ditch, like a bent Bow: The Houſes are not over well built, and divers of its Inhabitants drive a Trade in ſecond hand Goods: In this Lane are theſe Alleys, viz. Eagle-alley, alſo Star-alley or Court, with a Paſſage into Scot's-alley, Froget's-alley, all ſmall Places of little Account. Round-court, a pretty handſome new built Place, which hath a Paſſage in Thieving-lane, and another into Angel-court.

Behind this North Side of King's-ſtreet, is Charles-ſtreet, a fine large Street, not many Years built, with good Houſes well inhabited: And Duke-ſtreet, new built with good Houſes well inhabited, eſpecially that ſide towards St. James's-park, the back Windows having a pleaſant Proſpect thereon, and many of the Inhabitants have the Favour of a Door out of their Garden into the Park, which is no ſmall Benefit.

At the South End of this Street was ſeated a large Houſe, made Uſe of for the Admiralty Office, until it was thence removed to Wallingford Houſe againſt Whitehall, as more convenient, and built at King William's Charge. This Houſe was firſt built for the late Lord Jeffreys, Lord Chancellor to King James II, and for his Accommodation the ſaid King permitted a fair pair of Freeſtone Stairs to be made into the Park. Then paſſing by this Houſe on the ſame Side, beginneth a ſhort Street called De-la-hay-ſtreet, which falleth into Long-ditch, ſo called from the Ditch which almoſt encompaſſed this Part of Weſtminſter, now all dryed up, and converted into Streets and Houſes: A Place of no great Account for Houſes or Inhabitants.

In this Street are theſe Courts and Alleys; Prince's-court, aſcended to by Stone Steps, a very handſome open Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and having well built and inhabited Houſes, eſpecially on that Side that fronteth St. James's-park. Angel-court, a new built Place, with a Paſſage into Round-court, and thence into Thieving-lane. Maiden-lane, ſomewhat large, but not well built; at the upper End is a Paſſage up Freeſtone Steps into a pretty handſome Place, with good Buildings, called Park-proſpect, as having a Proſpect on the Park, and hath its Paſſage into it out of Queen-ſtreet. White's-alley, a long but inconſiderable Place. Golden-lyon-court, alſo very ordinary. Ogilbey's-alley, and Red-croſs-alley, both very ſmall Places.

The Broad Sanctuary, formerly of more Note than at preſent, when it enjoyed the Privilege of a Sanctuary. It is a very handſome broad and open Place, adjoining to St. Margaret's Churchyard, from whence it is ſevered by a Wall, and hath the Proſpect of the Abbey: At the Weſt End is a Place called Love-lane, being againſt the old Gatehouſe. About the Middle of this Place is a handſome Court called Green's-alley, which hath a Paſſage into Thieving-lane; and more Eaſtwards is the Little Sanctuary, which cometh into King-ſtreet, near St. Margaret's Church, an indifferently large Place, with well built Houſes: Then is St. Margaret's Church, a very decent large Church, being the Pariſh Church, for the Uſe of the Inhabitants.

The Gatehouſe, Weſt of St. Peter's, which gives Entrance into Tuthil-ſtreet, is a Place ſo called, of two Gates; the one out of the College-court, or Great Dean's-yard: On the Eaſt Side whereof was the Biſhop of London's Priſon for Clerks Convict; and the other Gate adjoining to the firſt, but towards the Weſt of the Priſon, for Offenders thither committed for the Liberty or City of Weſtminſter.

On the South ſide of this Gatehouſe, King Henry VII. founded an Alms Houſe for 13 poor aged Men that were ſingle, and one of them to be a Prieſt, and a good Grammarian; and this Prieſt was to receive of the Prior or Abbot, every Sunday,

Sunday, 4 d. a Day for himself, and 2 d. ob. by the Day for every one of the 13 Men, for their Maintenance for ever; likewise every one to have yearly a Gown and a Hood: Besides, there was allowed to the 13 Men, 80 Quarters of Coals, and 1000 Faggots for their Fewel: To these 13 Men, there were three Women allowed to dress their Meat, and to attend them, and each to have, every Saturday, 16 d. besides a Gown every Year; and in the Hall and Kitchen, there was appointed a discreet Monk to be their Overseer, for which he was to have 40 s. a Year. These Alms Houses are now called the King's Alms Houses, and are for 12 Men and their Wives, each Man and his Wife having the Allowance of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. per Ann. besides Coals, &c.

NEAR unto this House, Westward, was an old Chapel of St. Ann, over-against which the Lady Margaret, Mother to King Henry VII. built an Alms House for —— poor Women. Which was afterwards converted into Lodgings for the Singing Men of the College, now called the Choiresters Rents; which are so ruinous, that they are not inhabited. This Place, wherein this Chapel and Alms House stood, was called the Eleemosinary, now called the great Almnery: For that the Alms of the Abbey were there given to the Poor; and here Islip, the Abbot of Westminster, in the Year 1471, set up the first Printing-Press that ever was in England; and after that, the like was done in the Abbeys of St. Augustine at Canterbury, also at St. Albans, and other Monasteries. This is a handsome open Place, with good Buildings, and hath a Passage into the Newway which leadeth into Orchard-street, another into the little Almnery, which is an indifferent good Court, and another into Tuthil-street, thro' a small Alley called the Paved-alley.

Great-dean's-yard, a fine open Square, enclosed with Rails and Elm Trees; the East side is taken up with the Dean's House, the School, and other Buildings; and the South and West sides also with good Buildings: On the East side is the Little-dean's-yard, with a Passage into the Cloysters that belongs to the Abbey, a very handsome open Place, with good Buildings, inhabited by Gentry and Persons of Quality. And on the North Side is a Place called the Stable-yards, at the Entrance into which are good Houses, but that Part leading to Orchard-street, is taken for Stabling and Coach-houses, but near the Entrance is a new built Court, called College-court, with handsome genteel Houses, with a Freestone Pavement, which hath a Thorough-fare Passage; and Westward this Dean's-yard openeth itself into the Bowling-alley by the dead Wall, now called Dean's-street.

Tuthil-street hath good Buildings, and is well inhabited by Shopkeepers and others. In this Street are these Alleys and Places of Name; Walker's-yard, a very ordinary Place; Swan-inn, indifferent good; Frying-pan-alley, a small narrow Place; Fleece-yard, a good handsome Inn; Three-tun-alley, a little small Passage into the Great Almnery; Cock-inn, or Yard, a Place for Stabling.

Dartmouth-street, a very handsome open Street, graced with good Buildings, fit for the Reception of Gentry; the Upper End of it butts against John-street, being a Row of new built Houses.

MORE Westward in Tuthil-street is Park-street, the Upper End of which is a handsome open Square, with very good Houses, well inhabited, especially that Side that fronts St. James's-park, having a delightful Prospect therein, with the Conveniency of Doors out of their Gardens into the same; and here is a very fine Cock-pit, called the King's Cock-pit, well resorted unto. George and Plough-yard, an ordinary built Place. Pipe-alley, a narrow Place, with ordinary Buildings. White-hart-yard, a good handsome Court, nigh unto which is White-hart-lane, an ordinary Place. Green-dragon-court, but mean and narrow. Twiford-alley, very ordinary.

Petty-france, a good handsome Street, which cometh out of Tuthil-street, and runneth into James's-street; and here, upon St. Hermit's-hill, Cornelius Van Dun, a Brabanter, one of the Yeomen of the Guards to K. Hen. VIII. Edw. VI. Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, built Alms-houses for 20 poor Women, each to have seven Groats a Week: And adjoining hereunto was a Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, long since converted to other Uses. Kidder's-yard, an ordinary Place. Codpiece-court, but indifferent. Gardener's-lane, a pretty handsome thorough-fare into Tuthil-fields, against more Alms-houses. Ship-yard, a pretty handsome Court. Scotford's-alley, hath a narrow Passage into Tuthill-fields.

Cabbage-lane, very long, but ordinary, at the Upper End of which is Green's Brewhouse, being a very low Place, with a handsome new Brick House, pleasantly seated in an open Air. In this Lane is Powder-beef-alley, and Mustard-alley, both very ordinary.

AT the Upper End of Petty-france, is James-street, which runneth beyond Tart-hall (belonging to the L. Stafford's) unto Buckingham-house, pleasantly seated by St. James's-park: One Side of this Street hath good built Houses well inhabited, and the other Side the Wall of St. James's-park; and at Stafford's House the Bounds of this Parish ends; one Part being in this, and the other Part in the Parish of St. Martin's-in-the-fields.

Chapel-street, so called from the new Chapel there seated.

THIS Chapel belongs to the Parish of St. Margaret's. There is a South Window given by Sir William Wheeler having this Inscription:

Deo & huic Sacello Gulielmus Wheeler, Mil. & Baronettus hanc fenestram consecravit.

THE Vestry raiseth the Minister's Salary by taxing the Pews; so much upon those that sit in them. The last Friday in every Month is a Preparation Sermon for the Sacrament here preached.

MONUMENTS against the Wall, and on the Ground, for Persons here buried, are these:

William, the Son of William and Catharine Bushel, 1697; and William Bushel the Father, 1698. These have a Monument set up against the West-Wall.

North Isle. Flat Stones for Alice Littlefield, Wife of George Littlefield, 1690, and George Littlefield, 1700.

Thomas and Sarah Dunk, Children of Thomas Dunk.

James

James Mills, Son of John Mills, 1680, Alſo John Mills, the Father, 1691, and Suſan the Mother, 1697.

Near the North-Eaſt door. Grace Daughter of Thomas Jekyl, M. A. Miniſter of this Church: Alſo, Thomas Jekyl, D. D. the ſaid Miniſter.

Againſt the North Wall. Jane Catharine 'Squire. On whoſe immature Death the Father made theſe Verſes.

The Grandame, ſhe full fourſcore Years and two,
Wrought in this Vineyard: Left ſhe nought to do.
For you, my Babes, who had but juſt begun,
To tred the Winepreſs, and your Work is done:
Yet bleſſed be Jeſus, who will freely pay,
You even with thoſe, who wrought out all the Day.
In his ſafe Arms, I leave your Souls, who ſaid,
Being ſuch to me, of ſuch my Kingdoms made.

20 May, 1674. Hugh 'Squire.

Alſo of his Son William, 1677.

Bereav'd I am of thoſe; there was left one,
But now he (tho' my Benjamin) is gone,
And I muſt die, whoſe Lot 'tis now to have My gray Hairs go with Sorrow to the Grave.
God is my Comfort ſtill, when none ſurvive,
The News may come, Joſeph is ſtill alive:
If not, yet God can turn all to the Beſt,
Therefore my Soul, return unto thy Reſt.

South Iſle. Robert Blagden, 1697; and Joanna his Wife, 1694; and Elizabeth his Daughter, Wife of Thomas Long, Citizen of London, 1696; and Jonathan Blagden, their Son, 1699.

Jonathan Glover, Son of Thomas, 1703.

Mary Scearche, Daughter of Robert Scearche of London, Merchant, 1665.

This Chappel-ſtreet is a handſome broad Place with good Buildings, which falleth into Stretton Ground. Out of this Place is Torment's-hill, which leads to Torment's-rents, where there are ſome Alms-houſes, and other ordinary Buildings, with Stable Yards and a Brewhouſe. It falleth in Tuthill-fields; and there are Alms-houſes for 28 poor old Women; the Gift of one Mr. Hill; but the Overſeers of the Poor of this Pariſh, being left Truſtees, they are call'd, The Pariſh Alms-houſes.

Paſſing out of Chappel-ſtreet, more towards the Chapel, is a Place call'd Tuthill-ſide, which falls into Tuthill-fields, in this Place are theſe Alms-houſes, viz. Butler's Alms-houſe, for four Men and their Wives, which have the Allowance of 10 s. the Month. And if either the Man or the Wife die, then the Survivor to continue in the ſame Room, with the Allowance of 5 s. a Month; Theſe Alms-rooms are very neat built, with a pretty Garden-plat to each behind, and a handſome Wall before, in common to them, with a Row of Trees. And joining to this Alms-houſe, are Mr. Wicher's Alms-houſes, very handſomely built, with a Chapel in the Midſt, for reading of Prayers, and a Garden-plat behind to each, with a handſome Freeſtone Paved Walk, and a Row of Trees, as was to Mr. Butler's: It is for ſix antient Men, and to each the Allowance of 10 s. a Month, beſides Coals and a blue Gown every two Years.

On the Back-ſide of theſe Alms-houſes, are thoſe of Mr. Palmer's, built in his Life, for ſix Men, and as many Women, all ſingle Perſons. And each to have the Allowance of 7 s. a Month, beſides half a Chaldron of Coals, and a black Gown, with a Badge on it every two Years: There is alſo allowed, a Reader for Prayers to the Alms-People twice a Day, who hath a handſome Apartment for himſelf and his Wife, if any, together with a yearly Allowance in Money; and, beſides his reading of Prayers, he is to teach about twenty Boys gratis: But what more he teaches, he is paid for; and theſe Boys have Black Gowns and Caps, which they are to wear when they are to attend at the Funerals of any of the Governors of this Hoſpital, to whom the Care of the Management is committed, according to the Donor's Will. And theſe Houſes have Backſides or Gardens, with a handſome Walk, and a Row of Trees before them; the Chapel and School is in the Midſt.

St. Margaret's-lane falls into the Old Palace-yard, a great Thorough-fare for Horſe and Coach, to the Horſe-ferry, and eſpecially for Coaches, in the Time of the Seſſions of Parliament, into the Old Palace-yard, to the Houſe of Lords: Here is a Place on the Eaſt Side, called the Fiſh-yard, which is pretty ſquare, but hath no good Buildings; and this Lane being but narrow, and ſo peſtered with Coaches, which renders it dirty and incommodious, doth occaſion it to be but ordinarily inhabited. Near the Entrance of this Lane, out of the New Palace, is a Place with a Free-ſtone Pavement, indifferent well built, which hath a narrow Paſſage into King-ſtreet by the Horn-Tavern, and another Paſſage into the New Palace-yard.

The Old Palace-yard is a good large Place, fit for the Reception of Noblemens Coaches in the Time of Parliament, and has very good Houſes round about, except that Part taken up by King Henry VII's Chapel into St. Margaret's Church-yard, which ſerves at ſuch Times, when the Abbey is ſhut up.

The next is the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

Although ſuch large Portions of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields have been, by Acts of Parliament, taken away from it, and proportioned out into three diſtinct Pariſhes; as, St. Paul Covent-garden long ſince, St. James and St. Anne's more lately; yet it remains a very great Pariſh, and too populous for one Church to receive the Inhabitants.

For an Account of the Saint to whom this Church is dedicated, ſee Vol. I. Book III. pag. 686.

This Church is ſaid to be in the Fields becauſe there were not any Streets, or Houſes near it, when it was firſt built.

We can give no Account when the laſt Church was founded, Hiſtory being ſilent therein; it was very ſmall till the Year 1607, when the Chancel was taken out of the Church-yard, and built on; and about that Time it was repaired and beautified. It was new beautified wholly in the Year 1688, and again in 1701. The Enlargement above-mentioned was done partly at the Expence of King James I. and Prince Henry his eldeſt Son, who was then the Glorious Hope of England; the reſt at the Pariſh Charge. It was rebuilt by Act of Parliament, and finiſhed Anno 1726, partly at the Expence of the Owners of Lands, Houſes, and Tenements, and partly by the Inhabitants. At the Weſt End are theſe Words in Capitals:

D. SACRAM ÆDEM. S. MARTINI PAROCHIANI EXTRUI FECIT,
A. D. MDCCXXVI,

And underneath:

JACOBO GIBBS ARCHITECTO.

" THE Portico of this Church (ſays the Au" thor of A Critical Review of the Publick
" Buildings) is at once elegant and auguſt, and
" the Steeple above it ought to be conſidered as " one of the moſt tolerable in Town: If the " Steps ariſing from the Street to the Front could " have been made regular, and on a Line from " End to End, it could have given it a very con-
" ſiderable Grace; but as the Situation of the " Ground would not allow it, this is to be eſ-
" teemed rather a Misfortune than a Fault. The " round Columns, at each Angle of the Church,
" are very well conceived, and have a very fine
" Effect in the Profile of the Building. The Eaſt
" End is remarkably elegant, and very juſtly chal" lenges a particular Applauſe. In ſhort, if there is " any Thing wanting in this Fabrick, 'tis a lit" tle more Elevation, which, I preſume, is ap" parently wanted within, and would create an " additional Beauty without. I can't help think" ing too, that in Complaiſance to the Galleries,
" the Architect has reverſed the Order of the " Windows, it being always uſual to have the " large ones neareſt the Eye, and the ſmall (by " Way of Attick-Story) on the Top.

MONUMENTS of old Time in St. Martin's Church in the Fields, were theſe enſuing.

ON the South Side is a fair Monument, with this Inſcription:

Arthur Gregory married Chriſtian.

Otho Maudit married Elizabeth.

Here lies buried William Downes whom God hath taken to his Mercy; who believed that he ſhould riſe at the laſt Day, and ſee the glorious Majeſty of God, and receive Life everlaſting. Who while he lived here had two Wives, Margaret Ward, and Elizabeth Rolfe. Who had by his firſt Wife one Son and one Daughter, and by his ſecond Wife two Sons and four Daughters. Who died the 26th of September 1589.

John Thorp married Margaret.

William Breſt married Mary.

ANOTHER Monument there alſo, with this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of Thomas Fouler, Eſq; borne in Wicam, in the County of Lancaſter; who was Controuler and Paymaſter of the Works to Queen Mary, and to our Soveraigne Lady Queene Elizabeth, by the Space of ten Yeeres. He was very charitable to the Poore in his Lifetime, and at his Death he gave by Will out of his Dwelling-houſe, a perpetual Annuity of 40 Shillings by the Yeere, to be given to 20 poore Houſholders of this Pariſh at Chriſtmas for ever. He had in Marriage three Wives, Ellen, Margaret, and Elizabeth, which alſo lye here intombed. He ſurviving them, having no Child at his Death, made three of his old Servants, namely, Henry Bludder, Matthew Switzer, and William Humphrey, his Executors. Who, in Remembrance of him, have cauſed this Monument to be made.

ANOTHER on the South Side thus inſcribed:

Expectans Gloriam.

Juxta hoc requieſcit John Bembow, Arm. deputatus clerici Coronæ in curia Cancellarii D. Regis, In quo officio, per ſpatium 40 An. Induſtriam præſtitit, expiravit die Veneris 7 Octob. An. 1625. Termino ſexaginta Annor. Ætatis ſuæ finito. Tres habuit uxores, Dorotheam Prowde, & Catherinam Sparkes, eodem tumulo ſepultas. Menſium: Et Johannem Bembowe poſthumum, tres tantum Hebdomadas viventem, cum patre humatum.

THIS Monument was near unto the other, and hath this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Corpes of John Worſley [born in Whitchurch in Salop] Gentleman, who was Meſſenger to Queen Elizabeth, by 20 Yeeres Space. He died the 25th of March, 1595. in the 37th Yeere of her Raigne, being aged 40 Yeeres. He gave to be paid yeerely upon each Chriſtmas Day, during the Space of 21 Yeeres, as well 15 Shillings to the Poor of St. Martin's Pariſh in the Field, where he was Pariſhioner, as alſo 10 Shillings to the Poor of the Pariſh of Whitchurch in Salop.

IN the ſame Iſle, on the South Side, is this Inſcription:

To the Memory of Sir Carew Keynell, Knt. late Gentleman-Penſioner to Queene Elizabeth, and Gentleman-Uſher of the Privy-Chamber to King James. Hee died the 7th of December 1624, in the 61ſt Yeere of his Age.

ANOTHER Monument on the ſame Side, with this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Thomas Heron, Armiger, Filius Thomæ Heronis de Edgecombe, in provincia Surrey, Armigeri, Scaccarii Mareſchallus. Uxorem cepit Olivam, Thomæ Britton generoſi de Flemingham Norfolciæ filiam. Cum qua viginti novem annos vixit; atque ex ea unico dolatus Filio Edvardo. Diem obiit Martii 1590. Marito plurimum dilecto, predicta conjux Amantiſſima, mœrore & lachrymis perfuſa, Monumentum hoc Amoris & Fidei Conjugalis Ergo, poſuit & ſacravit.

ON the ſame Side is another Monument, with this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Maria Uxor Thomæ Clopton, Arm. Filia Domini Willi. Waldgrave, Militis, utriuſque tam Mariti, quam Patris illuſtrata Familiis. Obiit 19. Decemb. 1599, De qua ſunt ſuperſtites 4. Liberi, Willielmus, Gualterus, Elizabetha, & Maria.

Cloptoni jacet hic Conjux, Waldgravia proles,
Uxor digna viro, Filia digna Patre:
Alter in alterius ſplendet virtutibus, ut lux
Sitque viro, & Patri, virque paterque ſibi.

THIS Monument was in the South Side of the Chancel, with this Inſcription:

Hic ſita eſt Elizabetha Dutton filia primogenita Thomæ Egerton, Equitis Aurati, filii primogeniti Tho. Egerton, Equitis Aurat. Dom. magni ſigilli Angliæ Cuſtodis. Qui nunc honorem ſummi Angliæ Cancellarii & Baronis de Eleſmere gerit. Nupta fuit Johan. Dutton ex antiquiſſima familia Duttonorum in Comitatu Ceſtriæ: Sed uxorem, viduam & virginem ab avo pie educatam, venuſtate, pietate & modeſtia preſtantiſſimam præmatura mors ad loca excelſa & beatiſſima (quo omnes tendimus) non ſine multorum lachrymis præmiſit. Obiit die ſecundo Octobris 1611, vixit annos 16. M. iiij. D. xxi.

Idem

Idem nobiliſſimus Baro de Eleſmere, Angliæ Cancellarius, avus indulgentiſſimus mœſtiſſimuſque nepoti chariſſimæ amoris Ergo poſuit.

ANOTHER Monument in the ſame Church, with this Inſcription:

To the worthy, learned, and godly Gentleman, William Cooke, Eſquire, her deare Huſband, Sonne to the Right Worſhipful Sir Anth. Cooke, Knight, Frances his moſt loving Wife, Daughter to that moſt noble Gentleman, the Lord John Gray, Brother to the ſometime High and Mighty Prince Henry Gray, the laſt Duke of Suffolke, hath dedicated this Monument in Memory of his Vertue and her Love. Died the 14th Day of May, and in the Yeere of his Age 56.

This Tombe for her deare Spouſe, hath Noble Frances placed;
Lamenting much, with greater Gifts
this Tombe ſhould not be graced:
And grieves as much Companion-like,
this Tombe ſhould not containe
Their Wills in Earth, ſince both on Earth
one Will they did retaine.

ON the North Side of the Chancel is this Inſcription:

Honoratiſſimo Patri Dauncio [Amicio] Pouleto Equiti aurato, inſulæ Jerſeæ Præfecto, apud Chriſtianiſſimum regem quondam Legato, nobiliſſimi ordinis Garterii, Cancellario, & Sereniſſimæ principis Elizabethæ Conſiliario, Antonius Pouletus Filius, hoc pietatis Monumentum Mœrens poſuit.

Gardez la foy.

Quod verbo ſervare fidem (Poulete) ſolebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria verba tibi:
Quod gladio ſervare fidem, Poulete, ſolebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria ſigna tibi.
Patria ſe ſenſit, ſenſit Regina fidelem,
Sic fidus Civis, ſicque Senator eras.
Te fidum Chriſtus, te fidum Eccleſia ſenſit,
Sic ſervus inter multa pericla fidem,
Ergo quod ſervo princeps, Eccleſia nato,
Patria quod fido cive ſit orba, dolet,
Interea Chriſtus defuncti facta coronat,
A quo ſervatam viderat eſſe fidem.

Margareta Poulet hoc Epitaphium mœroris ſimul & amoris ſui perpetuum teſtem amico conjugi ſuo chariſſimo clariſſimoque dicavit.

Quid Cranii ſibi forma novi vult iſta? Quid Hora?
Quidque ſuper Cranio, lumen nova nota, ſegeſque?
Nempe dies mortis, vitæ fit origo perennis;
Quæ moritur mundo, naſcitur illa Deo.

What doth this Scull? What doth this Houre-glaſſe ſhow?
The Corne and Palme, that on the Scull doth grow?
It meaneth this, that Death the End of Striſe,
Is the Beginning to Eternal Life:
Death is the Door to Immortality,
She's borne to God, that to the World doth dye.
The burning Taper to his End doth waſte,
Whilſt Life and Death to meet each other haſte;
Then happy ſhe, that did her Life apply,
Here and above to live eternally.

To the permanent Honour and Rembrance of the Pious and All-vertuous Gentlewoman, Miſtreſſe Suſan Price, Daughter to the Honourable Baronet, Sir Paul Tracy, of Stanway in Gloceſter; and the late dearly beloved Wife of the religious, learned, and truly vertuous Gentleman, William Price, of Wincheſter, Eſquire, one of his Majeſties moſt honourable Privy Chamber. She died the 13th of March, 1632.

Ye holy Angels, and Powers of Light,
The glad enjoyers of God's glorious Sight;
You that in faithful Abraham's Boſome reſt,
You have received your ſanctified Gueſt:
Faire Suſan Price hath bleſſed Heaven obtain'd,
And for her well run Race, God's Glory gain'd,
Shining in Robes of Immortality,
Contemns the Earth, and Wordly Vanity.
True Chriſtian Faith iudued her conſtant Minde,
And unto her the Promiſe was aſſign'd.
Moſt honoured be her Memory, outwaſting
All Genealogies, and ever laſting.
Whilſt there be Elements, Stars, Orbes, or Sphears,
Day's Sunne, or Night's Moone, to direct the Yeeres,
The Heavens poſſeſs her Soule, the World her Fame,
And faire Example, her Vertues, Worth, and Name;
What Nature, Goodneſs, Inſtitution, Fact,
Could heape to a Perfection, was her Act.
The Angels ſing her Glory, who did call
Her ſweet Soul home to its Original,
And now ſhees gone hence for to paſs the Time
She ought her Husband, in a better Clime.
There ſhall her Harveſt and her Summer be,
Where ſhe ſhall never any Winter ſee.
Then, Price, grieve you no more, ſhe lives in Joy,
Wipe you your Teares, her Teares are wip'd away.

The

The EPITAPH.

S tay e'er you paſſe, lament, and fix your Eyes
U pon a worthy Conſort's Obſequies.
S uſan here lies, for Beauty, Worth, and Life,
A dmir'd, the worthy William Price's Wife.
N ever was after Death one more deſired,
N or ever living was one more admired.
A File of laſting Praiſes crownes her Name,
P erpetual Glories do attend her Fame:
R ich in all Joyes, ſhe now hath changed her Bed,
J oyned in Marryage unto Chriſt her Head.
C ome, whoſoever would enjoy like State,
E ndeavour all her Worth to imitate.

Over the Figure of Death:

Ibimus omnes.

Ladies, when you your pureſt Beauties ſee,
Think them but Tenants to Mortalitie:
There's no Content on Earth, Joyes ſoon are fled,
Healthful to Day we live, to Morrow dead:
I was as you are now, young, faire, and cleere,
And you ſhall once be as you ſee me heere:

Mors mihi lucrum.

Moriendo Naſcimur.

Upon her Tomb Stone, at the Foot of this Monument.

Miſtreſs Suſanna Price, the Wife of William Price, Eſquire, one of the Groomes of his Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy Chamber, Daughter of Sir Paul Tracy, Baronet, departed this Life the 13. of March, 1632, before ſhe had beene married full 14 Weekes.

She was ſo full of Vertue and Goodneſs, few might compare with her, none could excel her.

A fair Tomb Stone in the Chancel, with this Inſcription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Miſtreſſe Dorothy Harvy; that honourable matchleſſe Virgin, the Daughter of the Right Honourable, William Lord Harvey, Baron of Kidbrooke, and of the religious Lady his Wife, the Lady Cordelia Harvey, Daughter and Heire to Maſter Brian Anſley, Eſquire, of Lee in Kent, who departed this tranſitory Life the 19. of February, Anno. 1632.

Glorious Dorothy here imtombed lies.
Lord Harvie's Daughter, and fair Vertues Prize.
Modell of Honour, Graces Paragon,
In whoſe great Loſſe, her Parents Joyes are gone.
Her Life was ſuch, as well may be deny'd,
That ſhe did ever ill, but when ſhe dy'd:
Pity, ſo ſoone, ſo rare a Virgin muſt,
Stoop to Corruption, and be cloath'd in Duſt.
Heaven and the World being Sutors who ſhould have her.
To end the Strife, ſhe went to him that gave her.

Naſcendo Morimur.

If theſe periſh, what can ſave
The moſt accompliſh'd from the Grave?
In Pity, courteous Reader, haſte away,
Thy Foot ne'er trampled on ſuch lovely Clay.

Anne Kinward, 1656. Patience Kinward, 1655. Eſther Kinward, 1656.

SOME Perſons had Monuments in this Church, who were good Benefactors to the Pariſh, viz.

Thomas Fowler, Eſq; charitable to the Poor in his Life time; and at his Death, gave by Will, out of his Dwelling-houſe, a perpetual Annuity of 40 s. to be given to 20 poor Houſholders of this Pariſh at Chriſtmas for ever.

John Worſley, Gent. gave to be paid yearly, upon each Chriſtmas-day, during the ſpace of 21 Years, as well 15 s. to the Poor of St. Martin's Pariſh; as, alſo 10 s. to the Pariſh of Whitchurch, in Salop.

Thomas Evans, Gent, gave by his laſt Will divers charitable Legacies, viz. 50 l. to be for a Stock for ever, the yearly Profits to be raiſed thence, for the Repair of the Church where his Body ſhould be interred.

Fifty Pounds to be a Stock, to be in like manner employed for the Repair of Chelſea Church.

And another 50 l. for the Relief of the Poor within the ſaid Pariſh of Chelſea.

Alſo 50 l. for the like Relief of the Poor within the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

And 100 l. towards building Houſes on the new Church-yard in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Martin's; to be for the Benefit of the Poor of this ſaid Pariſh.

He alſo gave divers good Legacies to ſundry of his Kindred and Friends.

Henry Lidgould left 5 l. a Year, for ever, to be diſtributed to the Poor on Maunday Thurſday, which is mentioned before.

THIS Living is an Impropriation, in the Gift of the King, worth upwards of 600 l. per Ann. Rated in the King's Books at 12 l.

THE preſent Vicar is the Reverend Dr. Pierce, and the Lecturers are the Rev. Dr. Trapp, and the Rev. Dr. Hudſon.

PRAYERS are at ſix o'Clock in the Morning from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at ſeven all the reſt of the Year: The Gift of Dr. Wallis, an eminent Phyſician of this Pariſh. Prayers are alſo at 10 in the Morning on Wedneſday's, Friday's and Holidays. Here is an Organ, and 12 Bells.

THE Veſtry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are,	The PEACE OFFICERS are,
2 Church-Wardens.	5 Burgeſſes.
4 Sideſmen.	5 Aſſiſtant Burgeſſes.
9 Overſeers of the Poor.	8 Conſtables.

IN Hungerford-market is a Charity School, but the Number of Children is uncertain; 'tis ſupported by Subſcription: The Boys are cloathed, ſome of them maintained, and taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accounts. The Sum of 5 l. is given with each of them, when put Apprentice. The Girls are cloathed and taught to Work, Knit, and Sew, 2 l. 10 s. is given with each of them, when put out to Service, &c.

IN Caſtle-ſtreet, by the Meuſe, is a Free-ſchool, erected and endowed by that truly charitable Divine, Dr. Thomas Tenniſon, late Archbiſhop of Canterbury, when he was Vicar of this Pariſh, at his own Coſt and Charges; and a Library alſo well ſtored with Books.

THIS School hath two Maſters to govern it, an Upper and a Lower, the former hath 30 l. a Year Salary for teaching the Scholars; the latter hath alſo 30 l. a Year Salary; and for teaching to write hath 10 l. a Year more. There is only a certain Number of Boys taught freely, the reſt that come pay for their Schooling, as at other Schools.

OVER the School-Room is the Library, which is handſome and ſpacious. The Books with the Backs gilt, are ſet on Shelves. There are divers Tables ſet in convenient Places, for the Uſe of ſuch as read or tranſcribe. The Librarian is the Upper Maſter of the School, who hath for keeping the Library 10 l. a Year, beſides his Salary aforeſaid. His Name is Mr. Worſden, the laſt Maſter was Mr. Richardſon, and he ſucceeded Dr. Poſtlethwaite, who was the firſt Maſter after it was founded; but he quitted this for St. Paul's School. The Upper Maſter here likewiſe reads ſix a Clock Prayers at St. Martin's Church, founded by Dr. Wallis, for which he hath 20 l. per Ann. more.

IN this Library, on a Friday, meet the Society, for the Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts; and cloſe adjoining to the School is a new Work-houſe, for employing the Poor.

THIS Pariſh was ſo exceeding populous and greatly increaſed, that two Pariſhes were taken out of it, viz. St. James's and St. Anne's, and there are beſides, certain Chapels erected in it, for the Uſe of the Pariſhioners, as Oxendon Chapel, in Oxendon-ſtreet, near Leiceſter-fields. Ruſſel-court Chapel near Drury-lane, which had formerly been a Diſſenting Meeting-Houſe, under the Care of the famous Mr. Daniel Burgeſs; another Chapel in Long-acre, founded by the Rev. Dr. James King, who had before the Building of it, another in Spring-garden, leading into the Park, which was pulled down to make ſome additional Building to a Houſe, then occupied by Mr. Secretary Craggs; near the ſame Place is now lately built another Chapel, by the Right Honourable Edward Southwell, Eſq; for the Uſe of the Inhabitants of Spring-garden, chiefly his Tenants.

THE Poor's Rate in this Pariſh comes to about 6000 l. per Annum, and there die here one Year with another, about 16,000 Perſons. Dr. Lamplugh, ſome Time Incumbent here, afterwards Archbiſhop of York, would ſay, that in this Pariſh were as many Souls as in all his Metropolis, the City of York, with the Suburbs.

In Suffolk-ſtreet Ward are:

Part of Charing-croſs, Hedge-lane, and therein Monmouth-court; St. Martin's-ſtreet, Princes Court, Blue-croſs-ſtreet, Great Suffolk-ſtreet, Little Suffolk-ſtreet; Part of the Haymarket, and therein Coventry-court; Part of Coventry-ſtreet; Part of Panton-ſtreet, and therein Edward's-court; Oxendon-ſtreet, James's-ſtreet, Witcomb-ſtreet, and therein Witcomb-court; Cock-ſpur-ſtreet; Part of Leiceſter-fields, Long's-paſſage, Orange-ſtreet, and therein Orange-court; and Part of Caſtle-ſtreet.

The Number of Houſes in this Pariſh are about 5000.

Passing by the Parſonage-Houſe, you are led into Church-lane.

A little beyond the Church is Moor's-yard, a large Place for Stabling, with ſeveral ordinary Houſes, and hath a Paſſage into Church-lane, and another into Thackham's-court, and ſo into Chandois-ſtreet; and beyond this Street are ſeveral Alleys and Places; moſt of which have a Paſſage into Bedfordbury, but are very narrow, ill-built, and as ill inhabited, viz.

Dawſon's-alley, Bedford-alley, Feather-alley, and Keniſon's-alley. The Hop-yard, indifferent good for Stabling, and hath an open Paſſage into Bedfordbury. King's-Arms-Inn, or Yard, a Place for Stabling. Goodwin's-court, but ſmall, having about two or three Houſes.

Then beyond New-ſtreet, near the Turning into Long Acre, is Caſtle-court, which is but ſmall and ordinary; and near unto this is the Croſs-keys Inn, which is large, and of a good Reſort.

Bedfordbury, on the Backſide of St. Martin's-Lane, of no great Account either for Buildings or Inhabitants; in which are theſe Yards and Places, viz. White-horſe-yard, but ordinary; Bell-yard, only for ſome Stables. Goat-yard, alſo for Stabling. Key-yard, now converted into a Brewhouſe; and Pipe-maker's-alley, (ſo called from a Pipe-maker there dwelling) a very ordinary Place.

Chandois-ſtreet, reacheth from Bedford-ſtreet unto St. Martin's-lane; but that Part of this Pariſh begins by Round-court, and ſo to St. Martin's-lane, where it is narroweſt and the moſt ordinary: On the Backſide is a Place called the Back of Round-court, but ordinary.

New-ſtreet comes out of St. Martin's-lane, and falls into King-ſtreet Covent-garden; a pretty good Street.

Long Acre, a very handſome broad Street, with good Buildings, well inhabited both by Tradeſmen and others, eſpecially of the firſt; it comes out of Drury-lane, and runs down to St. Martin's-lane.

For the Deſcription of the Alleys and Courts in this Street, we ſhall begin on the South Side, next to St. Martin's-lane; and the firſt in Angel Alley, which, with a long and narrow Paſſage, leads into Roſe-ſtreet, a Place of an ordinary Building, and as ill inhabited. Roſe-ſtreet, of which there are three, and all indifferent well built and inhabited; but the beſt is that next to King-ſtreet, called White-roſe-ſtreet, which is in Covent-garden Pariſh, with ſome Part of Red-roſe-ſtreet, where the Pariſh-ſtone is fixed on the Houſes; that Part towards Long Acre being alſo White-roſe-ſtreet.

Conduit-court, indifferent broad, with a Free-ſtone Pavement and Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet; a Court indifferently well built and inhabited, having on the Weſt Side an open Place like unto a Court. Red-lyon-Inn, a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, which hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet. Nigh to this Place was the Bagnio, a well contrived Houſe for Sweating, and much reſorted unto, there being Days for Men, and others for Women; but this is now turned into a private Houſe.

Leg-alley, (by ſome called Elmes-ſtreet) a Place of no great Account for Building or Inhabitants; and it hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet. James-ſtreet; but the greateſt Part of it being in Covent-garden Pariſh, it will be ſpoke of there; for there is no more of this Street in this Pariſh than to the Nag's-head-Inn. White-hart-Inn, hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet, and is of no great Account. Phenix-alley, a pretty open Alley, but ill inhabited, and naſtily kept; hath alſo a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet. Prince's-court, very inconſiderable. Red-lyon-court, very large, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, better built than inhabited; it is a good Thorough-fare, having a Paſſage into Bow-ſtreet, another into Earl's-court, and a third into Drury-lane: And thus much for the South Side. Now for the Alleys, &c. on the North Side of Long Acre. We ſhall begin next to Drury-lane, and then the firſt Place, Dirty-lane, (by ſome called Charles-ſtreet) an open broad Place, but not over-well inhabited; it falls into Caſtle-ſtreet, and on the Weſt Side is Bell-Inn, a large Yard for Stabling. George-Inn, a Place well accommodated for Stables and Coach-houſes. Hill's-alley, a narrow Paſſage, with a Free-ſtone Pavement into Caſtle-ſtreet. Knuckle's-alley, pretty large, and leads into Caſtle-ſtreet.

Croſs-lane, a pretty open Street, fronting King-ſtreet, and is of ſome Trade: On the Eaſt Side are two ſmall and ordinary Places, called Mace-alley, and Terret's-court. The Wood-yard, almoſt oppoſite to James's-ſtreet, a large but ordinary Place, having towards the lower End a large Stable-yard, and farther downwards, a large Brewhouſe. Langley-ſtreet, a handſome open Place, with indifferent Buildings, and falls into Caſtle-ſtreet. Mercer's-ſtreet, of no great Account for Building, or Inhabitants, who are a great Part French; it falls into Caſtle-ſtreet, againſt the Dial in the new Buildings in Cock and Pye Fields; betwixt this Street and that of Langley, there are three ordinary Places, viz. Aſcue-alley, very narrow, and falls into Coxe's-court, and that into Crown-court.

Caſtle-ſtreet, ſituate on the Backſide of Long Acre, the South Side being in this Pariſh, the other in St. Giles's in the Fields; a Street very ordinary both for Buildings and Inhabitants. Beſides the ſeveral Alleys that come out of Long Acre, already named, there are two very ordinary Places ſcarce worth mentioning, viz. Pluncket's-court, and Bacchus-court.

Drury-lane, very long, coming out of St. Giles's, and running down into the Strand, and is a Place of great Reſort, repleniſhed with good Houſes that are well inhabited by Tradeſmen, as being ſo great a Thorough-fare both for Man and Horſe: This Street, as before noted, is Part in the Pariſh of St. Clement's, Part in that of St. Mary le Strand, and Part in that of St. Giles's in the Fields; and the Part that belongs to this Pariſh, is only the Weſt Side, from the Corner of Brownlow-ſtreet in the North, where the Pariſh-ſtone Mark is ſet upon the Houſe-wall, unto the Corner of White-hart-yard; in this Part of the Lane, there are theſe Courts and Outletts, viz. Turnſtile-alley, a Place of indifferent Trade for old Houſhold Goods that are very ordinary: It hath a Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet, by the back Gate of the Red-lyon Inn in Brownlow-ſtreet. Middleſex-court, but ordinary inhabited, hath an open Paſſage by a Freeſtone Pavement into Dirty-lane; Cradle-alley, but narrow and ordinary; Red-lyon-court, already treated of; Earl's-court, a very handſome broad Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement cleanly kept, having very good new built Houſes well inhabited; this Court hath a Paſſage into Bow-ſtreet, and another into Red-lyon-court, already named; Martlet's-court, a very handſome open Place, with a good Free-ſtone Pavement cleanly kept, having good Houſes well inhabited on the North Side; the other Side lieth open into Gardens; the chief Entrance is out of Bow-ſtreet; Windſor-court, indifferent good, with a Freeſtone Pavement, having formerly a Paſſage through a Houſe called the Half-way-houſe, into Crown-court, which leadeth into Ruſſel-ſtreet; Angel-court, a very handſome, well built and inhabited Court, with a good Freeſtone Pavement cleanly kept.

Ruſſel-ſtreet, a great Thorough-fare from Lincoln's-inn-fields into Covent-garden, and thoſe Parts; a Street well inhabited by good Tradeſmen: It is all in this Pariſh on both Sides, except two or three Doors on this Side the Roſe-tavern, and on the other Side, as far as Jackſon's-alley: On the North Side is Crown-court, a pretty broad Place, with indifferent good Houſes. Farther Weſtward is King's-court, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, and a new Row of pretty good Houſes on the Weſt Side, which hath the Proſpect into the Garden belonging to the Woollen-draper at the Wooll-pack in Ruſſel-ſtreet. This Court, at the upper End, hath a turning Paſſage into Bow-ſtreet.

Then paſſing by Ruſſel-ſtreet, is the Playhouſe Yard, or Paſſage into the Theatre; next Vinegar-yard, indifferent broad, but ordinarily built and inhabited: It falleth into Little-bridges-ſtreet, and that into Great-bridges-ſtreet, in Covent-garden Pariſh. Out of Vinegar-yard is an open Freeſtone Paſſage into Ruſſel-court, a very handſome large Place with good Buildings well inhabited, hath a Freeſtone Paſſage into Bridges-ſtreet, and another Paſſage againſt Ruſſel-court Chapel into White-hart-yard, through Red-lyon-alley, which is but ordinary; and on the Eaſt Side of the ſaid Chapel, is Megg's-alley, which with a turning Paſſage alſo falleth into Bridges-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants; Nelſon's-court, almoſt over-againſt Blackmore-ſtreet, a Court of no great Account, being long and narrow. White-hart-yard comes out of Drury-lane, and falls into Bridges-ſtreet, againſt Exeter-ſtreet, a Place of ſome Trade, eſpecially for Upholſterers for ſecond hand Goods, and ſome new: The South Side of this Street is in the Savoy Pariſh, as far as Eagle-court, where the Girt Line of this Pariſh croſſeth into the ſaid Court; and thence falls into Little Catherine-ſtreet, or rather Alley, being but narrow, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and cannot much boaſt of its Houſes or Inhabitants: On North Side of this White-hart-yard is Pump-court, court, but indifferent; as alſo Red-lyon-alley, already mentioned.

Exeter-ſtreet, a good Street, with handſome built Houſes, well inhabited; eſpecially the North Side, which is in Covent-garden Pariſh. It cometh out of Catherine-ſtreet, and runneth up as far as the Back of the Bedford Tavern Door: And out of this Place there is a Paſſage into the Strand through Denmark-court, a very handſome, well built, and inhabited Place; which beginneth at the End of Exeter-ſtreet, and runs down into the Strand: And in that Part of the Court it hath but one Row of Houſes on the Weſt Side, which hath a Proſpect into a handſome Garden.

Burleigh-ſtreet butts againſt Exeter-ſtreet, and falls into the Strand againſt the Savoy; an indifferent good Street, the Weſt Side of which is only in this Pariſh; and on this Side is Bull-head-court, which is but ſmall and ordinary.

We ſhall next walk into the Strand, and view the Alleys and Courts therein: And firſt begin with thoſe on the North Side, and next, paſs to Burleigh-ſtreet, as far as St. Martin's-lane; then to thoſe on the South Side, beginning at Salisbury-buildings. And according to this Method, the firſt is,

Mary-gold-alley, a pretty large Place, but indifferent as to Building and Inhabitants. It hath a Paſſage up Steps in another Place of an ordinary Building, alſo ſo called; and thence it hath a Paſſage into Bennet's-court, which hath but a narrow Entry into the Strand; but after a little way up Steps it hath pretty good Buildings. Denmark-court already ſpoken of. Curle-court hath a pretty good Row of Building on the Eaſt Side, which hath a Yard, and at the Upper End is a good Houſe much better than the reſt. Then is Southampton-ſtreet, which with Taviſtock-ſtreet, &c. were not many Years ſince built upon the Ground where Bedford Houſe and Gardens ſtood, next is Half-moon-ſtreet, between theſe Places are; Oliver's-alley, which is but ſmall and ordinary; Lumley-court, indifferent good; Globe-alley, but ordinary Buildings; Bull-inn-court, a good large Place, better built than inhabited, hath a Paſſage with a Freeſtone Pavement into Maiden-lane; Blue-ball-court, of no great account; Baylies-alley, very narrow, with a Paſſage into Maiden-lane; Heathcock-court hath pretty handſome Buildings; The Thatched-alley, but narrow, and not over good, hath a Paſſage into Maiden-lane; Exchange-court hath indifferent good Buildings with a Freeſtone Pavement.

Half-moon-ſtreet, againſt the New-Exchange, runneth into Bedford-ſtreet in Covent-garden, and here the Paſſage is but narrow, and very troubleſome for Coaches to paſs. All this Street, except ſome few Houſes near Chandois-ſtreet and Maiden-lane, is in this Pariſh; and the Street is well inhabited by Tradeſmen, except in the narrow Paſſage next the Strand: Then beyond this Street, unto St. Martin's-lane are theſe Places; Harvey-court, a pretty handſome open Place, with good Buildings; Long-court or Alley hath a narrow Paſſage through Entries into Chandois-ſtreet; Round-court, after a narrow Paſſage through an Entry out of the Strand, openeth into a pretty ſquare Court, and from that into another Place which leadeth into another Entry, and ſo into Chandois-ſtreet: This Place is of conſiderable Note, and much reſorted to, as being inhabited by Silk-mercers and Lace-men, who drive a conſiderable Trade, occaſioned from the Opinion that the Females have, that they there buy better Pennyworths than elſewhere. Out of this Court there is made a Paſſage into New-round-court, deſigned for Shop-keepers, as the other; but whether it will take, time muſt ſhew: This Court is more open, and the Buildings far better than the other, and hath a better Paſſage into it out of the Strand, and therefore the more probability of its taking; Robin-hood-court very ordinary, and ill built. Church-lane, very ordinary, which runneth up into Thackam's-court, a pretty handſome ſquare Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement; which Court hath two Paſſages into a Street called the Backſide of Round-court, which falleth into Chandois-ſtreet near St. Martin's-lane: This Place hath a Paſſage into Moor's-yard, which leadeth into St. Martin's-lane; alſo another Paſſage into New Round-court, and another turning Paſſage to St. Martin's Church, all but indifferently built or inhabited; Hewit's-court, a pretty good Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement into Church-lane; St. Martin's-court, a new built Court, with good Houſes and a Freeſtone Pavement into Church-lane near the Church; King's-head-inn and Star-inn; both Places well reſorted unto: Then a little beyond St. Martin's-lane, is the Checquer-inn and Court, already ſpoken of; and almoſt againſt the Statue of the King on Horſeback in Charing-croſs, is a pretty Court, called Woodſtock-court.

Thus having ſpoken of the North Side of the Strand, next the South Side is be perambulated, beginning at Salisbury-buildings, and then the firſt is called Cecil-ſtreet, built on the Ground where great Salisbury-houſe ſtood; a very handſome new built Street, which leadeth down to the Thames, the Eaſt Side being in St. Clement's Pariſh. Salisbury-ſtreet, better built than inhabited, by reaſon of its Narrowneſs, and ſteep Deſcent towards the Water Side, where there is a Pair of Stairs to take Water at. Ivy-bridge, now very bad and ſcarce fit for Uſe, by Reaſon of the Unpaſſableneſs of the Way; it hath an Inlet into Durham-yard. Durham-yard, antiently Dureſme-houſe, as being the Reſidence of the Biſhops of Durham.

In the Place where certain old Stables ſtood, belonging to this Houſe, is the New Exchange, being furniſhed with Shops on both Sides the Walks, both below and above Stairs, were for Milleners, Sempſtreſſes, and other Trades that furniſh Dreſſes; and was once a Place of great Reſort and Trade for the Nobility and Gentry; but is lately very much decayed, the upper Parts being let intire for a Warehouſe for Glaſſes, Cabinets, &c.

Of later Times this Durham-yard came to Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, in Conſideration (ſome ſay) to pay to the See of Durham 200 l. per Ann. which Grant was confirmed by Act of Parliament, dated the 16th of Charles the Firſt. And it was by his Son built into Tenements or Houſes, as now they are ſtanding, being a handſome Street deſcending down out of the Strand, which falls into another much better inhabited, eſpecially on the South Side, where there are Gardens fronting the Thames, very pleaſant, with two Woodmongers Wharfs for the Sale of Fuel: Beſides, where the Dairy Houſe ſtood, now taken down, is a more open Paſſage to another Row of Houſes, fronting the Backſide of the New Exchange. And on the North Side of the Street, near Ivy-bridge, is a pretty handſome Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement, called Biſhop's-court. Theſe ſaid Buildings of Durham-yard, are now the Inheritance of Sir Thomas Mompeſſon of Bathampton in the County of Wilts, Knight.

Farther Weſt was York-houſe; which, in Time, came into the Poſſeſſion of George Villars Duke of Buckingham; who added much to the old Building, and would have had it called by his Title, yet it retained its Name of York-houſe; and ſo it continued until the next Duke of Buckingham diſpoſed of it, and then it was built into fair Streets, as now it is, and called York-buildings.

ings: In which are theſe Streets and Alleys: Next the New-exchange is a narrow Paſſage down Steps into George-ſtreet, which runneth to the Thames, a handſome Street, with good Houſes well inhabited; at the upper End of which, next the Strand, is George-alley, which leadeth into Buckingham-ſtreet, and from thence into Off-alley, which falleth into Villars-ſtreet; both which Alleys are but narrow and indifferently built but have a Freeſtone Pavement. Buckingham-ſtreet comes out of the Strand, and runs down to the River Thames, where there is a ſtately Portico and Stairs of Freeſtone, for the Conveniency of the Water, and Watermen always plying there. This Portico and the Ornaments belonging to it, are thus ſpoke of by an ingenious Author: "York-ſtairs is unqueſtionably the moſt "perfect Piece of Building, that does Honour to "the Name of Inigo Jones. It is Plann'd with "ſo exquiſite a Taſte, form'd of ſuch equal and "harmonious Parts, and adorned with ſuch pro-"per and elegant Decorations, that nothing can "be cenſured or added. It is at once happy "in its Situation, beyond Compariſon, and fan-"cied in a Stile exactly ſuited to that Situa-"tion. The Rock-work, or Ruſtick, can never "be introduced better, than in Buildings by the "Side of the Water. This Street is very ſpa-cious, with very good Houſes, well inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially thoſe on each Side fronting the Thames: That on the Weſt Side is ſo large, that it was the Habitation of the late Earl of Oxford, while Lord High Treaſurer of England.

The Salt Office. IN this Street is the Office for the Duty on Salt, which Duty was granted to the Crown in 9th Year of William III. and was at firſt only 1 s. per Buſhel, but is now 4 s.

THE Office was at firſt managed by the Commiſſioners of the Exciſe; but the Revenue increaſing, by a greater Number of Salt-works erected, it was thought proper to ſeparate them, and the Commiſſioners, and Chief Officers imployed under them at their Office, are ſuch as are inſerted. There are likewiſe imployed in this Office two Under Accomptants, with an Aſſiſtant Clerk, a Clerk to the Correſpondent, one to the Aſſiſtant Secretary, a Houſe-keeper, Store-keeper, Door-keeper, Meſſengers, Porters, and two Watchmen; a Collector of Salt at LONDON, and a Searcher, at 60 l. per Ann. each; two Surveyors at 50 l. each, and two Boatmen, at 30 l. each; beſides the Eſtabliſtment in the ſeveral Counties, of Collectors, Superviſors, Officers, which is very large.

Commiſſioners. Ja. Cardonnel, Wm. Churchil, Edw. Aſtly, Wm. Winde, Eſqrs, 500 l. per Ann. each.

Secretary. Edward Davies, Eſq; 200 l. per Annum.

Chief Accomptant. Wm. Sumpter, 100 l. per Annum.

Other Accomptants. William Stuart, Thomas Hughton, Henry Folket, William Spinkes, 70 l. per Ann. each.

Surveyors for the Port of LONDON. —— Maireſt, Benj. Davies, 50 l. per Ann. each.

Meſſenger. John Bampfield, 40 l. per Ann.

Porter. Thomas Jey, 30 l. per Ann.

Two Watchmen. 20 l. per Ann. each.

Door-keeper. Joſhua Ellis. 40 l. per Ann.

THIS Street is croſſed by Duke-ſtreet, a pretty good Street, which butts upon George-ſtreet; and Villars-ſtreet, which alſo comes out of the Strand, and runneth down to the Thames; being a very handſome Street, with good Houſes, well inhabited; at the lower End of which is a Water-houſe, very conſiderable, ſerving abundance of Families at this End of the Town. Next the Thames there is a handſome Tarraſs Walk, which reacheth almoſt the Breadth of York-buildings, which gives a fine Proſpect to the Houſes, as lying open to the Thames.

Charles-court, a very handſome new built Court, with Houſes fit for Inhabitants; having a Stone Pavement down to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs for the Conveniency of the Water. Out of this Court there is a Paſſage into Villars-ſtreet, and another into Hungerford-market.

Hungerford-market, built on the Ground where ſtood a large but old Houſe, with a Garden, the Seat of Sir Edward Hungerford, which he converted into Buildings, as it is, having a handſome Street out of the Strand, and leading into the Market; where there is a good Market-houſe, and over it, the School for the Charity Children of St. Martin's Pariſh. This Market at firſt was very likely to have taken well, eſpecially for Fruit and Herbs, as lying ſo convenient for the Gardeners to land their Goods at the Stairs, without the Charge and Trouble of Porters to carry them farther by Land, as now to Covent-garden-market; but being baulk'd at firſt, it turns to little Account, and that of Covent-garden hath got the Start; which is much reſorted unto, and well ſerved with all Fruits and Herbs, good in their Kind. By the One-tun-tavern, there is a Paſſage into Heley-alley, which falleth into Hungerford-market. Brewer's-yard, a very ordinary Place, both for Houſes and Inhabitants, and chiefly reſorted unto by Carmen for the bringing up Goods and Coals from the Wharfs by the Thames Side, and the frequent paſſing of the Carts with heavy Loading, breaks up the Paſſage, and cauſeth it to be bad and dirty.

NEXT was a Place called Spur-alley, which had a very narrow and ordinary Paſſage into the Strand, but was ſomething better at the Bottom towards the Thames: This Place is now lately rebuilt with good Houſes, the Ground is levelled, which before ran with a great Deſcent, and is become a very handſome Street, called Craven-ſtreet, out of which is Croſs-lane, a Place of ſmall account, which leadeth into Harts-horn-lane; and here is a ſmall and ordinary Alley, called Baker's-alley, which hath a Paſſage into Brewer's-yard, and another into Harts-horn-lane.

Harts-horn-lane, alſo a Place much clogged and peſtered with Carts repairing to the Wharfs; and therefore not well inhabited. On the Eaſt Side is Plough-court, which is but ſmall; and lower down is a Place called the Lime-wharf, a Place indifferent well built and inhabited.

Somerſet-court, a handſome new built Court, with Houſes fit for Inhabitants, eſpecially being near the Court. It hath a good Freeſtone Pavement.

Northumberland-houſe, a noble and ſpacious Building; having a large ſquare Court at the Entrance, with Buildings round it; at the upper End of which Court, is a Piazza, with Buildings over it, ſuſtained by Stone Pillars, and behind the Buildings there is a curious Garden, which runneth down to the Thames; all which makes it a ſtately Habitation, fit to receive ſuch a Perſon of Quality as is the Owner thereof, viz. Charles Duke of Somerſet: This Houſe came to him in Right of his firſt Lady, viz. Lady Elizabeth, Heireſs of of Jocelin, late Earl of Northumberland; it is a magnificent Building, and the Furniture within is equal to it; among which, it is ſaid, there is one Picture valued at thirty thouſand Pounds, repreſenting the Family of the Cornaro's, an antient Venetian Family, and painted by the celebrated Titian.

A little beyond this Houſe, more towards Whitehall, is Angel-court, indifferent large, but ordinary built or inhabited. Next to it is another ſmall Alley called Hermitage-alley. Then Cragg's-court, a very handſome large Court, with new Buildings fit for Gentry of Repute, eſpecially thoſe on the Side fronting the Thames, or Northumberland Garden. This Court is very near to Scotland-yard.

THEN is Whitehall, where was for many Years the Royal Palace, and Reſidence of the Kings and Queens of England, no leſs pleaſantly than commodiouſly ſeated on the Bank of the Thames on the South, and having on the North the delectable Park of St. James's.

KING Henry VIII. who was the firſt Royal Poſſeſſor of it, built a ſumptuous Gallery, with a beautiful Gatehouſe thwart the Street into St. James's Park.

SINCE the Days of King Henry VIII. it was much enlarged and beautified in its Buildings by the ſucceeding Kings and Queens; and eſpecially by King Charles I. and II. King James II. and King William III. who added a noble Terrace Walk by the Thames, under the King and Queen's Lodgings, then not long built, and were very ſtately and convenient: But the ſtatelieſt Room is the Banqueting-Houſe, facing the Street, for the Reception of Ambaſſadors, Members of Parliament, and other publick Uſes; which for its Spaciouſneſs, exact Proportion, and beautiful Painting, done by the Hand of the famous Sir P. Paul Reubens, and hath ſcarce any Thing equal to it in all Europe. This Palace, which was extreme large and very commodious, was all burnt to the Ground in the Year 1698, except the Banqueting-Houſe beforemention'd, and ſome of the Offices, as the Treaſury, the Secretary's Office, the Signet Office, the Lord Chamberlain's Office, the Green Cloth, the Jewel Office, the Wardrobe, &c. The TREASURY is now rebuilding in a magnificent Manner.

THERE is a Place, which was a Garden to the Old Palace, called the Privy Garden, where are ſeveral Houſes now built for Noblemen and others, particularly one belonging to the Earl of Pembroke, another to the Duke of Montagu, and a third to the Duke of Richmond; on which Houſes the Author of the Critical Review makes theſe Remarks: "The Earl of Pembroke's, which "ſome Months ago ſeem'd, at leaſt, to be pretty, "and wanted but little of being elegant; but "now his Lordſhip has thought proper to alter "it in ſuch a Manner that it would be hardly "known by either of theſe Epithets; to hide "the whole Front of a Houſe for the Sake of the "Offices, is certainly ſomething of a Miſtake; "but theſe have neither Manner, nor ſo much "as Materials to render them tolerable.

"THE Duke of Montagu's new Houſe was "intended to be plain and ſimple, but, I pre"ſume, at the ſame Time beautiful and harmo"nious; and yet, with all Submiſſion to better "Judges, it appears to me heavy and inſipid, "loaded with Roof, and incumbered with irre"gular Offices. I might add too, that the "Stone Projection towards the Thames is an "Excreſcence which has neither Taſte nor Or"nament to recommend it; the Alcove may "anſwer very gracefully within, for what I can "tell; but, without, I am poſitive 'tis a Ble"miſh which hardly any Convenience can pardon.

"HIS Grace of Richmond's is next, and has "greatly the Advantage of its Neighbour; there "is ſomething of Manner as well as Simplicity in "this; it ſatisfies the Eye, and anſwers in the "Proſpect; and yet even here the Entrance is "intolerable; not only becauſe 'tis bad in it "ſelf, but becauſe it hides all the lower Part "of the Houſe, and of courſe ſpoils the Propor"tion, without adding a ſingle Beauty to make "an Atonement.

THIS Garden is parted from the Street, on the North, by a fine high Wall lately erected; at the End of which was an old Gatehouſe, not many Years ſince taken down. On the oppoſite Side of the Way, adjoining to where this Gatehouſe ſtood, is a new built Houſe for the Right Hon. Horatio Walpole, Eſq; to dwell in as Auditor of the Accompts of the Lords Commiſſioners of Trade and Plantations, whoſe Office is on the other Side where the Gatehouſe ſtood, and fronts Charing-Croſs.

The COMMISSIONERS of Trade and Plantations are:

The Plantation Office.

THE Right Hon. Thomas Earl of Weſtmorland, Thomas Pelham, Eſq; Martin Bladen, Eſq; Edward Aſhe, Eſq; Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Bart. Sir Archer Crofts, Bart. the Hon. James Brudenel, Eſq; and Sir Edward Bacon, Bart.

With ſeveral Clerks, from 70 to 40 l. per Annum.

ADJOINING to Mr. Walpole's Houſe are Lodgings belonging to his Grace the Duke of Montague, as Maſter of the Wardrobe; between which, and the Apartment of his Grace the Duke of Dorſet, was a Paſſage leading thro' the Cockpit, as it is commonly called, to the Parade in St. James's Park; on one Side of which, is the Front of the New Treaſury, and cloſe to it the Houſe of the Right Hon. Sir Robert Walpole, firſt Lord of the Treaſury, and Chancellor of the Exchequer. Next to the Cockpit is a Houſe belonging to the Lord Viſcount Falmouth, the back Part of which joins to another Gatehouſe, yet ſtanding, which is a very curious Piece of Gothick Architecture. Somewhat more Eaſtward, beyond the Horſe-Guards, is erected a new Houſe and Office for the Pay-maſter General of the Army; and a little farther the Admiralty Office, this is a new and an expenſive Building, but is thought, by Perſons of Taſte, to be very far from a beautiful one.

The COMMISSIONERS for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, are:

The Admiralty Office.

Sir Charles Wager, Kt. firſt Commiſſioner, 3000 l. per Annum.

Gardiner, Mr. Cook, 20 l. per Annum.

BEHIND this Office is a handſome Garden-Plot, taken out of that Part of Spring-garden next the Park. Adjoining to this Office is Buckingham-court, ſo called as built on Buckingham Garden; it hath a Free-ſtone Pavement, and a Paſſage into Spring-garden, and the Houſes are better built than inhabited. Stanhope-court, a good handſome Place, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, and well built Houſes, eſpecially thoſe which front Spring-garden. Pump-court, but ſmall, and ordinary built and inhabited, with a narrow Paſſage up Steps into Spring-garden. Mermaid-court, over-againſt the Meuſe, with a Paſſage alſo into Spring-garden, a Place of ſmall Account. White-horſe-court, adjoining to Warwick-ſtreet, of no great Account. Warwick-ſtreet, the greateſt and beſt Part of which is in the Pariſh of St. James's.

Spring-garden, a large open Place well built, with many handſome Houſes, and a good Chapel; beſides which, there is at the upper End a handſome French Church, where Divine Service is performed according to the Liturgy of the Church of England.

ON the other Side the Way, next Whitehall, is Scotland-yard, and then we come to Charing-Croſs, a large open Place fronting the Strand, the Hay-market, and Whitehall, in a triangular manner: In the Midſt of this Place is a curious Statue of King Charles I. on Horſe-back, bigger than the Life, done in Braſs, ſtanding on a high Pedeſtal of White Marble, curiouſly adorned with Warlike Trophies, all incircled with Iron Bars or Rails: Which ſaid Statue was made by that famous Statuary Laſeur, who made that curious Braſs Monument of the Duke of Buckingham in the Chapel of Henry VII. at Weſtminſter. And in the Place where this Statue ſtands there was formerly a ſtately Croſs of Marble, adorned with divers Figures about it, and called Charing-Croſs, which was erected by King Edward I. in Honour of his Queen Eleanor; which ſaid Croſs, as likewiſe that in Cheapſide, by the ſaid King erected for that Purpoſe, was pulled down and deſtroyed by the Zealots of the Long Parliament, Anno 1643. This Statue of King Charles I. was made for the Earl of Arundel; and, to prevent demoliſhing, was purchaſed, and concealed by one Mr. John Revet, in Holbourn, a Brazier, who, upon the Reſtauration of King Charles II. preſented it to his Majeſty, and he cauſed it to be erected where it now ſtands, upon an oval Pedeſtal of Free-ſtone, as aforeſaid.

HERE at Charing-Croſs is the Meuſe, uſed for the King's Horſes. The Stables, Coach-houſes, &c. in this Place are now rebuilding, and the principal Range at the upper End, is already finiſhed, in a very grand and magnificent Manner, the Plan of which Building is ſaid to have been deſigned by a Nobleman, eminent for his fine Taſte in Architecture.

ALSO Weſt of Charing-Croſs ſtands at St. James's, once a Religious Houſe, now a Royal Palace, built by King Henry VIII. King Edward I. granted a Fair to be kept here, which held a Fortnight, and was called St. James's Fair, which of late Years was kept in the Road leading to Tyburn; but ſuch great Debauchery and Lewdneſs were practiſed here, that it was ſuppreſſed by King Charles II.

ST. James's is made, by ſucceſſive Kings and Queens, far better and larger than it was at firſt, and was laſt beautified and enlarged for the Reception of their Royal Highneſſes Prince George and the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, our late moſt Noble Queen.

TO this Palace belongs a very pleaſant Park, which hath been much enlarged and improved by King Charles II. having purchaſed ſeveral Fields, which ran up to the Road, and as far as Hide Park, now encloſed with a Brick Wall, and made the Pall-Mall half a Mile long, with curious Rows of Lime-Trees round about, ſet in uniform Ranks: He made likewiſe the ſtately Canal 100 Feet broad, and 2800 Feet long, with a Decoy, and other Ponds for Ducks and Water-Fowl. There is alſo a Garden with curious Walks, and excellent Fruit in it, much improved ſince Mr. George London, the late King William's principal Gardener, had the Care and Management thereof, where he had a very good Houſe to dwell in.

NEAR the King's Palace is Marlborough Houſe, built by the late Glorious and ever-memorable Duke of Marlborough; it is a ſtrong well built Houſe, but has not many Ornaments about it.

AT the upper End of the Park Weſtward is Buckingham Houſe, which, ſays the Author of the Critical Review, "is a Building that attracts more Eyes, and has more Admirers than almoſt any other about Town; not that it is in Fact the moſt beautiful, but becauſe it appears ſo; an Advantage that it derives only from its Situation, and the Liberty it allows the Spectator of ſeeing it in what Point of View he pleaſes. The Parts which compoſe this Pile are neither new nor ſurprizing; the Proportions are not abſolutely perfect, the Windows being remarkably too large and numerous; and the Decorations ſeem poor and trivial; the Statues on the Top are wretched, and rather load than adorn the Building; the Colonnade which leads to the Wings, ſtuck on to the Houſe without any Plea for its Connection, and the Wings are both miſerable in themſelves, and no ways a-kin to the Houſe they belong to. Upon the Whole, though it muſt be confeſſed it has the Appearance of Taſte and Deſign; and if it is not perfect, there are very few Houſes that are more ſo: The late Duke's Judgment is certainly to be applauded much, for chuſing his Ground ſo well. 'Tis owing to him that the Houſe has at once the Advantage of a triple Viſta along the Mall, the Air of Conſtitution Hill, the Proſpect of Chelſea Fields, terminated with the Hills of Surrey, and a moſt delightful View" Buckingham-Houſe.

" View of the Canal, with the Landſcape on " either Side, and the Banquetting-Houſe at " Whitehall to finiſh and adorn the Whole.

Buckingham Houſe, though mentioned in this Place, as in former Surveys, is not now in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, but is taken into the new Pariſh of St. George's Hanover-ſquare.

In this Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, was a Field, called St. James's Field, and a Hill called Mellehille, and a Place called The Doune. As I find in Record, ſix Acres of Land in St. James's Field, and Mellehille, three Roods of Land, and one Acre apud Le Doune in St. Martin. in campis, granted to Stephen Chiſe, 9 Rich. 2. This Downe was a large Place, and Part thereof was in St. Giles's Pariſh. For I find alſo five Acres of Land, Sur Le Doune in St. Giles's, were granted to John de Bellomonte, Kt. 20 Rich. 2. with one Toft and one Croft, near Charing-Croſs, and eight Acres of Land near the Meuſe, and three Acres near the Hoſpital of St. James, in the Pariſh of St. Margaret Weſtminſter, and three Acres in the Pariſh of Tyburn, granted to the ſame Perſon.

Within this Pariſh of St. Martin's, and that of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, formerly was large Commoning for the Benefit of thoſe Pariſhes, of Lands laid open, according to antient Cuſtom, from Lammas Day; which were, in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, encloſed with Gates and Hedges, ſo that the Inhabitants were deprived of that Benefit, which occaſioned their Complaint, in the Year 1592, to the Lord Burghley, High Steward of Weſtminſter, and a Petition to him in that Behalf. Whereupon he gave Order to Mr. Tenche, his Under-ſteward, to impannel an Inqueſt for Enquiry into this Matter, which ſeemed to favour them: And the Pariſhioners having, as they ſuppoſed, the Lord's Countenance, ſent divers Perſons on the Firſt of Auguſt, being Lammas Day, who, with Pickaxes, and ſuch like Inſtruments, pulled down the Fences, and brake the Gates, having with them the Bailiffs and Conſtables, to keep the Peace.

Of this there was preſently a grievous Complaint made to the L. Burghley, by ſuch, eſpecially, as held thoſe Lands of the Queen, claimed by the Inhabitants to lie open for Common: Particularly theſe:

Eubury Farm, containing 430 Acres.
The Neat, containing 108 Acres.
St. James's Farm, containing 100 Acres.
Divers Parcels of the Poſſeſſion of Burton St. John Lazarus of Jeruſalem, containing 50 Acres.
In all 688 Acres.

The ſaid Lord, upon this Report brought him, immediately ſent Orders to the Under-ſteward, to enquire diligently into this Matter; who, Auguſt the 3d, gave his Lordſhip this Anſwer; which will ſhew us the State of the Cauſe:

" That whereas upon Petition of the Inhabitants of St. Martin's in the Fields, concerning their antient Commons, called Lammas-Grounds, complained to be encloſed, that it pleaſed his Lordſhip to direct his Letters to him (his Under-ſteward) for the impannelling of an Inqueſt, and for other lawful Proceedings in that Behalf: That it had Yeſterday happened, that certain of the Pariſhioners of St. Martin's, and St. Margaret's, about the Number of forty, being ignorant of the Contents of his Lordſhip's Letter, and of his (the Under-ſteward's) Direction, aſſembled together, and made an Entry into ſuch Commons as they found encloſed, by digging down, with Spade and Pickaxes, ſome ſmall Breach in every Encloſure. And, among the reſt, they opened a Piece belonging to the City of LONDON, where their Conduit-Heads are. Which being known to the Lord Mayor, he ſent Mr. Yonge, Juſtice of the Peace, among them, who ſaw what was done by them, and was preſent with Mr. Den and himſelf at the Examination of the Cauſe. And that upon Examination they found that they did this only, preſuming upon an antient Cuſtom by them, they ſaid, yearly obſerved, as that Day to lay open their Commons.

He added, " That ſome of them thus aſſembled, were of the beſt and moſt antient of the Pariſhes; that they carried with them no Weapon, and had only four or five Shovels and Pickaxes; and had divers Conſtables with them to keep her Majeſty's Peace. And having thus laid open ſuch Grounds, as they challenged to be their Commons, they quietly returned to their Houſes, without any farther Hurt doing.

" And that becauſe his Honour might happen to be informed herein againſt them from the Lord Mayor, or ſome others, otherwiſe than the Caſe did require, he had thought fit to certify his Lordſhip of the very Truth of their whole Proceeding; and had taken Order, that no ſuch Courſe ſhould hereafter be attempted by them." This was dated at Weſtminſter, Auguſt 3, 1592, and ſubſcribed, His Lordſhip's moſt bounden Under-ſteward of Weſtminſter, Rich. Tenche.

With this Letter came alſo certain Confeſſions of this Matter, one of Peter Dod and Anthony Matthew.

Peter Dod, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, aged 65 Years, or thereabouts, ſaith, That upon Lammas Day laſt, being Auguſt 1, he being near unto the City's Conduit-Heads in Middleſex, about half a Mile Weſtward from St. Giles's in the Fields, attending upon certain of the City's Works, touching conveying of Water from thence to LONDON, ſaw, betwixt five and Six o'Clock in the Afternoon the ſame Day, the Number of 40 Perſons, at leaſt, (how many more he knoweth not) in a Cloſe there, through which the City Pipes are laid to convey Water to LONDON: And they divided themſelves: And ſome of them, with Pickaxes and Shovels, brake down the Fence of the ſame Cloſe, and other ſome of them paſſed to the next Cloſe Weſtward, and brake open the Fence of that Cloſe: And that he, with ſome of the Citizens Workmen, went unto them, ſeeing ſome of them to be Men that carried a Shew of ſome Countenance, and talked with them, demanding of them whence they were; and one of them anſwered, That they were of St. Martin's Pariſh, and St. Margaret's at Weſtminſter. And he, the ſaid Dod, ſaid unto them, Why do ye this? It was anſwered, " It was Lammas-tide; and we " throw it down for Common. And if we take " here any Cattle of any other Mens than theirs " of the Pariſhes of St. Martin's or St. Margaret's, after this Day, we will carry them to " the Pound." I never ſaw the like of this, ſaid Dod: If you may do this by Authority, it is well, otherwiſe it is not well, It was anſwered, " We have here the Bailiff of Weſtminſter, " and the Officers of St. Martin's; and we have " our Authority from the Queen's Majeſty and " the Council, granted by King Henry, confirmed by her Majeſty, and named the Lord " Treaſurer to be one, from whom they had " their Authority." And it was alſo added, That the next Day there would be two hundred there, there, and that they muſt break open up to Knights-bridge and Chelſea.

AND Dod ſaid farther, That that Evening they threw down one Gate in one Cloſe, which the City holds, and abated the Banks; and in another Cloſe threw open another Gate, and pulled down a Rail, and broke open the Fences in three other Places beſide; and in the Morning, their Herdmen brought in about 30 Beaſts into one of the Cloſes, and kept them there feeding in one of the Cloſes which the City holds. This was ſigned by Dod and Matthew, and others.

THE ſaid Dod and Matthew ſay farther, That the next Day in the Morning, Dod went to the Herdman, as he was keeping the Cattle in the Cloſe, and asked him, Who willed him to put the Cattle in there? He anſwered, That did Mr. Hen. Wells, Bailiff of Weſtminſter, Mr. Coles, Burgeſs, Mr. Peach and Mr. Racie, Bailiffs, and they will, ſaid he, bear me out in it. And the ſaid Examinants ſay, That they ſaw them next Day paſſing along Weſtward, breaking ſundry Fences, being about the Number of 60 Perſons, ſometimes together, and ſometimes divided in Parts

ANOTHER teſtified, viz. one Ra. Wood of St. Giles's in the Fields, Yeoman and Conſtable, That the 2d of Auguſt, he going to look to his Fields, and ſave his Gates from breaking, found a Number of them near to a Place called Aubery-Farm, towards Chelſea, to the Number of 105, as he told them, where they were breaking open Fences; and ſo they croſſed from thence to a Field called Crow-Field, at the upper End of Hide-Park, where they found the Gate opened before they came; and yet they would not be ſatisfied, but broke upon the Fence beſide the Gate, and from thence they paſſed to the Highway, to High-Hill, where they broke open the Fences into four Fields, (of divers Perſons that had held Land there;) many of them ſaid, That they had no Authority to do ſo, but their Purpoſe was to lay all Common; but they generally ſaid, We have my Lord Treaſurer's Warrant, and we have my Lord Treaſurer's Bailiff that keeps Tibbalds, and one Jones, his Lordſhip's Man, being then preſent, ſaid, he would drive the Commons within this ſeven-night, as ſoon as they had charged a Jury; and many of them ſaid, They had the Councils Letter. There were preſent Mr. Cole, Weſtminſter High Conſtable the laſt Year, and divers others named; and ſaid farther, That Cole led them the Way from Field to Field, with a written Roll in his Hand.

THE Farmers of the Grounds belonging to the Queen's Manor of St. James's, and the reſt poſſeſſed of Lands and Cloſes belonging to the ſaid Manor, ſoon put up a Petition to the Lord Treaſurer; ſhewing how they had enjoyed them Time out of Mind, and at all Times of the Year, till the 1ſt of Auguſt; at what Time certain Perſons of the City of Weſtminſter, and the Liberties of the ſame, to the Number of 60 Perſons, or more, in forcible Manner arrayed, brake down all the Hedges of the ſaid Grounds, &c. giving out that they had his Honour's Conſent and Warrant. That if it were ſo, all her Majeſty's poor Tenants and Farmers were utterly undone. That it might ſtand with his Honour's good Liking to commit the Riot to the Star-chamber. And in the mean Time, being about, by a Jury to be choſen among them, to procure a Verdict to warrant their Doings, to ſtay their Proceedings, and to grant, that the Title being her Majeſty's, may be heard and determined before his Honour, and the Barons of the Chequer-chamber.

THE Plea, on the other Hand, of the Inhabitants of Weſtminſter and St. Martin's, was to this Import:

THAT Aubery-farm, containing 430 Acres, Meadow and Paſture, which was holden of her Majeſty by Leaſe, was granted to one Whaſke, who paid 21 l. per Ann. And the ſame was let to divers Perſons, who, for their private Commodity, did encloſe the ſame, and had made Paſtures of Arrable Land; thereby not only annoying her Majeſty in her Walks and Paſſages, but to the Hindrance of her Game, and great Injury to the Common, which at Lammas was wont to be laid open, for the moſt Part; as by antient Precedents thereof made, do more particularly appear, both in the Time of Henry VIII. Edward VI, and Queen Mary: And by the Grant made from her Majeſty to the new Tenants, it appeareth, that they are to enjoy the ſame Lands in ſuch Sort as their Predeceſſors did, which was then always Lammas Ground, and now encloſed about 20 Years paſt.

St. James's Farm, containing about an 100 Acres, is holden of her Majeſty, renting per Ann. 7 l. 16 s. The Ground is held by Polteney, encloſed after Lammas; whereas, in the Time of his Predeceſſor, that, and divers other Parts were laid open; as Sandpit-cloſe, and Pennyleſs-bench. And now he threatneth Death to any that ſhall preſume to open the ſame; altho' it pleaſeth her Majeſty to grant the ſame to him none otherwiſe than they have been granted before, that is Lammas-ground.

THERE is belonging to the Neat the Quantity of 108 Acres, or thereabouts, which is her Majeſty's, and is now in Leaſe to one Linde and Turner, who keep the ſame incloſed, converting the ſame to Paſture, with Diviſions and new Hedges; whereas the moſt Part thereof ought to be Common, and hath been uſually Common at Lammas, until within theſe 19 Years.

THERE are certain Parcels of Land, by Eſtimation 50 Acres, holden of her Majeſty by Leaſe, ſometime in the Poſſeſſion of Burton St. John Lazarus of Jeruſalem, which in Time paſt hath been Lammas, and Arable; now divided, hedged and ditched for Meadow and Paſture, and ought to be common at Lammas: And now in the Tenure of John Dawſon, and by him withholden, contrary to her Majeſty's Grant, and contrary to this Liberty.

THERE be alſo divers others Parcels of Land, ſome the Inheritance of Wilſon, a Brewer, &c. And others, whereof ſome are laid open at Lammas, according to Cuſtom, and ſome ought to be, which are now kept incloſed.

AND of theſe Encloſures, it may pleaſe your good Lordſhip (as the Plea proceeded) to be informed, that at her Majeſty's laſt being at St. James's, ſhe greatly miſliked, and ſaid, ſhe had for them but 8 d. an Acre, and that the Inhabitants abuſed her greatly therein; whereupon ſhe commanded ſome of the Tenants to be by the Lord Chamberlain committed to the Marſhalſea; which was done: And yet, notwithſtanding, they have proceeded to a farther Encloſure. Theſe Paſſages above-written are taken out of the Original Papers belonging to the before-ſaid Lord Treaſurer Burleigh.

CHAP. V.

The PARISH of St. JAMES'S.

THIS Pariſh was formerly Part of St. Martin's in the Fields; being from thence ſeparated by Act of Parliament; which was occaſioned by the large Encreaſe of Buildings, eſpecially in thoſe Parts; ſo that the Pariſh Church of St. Martin's was not ſufficient to receive ſo great an Auditory, beſides other Inconveniencies the Inhabitants of theſe Parts were ſubject to.

THIS Pariſh has for its Northern and Weſtern Bounds, chiefly the new Pariſh of St. George's in Hanover-ſquare. For its Eaſtern Bounds, the Eaſt Side of Wardour-ſtreet and Whitcombe-ſtreet, which belongs to St. Ann's Pariſh; then the South Side of Coventry-ſtreet to the Haymarket, and then againſt the Eaſt Side of the Haymarket, where at the Entrance of Pall-Mall it croſſes the Houſes, and Warwick-ſtreet, to the Wall of the King's Garden in St. James's-park, running along by the ſaid Wall to the Limits of St. James's Houſe; which are its Southern Bounds, and there it croſſes into St. James's-ſtreet, and runs up into Piccadilly, Bond-ſtreet, Swallow-ſtreet, &c.

THIS Pariſh of St. James's is large, well repleniſhed with fine open Streets, which are graced with good Buildings, and generally well inhabited.

THE Parochial Church here, and the Church-Yard (which is divided into two Parts, called the Upper and the Lower Church-Yard) ſtand near Germain-ſtreet, within the Bounds and Limits of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, on two Parcels of Ground, which at the Time of the building of the ſaid Church, were in the Poſſeſſion of Henry, late Earl of St. Alban's, for a certain Term of Years, then unexpired, who cauſed the Fabrick of the Church to be built on one of them, and the remaining Part of it, and the other he cauſed to be allotted for a Church-Yard; after whoſe Deceaſe Thomas Lord Germain, Baron of St. Edmundsbury, his Nephew and Heir, and one of his Executors, and others intereſted in the ſaid two Parcels of Ground, aſſigned over the ſame, and the Fabrick of the ſaid Church, to Sir Walter Clarges, Bar. and others, for and during the reſt of the ſaid Term of Years unexpired, in Truſt, to be diſpoſed and continued to and for the Religious Uſes for which the ſame was deſigned.

KING Charles II. by his Letters Patents bearing Date May 31, in the 36th Year of his Reign, granted to the ſaid Lord Germain and his Heirs for ever, the ſaid Ground and Church Fabrick, in Truſt, for the pious Uſes aforeſaid; which Truſt he accordingly executed, and on Sunday the 13th of July both the Church and Church-Yards were conſecrated by the Right Reverend Father in God Dr. Henry Compton, Lord Biſhop of LONDON, for the Pariſhioners and Inhabitants of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields; and the ſaid Church was dedicated to the Honour of GOD, by the Name of St. James's in the Fields, ſince called St. James's Weſtminſter.

IT is a very fair and large Church, being in Length from Eaſt to Weſt 117 Feet, or thereabouts, and in Breadth, from North to South, 75 Feet, or thereabouts, the Chancel whereof contains 121 Feet ſquare and two Inches. There was a lofty Spire erecting upon the Steeple of this Church, but was taken down again by Reaſon the Steeple did not prove ſtrong enough to uphold it, but ſince there is another Spire erected upon it.

AFTER the conſecrating of the ſaid Church and Church-Yard, viz. in the firſt Year of the Reign of King James II. an Act of Parliament paſſed for the making a Part or Precinct of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Martin's, for the better Accommodation and Conveniency of the ſaid Precinct, which was for the future to be called, The Pariſh of St. James's within the Liberty of Weſtminſter; and the ſaid Precinct was thereby diſcharged from all Dependency on the ſaid Pariſh of St. Martin's, and this Church and Church-Yard, made this Pariſh Church and Church-Yard of the ſaid Pariſh of St. James's.

IT is alſo thereby enacted, That there be a Rector to have Cure of the Souls of the ſaid Pariſh, and that Dr. Thomas Tenniſon, the then Vicar of St. Martin's, is thereby conſtituted the firſt Rector thereof; and he, and his Succeſſors, Rectors of the ſaid Pariſh, be incorporated and enabled to ſue and be ſued, and to have a Houſe erected for them, on Part of the Church-Yard, and to purchaſe Lands above the preſent Endowment, not exceeding 200 l. per Annum.

IT is farther alſo enacted, That the Advowſon, after the firſt Avoidance, ſhall be in the Biſhop of LONDON, and his Succeſſors, and Thomas Lord Germain and his Heirs for ever; the firſt Rector to be collated by the Biſhop for the Time being, and the next to be preſented by the Lord Germain and his Heirs; and after that two Turns to be in the Lord Biſhop and his Succeſſors, and one in the Lord Germain and his Heirs, in Succeſſion for all Times to come, and to be collated, preſented and inſtituted as other Rectors are, and to have and enjoy the like Eccleſiaſtical Duties, as the Vicar of St. Martin's now enjoys.

THIS Church-Yard is alſo thereby endowed with one Toft on the North Side and Eaſt End of the ſaid Church-Yard, containing 33 Feet in Front, and 32 Feet ſix Inches backward; and alſo with another Parcel of Ground whereon Sir Thomas Bond's Stables and Tenements are built, containing 40 Feet in Front, and 75 Feet in Depth, and with the Rents, &c. thereof, after the Expiration of Sir Thomas Bond's Leaſe; and alſo with five Houſes in Germain-ſtreet, in the Tenure of Sir Cæſar Wood, alias Cranmer, containing in Front 126 Feet, and in Depth 83 Feet; and alſo with the yearly Rent of 60 l. reſerved upon a Demiſe thereof to the ſaid Sir Cæſar Wood, dated March 10, 1683, for 56 Years, five Months and 20 Days, and all the Rents thereof after Expiration of the ſaid Term, and the Reverſion of the Premiſſes, and every one of them; of which, at the Expiration of the Leaſes, the Rector

Rector for the Time being is enabled to grant Leaſes for 41 Years, upon improved yearly Rent, without taking any Fine.

THE Inhabitants of this Pariſh are likewiſe thereby made ſubject to the Law, for the Choice of Church Wardens, and other Pariſh Officers, and Parochial Duties, as the Inhabitants of St. Martin's are: John Haynes and William Nott, are thereby conſtituted the firſt Church Wardens, who are to hold the Office till after Eaſter, 1686. and they, and their Succeſſors, are to receive ſuch Duties as the Church Wardens of St. Martin's do, and are to be accountable for the ſame, and all other Money that ſhall come to them, as other Pariſhes within the Liberties of Weſtminſter are.

IT is farther provided by this Act, that the Veſtry-Men of St. Martin's, inhabiting in St. James's Pariſh, and all ſuch others as are now conſtituted Superviſors or Commiſſioners of this Church of St. James's, by the Lord Biſhop of LONDON, ſhall be Veſtry-Men thereof; and they, with the Rector, and any Six or more of them, are hereby authoriz'd at their firſt or ſecond Meeting, after the End of this Seſſion of Parliament, to elect ſo many additional Veſtry-Men, Inhabitants and Houſholders, within this Pariſh, as ſhall make the Number of the whole, with the Rector and Church Wardens for the Time being, to be 34; and any Six of which (whereof the Rector, or his Aſſiſtant, or Clerk by his Appointment, and one of the Church Wardens to be two) ſhall have the like Power as the Veſtry-Men of St. Martin's, and upon the Death or Voidance of any ſuch Veſtry-Man, ſhall chooſe another in his Room.

IT is alſo thereby farther provided, that no Pews ſhall be diſpos'd of, but by Conſent of the Veſtry-Men.

ALSO, that the Rector, with Conſent of the Veſtry-Men, may nominate a Preacher to be Aſſiſtant to him, and alſo a Clerk, who is to be in Prieſt's Orders; and one or more Sexton or Sextons, who ſhall have the like Fees, as the Clerk and Sexton of St. Martin's; which Preacher-Aſſiſtant, Clerk, and Sexton or Sextons, ſhall reſpectively continue for Life, if they ſo long inhabit there; unleſs for ſome Offence, or reaſonable Cauſe proved, they ſhall be diſplaced by the ſaid Rector, with the Conſent of the Veſtry-Men, or any Six or more of them. The Clerk is to have 30 l. a Year, to be paid by the Church Wardens, Quarterly, out of the Profits of the Pews, and other Duties, Profits, and Perquiſites to them accruing as aforeſaid.

AN Eſtimate is to be made of the Charge of finiſhing the Steeple, building a Houſe for the Rector, and paying the Debts incurr'd for the Building of the ſaid Church, which ſhall he charged on the Owners and Occupiers of the Houſes, to be paid in four Years, by 16 Quarterly Payments, which Quarterly Payments ſhall be aſſeſs'd by the Church Wardens and Veſtry-Men, and ſhall be confirmed by two Juſtices of the Peace; but no Tenant ſhall be taxed at leſs than a fifth Part of the Tax on the Landlord; and if the Eſtimate be not ſufficient, a new Charge may be made, ſo as the whole Tax do not exceed 2000 l. which Tax is to be paid by the Tenant, and to be allow'd by the Landlord. Debts and Contracts with the Artificers ſhall be regiſter'd, and out of the Money collected by the ſaid Tax, the Incumbrances of the Houſes ſettled on the Rector ſhall be firſt diſcharg'd, and after that, the Artificers and Work-men in Courſe, and moderate Intereſt for Forbearance.

ALSO 100 l. per Ann. ſhall be yearly taxed for the Preacher, to be collected by, and paid to the Church-wardens, and by them to the Preacher Quarterly, without any Deduction; and upon Default of Payment to the Preacher or Clerk, the Juſtices ſhall give Relief, and impriſon the Church-wardens till Payment be made.

Laſtly, The Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction of this Pariſh is reſerv'd to the Biſhop, in the ſame Manner as it was before in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

THE Altar of this Church hath moſt admirable Work about it, beſide the large Cedar-work, and the other curious carved Wood-work in Flowers, Doves and Pelicans, hanging about againſt the Eaſt Wall over the Table. There is a large Organ, under which is written, This Organ was given to the Pariſh by her moſt excellent Majeſty the Queen [MARY] and erected at the Charge of ſeveral of the Inhabitants, Anno Dom. 1691. They ſay this Organ was made by King James's Order, and deſigned for his Popiſh Chapel at Whitehall, but the Revolution prevented it.

THERE is a Table hangs in the Veſtry, with the Names of ſuch as had been Benefactors towards the Ornaments and finiſhing of the Church, and of thoſe that ſubſcribed towards the erecting the Spire upon the Tower of St. James's.

There was paid for this Charge 3971 l. 12 s. 2d. Half-penny.

Received by the Collectors, 331 l. 5 s.

The great Clock was given by Henry Maſſey.

The Painting and Gilding of the Vane and Dials, was given by Mr. Highmore. He was Serjeant Painter to the late Queen.

This came to 61.

The Clock within the Church was given by Anthony Plewit.

Sir Robert Geer gave the Altar, and all the Furniture and Plate, which they ſay came to 3000 l.

It is wainſcotted with Cedar, hath much Marble about it, and the Table is of Cedar.

Dyed February the 26th, 1723.

This Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Biſhop of London.

The Rector is the Right Rev. Dr. Secker, Biſhop of Gloceſter, who holds it, at preſent, in Commendam. And the Lecturer, or more properly the aſſiſtant Preacher, the Rev. Dr. Arthur Aſhley Sykes.

Prayers are every Day in the Week at Six and Eleven o'Clock in the Morning, and at Three and Six in the Afternoon, from Candlemas to Michaelmas; and from Michaelmas to Candlemas, they begin at Seven and Eleven in the Morning, and at Three and Five in the Evening; and on every Sunday they begin at Six and Seven, and at Ten in the Morning, and Three and Five in the Evening, according to the before-mentioned Seaſons of the Year.

All Faſting Days, the Morning Prayers begin at 11; and in the Afternoon, a little before Three.

When there are two Sacraments, the firſt Morning Service begins between Six and Seven; the ſecond, at Ten; upon all other Sacrament-Days the Morning Service begins a little ſooner, and the Evening a Quarter later than upon other Sundays.

Extraordinary Sermons are every Sunday from Palm Sunday to Whitſunday, New-Year's-Day, 30th of January, Aſh-Wedneſday, every Thurſday till Paſſion Week; Good Friday, 29th of May, 5th of November; and on all other Faſts and Thankſgivings.

Here is an Organ and ſix Bells.

The Veſtry is Select, conſiſting of the Rector, Church-wardens, and 31 of the Inhabitants.

The Parish-Officers are,	The Peace Officers are,

To this Pariſh is a Chapel of Eaſe, in King-ſtreet by Golden-ſquare, built in the Year 1702, at the ſole Expence of Dr. Thomas Tenniſon, late Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who endowed the ſame as follows, viz. There are Prayers and Sermons every Sunday Morning and Afternoon, before Ten and before Three o'Clock; and Prayers every Week-Day four Times as at the Church, and every Chriſtmas-Day, and other ſolemn Faſts and Thankſgivings. The Morning Preacher's Salary is 70 l. per Annum, the Afternoon Preacher hath 50 l. per Annum, and the two Curates, who read Prayers, have 20 l. per Annum each.

IN Berwick-ſtreet there is likewiſe a Chapel, in which are Prayers and Sermons every Sunday Morning and Evening, before Ten, and before Three o'Clock. Prayers every Week-Day at Eleven and Five; every Chriſtmas-Day, and other ſolemn Faſts and Thankſgivings, as at the Church. The Morning Preacher has 30 l. per Annum, and the Afternoon Preacher has 20 l. per Annum. In the ſame Street is a French Chapel; in Swallow-ſtreet is a Presbyterian Meet-Houſe, in Glaſs-houſe-ſtreet an Anabaptiſt Meeting-Houſe.

THERE is a Charity-School in King-ſtreet for thirty-ſix Boys, who are the Children of poor Inhabitants, for Schooling only, and maintained by the Charity left by the late Archbiſhop Dr. Tenniſon. The Maſter is in Prieſt's Orders; there is alſo a Writing-Maſter, who attends three Times a Week.

THERE is another Charity-School over the Watch-Houſe, for forty Boys who are taught to read, write, &c. at the Charge of the Offertory; they are cloathed once a Year, put Apprentices when capable, and Forty Shillings given with each of them; ſometimes more, according to the Genius of the Boys, and the Intereſt that can be made for them. The Maſter's Salary is 30 l. per Annum, who has a ſmall Lodging-Room, and allow'd Fire and Candles. The Charity-School, which was formerly in Carnaby-ſtreet, is removed to a handſome Edifice on the North Part of Burlington Gardens, where eighty Girls are boarded, cloathed, taught, and placed out to Service, &c. at the Charge of divers Subſcribers, and by Collections made at the Church-doors twice in a Year, after the Charity Sermons are ended. This School is in Truſt; there is a Clerk to teach to write, and a Miſtreſs belonging to it.

THERE is a Work-houſe in the upper Burial-Ground, which coſt about 4000 l. in the Building and Furniture; it is capable to contain three hundred poor People. Here is a Governor, a Matron, a Clerk to read Prayers twice a Day, a Cook, a Spinning-maſter, a Laundry-woman, and other inferior Servants. The Boys and Girls who are in this Workhouſe, are allowed 30 s. each when apprenticed. Here is a Committee held every Wedneſday to inſpect into the Affairs of the Houſe. There is alſo a Midwife, who takes Care of ſuch Women as are ſent thither when they are pregnant, being Pariſhioners, when the Fathers of the Children cannot be found. When any of the Poor fall ſick, they are removed to the Infirmary, which is in a Street, called the Gravel-Pits near Broad-ſtreet, a Surgeon and an Apothecary to attend them, a Matron, and other Servants, take Care of the Infirmary; and a Clergyman in Prieſt's Orders, whoſe Salary is 15 l. per Annum; and viſits the Sick.

Number of Houſes about 4300.

ST. James's-ſtreet, begins at the Palace of St. James's, and runs up to the Road againſt Albemarle-buildings, being a ſpacious Street, with very good Houſes well inhabited by Gentry: At the upper End of which towards the Road are the beſt, having before them a Tarraſs Walk, aſcended by Steps, with a Freeſtone Pavement. Out of this Street, on the Weſt Side, it hath a Paſſage into theſe Places, fronting Pall-mall. A Paſſage to Cleaveland-court, formerly one large Houſe, and called Berkſhire-houſe; which being purchaſed by the Dutcheſs of Cleaveland, took her Name; now divided into ſeveral Houſes, the chief of which are now inhabited by his Grace the Duke of Bridgwater, the Right Honourable Sir Paul Methuen, &c. Then in the ſaid Street is a large Yard for Stabling, with ſome Houſes run running down to St. James's-park, viz. on the Weſt Side, one inhabited by the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Godolphin, Groom of the Stole to his Majeſty, another by the Rt. Hon. the Lord Harrington, one of the Principal Secretaries of State. Then is James's-place, a good Street; which towards the upper End, openeth wide, and receiveth the freſh Air out of the Park: The Houſes are well built, and inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially the upper Part, where the Houſes are larger and better built and inhabited.

Park-place, a handſome, open, broad Street, with good Buildings, fit for Gentry.

St. James's-ſquare is ſituated between St. James's Church on the North, and Pall-mall on the South, the Area containing near four Acres of Ground; the North, Eaſt, and Weſt Sides, conſiſt chiefly of Noblemen's Houſes. This Square is finely paved with Headingſtone all over, in which there is a moſt curious Baſon (in moſt Places ſeven Feet deep) which is Oval, and 150 Feet Diameter; in the Centre there is a Pedeſtal about 15 Feet ſquare, deſigned for a Statue of King William III. on Horſeback; the whole is invironed with Iron Rails, Octogonal, or eight Square, and at each Angle without the Rails, is a Stone Pillar about nine Feet high, and a Lamp on the Top: The Gravel-walk within the Rails, is in breadth from each Angle to the Margin of the Baſon, about 26 Feet. All this was done at the Expence of the Inhabitants, who got an Act of Parliament for that Purpoſe. In this Square are the Houſes of the Dukes of Norfolk, Southampton, Kent, and Chandos; the Earls of Pembroke, Eſſex, Cheſterfield, Stafford, Briſtol, Brodalbin, Tankerville, and Wilmington; the Lord Bathurſt, Sir Robert Walpole, &c.

Pall-mall is a fine long Street, which from the Hay-market runs in a ſtraight Line Weſtwards into St. James's-ſtreet. The Houſes on the South Side gives a pleaſant Proſpect into the Prince of Wales's Garden; and beſides, they have ſmall Gardens behind them, which reach to the Wall, and to many of them there are raiſed Mounts, which give them the Proſpect of the ſaid Garden, and of the Park. On this Side, and overagainſt St. Alban's-ſtreet, is Stone-cutter's-alley, paved with Freeſtone, which leads into Warwick-ſtreet, and likewiſe to the Gate of Carlton-houſe, and Gardens, lately purchaſed by the Prince of Wales, in which his Royal Highneſs has made great Improvements. A little higher is the new Houſe of Mr. Doddington, built after the Italian manner; which as an ingenious Architect ſays, has, at firſt View, very much the Aſpect of a Bottle Glaſs-Houſe, by the Chimneys being collected into one Stack, placed in the Vertex of the Roof. Somewhat farther is a Houſe, which, if not remarkably magnificent, is very pleaſing to the Spectator, and has ſomething in it of that Elegance and Propriety which accompany every Word and Action of its Owner, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Egmont. Then about the Middle of this Street is Pall-mall-court, a very neat Place, with fine new built Houſes, fit for Gentlemen; the back Windows pleaſantly opening into the Prince's Garden. This Court hath a handſome Freeſtone Pavement, and at the Entrance there are Iron Bars made open, with the Door of the ſame, to ſhut up at Nights, for the Security of the Inhabitants. Farther Weſtward is a large, but no Way remarkable Houſe, belonging formerly to Duke Schomberg, and at preſent to the Earl of Fitzwater, who married one of the ſaid Duke's Daughters. Next, adjoining to St. James's Houſe, is a Place called the Priory-court, in which is the Houſe of her Grace the Dutcheſs of Marlborough, before-mentioned.

Then on the North Side of Pall-mall, near St. James's-ſtreet, is Crown-court, a Place of ordinary Building, and as meanly inhabited. It is a good Thorough-fare into King's-ſtreet; and likewiſe falleth into another Court, which bears the ſame Name, and openeth into St. James's-ſtreet.

Between Rider-ſtreet and Little Jermaine-ſtreet, is a ſmall Court called Crown and Scepter-court.

King's-ſtreet, a good handſome Street, which fronts St. James's-ſquare Eaſtwards, and Weſtwards it hath a Paſſage through an open paved Alley, called Little King's-ſtreet, into St. James's-ſtreet. On the South Side is Angel-court, not over well built or inhabited; and near unto this, is a long Yard for Coaches and Stablings, uſeful for the Gentry in theſe Parts.

Berry-ſtreet, a handſome open Street, which runs up into Jermaine-ſtreet; on the Weſt Side is Painter's-court; and on the other Side, almoſt oppoſite to it, is Guy of Warwick's-court; both very ſmall and inconſiderable.

Rider's-ſtreet comes out of St. James's-ſtreet, and croſſing Berry-ſtreet, falls into Duke-ſtreet.

Duke-ſtreet comes out of Piccadilly, croſſes Jermaine-ſtreet, and falls into King-ſtreet. Here are ſeveral well built Houſes, which ſeem to be better inhabited than Berry-ſtreet, or Rider-ſtreet. On the Weſt Side are two ſmall Courts; the one called Feather-court, and the other Gray's-court; oppoſite this Court is a very large Yard for Coaches and Stabling, with ſome Houſes; of which one is very good, with a handſome Garden to it, in which lately dwelt the Duke of Shrewsbury. This Yard is called St. Alban's-meuſe, and hath two Paſſages into Duke-ſtreet; of which one is for Coaches and Carts, and hath another Paſſage into Blackmore-ſtreet. More towards King's-ſtreet is a pretty neat Court, called Prince's-court, with a Freeſtone Pavement neatly kept, and not meanly inhabited: It hath a Door with open Iron Bars half way, to ſhut up a-Nights, for the Security of the Inhabitants.

York-ſtreet comes out of St. James's-ſquare, runs up to the Church; a broad Street, but the greateſt Part is taken up by the Garden Walls of the Duke of Chandos's Houſe, and one on the other Side, ſo that towards the Church, there are not above two or three Houſes on each Side. On the Eaſt Side is Angier-ſtreet, and on the Weſt Black-a-moor-ſtreet, both taken up for Coaches and Stables, and of no great Account, being back Streets.

Charles-ſtreet, being large and handſome, which comes out of St. James's-ſquare on the Eaſt Side, and croſſeth St. Alban's-ſtreet.

St. Alban's-ſtreet, another handſome well built Street, which goes out of the Pall-mall and fronts the Market; St. James's-market is well repleniſhed with the beſt of Fleſh, Poultry, Fiſh, and Garden-ſtuff, that can be met with, but uſually a fourth Part dearer than in the Markets about the City of LONDON, moſt of the Proviſions being brought from thence, and bought up here by the Stewards of People of Quality, who ſpare no Price to furniſh their Lords Houſes with what is nice and delicate. On the outh Weſt Corner is the Paved-alley, a good Thorough-fare into Charles-ſtreet, and ſo into St. James's-ſquare, and thoſe Parts; but is of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On each Side, or Square of this Market, is a Row of Houſes, inhabited by ſuch as have a Dependance on the Market, kept twice a Week, but that on Saturdays is the moſt conſiderable.

Market-ſtreet, ſo called from the Market, which it fronts againſt Jermaine-ſtreet, a pretty good Street, and of ſome Trade; here is a very ſmall Place called Comb's-alley.

Market-lane, which alſo takes its Name from the Market near adjoining, and lieth on the Back-ſide of the Haymarket, into which it hath an ordinary ordinary and narrow Paſſage through Six-bell-alley, a Place for Stabling. There is likewiſe here a back Paſſage into the Opera Houſe in the Haymarket. In this Lane is Salter's-court, a ſmall ſquare Place, ill inhabited. Here is alſo another ſmall Place called Parſon's-court.

Norris-ſtreet, but ſhort, which comes out of the Haymarket, and fronts the Market, a Place of pretty good Trade for Saleſmen.

THE Haymarket, a ſpacious Street of great Reſort, full of Inns, and Houſes of Entertainment; eſpecially on the Weſt Side, which is in this Pariſh. The Market for Hay and Straw, here kept every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday, makes it to be of good Account. The Inns, or Yards, on this Side, beginning next towards Piccadilly, are, Black-horſe-yard, and David's-yard, both for Stabling. Nag's-head-inn, indifferent large. Cock-yard, for Stabling. White-horſe-inn, a Place of good Reſort. Phenix-yard and Unicorn-yard, both for Stabling, and Coach-houſes, much reſorted unto. In this Street are two Theatres, the firſt built by Sir John Vanbrugh, in which Opera's are performed in the Italian Language, and Singers for that Purpoſe brought from Italy at an exceſſive Price, ſuch as 1000 and 1500 Pounds a Year a Piece to ſome of them, who are otherwiſe ſo much encouraged, that it is ſaid, one who is here at preſent, Signor Farinello, had Preſents from the Nobility on his Benefit-Night, to the Amount of 2000 Pounds, an Extravagance that perhaps will not be believed in the next Age.

THE other Theatre is at preſent taken up by a Pack of French Strollers, who are likewiſe much careſſed and followed by Perſons of the greateſt Quality: So much do we admire at this Time every Thing that is Foreign!

Piccadilly, a large Street, and a great Thorough-fare, as ſeated in the Weſtern Road, well inhabited, eſpecially that Part towards Albemarle Buildings. We ſhall begin with the South Side next to St. James's-ſtreet, and then proceed to the North. The firſt is White-horſe-inn, then Elephant-inn; next beyond Duke-ſtreet is the King's-arms-inn; all three Inns of an indifferent Trade. Then beyond Church-lane, already ſpoken of, is Eagle-ſtreet, which falls into Germain Street: Next unto it is Fleece-yard, near the Haymarket, which hath a Paſſage into Germain-Street, very ordinary built and inhabited: And near unto this Yard is Sadler's-court, which is but ſmall and mean. Then, on the North Side of Piccadilly, is Burlington Houſe; where, ſays the Critical Review, "We are entertained with "a Sight of the moſt expenſive Wall in England; "I mean that before Burlington Houſe: No-"thing material can be objected to it, and much "may be ſaid in its Praiſe! 'Tis certain the "Height is wonderfully well proportion'd to "the Length, and the Decorations are both "ſimple and magnificent; the Grand Entrance "is auguſt and beautiful, and by covering the "Houſe entirely from the Eye, gives Pleaſure "and Surprize, at the opening of the whole "Front, with the Area before it, at once. If "any thing can be found Fault with in this "Structure, 'tis this; that the Wall itſelf is not "exactly on a Line; that the Columns of the "Gate are meerly ornamental, and ſupport no-"thing at all; that the Ruſtick has not all the "Propriety in the World for a Palace; and that "the main Body of the Pile is hardly equal to "the Outſide.

NEXT to Burlington Houſe is the Duke of Marlborough's, with a high Wall likewiſe before it which hides it from the Street; and though it be inferior to the former in many other Reſpects, yet the Library is looked upon as one of the compleateſt in England, whether we regard the Beauty of the Building, or the Books that fill it. This Edifice is an hundred and fifty Feet in Length, divided into five Apartments, having an upper and lower Range of Windows and Galleries that go round the Whole for the Conveniency of taking down the Books: It was collected chiefly by his Grace's Father the late Earl of Sunderland, who left no Library unſearch'd to repleniſh it with the moſt valuable Books; among the reſt here is a greater Variety of Editions of the Claſſicks than is to be met with in any other Library; and it is ſaid the whole Number of Books coſt at leaſt 30,000 l.

NEAR this Houſe is Sackvile-ſtreet, a pretty handſome open Place, as having a Proſpect into the Gardens of thoſe Houſes in Piccadilly; it has a turning Paſſage into Swollow-ſtreet. Near this Street, and in Piccadilly is Maggot's-court, a handſome Place, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, and has a Paſſage into Little Swallow-ſtreet. Bear-alley but ſmall, with a Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet, near the End of the Haymarket falls in Shug-lane, where is George-yard, a Place for Stabling; and againſt the Haymarket is Windmill-ſtreet; and here begins Coventry-ſtreet, which falls into Whitcombe-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Leiceſter-fields. Near to the Corner of Windmill-ſtreet is Crown-yard, a Place for Stabling: And a little farther is Panton-ſquare, once a Place for Stabling and Coach-houſes, having one large Yard within another.

Rupert-ſtreet, a pretty handſome, well built Street, which comes out of Coventry-ſtreet, and runs up a good Length, as far as Edmund's-court, which has a pretty broad Paſſage, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, into Whitcombe-ſtreet, over-againſt St. Anne's Church.

Richmond-ſtreet, a pretty handſome but ſhort Street, which falls into Rupert-ſtreet.

Whitcombe-ſtreet, runs Northwards, by St. Anne's Church, into Wardour-ſtreet, and begins at the Corner of Coventry-ſtreet, over-againſt Liſle-ſtreet; there is a very ſmall Court of about two or three Houſes, called Coopers-court; a little farther is the Nag's-head-inn, with two more Inns, or Stable-Yards, both having the Sign of the Plough. Then paſſing by Richmond-ſtreet, and Edmund's-court, already named, is Cock-and ſwan-alley, over-againſt Compton-ſtreet, a very narrow, dirty, ill-built and inhabited Place.

Knave's Acre, or Poultney-ſtreet, falls into Brewers-ſtreet by Windmill-ſtreet End, and ſo runs Weſtward as far as Marybone-ſtreet, and Warwick-ſtreet End; and croſſing the ſame, and Swallow-ſtreet, falls into Glaſs-houſe-ſtreet, which leads into the Fields on the Backſide of Burlington Garden, and thence to Albemarle Buildings. This Knave's Acre is but narrow, and chiefly inhabited by thoſe that deal in old Goods, and Glaſs Bottles. On the South Side is a ſmall Place, called Spur-alley; and another, called Prince's-court. And on the North Side is Walker's-court, with a pretty Free-ſtone Pavement, which falls into Peter's-ſtreet: And a little beyond this Court is another ſmall Place, called Cymball's-alley, which alſo leads into Peter-ſtreet.

Wardour-ſtreet hath only the Weſt Side (which is the beſt) in this Pariſh, and runs Northwards into Tyburn Road; the Eaſt Side being in the Pariſh of St. Anne's. This Side hath all new Buildings, as the greateſt Part of the other Side hath, except towards the End next the Road, which Time will accompliſh. Out of this Street goes Peter-ſtreet, which, croſſing Berwick-ſtreet, falls into waſte and unbuilt Ground; a Street not over well inhabited. Here is a ſmall Court, but the right Name is not yet given. Farther Northward is Edward-ſtreet, which alſo croſſes Berwick-ſtreet, and falls into waſte and unbuilt Ground;

Ground; nor is this Street over well inhabited: And ſo is another a little farther, begun to be built, called Tweed-ſtreet.

Berwick-ſtreet, on the Weſt of Wardour-ſtreet. It begins at Peter-ſtreet, and runs Northwards as far as Tyburn Road; a pretty handſome ſtrait Street, with new well-built Houſes, much inhabited by the French, where they have a Church; near unto which is a pretty handſome Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement, called Kemp's Court. About the Middle of this Street is a Place deſigned for a Hay-market, and a great Part of the low Ground raiſed, with ſome of the Houſes built Piazza-wiſe, and ſuſtained by Stone Pillars; but whether it will be finiſhed, Time will make appear. Weſtwards of this Street is a large Tract of waſte Ground, reaching to the Wall of the Peſt-houſe, built by the Earl of Craven, which runs from the Backſide of Golden-ſquare, to a Piece of Cloſe or Meadow Ground which reaches to Tyburn Road.

Windmill-ſtreet, indifferent good and broad; it comes out of Piccadilly againſt the Haymarket, and falls into Brewers-ſtreet. On the Weſt Side is Conde-court, very inconſiderable for Building or Inhabitants. Oppoſite to this is Black-horſe-yard, a Place of good Account for Stabling. Then farther Northwards is Windmill-yard, another ſuch like Place for Stabling. And oppoſite unto it is a ſhort Street, called Orchard-ſtreet, broad, but of no great Account; which runs up to the Backſide of Rupert-ſtreet; into which it hath a Paſſage through a narrow Entry or Alley. Then a little farther, on the ſame Side, is Feathers-alley, which hath a Paſſage into Knaves Acre, being but very ſmall and inconſiderable, as is Salton's-court, on the other Side of the Way.

Queen-ſtreet, a neat, clean, and quiet Street, with good Houſes, well inhabited: It comes out of Windmill-ſtreet, and falls into Sherard-ſtreet. About the Middle of this Street is Trumball-yard, a pretty large Place for Coaches and Stabling.

Sherard-ſtreet, a handſome, broad, well built and inhabited Place, which takes its Beginning at Mary-bone-ſtreet, paſſes by Queen-ſtreet, and runs up into Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt St. James's-ſtreet, that leads into Golden-ſquare.

Marybone-ſtreet takes its Beginning at the End of Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt Warwick-ſtreet, and falls into Shug-lane, and thence into Piccadilly by the Haymarket.

This Shug-lane is but meanly built, neither are its Inhabitants much to be boaſted of. On the North Side are two very ordinary Places, viz. Hunt's-court and Brown's-court: And on the South Side is Gibſon's-court, a neat and new built Place, with a Free-ſtone Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet.

Ayre-ſtreet comes out of Piccadilly, and falls into Marybone-ſtreet. On the Eaſt Side is Caſtle-ſtreet, very ordinary built and inhabited; hath a ſmall Paſſage into Piccadilly.

Francis-ſtreet, but ſhort, takes its Riſe from Marybone-ſtreet, and falls into Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt John's-ſtreet, which leads into Golden-ſquare.

Vine-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account; the chief Part of which is taken up by a Brew-houſe on the one Side, and a Carpenter's Yard on the other. At the Bottom of this Street is Little Swallow-ſtreet, of ſmall Account, which falls into Great Swallow-ſtreet.

Warwick-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Golden-ſquare, a Place not over well built or inhabited towards the End next to Marybone-ſtreet; but on the upper End it hath ſome good Houſes on both Sides.

Swallow-ſtreet, very long, coming out of Piccadilly, and runs Northwards to Tyburn Road, againſt Neb's Pound, but of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On the Eaſt Side is Little Swallow-ſtreet, as aforeſaid. More Northwards is a ſmall Court, called Haynes-court; a little beyond which is a large Yard for Stabling and Coaches, called Baxter's-yard, as being made uſe of by one Mr. Baxter, who there kept his Riding-houſe, for the inſtructing young Gentlemen to ride the managed Horſe. Oppoſite to to this is a Paſſage into Sackvile-ſtreet, already ſpoken of. Then beyond is Glaſs-houſe-ſtreet, which Swallow-ſtreet croſſes; here is a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, called Sadler's-yard. On the Eaſt Side is a little ſquare Court, called Harris's-court. This Street is croſſed by Leiceſter Street, of no great Account, being ordinarily built and inhabited, except the Weſt End towards the Fields, where there is a very good Houſe and Garden. In this Part of Swallow-ſtreet is Bell-yard, or Inn, for Stabling and Coaches; and farther up Swallow-ſtreet is another very large and commodious Yard for Coach-Houſes and Stabling. More Northwards is a ſhort Street, called Burlington-ſtreet, in the Midſt of which is a Yard for Stabling: And a little farther, towards the Road, this Street ends, and falls into a Lane that leads to the high Road.

Beak-ſtreet butts againſt Warwick-ſtreet; comes out of Swallow-ſtreet, and falls into Silver-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Golden-ſquare, and here is Pott's-yard, a pretty large Place for Stabling and Coaches.

Golden-ſquare, a very handſome open Place, railed round, and gravelled within, having very good Houſes, inhabited by Gentry on all Sides. The Row of Buildings on the Eaſt Side is called James-ſtreet, which Name it retains 'till it falls into Brewer's-ſtreet; and on the Weſt Side from Brewer's-ſtreet to Silver-ſtreet, is called John's-ſtreet.

King-ſtreet comes out of Beak-ſtreet and Silver-ſtreet, and runs Northwards to the Road: It is a pretty good Street, having divers very good Houſes fit for Gentry. On the Weſt Side is a Chapel of Eaſe, by ſome called the Tabernacle, near which is Hide's-court, of ſmall Account. On the Eaſt Side is Croſs-ſtreet, ordinarily built and inhabited, which falls into Carnaby-ſtreet; and farther Northwards is another Paſſage into the upper End of Carnaby-ſtreet, and another into Swallow-ſtreet.

Carnaby-ſtreet, an ordinary Street, which goes out of Silver-ſtreet, and runs Northwards almoſt to the Bowling-ground. On the Eaſt Side of this Street are the Earl of Craven's Peſt-Houſes, ſeated in a large Piece of Ground, incloſed with a Brick Wall and handſomely ſet with Trees, in which are Buildings for the Entertaiment of Perſons that have the Plague, when it ſhall pleaſe God to puniſh this Town with any Contagion.

And theſe are all the Boundaries, Streets, &c. this Pariſh of St. James's. The next is

The PARISH of St. GEORGE in Hanover-Square.

St. George in Hanover-ſquare.

This Pariſh was alſo taken out of that St. Martin's in the Fields, by Vertue of an Act of the 9th of Queen Anne for building 50 new Churches, and other ſubſequent Acts, and is bounded by Oxford Road towards the North; by Swallow-ſtreet, which ſeparates it from St. James's, towards the Eaſt; by another Part of St. James's on the South, and by Knightsbridge on the Weſt.

The Church here takes its Name from its being dedicated to St. George the Martyr, in Honour of the late King Geerge I. and the Words in Hanover-ſquare are added to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches dedicated to the ſame Saint, and becauſe it ſtands near that Place.

THE Foundation of this Church was laid in the Year 1712, and was conſecrated the 23d Day of March 1724.

" THIS Church, ſays the Author of the Cri- " tical Review, is, at leaſt one of the moſt ele-
" gant in LONDON; the Portico is ſtate-
" ly and auguſt, the Steeple handſome and well
" proportioned, and the North and Eaſt Proſpects
" very well worth a ſincere Approbation.

IT is ſituated on the Eaſt Side of Great George-ſtreet.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Biſhop of LONDON, of the yearly Value of 300 l. or upwards.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Trebeck, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Savage.

PRAYERS are at Eleven in the Forenoon, and at Five in the Afternoon. Here is a very good Organ and one Bell.

THE Veſtry is ſelect, conſiſting of 100, the moſt of which is compoſed of the Chief Nobility of England; the Church-Wardens have hitherto been Perſons of Diſtinction; the two firſt were the Right Honourable the late Lord Carpenter, and the Right Honourable General William Stewart, who gave the Ground whereon the Church was built, and bequeathed by his Will 4000 l. to be laid out in erecting a Charity School after a certain Term of Years.

NUMBER of Houſes are about 1432.

Hanover-ſquare has Oxford-road or Street on the Eaſt, Conduit-ſtreet on the South, and New Bond-ſtreet on the Weſt.

THE Area of the Square contains about two Acres of Ground, in the Middle of which is a Garden incloſed with a Palliſado Pale. The Houſes new built after the modern Way, make a grand Appearance, and are inhabited by Noblemen and Gentlemen of the firſt Quality.

Prince's-ſtreet runs from New Bond-ſtreet Eaſtward into Swallow-ſtreet, croſſing the North Side of Hanover-ſquare.

Hanover-ſtreet runs from New Bond-ſtreet Eaſtward into Swallow-ſtreet, croſſing the South Side of Hanover-ſquare. The Houſes in theſe Streets are of the ſecond Rate, but few of them equal to thoſe in the Square, and are ſome of them inhabited by Tradeſmen.

Great George-ſtreet, which runs from Hanover-ſquare South into Conduit-ſtreet, is the nobleſt of all the Streets near this Square: Here are ſeveral very fine Houſes built and inhabited by Noblemen, and People of the firſt Rank, and the Street is broad, well-paved, and clean, ſuitable to the Buildings that compoſe it: We find it alſo well illuminated, both in Summer and Winter Nights, all the Year round, as moſt of the Streets and Squares in this Part of the Town are, by the Chryſtal Lamps, which hang before the Doors of People of Quality, and give a much better and truer Light than thoſe ſet up at the publick Charge.

New Bond-ſtreet runs from Old Bond-ſtreet Northward to Oxford-road, and is one of the longeſt and beſt built Streets in Town.

Conduit-ſtreet runs from New Bond-ſtreet Eaſtward to Swallow-ſtreet.

PART of Oxford-road, now converted into a Street, is the Northern Boundary of this Pariſh, as Swallow-ſtreet is the Eaſtern Boundary, but neither of them yet well built.

South Moulton-ſtreet runs from Oxford-road Southward to Brook-ſtreet.

Davies-ſtreet runs from Oxford-road South towards Groſvenor-meuſe.

James-ſtreet runs from Oxford-road Southward to Brook-ſtreet.

Groſvenor or Gravenor-ſquare, is bounded on the North by Oxford-road, on the Eaſt by Hanover-buildings, by May-fair on the South, and by Hide-park on the Weſt; the Area whereof contains about five Acres of Ground, in which is a large Garden, laid out into Walks, and adorned with an Equeſtrian Statue of King George I. gilded with Gold, and ſtanding on a Pedeſtal, in the Center of the Garden, the Whole ſurrounded with palliſado Pales placed upon a dwarf Wall. The Buildings generally are the moſt magnificent we meet with in this great Town; though Lincoln's-inn-fields and other Squares and Streets, may have ſome that equal theſe. The Fronts of the Houſes in Groſvenor-ſquare are not all alike, ſome of them are intirely of Stone, others of Brick and Stone, and others of rubbed Brick, with only their Quoins, Facio's, Windows and Door-Caſes of Stone; ſome of them are adorned with Stone Columns of the ſeveral Orders, while others have only plain plain Fronts, and it is looked upon as a great Fault by many, that the Buildings are not uniform.

It is obſerved however, on the other Hand, that here is the greateſt Variety of fine Buildings that are to be met with any where in ſo ſmall a Compaſs; and they are ſo far uniform as to be all ſaſhed, and of pretty near an equal Height. To the Kitchens and Offices, which have little paved Yards with Vaults before them, they deſcend by 12 or 15 Steps; and theſe Yards are defended by an high Palliſade of Iron. Every Houſe has a Garden behind it, and many of them Coach-Houſes and Stables adjoining; thoſe that have none, have Stables near the Square, in a that Place has the Name of Groſvenor-meuſe. This Square has ſeveral other Advantages, as an elevated Situation on a hard gravelly Soil, lies open to the Fields leading to Highgate and Hampſtead on the North, as it does to Hide-park on the Weſt, into which their Coaches have a Paſſage by a handſome Iron-Gate, with Liberty of driving through the Park to the Palace of Kenſington, from whence they are diſtant but little more than a Mile, and about half a one from the Palace of St. James's. The finiſhing of the Houſes within is equal to the Figure they make without; the Stair-Caſes of ſome are inlaid, and perfect Cabinet-Work, and the Paintings on the Roof and Sides by the beſt Hands. The Apartments uſually conſiſt of a long Range of fine Rooms, equally commodious and beautiful; none of the Houſes are without two or three Stair-Caſes for the Convenience of the Family. The grand Stair-Caſe is generally in the Hall at the Entrance; but not to tire the Reader with farther Particulars, he will not doubt of the Elegancy or Commodiouſneſs of their Houſes, when he knows that a great many Noblemen and Gentlemen of the firſt Quality and the niceſt Taſte have thought fit to purchaſe Houſes here at the Rate of three, four, and five thouſand Pounds a Houſe: In ſhort, this Square may well be looked upon as the Beauty of the Town; thoſe who have not ſeen it, cannot have an adequate Idea of the Place.

Not far from theſe Buildings; juſt within Hide-park, is a noble round Baſon, ſupplied with Thames Water from Chelſea, from whence it is diſtributed to every Houſe here: And there is another Baſon or Reſervoir a little to the Northward of Hanover-buildings, which once belonged to the York-buildings Company; but is ſince diſpoſed of to that of the Chelſea Water-Works.

Groſvenor-ſtreet runs from the Square Eaſtward to Madox-ſtreet, and is a ſpacious well built Street, inhabited chiefly by People of Diſtinction.

Madox-ſtreet runs from Groſvenor-ſtreet Eaſtward to Swallow-ſtreet, in which the Houſes are but of the ſecond Rate.

Brook-ſtreet runs from Groveſnor-ſtreet Eaſtward towards Hanover-ſquare, and is for the moſt part nobly built, and inhabited by People of Quality.

Audley-ſtreet and Duke-ſtreet run from Oxford-road South into Mount-ſtreet, and are but little inferior to the former.

Hide-park-ſtreet runs from Oxford-road South towards May-fair.

King-ſtreet runs from Groſvenor-ſquare Weſtward to Hide-park.

In this Pariſh of St. George's in Hanover-ſquare, is a Work-Houſe adjoining to the Burial Ground near Hide-park, and upwards of 80 Children are maintained at the Charge of the Pariſh.

In Conduit-ſtreet is a Chapel, called Trinity Chapel, wherein are Prayers twice a Day. There is another in May-Fair, that has Prayers in it twice a Week. At Knightsbridge in this Pariſh is a Chapel, and another is lately built near Groſvenor-ſquare.

St. ANNE's Pariſh.

THIS Pariſh was alſo, by Act of Parliament taken out of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

In the firſt Year of King James II. there was an Act of Parliament, to enable the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of St Anne's within the Liberties of Weſtminſter, to raiſe Money to build a Church, to be the Pariſh Church there. And it was built on a Parcel of Ground, called Kemp's Field, with the Church-yard. This Act was purſuant to a former Act, 30 Car. II. entitled, An Act for making Part of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields a new Pariſh, to be called, The Pariſh of St. Anne within the Liberties of Weſtminſter. But wanting Money to finiſh the Church, though the Building was got to ſome Height, they were forced to get a new Act of 1 Jac. 2. that they might legally make an equal Diſtribution among themſelves for the Performance thereof. By this Act thirty Perſons were to be appointed by the Biſhop of LONDON, to be Superviſors and Commiſſioners for the Church. And after the Church was finiſhed, the ſame to be Veſtry-men for the ſaid Pariſh. The Rector of St. Anne's Church, and the Church-wardens, to be additional Superviſors and Commiſſioners. Theſe, or any nine of them, to aſſeſs the Inhabitants, Owners, and Occupiers of Lands, &c. for the Charges in building and finiſhing the Church, not exceeding 5000 l.

The Church is pleaſant and pretty large, with an arched Roof divided into Pannels, with Fret-work, and ſupported by about 12 Pillars of the Ionick Order, and the Galleries are elevated on thoſe of the Tuſcan Order.

The ornamental Part is very well; it is wainſcotted round with painted Deal, and Bolection-work: and the Galleries the ſame, which are on the North, Weſt, and South Sides of the Church, beſides the Organ Gallery, which is over that other at the Weſt End of the Church.

The Eaſt End has in the Middle of the Inſide a jetting out with a Sweep or ſemicircular Space, where the Altar is very handſome, being painted in Imitation of Marble, and conſiſts of two Columns near the Middle, and two Pilaſters on each Side, with their Entablature, and circular open Pediment of the Tuſcan Order. Next the Centre are the Lord's Prayer and Creed, and farther outward are the Commandments done all in large Gold Letters upon Black; and on each Side the Commandments, and facing each other, are Moſes and Aaron, well painted at full Length.

At Moſes's Right Hand are theſe Words:

1 Cor. v. 7, 8. For even Chriſt our Paſſover is ſacrificed for us; therefore let us keep the Feaſt not with old Leaven, neither with the Leaven of Malice and Wickedneſs, but with the unleaven Bread of Sincerity and Truth.

And at Aaron's Left Hand are theſe Words alſo done in large Gold Letters upon Black.

1 Cor. xv. 20. Chriſt is riſen from the Dead, and become the firſt Fruits of them that ſlept; for ſince by Man came Death, by Man came alſo the Reſurrection of the Dead. For as in Adam all die, even ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be made alive.

And

AND the Whole is adorned with Cherubims, &c.

THE Walls of the Church are ſtrong, and of Brick, with fine Ruſtick Quoins; the Roof is covered with Tile, and at the Eaſt End a large Modillion Cornice, and triangular Pediment.

The MONUMENTS in this Church are as follow:

ON the South Side of the Altar is a very curious ſpacious Monument of white poliſhed Marble, with this Inſcription:

In this Chancel lyeth interred the Body of the Right Honourable Lady Grace Pierpoint, Daughter to the moſt Noble and Puiſſant Prince, Henry Pierpoint, Marquiſs of Dorcheſter, deceaſed. Who, in her Life-time, was exemplary for Piety, Virtue, and Charity. She departed this Life on the 25th of March, in the Year of our Lord 1703, in the 86th Year of her Age.

THE Monument is adorned with two large twiſted Columns, with their Architrave, Frieſe Cornice and Pediment of the Compoſite Order, and enrich'd with Urns, Flowers, Fruits, &c. Under the Pediment a Feſtoon Curtain, Gilt like Gold Fringe; on the Curtain lie two Cupids, and under that the Figure of the ſaid Lady, ſtanding upright, wrapt in a rich Mantle; at her Feet are two Babes weeping, and under the Pedeſtal (whereon the Inſcription above it, cut) is her Ladyſhip's Coat of Arms, which are:

In a Lozenge Pearl, a Lion Rampant, Diamond within eight Cinquefoils born Orlways, Ruby. The Coat is embelliſhed with a Compartment of Voluta's, Chrubims, &c.

Not far from this Monument above mentioned, is a ſmall white Marble one, with this Inſcription; Here lieth interred the Body of Thomas Egar, Eſq; Surveyor General to King Charles II. and King James II. of all their Woods on the South Side the Trent; and Carver in Ordinary to Catherine, the Queen Dowager of England, who died the 27th of Auguſt, Anno. Dom. 1687. Aged 45 Years.

Under which Inſcription are his Arms, which are:

Argent, a Chevron ingrayled between three Boars Heads couped, Sable.

Within the Rails, by the Communion Table, is a large black Marble Grave Stone, having this Inſcription under that of his Ladies, who died September the 18th, 1691.

Here lies the above mentioned Sir John Lanier, one of their Majeſties Lieutenant-Generals, who was at the Reduction of Scotland and Ireland, and died at Bruſſels of his Wounds that he receiv'd at the Battle of Enghien in Flanders, the 29th Day of July, 1692.

His Arms. Two Coats impaled, a Saltier Lozangee between four Eagles diſplayed.
Three Bendlets, the Colour cannot be expected here.

Before the Communion Table, is a flat Stone for Mrs. Diana Farrel, departed 1686. Whoſe Monument is againſt the North Wall; aſſigning her to be the Daughter of Charles Farrel, Eſq; dying in the 22d Year of her Age.

Another flat Stone there is for Grace Mouldſworth, Wife to Hender Mouldſworth, Eſq; late Governor of Jamaica, 1687. She hath a Monument on the South Wall, by the Communion Table.

Againſt the South Wall is a Monument for Egerton Hul, Son of Thomas Hul, of Surrey, Gent. 1687.

Another for Greſham Hakewel, Son of Greſham Hakewel of Weſton Turvile in the County of Bucks, Gent. 1692. Aged 16. Alſo Katharine Hakewel, his Daughter, 1692. Aged 18.

Farewel my only Comfort, Prop and Stay
Of my Family, wrapt and wound in Clay:
Would I had not liv'd to have known this Day.
Written by their Father.

Elijah Hopkins, late of Newtown in the County of Northampton, 1701. Aged 29.

Wondrous young Man, why waſt thou made ſo good,
To be ſnatch'd hence ere better underſtood?
Snatch'd, before half enough of thee was ſeen,
Though ripe, but yet thy tender Life was green, &c.

James Hays, Apothecary, who married the Siſter of the ſaid Elijah Hopkins, ſometime Apothecary to King William III. 1701.

Suſanna Butler, Daughter of Thomas Butler, 1694.

Mary Bullimore, Daughter of Richard and Mary Bullimore, 1694-5.

In the Church Yard under a black Marble Tombſtone, is this Inſcription:

Mrs. Mary Cage, Wife of John Blackwell, Eſq; now the Relict of Tobias Cage, Eſq; who after a Pilgrimage of 68 Years in a troubleſome World, lay down here to reſt, in hopes of a joyful Reſurrection, Obiit July 6, 1697.

THIS Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Biſhop of LONDON, value per Act, 100 l. but with the Glebe and Surplice Fees, worth 300 l. per Annum.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. John Pelling; and the Lecturers, the Rev. Mr. Richard Bundy, and the Rev. Mr. John Thomas.

4 Collectors for the Poor.	2 Surveyors of the High Way.

IN this Pariſh are three French Churches, one in Chapel-ſtreet; one in Crown-ſtreet; one in Rider's-court. This Pariſh buries its Dead in that which is in Chapel-ſtreet, by Act of Parliament, paying the Duties to the Church. The other remakable Place is Soho-ſquare.

HERE

Here are two Charity Schools; one for 50 Boys, and one for 30 Girls.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

In the Upper Liberty are:

King's-ſquare, or Soho-ſquare, Charles-ſtreet, Sutton-ſtreet, Falconbridge-court, Greg-ſtreet, or Greek-ſtreet, Roſe-ſtreet; Part of Crown-ſtreet, or Hog-lane, Wardour-ſtreet, Meards-court, Queen-ſtreet, Thrift-ſtreet, King's-ſquare-court, Dean's-ſtreet, Dean's-court, Crown-court, Great Chapel-ſtreet, Little Chapel-ſtreet, Holland-ſtreet, St. Ann's-court, Compton-ſtreet, Church-ſtreet, King-ſtreet, Moore-ſtreet.

In the Lower Liberty are:

Macclesfield-ſtreet, Gerrard-ſtreet, Hays-court, Newport-market, Litchfield-ſtreet, Porter-ſtreet, Newport-court, Little Newport-ſtreet, Great Newport-ſtreet, Riders-court, Cranbourn-ſtreet, Cranbourn-alley, Cranbourn-paſſage; Part of Caſtle ſtreet; Part of Bear-ſtreet; Part of Leiceſter-ſquare; Part of Spur-ſtreet, Leiceſter-ſtreet, Lille-ſtreet, Sidney-ſtreet, or Sidney-alley; Part of Cock-lane, or Little St. Martin's-lane, Prince's-ſtreet; Part of Weſt-ſtreet.

Number of Houſes are about 1500.

The Girt Line of this Pariſh, begins at the South Weſt Angle of Leiceſter-fields, by Panton-ſtreet; thence turning Northwards, it runs down Whitcomb-ſtreet, from thence into Prince's-ſtreet, and ſo into Wardour-ſtreet, paſſing by St. Anne's Church-yard on the Eaſt Side; and at the upper End of Wardour-ſtreet, it turns down Tyburn-road Eaſtwards unto St. Giles's Pound; and there it turns Southwards into Hog-lane, and ſo runs to the upper End of St. Martin's-lane againſt Long-acre, where it turns down Newport--ſtreet, taking in the North Row of Buildings, and from thence into Caſtle-ſtreet, and ſo to Bear-ſtreet, encloſing the North Side thereof; and ſo runs croſs Leiceſter-fields, to the South Weſt Corner where it began.

Newport-ſtreet fronts Long-acre; the North Side, which is in this Pariſh, hath far the beſt Buildings, and is inhabited by Gentry; whereas, on the other Side dwell ordinary Trades-people, of which ſeveral are of the French Nation.

Porter's-ſtreet, at the North-weſt Corner of Newport-ſtreet, runs up into Litchfield-ſtreet. Out of this Street there is a Paſſage into Newport-market: 'Tis a Street well built and inhabited.

Litchfield-ſtreet, a Place furniſhed with good Buildings, well inhabited. And here is an open Paſſage into Newport-market.

Newport-market, made very commodious for that Uſe, having a good Market-houſe, with Shambles for Butchers in the Midſt, with Shops round about it; but at preſent is not ſo well ſerved with Proviſions as in Time it may be by the Reſort of Country People to it with their Neceſſaries, Clare-market much eclipſing it.

Newport-alley, a great Paſſage into Soho, and thoſe new built Places. It is for the generality inhabited by French; as indeed are moſt of theſe Streets and Alleys, which are ordinarily built, and the Rents cheap. It is a Place of a good Trade. Out of this Alley is a Paſſage into Newport-market.

Little Newport-ſtreet, on the Back of this Alley, ordinarily built and inhabited; being much annoyed with Coaches and Carts into Soho, and thoſe Parts.

Cranbourn-ſtreet has a very handſome Free-ſtone Pavement, and an open Paſſage into Leiceſter-fields for Foot Paſſengers; which great Thoroughfare makes it to be a Place of a very good Trade, both Sides being inhabited by Shop-keepers. Out of the North Side is Cranbourn-alley, a narrow Place, moſt taken up by Shoemakers. Then about the Middle of this Street is Earl's-court, paved with Free-ſtone which has a Paſſage into Little Newport-ſtreet. Not far from this, and near Newport-houſe is Rider's-court, a Court new built and neat, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, cleanly kept and well inhabited. It has a Paſſage at the upper End of Little Newport-ſtreet to Newport-market and Gerard-ſtreet; and on the South Side there is a Paſſage into Bear-ſtreet.

Leiceſter-fields, a very handſome open Square, railed about, and gravelled within. The Buildings are very good, and well inhabited, and frequented by the Gentry. The North and Weſt Rows of Buildings, which are in this Pariſh, are the beſt; and eſpecially the North, where is Leiceſter-houſe, the Seat of the Earl of Leiceſter: Being a large Buiding, with a fair Court before it, for the Reception of Coaches, and a fine Garden behind it; the South and Eaſt Sides being in the Pariſh of St. Martin's.

Next to this Houſe is another large Houſe built by Portman Seymour, Eſq; which being laid to Leiceſter-houſe, was inhabited by their preſent Majeſties, when Prince and Princeſs of Wales.

Sidney-ſtreet, or rather Alley, being paved with Free-ſtone, which gives a Paſſage out of Leiceſter-fields into Prince's-ſtreet, and ſo to Piccadilly; a Place of no great Account.

Leiceſter-ſtreet fronts Leiceſter-fields, and has Liſle-ſtreet on the North.

Liſle-ſtreet comes out of Prince's-ſtreet, and runs up to Leiceſter Garden Wall: Both theſe Streets are large and well built, and inhabited by Gentry.

Whitcombe-ſtreet, on the Back of Leiceſter-fields, ordinary; the Side in this Pariſh being the Stables and Coach-Houſes belonging to the Houſes in the Weſt Row of Leiceſter-fields; and the other Side of the Street, which is in the Pariſh of St. James's, is ordinary, both for Houſes and Inhabitants.

Prince's-ſtreet, a broad Street with good Houſes, and in its Paſſage into Wardour-ſtreet, receives Liſle-ſtreet, Gerard-ſtreet, King-ſtreet, Richmond-ſtreet, and Compton-ſtreet.

Gerard-ſtreet butts againſt Newport-market, and runs Weſtward into Prince's-ſtreet; being fronted with Maxfield, or Macclesfield-ſtreet, which paſſing by St. Anne's Church falls into Dean-ſtreet. It is a very good Street, well-built, and inhabited by Gentry; there is one very large and handſome Houſe at the Eaſt End, in which the Right Honourable the Earl of Scarborough lives, and another about the Middle of it, where the late Lord Mohun lived.

King-ſtreet, a pretty good Street, but not ſo broad as moſt in theſe Parts, yet well inhabited.

Church-ſtreet, ſo called as fronting St. Anne's Church; and paſſing by Moore-ſtreet, which is but ſhort, narrow, and of no great Account, falls into Hog-lane, againſt Monmouth-ſtreet End.

Grafton-ſtreet, indifferent good, croſſes Litchfield-ſtreet, and butts againſt Gerard-ſtreet.

Hayes-ſtreet, or rather Alley, being but ſmall and narrow, with a Free-ſtone Pavement.

Compton-ſtreet, very long, which from Hog-lane runs Weſtward into Wardour-ſtreet. This Street is broad, and the Houſes well built, but of no great Account for its Inhabitants, which are chiefly French.

Dean-ſtreet, a ſpacious Street, and of a great Length, taking its Riſe from St. Anne's Church, and runs Northward to Tyburn Road: It is graced with good Buildings, well inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially the middle Part, but that towards the Road is but ordinary. The Church of St. Anne's is large and handſomely finiſhed, behind which is a ſpacious Church-Yard. On the Weſt Side of this Street are ſeveral Outlets and Courts, viz. Milk-alley, which runs into Wardour-ſtreet, but of no great Account.

Dean's-court, a pretty neat and cleanly Place, not large, but indifferent well inhabited. Cock-pit-court, a ſmall Place, and of no Account, either for Inhabitants or Buildings; which Buildings are but of one Side. St. Anne's-court, pretty well built and inhabited, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, and has a Paſſage into Wardour-ſtreet. King's-ſquare-court, a handſome broad Court fronting King's-ſquare: 'Tis a Paſſage well built and inhabited, and has one very large Houſe, which takes up all the Weſt End or Front; by which is a little Paſſage leading into Wardour-ſtreet and Crown-court.

Wardour-ſtreet has only the Eaſt Side in this Pariſh, the Weſt being in the Pariſh of St. James's, which runs from Compton-ſtreet up into Tyburn Road. In the middle Part the Buildings are good, but towards the Road very ordinary and ill inhabited; but on the other Side the Buildings are better.

Queen-ſtreet fronts Dean-ſtreet on the Weſt, and Greek-ſtreet on the Eaſt, a Place not very conſiderable, having on the North Side dead Walls, which generally are dirty and ill kept.

Frith-ſtreet, graced with good Buildings, well inhabited, eſpecially towards Soho-ſquare.

Greek-ſtreet takes its Riſe out of King's-ſtreet, and falls into King's (commonly called Soho) Square. It is well built and inhabited. Out of this Street there is an open Paſſage for Carts and Coaches into Roſe-ſtreet, which goes into Hog-lane. This Street has ſome indifferent good Houſes; but the greateſt Part is taken up for Coach-Houſes and Stables.

Soho-ſquare, a very large and open Place, incloſed with a high Palliſado Pale, the Square within being neatly kept with Walks and Graſs Plats, and in the Midſt is the Effigies of King Charles II. cut in Stone, ſtanding on a Pedeſtal, round which are four Figures repreſenting the Rivers Thames, Severn, Tine and Humber. This Square has very good Buildings on all Sides, but the moſt magnificent is the Houſe of the Lord Viſcount Bateman on the South.

On the Weſt Side, this Square receives a ſhort Street called King's-ſquare-ſtreet, of ſmall Account.: On the North Side it hath a Paſſage into Tyburn Road, through Charles-ſtreet, a Place of no great Note for Inhabitants; and on the Eaſt Side it has another Paſſage for Coaches and Carts into Hog-lane, and ſo into St. Giles's through Sutton-ſtreet, which is but ordinary. Out of this is Faulconbridge-court, which leads into Tucker's-court, which has a Paſſage into Hog-lane.

Hog-lane, of which the Weſt Side is in this Pariſh, the other Side being in St. Giles's; a Place not over well built or inhabited. Here the French have a Church, which formerly was the Greek Church, and is by many ſtill ſo called, adjoining to which are 18 Alms-Houſes for ſo many poor People, belonging to the Pariſh of St Martin's in the Fields; of which, nine have the Allowance of 8 s. a Month, and the other nine have 7 s. From thence this Street runs to the upper End of St. Martin's-lane, paſſing by Monmouth-ſtreet and other Places, but has nothing worthy Note.

The PARISH of St. PAUL's Covent-Garden.

THE Ground on which this Pariſh is built, was formerly Fields, with ſome thatched Houſes, Stables, and ſuch like, which lying in ſo good a Place, the Owner of the ſaid Ground, the then Earl of Bedford, thought good to make an Improvement thereof, and procuring an Act of Parliament for making it into a Pariſh of it ſelf, diſunited from St. Martin's in the Fields, did, about the Years 1634 and 1635, begin to pull down the ſaid old Buildings, and clear away the Rubbiſh, and laid it out into ſeveral fair Streets, ſtreight and uniform, which were built with good Brick Buildings. About the Centre of the Ground he cauſed to be ſet out a large Square, or rather oblong Piece of Ground, 500 Feet in Length, and 400 in Breadth; and into this Plat of Ground four large Streets at firſt had their Entrance; but now there are five, of 50 or 60 Feet broad, viz. Ruſſel-ſtreet on the Eaſt, James-ſtreet on the North, King-ſtreet and Henrietta-ſtreet on the Weſt, and Southampton-ſtreet on the South, which was laſt built, with other Places adjoining, on the Ground where Bedford Houſe and Gardens ſtood. On the North and Eaſt Sides of this Square are erected ſtately Buildings for the Dwellings of Perſons of Faſhion, their Fronts ſtanding on Pillars and Arches of Brick and Stone Ruſtick Work, with Piazza's or Walks like thoſe in the Royal-Exchange in LONDON, and imitating the Rialto in Venice. At the North Eaſt Angle of theſe Piazza's is the Entrance into the New Theatre, lately erected, the Frontiſpiece of which is a very expenſive Piece of Work, but highly condemned by good Architects, as full of Abſurdities. Since the firſt Building, this Pariſh has had great Improvements, as well by its Houſes as its Inhabitants.

AND if we conſider this Pariſh, as to its fine, ſtreight, and broad Streets, repleniſhed with good Buildings, and ſo well inhabited by a Mixture of Nobility, Gentry, and wealthy Tradesmen, here ſeated ſince the Fire of LONDON, 1666, ſcarce admitting of any Poor, not being peſtered with mean Courts and Alleys; likewiſe its open and large Piazza or Garden, ſo delightful to walk in: It may deſerve to be accounted one of the beſt Pariſhes in the City of LONDON, Weſtminſter, and the Parts adjacent. This Pariſh is begirted on all Sides by St. Martin's in the Fields, out of which it was taken.

An ACCOUNT of the Pariſh Church of St. Paul's Covent Garden, formerly a Part of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

I Find by a Leaſe granted to the Right Honourable Francis Earl of Bedford (dated at his Manſion-Houſe in the Strand, the 10th Day of March 1631, in the 7th Year of the Reign of King Charles I.) to John Powel of Little-Thorocke, in the County of Eſſex, Clerk; and to Edward Palmer of the Pariſh of St. Andrew's Holbourn, in the County of Middleſex, Gent. Son of Edward Palmer, late Citizen and Girdler of LONDON, lately deceaſed, and John Barrodale of LONDON, Gent. he having let to the aforeſaid Edward Palmer, the Father, all the Piece or Parcel of Ground of the ſaid Earl's

Earl's Paſture, called Covent Garden and Long Acre, one of them lying on the South Side of a Parcel of Ground then laid forth for a new Church-yard, containeth in Length, from a Parcel of Ground then let to one William Newton, Gent. on the Weſt Side; another Parcel of Ground then preſerved for a Veſtry-Houſe; on the Eaſt 180 Feet, and three Inches of Aſſize; and in Breadth, from a Parcel of Grounds then laid forth for the ſaid Church-yard, on the North, 33 Feet of Aſſize, and all other Conveniencies for Building, to hold for 34 Years to come, from the Date aforeſaid, at the Yearly Rent of ſeventeen Pounds and Six-pence, payable quarterly, at or in the Dining-Hall of the ſaid Earl's, commonly called Bedford-Houſe in the Strand, in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

THE aboveſaid Edward Palmer the Elder, did, at his own Charge, erect nine ſeveral Meſſuages or Tenements on the ſaid Ground. Likewiſe I find, by an Act for the preventing Multiplicity of Building in and about the Suburbs of LONDON, and within ten Miles thereof, at the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the 17th of September 1657.

"PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, "That in Regard of the great Charges that "Francis late Earl of Bedford hath been at in "building a Church in Covent Garden, in the "County of Middleſex, and in the Endowment "of the ſame Church, and other publick Charges "in and about the Pariſh of Covent Garden a-"foreſaid, there be abated unto William Earl of "Bedford, John Ruſſel, and Edward Ruſſel, "Eſquires, Sons of the ſaid Francis late Earl of "Bedford, out of the Fines which ſhall be pay-"able unto them by Force of this Act, in Re-"ceipt of the Building in the ſaid Pariſh of Co-"vent Garden, the Sum of 7000 l. the ſame "Abatement to be made unto them by the ſaid "Commiſſioners proportionably, accordingly as "they ſhall be ſeverally chargeable by this Act.

IT was conſecrated by the Reverend Father in God ——

THE Builder of this famous Church was that rare Architect Mr. Inigo Jones, one of the greateſt Reſtorers of the antient Roman Way of Building, and this the firſt. How magnificent and great doth it preſent itſelf to the Beholder. The Portico is magnificent. The Upright, with the View of the Garden and the Piazza's, is done by the curious Mr. Holler. It is the only View, in Imitation of the Italian, we have in or about LONDON, uſhered into Uſe by that great Encourager of Arts, the Earl of Arundel. The Cieling-piece in Proſpective is admired by all that ſee it. It was done by an Inhabitant of the Pariſh. His Name was —— Pierce, a Painter. Of late Years it hath been adorned, in the Middle of the Square, with a Sun-dial fixed on a Pillar of Black Marble, after the Corinthian Order, aſcending with Steps to the Pedeſtal, whereon the weary Walker may reſt himſelf. This was done at the Charge of the Inhabitants, as appears by the Arms on the Capital.

THE 7th Day of January 1645, was an Ordinance of Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, for making the Covent-garden Church Parochial, and for dividing the ſame from the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, upon ſeveral Articles and Conditions: Alſo for giving Power to 34 Perſons, to aſſeſs and levy Monies for the Payment of two Miniſters, and other Parochial Uſes: And alſo for nominating Conſtables and all other Pariſh Officers.

12 Car. II. Ann. 1660. An Act of Parliament was made for making the Precinct of Covent Garden Parochial. In the Preamble it ſheweth, how Francis Earl of Bedford, deceaſed, erected the Fabrick of a Church for the Uſe of the Inhabitants of the Precinct of Covent Garden, and did intend to ſettle a yearly Stipend of an 100 l. and an Houſe, then in the Tenure of William Ruſſel, for the Maintenance, and for the Habitation of a Miniſter to officiate in the ſaid Church: And that it was found neceſſary that the ſame ſhould be made Parochial, and divided from the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, and that a farther Increaſe of Maintenance might be provided for an able Miniſter.

BY this Act the Bounds of this new Pariſh are ſet out: That is to ſay, beginning at the Strand, at the Eaſt End of the Meſſuage, called Bedford Houſe, and including the ſaid Houſe, with all the Out-houſes, Gardens, &c. belonging: And all thoſe Houſes within the narrow Bounds, that is to ſay, forty Feet without the Brickwall, and all Houſes, Edifices, Buildings, and Land within the ſaid Bounds, bounded by the Houſe of Humphry Vaughan in Ruſſel-ſtreet Eaſt; by the Houſe of William Bard, in Chandois-ſtreet Weſt; by the Houſe of William Crisby in James-ſtreet North; and by the Houſe of Richard Tamton in Bedford-ſtreet South. The ſaid Precinct to be divided from St. Martin's Pariſh. The Right Honourable William Earl of Bedford, and his Heirs, to have the Patronage of the ſaid Church, and to nominate and appoint the Rector of the ſaid Church as oft as the ſame ſhall become void. That he, the ſaid Rector, ſhall have the Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants. That he ſhall have 100 l. a Year, iſſuing out of ſeveral [viz. Three] Houſes, ſituate in Covent Garden, with Power to diſtrain for 100 l. or a Part thereof, upon the ſaid Houſes, or any of them, charged with the ſame Rent.

THE Rector may, with the Conſent of the Patron, from Time to Time, nominate an able Miniſter, to be Curate Aſſiſtant to the ſaid Rector. And for the farther Maintenance of the Rector, and Proviſion of the Curate, and other Officers, every Thurſday in Eaſter Week there ſhall be three Church-wardens named: One to be choſen by the Earl of Bedford, another by the Rector, and a third by the Inhabitants. And that the yearly Sum of 250 l. henceforth be charged upon the Houſes of the Inhabitants, except Bedford Houſe, to be aſſeſſed by the Church-wardens, or any two of them, by a Pound Rate, within 28 Days after Eaſter Thurſday; to be confirmed and allowed by the two next Juſtices dwelling within the City of Weſtminſter; to be collected by the Church-wardens, or ſuch as they ſhall appoint. And in Caſe the ſame be not paid, to be levied by Diſtreſs and Sale of Goods. Out of this Collection the Church-wardens to pay to the Rector the yearly Sum of 150 l. and to the Curate 50 l. by even and equal Portions each Quarter. The Reſidue of the Money collected, being 50 l. to be employed for the Wages and Salaries of a Clerk and two Sextons; which ſhall be diſtributed according to the Direction of the ſaid Earl and the Rector.

THE Church-wardens, or any two of them, to make Rates and Aſſeſſments upon the Inhabitants, for raiſing Money for Payment of Scavengers for cleanſing of the Streets, and repairing and amending of the Church.

PROVIDED the Overſeers of the Poor, and Surveyors of the Highways of St. Martin's Pariſh, and the Church-wardens of the Pariſh of St. Paul's Covent Garden, may aſſeſs and collect of the Pariſh of St. Paul Covent Garden, for the Relief of the Poor, and Reparation of the Highways, all ſuch Rates and Taxes as they might have done before the making of this Act.

NOR

NOR this Act to deſtroy any of the Rights or Powers belonging to the Biſhop of LONDON; but that he may at all Times viſit, inſtitute, and exerciſe Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction in the ſaid Pariſh.

IT hath probably the Name of Covent Garden, becauſe it was the Garden and Fields to that large Convent or Monaſtery, where Exeter Houſe formerly ſtood; theſe Grounds belonging unto it, being all encompaſſed with a Wall. And when this Ground, upon the Diſſolution of Religious Houſes, became the Eſtate of his Grace's Anceſtors, then Bedford Houſe was erected, where it lately ſtood. Whereas, before, their Houſe was on the other Side of the Strand, formerly called, The Biſhop of Carliſle's Inn.

THIS Covent Garden, and the Lands belonging to it, was firſt granted by King Edward VI. to his Uncle the Duke of Somerſet: Which, upon his Attainder, come back to the Crown. And then, in the Month of May 1552, there was a Patent granted to John Earl of Bedford, and Lord Privy Seal, of Covent Garden, lying in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, next Charing Croſs, with ſeven Acres, called Long Acre, of the yearly Value of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. Parcel of the Poſſeſſions of the late Duke of Somerſet. To have to him and his Heirs, to be held in Soccage, and not in Capite.

Now for the Deſcription of the Streets, &c. we ſhall begin with the moſt conſiderable.

Covent Garden, particularly ſo called, is a curious, large, and airy Square, encloſed by Rails, between which Rails and the Houſes runs a fair Street. The Square is always kept well gravelled for the Accommodation of the People to walk there, and ſo raiſed with an eaſy Aſcent to the Middle, that the Rain ſoon draineth off, and the gravelly Bottom becomes dry, fit to walk on.

IN the Midſt of this Garden, within the Rails, is a Stone Pillar or Column raiſed on a Pedeſtal, aſcended by Steps, on which is placed a curious Sun-dial four ſquare, having above it a Mound gilt with Gold, all neatly wrought in Freeſtone. On the North and Eaſt Sides are Rows of very good and large Houſes, called the Piazza's, ſuſtained by Stone Pillars, to ſupport the Buildings. Under which are Walks, broad and convenient, paved with Freeſtone. The South Side lay formerly open to Bedford Garden, where there was a ſmall Grotto and Trees, but now there are Buildings here, as before mention'd; the Houſes fronting the Square are called Taviſtock Row; on this Side there is kept a Market for Fruits, Herbs, Roots, and Flowers, every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday; which is grown to a conſiderable Account, and well ſerved with choice Goods, which makes it much reſorted unto. And on the Weſt Side is the Church of St. Paul Covent Garden, the Nature and Order of which Building are thus: The Walls are of Brick rendered over, but the Coins are Stone, and Ruſtick Work; the Roof within is flat, and painted of the Ionick Order, but much decayed; it is covered with Pantiles, which, together with the Gable-end, extends ſeveral Feet Eaſtward from the Eaſt End of the upright Walls of the Church, and is ſupported with ſtrong Stone Columns of the Tuſcan Order, conſtituting a Piazza, where the Poll is often taken for Parliamentmen for the City and Liberty of Weſtminſter, accounted the greateſt in England.

"THE Tuſcan Portico to the Church in Co-
"vent Garden (ſays an ingenious Architect) has "really a ſolemn Aſpect, which in its ſimple
"Beauty is not to be parallelled by any that I
"know in and about LONDON. The ex"traordinary Projecture of the Cornice (which "is equal to a fourth Part of the Height of the "Order) I muſt own is, in my Opinion, ſome-
"thing too great; the Modillions or Ends of "the Joiſts ſeeming to be over-loaded, and to
"ſtand in Need of ſome Help by way of Truſs,
"&c. to aſſiſt them in ſuſtaining ſo great a
"Weight. To ſupport the Angles of this Cor-
"nice over the Portico, angular Modillions are "placed; which, I think, is a Miſtake, as ha"ving a very ill Effect, ſince theſe Angles might "have been ſuſtained without, as thoſe are at "the Weſt End. The two Grand Doors in the "Middle of each End, over which plain Cornices
"are fixed, ſupported by Truſſes, would have "been much more ſimple and grand, had they "been made with their Architraves only. The "Ruſticks at the Quoins of this Church are very "particular, and, if I may be permitted to ſpeak
"freely, are entirely falſe, being made by ſquare
"Blocks of Stone, whoſe Dimenſions on both "Sides are equal, inſtead of being Headers and "Stretchers alternately, which make the beſt
"Bondage, as being of all others the moſt ſub-
"ſtantial. In the two Ruſtick Frontiſpieces
"at the Entrances into the Church-yard, is a
"very groſs Error, which muſt not eſcape Ani-
"madverſion, that for the future it may be a"voided. This is the cutting of the Channels
"to form the Ruſticks in the Bodies of the Pi-
"laſters, under both the Impoſts and Capitals,
"which is a weakening inſtead of a ſtrengthen-
"ing to them. And therefore it is to be re"membered, that where-ever Ruſticks are to be "introduced, their Thickneſs ſhould exceed the "Uprights of the Pilaſters, ſo as to repreſent
"perfect Bands, binding their Parts moſt firmly
"together. Though another Author ſays, This "Church is without a Rival, and one of the "moſt perfect Pieces of Architecture that the "Art of Man can produce; yet I cannot think
"ſo, being well aſſured, that if a Steeple of "proper Dimenſions was raiſed above the Pedi-
"ment, 'twould be a very great Improvement
"to the Whole.

ALTHOUGH it is generally ſaid that Inigo Jones was the Architect of this Church, yet the * Author, above quoted, ſays, he is credibly informed, it was built by Mr. Stone.

THIS Church within has three Iſles, and is paved with Stone; and there are handſome Windows of the Tuſcan Order; but tho' the Church is broad, there are no Pillars to ſupport the Roof. It is wainſcotted, about the Chancel, eight Feet high, with Deal, and pewed with Oak. The Galleries extend on the South, Weſt, North, and Eaſt Sides of the Church; which laſt very much obſtructs the View of the Altar-Piece, which is adorned with eight fluted Columns, painted in Imitation of Porphery of the Corinthian Order, and an Entablature painted white and veined: The Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Black Characters on White, under a Glory, environed with painted Cherubims within an Alcove, and theſe between two Seraphins carved: Above all which is an Arch, with the King's Arms on the Key-Piece, between two handſome Vaſes, and all under a painted Feſtoon Curtain, extending on Part of the Roof, ſo as ſuppoſed to let fall before the Whole. Near the Window on the North Side is a ſpacious Picture of King Charles I. with Angels, adorned with twiſted Columns, &c. and the Jambs of the Windows, in the Chancel, are alſo embelliſhed with painted Cherubims,

Incenſe-

Incenſe-Pots, Leaves, &c. And oppoſite to the ſaid Picture and Window, on the North Side, is a Triumphal Arch, on the South Side of the Chancel, whereon is placed the King's Arms carved, gilt and depicted. At the Weſt End of the Church within is a Dial, and another without at the Eaſt End of the Church, with this Motto:

Ex hoc Momento pendat Eternitas.

The Length of this Church is ninety-nine Feet, Breadth forty eight, Altitude about thirty-eight, but no Tower, nor Bells to ring in Peal.

Epitaph:

Kind Reader, turn thine Eyes away;
Look not on this beloved Clay.
Or if thou muſt, let fall a Tear
For her that was too fair, too dear
For our unworthy Earth. Whoſe Flight
Was only to eternal Light.
All but long Life to her was given:
She dyed on Earth, to live in Heaven.
Yet hadſt thou known her, Reader, thou would'ſt cry,
How long ſhe liv'd, how little thou and I?

Among the Interments of this Pariſh is one of an extraordinary Kind: It was the Corpſe of Marmaduke Conwey, Eſq; buried here Dec. 23, 1717, who died at the Age of 108, and ſome Months. He had been ever in the Service of the Royal Family, from the three laſt Months of the Reign of King James I. to his dying Day. He attended at the Coronation of King Charles

Charles I. in a Military Employment, and bore Arms for the King during the whole Civil War, in which his Father and himſelf loſt an Eſtate of 1000 l. a Year. After the Reſtauration he had ſeveral good Places under King Charles II. with whom he was very much in Favour, partly for his extraordinary Skill in Hawking. He never had a dangerous Sickneſs, nor loſt one Tooth in his whole Life. He uſed to ride on Horſeback with a Hawk on his Fiſt, which he did but two Years before his Death; and in the September laſt before his Death, he rode eight Miles a Hawking. He was ſenſible to the laſt Moment, and diſcourſed very piouſly of his approaching End. In a Word, he died purely of old Age, without the leaſt Pain and Sickneſs.

On the South Wall, towards the Weſt End, is this Inſcription:

Near this Place, in a Vault, lyes the Body of John Wells, who died the 9th of July 1704, in the 22d Year of his Age.

And alſo John Yarwell, Gent. at whoſe Charge the ſaid Vault was built, and who did by his Will, dated the 13th of Feb. 1711, give to this Pariſh 3000 l. to purchaſe 50 l. per Year for ever for the following Uſes, viz. five Pounds per Year in Bread, by 25 four Penny Loaves on the firſt Sunday of every Month. Five Pounds per Year equally divided between ten poor Houſe-keepers at Chriſtmas, 40 Shillings per Year, for a Sermon the 29th of May yearly, in Memory of the Donor; 40 Shillings for a Treat the ſame Day as the Miniſter and Church-Wardens ſhall think fit, and 20 Shillings for the Servants of this Church at the ſame Time; upon Condition the Church-Wardens for the Time being ſhall keep the ſaid Vault in good Repair for ever, with this Stone and Inſcription; and that hereafter no other Perſon be interred in the ſame Vault. John Yarwell died the 26th of Feb. 1712; Martha his Wife dyed March the 29th, 1728.

Over the Right Hand Side of the Door, in the Portico, is a Monument with this Inſcription:

Beneath this Marble lies Sarah Taylor, Wife of William Taylor of this Pariſh: She was what ſhe appeared, a good Wife, tender Mother, and ſincere Friend; to her Memory this is erected by her Husband. She dyed Feb. 23, 1727-8, aged 61 Years.

THE other is for 20 Girls, who are Cloathed, taught to Work, Read and Write, and have 3 l. given to put each of them out Apprentice to do all Manner of Houſhold Work: The Miſtreſs's Salary is 32 l. per Ann. and ſhe finds a School-Room.

AT the North Weſt Angle of Covent-garden-ſquare is a large Houſe built by the late Earl of Orford, of which an * Author, we have before quoted, makes the following Remarks:

"THE Houſe, lately the Lord Orford's, "joining to the great Piazza, is certainly one "of the moſt expenſive and worſt Buildings "about LONDON; and that its Errors may "be avoided againſt in future Deſigns, 'tis very "reaſonable I ſhould point them out. 1. The "Ruſtick Pilaſters being divided into very ſmall "Courſes, are of poor, low Taſte, and have not "that bold and grand Aſpect they would, were "they larger; nor do they ſeem to be ſo well "able to ſupport the Pilaſters over them. "2. Theſe fluted Pilaſters, crowned with Com-"poſite Capitals, are not much, if any Thing "higher, than a Tuſcan Pilaſter of the ſame "Diameter; ſo that they make as aukward a "Figure with their Flutings and carved Capi-"tals, as a ſturdy Welſhman taken from the "Plough-Tail would do, were he to be dreſſed "in the Tye-Peruke, and embroidered Cloaths, "of a Courtier. 3. Here is alſo the common "Error of breaking back the Entablature over "each Pilaſter, which afterwards has the "Courſes of its Architrave and Freeze broken by "the Heads of the upper Windows. 4. The "Entrance into this Houſe is very abſurd; for "here, where two Tuſcan Columns of ſubſtan-"tial Dimenſions ſhould have been placed, to "ſuſtain the incumbent Weight of the Middle "Part of the Front; there are two ſmall Co-"rinthian Columns on Pedeſtals in their ſtead, "which fill up the Entrance indeed as little as "can be, but ſeem to have as great a Load "on them, as Atlas with the whole World on "his Shoulders.

The PRECINCT of the Savoy.

THE Savoy was ſo called from Peter, Earl of Savoy, Brother to Boniface, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Uncle to Eleanor, Wife to King Henry III.

HE firſt built this Houſe in the Year 1245, and Queen Eleanor afterwards purchaſed it of the Fraternity or Brethren of Mountjoy, to whom Peter of Savoy had left it, for her Son Edmund, Earl of Lancaſter, as Camden has noted out of a Regiſter-Book of the Dukes of Lancaſter. Henry Duke of Lancaſter repaired, or rather new built it, at the Expence of 52,000 Marks, which Money he had gathered together at the Town of Bridgerike.

John the French King was lodged there, in the Year 1357, and alſo in the Year 1363, for it was, at that Time, the faireſt Manor in England.

IN the Year 1381, the Rebels of Kent and Eſſex burnt this Houſe, to which there was none in the Realm to be compared in Beauty and Statelineſs. They ſet Fire to it round about, and made Proclamation, That none, on Pain to loſe his Head, ſhould convert to his own Uſe any Thing that was there; but that they ſhould break ſuch Plate, and Veſſels of Gold and Silver, as were found in that Houſe, (which was in great Plenty) into ſmall Pieces, and throw the ſame into the River Thames. Precious Stones they ſhould bruiſe in Mortars, that the ſame might be of no Uſe; and ſo it was done accordingly. One of their Companions they burnt in the Fire, becauſe he would have reſerved one fine Piece of Plate to himſelf.

THEY found there certain Barrels of Gunpowder, which they thought had been Gold and Silver, and throwing them into the Fire more ſuddenly than they thought, the Hall was blown up, the Houſes deſtroyed, and themſelves very hardly eſcaped.

THIS Houſe being thus defaced, and almoſt overthrown by theſe Rebels, for the Malice they bore to John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, of later Time came to the King's Hands, and was again raiſed and beautifully built, for an Hoſpital, of St. John the Baptiſt, by K. Henry VII. about the Year 1509. For which Hoſpital, ſtill retaining the old Name of the Savoy, he purchaſed Lands, to be employed upon the relieving an hundred poor People. See more of this Hoſpital, Book I. Chap. XIV. It was ſuppreſſed in the ſeventh Year of the Reign of K. Edward VI. and the Furniture given by that King towards furniſhing Bridewell, (which he had beſtowed on the Citizens of LONDON for a Work-houſe) and St. Thomas's in Southwark. After his Death, it falling into the Poſſeſſion of Queen Mary, ſhe, in the 4th Year of her Reign, new founded and endowed this Hoſpital; and it was confirmed at Weſtminſter by Patent, 4 and 5 Phil. and Mary, and from thence, as ſome believed, called St. Mary Savoy; but others ſay it aſſumed that Name from the Inhabitants of St. Mary at Strand, uſing this, which was only a Chapel to the ſaid Hoſpital, as their Pariſh Church, after their own was demoliſhed, Anno 1449, by Edward Duke of Somerſet, Uncle to Edward VI. and Lord Protector; who, in Place of that Church, and the Biſhop of Cheſter and Worceſter's Inns, erected Somerſet-Houſe.

THIS Chapel was repaired with great Coſt and Beauty at the Charge of the Precinct, Anno 1600; and the Gallery at the Weſt End was built Anno 1618; and the ſame Church is yet ſtanding.

THE Inhabitants of St. Mary le Strand, after their old Church was pulled down to enlarge the Garden belonging to Somerſet-Houſe, congregated here for many Years; but when Dr. Killigrew was made Maſter of the Savoy, about the Year 1665, he would not permit them to frequent this Chapel, till they had ſigned an Inſtrument, whereby they renounced their having any Right or Property in, or to, the ſaid Chapel, or any Part of the Savoy, and then he allowed them to make Collections at the Chapel-door, nine Months in the Year, for the Support of their own Poor. The Doctor ſoon broke the old Conſtitution, and not only appointed two Overſeers, (one to be choſen by himſelf, and the other by the Inhabitants of the Precinct) but he alſo ſet up a Veſtry (without Authority) to conſiſt of the Maſter and fourteen Inhabitants. By Virtue of his Patent he had Liberty to grant Leaſes for three Lives or ninety-one Years, which he did by taking Fines, and reſerving only a ſmall Quit-Rent,

* Hiram, Grub-Street Journal, Numb. 248.

Rent, to the Diminution of the annual Income of the Hoſpital.

Soon after the Doctor's Deceaſe, viz. in the firſt Year of the Reign of the late Queen Anne, Commiſſioners were appointed to viſit the Hoſpital, who were ſeven Lords Spiritual, and as many Lords Temporal: The Commiſſion was opened by Sir Nathan Wright, then Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and three of the Brethren, or Chaplains, were diſcharged, becauſe they had other Benefices; as was alſo the fourth, by Reaſon he was a Teacher of a ſeparate Congregation. The laſt mentioned Chaplain was put in by Dr. Killegrew, though he knew that he was a Diſſenting Preacher.

Some Time after this, Dr. Prat, who was Chaplain of the Hoſpital, endeavoured to obtain an Act of Parliament to have it diſſolved, and to be made Parochial; the Bill paſſed the Houſe of Commons, but meeting with great Oppoſition from the Chancellors of the two Univerſities, from the Biſhops, and other Lords, it was thrown out of their Houſe.

This Chapel is ſituated by the Church-yard of the Savoy, which ſtands between the South Side of the Strand and the Thames.

The Structure has an Aſpect of great Antiquity, but the Altar ſtands at the North End, the greateſt Length being from North to South. It is built with regular cut Stone and Boulder, with a Tower and coped Battlements. The Roof is covered with Lead. The Windows are of the modern Gothick; the Floor at the Altar is ſix Steps, or near four Feet higher than that of the Nave, which has but one Iſle, at the Weſt End whereof is a Lobby.

The Inſide of the Roof is adorned with circular Figures, and thoſe of a Holy Lamb, Unicorns, and Coats of Arms, in Fret-work.

The Walls are wainſcotted, the Body of the Church with Oak about eight Feet high; and that of the Chancel is enriched with Branches, Leaves, Fruit, Voluta's, &c. and is about eleven Feet high.

The Altar-piece is the Decalogue between two Columns painted in Perſpective; alſo the Figures of Moſes and Aaron; above all which are the King's Arms painted: It is alſo pewed with Oak, and on ſeven of the Piers hang as many Portraits of the Apoſtles, painted in large Frames.

At the Weſt End is a Gallery, and on the 12 Pannels are the Pictures of the twelve Apoſtles, painted at full Length on Cloth, but ſomewhat decayed, placed in this Order, beginning Southward.

St. Peter,	St. Matthias,
Andrew,	Thomas,
John,	James the Leſs,
James the Great,	Matthias,
Philip,	Simon,
Bartholomew,	Jude.

The Dimenſions are, Length 87 Feet, Breadth 26. Altitude 33. And that of the Tower about 75.

The antient Monuments of ſuch as were buried in this Church are but few.

Robert Willoughby, Knt. Lord Brook, bequeathed his Body, by his Will, Anno 1521, to be buried in the Hoſpital of the Savoy, LONDON.

Monuments of later Times are theſe that follow: Among which yet ſome of Antiquity will be met with.

PART of the Strand; Part of Dutchy-lane, White-lion-court, Green-elm-court, Upper-church-yard, Lower-church-yard, Savoy-alley, and Jeſuits-Ground.

NUMBER of Houſes in this Precinct are 76.

SEVERAL of the Inhabitants of this Precinct, which is in the Liberty of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, live Rent-free, and have done ſo for many Years, no Body appearing to make Demand of them.

THE remarkable Places and Things are, two German Churches, one of which is a Calviniſt, and the other a Lutheran; one French Church, and one Quakers-Meeting. Barracks for 500 Soldiers, the Savoy Priſon for Deſerters, and other Delinquents of the Army, and for ſecuring the Recruits. Here is alſo a handſome Infirmary for ſuch of the Guards as fall ſick, and for three or four Officers.

The PARISH of St. MARY Le STRAND.

THE firſt Church of St. Mary le Strand, was ſituated on the South Side of the Strand, oppoſite to the preſent Church, and was pulled down by Edward Duke of Somerſet, Uncle to Edward VI. and Lord Protector, Anno 1549, who promiſed to build the Pariſhioners a new Church, but did not perform it. So that they were obliged ſometimes to join themſelves to the Church of St. Clement Danes, and afterwards to the Chapel in the Savoy, until a new Church was built.

THE preſent Church of St. Mary le Strand takes its Name from the Virgin Mary, to whom it was dedicated, and from its Situation.

THE firſt Stone of the Foundation was laid on the 25th of February 1714, and the Steeple, being the laſt Part of the Church, was finiſhed the 7th of September, 1717; but was not conſecrated until the 1ſt of January, 1723.

IT is ſituate on the eaſterly Side of the Strand, where the Maypole ſtood formerly.

BY an Act of Parliament 12, Regin. Annæ, for building fifty new Churches, in the Broad Place where the Maypole ſtood, and the Watch-Houſe, was ſo much of the vacant or waſte Piece of Ground to be granted for a Church, as contained in Length from Eaſt to Weſt 138 Feet, and in Breadth from North to South 60 Feet, and to be veſted in Thomas Archbiſhop of Canterbury, John Archbiſhop of York, Simon Lord Harcourt, Lord Chancellor, &c. appointed by Letrers Patents, dated the 27th of September, 1712. to be Commiſſioners to execute the Powers in the Act 9 Regin. Annæ, for building fifty new Chnrches, and in their Heirs and Aſſigns for ever; ſuch new Church, after it is erected and finiſhed, ſhall by deemed one of the 50 Churches to be built.

A ſtraight Way and Paſſage on the North Side leading Eaſt and Weſt, to be 20 Feet broad between the ſaid Church and the Houſes. Another Street Way at the Eaſt End of the Church, of the ſame Breadth; and to be left fifty Feet for the High-ſtreet between the Church and the Houſes at the Eaſt End on the South Side; and at the Middle Part of the Church to the Buildings now ſtanding 45 Feet; and at the the Weſt End of the Church to the ſaid Buildings 38 Feet from the High-ſtreet.

THIS Church is built of Stone, it has no Gallery within, and yet the outſide is divided into two Orders of Columns, viz. Ionick below, and the Corinthian above; this is looked upon as a great Fault by good Architects; but the Circular Portico, at the Weſt Entrance, is much commended. It is well pew'd and wainſcotted, and the Altar is neat, in a Semicircular Form.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the King, Value 225 l. beſides Fees, 100 l. being ſettled by Act of Parliament, and paid by the King, and 125 l. raiſed by a Pound-Rate, at 4 d. in the Pound, on the Pariſhioners. The Rector has alſo a Houſe, valued at 50 l. per Ann. which ſtands in Charles-ſtreet, near Covent-garden, but it is in this Pariſh by Virtue of the aforeſaid Act.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. John Heylyn, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Stevens.

HERE are two Gift Sermons yearly, one on the 6th of September, the Gift of Mrs. Loveday; the other on the 27th of October, the Gift of Mrs. Edwards; and two Charity Sermons, for the better Support of 20 poor Boys.

PRAYERS are every Wedneſday, Friday and Holiday, at Eleven o'Clock, no Organ, one Bell.

The Veſtry is ſelect but the Pariſh chooſe one Church-Warden.

The PARISH OFFICERS are,	The PEACE-OFFICERS are,
2 Church-wardens.	1 Conſtable.
2 Overſeers of the Poor.	2 Scavengers.

THE Benefactions to the Poor are 5 l. for ever to 20 poor Widows, the Gift of Mrs. Loveday; and 4 l. for ever to be diſtributed among poor Widows, the Gift Mrs. Edwards.

IN Denham-yard, in this Pariſh is a Charity School for 20 poor Boys, who are taught to Read, Write, &c. are cloathed in Grey, and have from 40 s. to 5 l. given when put out Apprentices, all by Subſcription of the Pariſhioners. There is another for 20 poor Girls, who are taught to Read, Knit, Sew, &c. and are cloathed in ſtriped Gowns by a Society: This laſt School is in Swan-yard, and the Girls go to the Savoy Chapel.

STREETS, Lanes, &c.

NUMBER of Houſes 266.

Somerſet-houſe.

IN this Pariſh is a Royal Palace, commonly called Somerſet-houſe, a magnificent Structure built by the Duke of Somerſet, Uncle to King Edward VI. It was, after the Death of King Charles II. occupied by Katharine Queen-Dowager, who there kept her Court for many Years, till ſhe left England and returned to Portugal.

IT has a beautiful Front towards the Water Side, with a Piazza, Fountain, Walks, and Statues. The Front towards the Strand is adorned with Columns and Entablature of the Dorick Order. It is very reaſonable, ſays an ingenious Architect, to think that Somerſet-houſe was the firſt Building in England that exhibited any Reſemblance of Grecian Architecture, and wherein much Labour and curious Workmanſhip was employed. But the Stone being of a ſoft and looſe Texture, ſoon became liable to Decay and Injury by Weather; ſo that now the Edifice is almoſt intirely defaced, and very few Members remain perfect to inform us what they originally were. At preſent the moſt remarkable Part of this Palace is the Chapel, built by Inigo Jones, in which the Dorick Order is inriched in the moſt extravagant Manner, as may be ſeen in the 92d Plate of the Principles of antient Maſonry, &c.

THE Author of A Critical Review of the Publick Buildings, ſpeaks thus of this Palace: "I "am exceedingly pleaſed with the Front of the "firſt Court of Somerſet-houſe next the Strand, "as it affords us a View of the Dawning of Taſte "in England, this being the only Fabrick, that "I know of, which deviates ever ſo little from "the Gothick, or imitates ever ſo remotely the "Manner of the Antients: Here are Columns, "Arches, and Cornice that appear to have ſome "Meaning; and if Proportions are neglected, if "Beauty is not perfectly underſtood, if there is "a ſtrange Mixture of Barbariſm and Splendor "in it, the Miſtakes admit of great Alleviations. In all Probability the Architect was "an Engliſhman, and this his firſt Attempt, to "refine on his Predeceſſors. Perhaps he had not "an Opportunity to review the Italian Models, "or form his Judgment on the Plans of the Antients. At all Events the Duke, who was at "the Expence of this coſtly Undertaking, is to "be applauded for ſetting this glorious Example of a Taſte, till then unknown in the Kingdom; for chuſing ſo charming a Situation, "juſt in the Middle of Bow, which the River forms between the Bridge and Weſtminſter, "commanding the Proſpect both Ways, and "looking direct on the fine Hills of Surrey. "'Tis not to be doubted but the new Front next "the Gardens has greatly the Advantage of "the old; nothing can be conceiv'd more in "Taſte, or better calculated to anſwer the View "from the Water, and yet even here we have "the Mortification to ſee it left unfiniſhed; "though a Trifle more of Charge would make "it perfect; I mean according to the Plan, on "which 'twas originally deſigned: For, if the "moſt was to be made of the Situation, 'tis capable of Beauties, which very few others could "allow. The Inequality of Ground, for Example, leaving Room to ſhew the upper Story "of the Court next the Strand, over the Top of "that belonging to the Gardens; and what "beautiful Uſe might be made of ſuch an Advantage, I leave to the underſtanding Architect to imagine."

THIS Houſe is now inhabited chiefly by Perſons to whom Apartments are given by the King, but the beſt Part of it reſerved for the Entertainment of Foreign Ambaſſadors, and others of high Rank. Here his ſerene Highneſs the Prince of Orange was lodged, after his Arrival in England, till the Day of his Marriage with the PRINCESS ROYAL.

The PARISH of St. CLEMENT'S DANES.

TO begin now at Temple-bar; over-againſt it, in the High Street, antiently ſtood a Pair of Stocks, and then a large middle Row of Houſes and ſmall Tenements built, partly opening ing to the South; partly towards the North, ſtretching to a Stone Croſs, which was where the New Church in the Strand now ſtands. Among theſe Houſes ſtands the Pariſh Church of St. Clement Danes, ſo called, becauſe Harold, a Daniſh King, and other Danes, were buried there, in that Church-yard.

THIS Harold, whom King Canutus had by a Concubine, reigned three Years, and was buried at Weſtminſter; but afterwards Hadicanutus, the lawful Son of Canutus, in Revenge of an Affront done to his Mother, by expelling her out of the Realm, and the Murder of his Brother Alured, commanded the Body of Harold to be dug up out of the Earth, and to be thrown into the Thames, where it was by a Fiſherman taken up and buried in this Church-yard: But in a Ledger-Book ſome Time belonging to the Abbey of Chertſey in Surrey, it is noted thus:

" IN the Reign of King Ethelred, the Mo-
" naſtery of Chertſey was deſtroyed; ninety
" Monks of that Houſe were ſlain by Danes,
" whoſe Bodies were buried in a Place near to " the old Monaſtery.

William of Malmsbury ſaith they burnt the Church, together with the Monks and Abbot; but the Danes continuing in their Fury, throughout the whole Land, deſirous at Length to return home into Denmark, were, by the juſt Judgment of God, all ſlain at LONDON, in a Place which is called The Church of the Danes.

THERE is yet another Reaſon given for this Denomination of the Church from the Danes; namely, that when the Danes were utterly driven out of this Kingdom, and but a very few left, who were married to Engliſh Women; theſe were conſtrained to inhabit between the Iſle of Thorne, which is now called Weſtminſter, and Caer Lud, now called Ludgate: And there they built a Synagogue; which being afterwards conſecrated, was called, Eccleſia Clementis Danorum. This Account of the Name did the learned Antiquary Fleetwood, ſome Time Recorder of LONDON, give to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, who lived in this Pariſh.

ABOUT this Church, and Parts adjoining, were frequent Diſturbances, in former Times; by reaſon of the Unthrifts, as Stow calls them, of the Inns of Chancery, who were ſo unruly at Nights, walking about, to the Annoyance and Danger of ſuch as paſſed along the Streets, that the Inhabitants were fain to keep Watches. In the Year 1582, the Recorder himſelf, with ſix more of the honeſt Inhabitants, ſtood by St. Clement's Church, to ſee thee Lonthorn hanged out, and to obſerve if he could meet with any of theſe outragious Dealers. About Seven at Night they ſaw young Mr. Robert Cecil, the Lord Treaſurer's Son, (who was after Secretary of State to the Queen) paſs by the Church; and as he paſſed, gave them a civil Salute. At which they ſaid, Lo! you may ſee how a Nobleman's Son can uſe himſelf, and how he putteth off his Cap to poor Men. Our Lord bleſs him. This Paſſage the Recorder wrote in a Letter to his Father, adding, " Your Lordſhip hath Cauſe to thank God
" for ſo virtuous a Child.

IN this Pariſh was the Biſhop of Bath and Wells's Palace in former Times: So it is found in the Biſhop of LONDON's Regiſter of Wills and Teſtaments, Hoſpitium Reverendiſſimi Domini Epiſcopi Bathon. & Wellen. in Parochia Sancti Clementis Dacor.

John Fabian, of St. Clement's Danes, Gent. by his Will, March 16, 1541, bequeaths to his Siſter Martha four Nobles yearly out of his Lands he purchaſed in Ovington in Eſſex, for her Life. Lady Marney to have all his Books of Meditations and his Chronicles. Lady Sperte, his Siſter. The Right Hon. the Earl of Southampton, his Maſter.

THE Care of thoſe that by an annual Succeſſion have the Charge and overſight of this Church, hath continually been ſuch, as upon the leaſt Defect or Failing either in Strength or Beauty, it hath inſtantly been employed, both in Repairs and Adornment.

AND firſt, we begin with that great coſtly Repair in the Year of our Lord God 1608. At which Time, upon ſix and twenty Feet of the Church-yard in Length, and twenty Feet in Breadth, (taken in at the Eaſt End of the Church) they built up a very fair Chancel. The Charge of this Building and Repairing amounting to the Sum of 1000 l. and upwards.

IN the Year of our Lord God 1616, there was laid out upon the Steeple in repairing and inlarging it, with ſome other needful Things in the Church, the Sum of 496 l.

IN the Year of our Lord God 1631, ſome Parts of this Church was again repaired, and the whole Body covered with a fair and beautiful Roof; the Charge of it 40 l.

IN the Year 1632, and in the Year 1633, this Church was within, throughout richly and very worthily beautified. The Charge of it 50 l.

THE Sum of all theſe Repairs, all being at the ſole Coſt of the Pariſhioners, 1586 l. and yet this preſent Church was built in the Year 1680; for under the South Portico is this Inſcription:

This Church was taken down and rebuilt at the Charge of the Pariſhioners of St. Clement's Danes, and by the Liberal Contributions of many of the ſaid Pariſhioners, and ſome others, 1680.

Dr. Gregory Haſcard, then Rector; William Jarman, and Thomas Cox, Church-wardens, both born in this Pariſh.

AND on a carved White Marble Stone on the North Side of the Chancel, (pretty high on the Wall) adorned with two Cupids ſupporting an Anchor with each one Hand, and with the others holding a circular Slip or Liſt, whereon are theſe Words in a large black Character;

TO THE GLORY OF GOD.

And underneath is this Inſcription:

And, for the ſolemn Worſhip of his Holy Name, this old Church being greatly decayed, was taken down in the Year 1680, and rebuilt and finiſhed in the Year 1682, by the pious Aſſiſtance of the Reverend Dr. Gregory Haskard, Rector; and the bountiful Contributions of the Inhabitants of this Pariſh, and ſome other Noble Benefactors.

Sir Chriſtopher Wren, his Majeſty's Surveyor, freely and generouſly beſtowing his great Care and Skill towards the Contriving and Building of it.

Which good Work was all along greatly promoted and encouraged by the Zeal and Diligence of the Veſtry.

SOLI DEO GLORIA.

This

This was erected in the Year 1684, Roger Franklin, and James Deeling, being Church-Wardens.

In the Year 1719, the Steeple was raiſed 85 Feet; and in 1721, the Church-yard was beautifully paved.

THIS Church is built of curious Stone, both ſtrong and beautiful, of the Corinthian Order. The Eaſt End, both of the Church and Chancel, are eliptical, and the Roof is covered with Lead, as are alſo two Cupola's at the Weſt End over the Stair-caſes; and there is a ſpacious circular Portico fronting the Strand, ſupported by ſix Pillars of the Ionick Order.

IT is a very neat ornamental Church, both Inſide and Outſide; for the latter, you have at the Eaſt End a circular Pediment and Shield, with the Anchor; a Cornice round the Church; the Windows are adorned with Cherubims (on the Key-ſtone); the Arches with Enrichments, and the Battlements, and other proper Places, with Vaſes.

IT is not leſs ornamental within the Church. The Roof is camerated, ſupported with neat Wood Columns of the ſaid Corinthian Order; which Roof and the Arches are plentifully enriched with Fret-work, but eſpecially that of the Choir with Cherubims, Palm-branches, Shields, &c. and ſix Pilaſters of the Corinthian Order, painted blue, and the Capitals, &c. gilt with Gold, ſtanding above the Wainſcot: And here is the King's Arms in Fret-work, and alſo painted.

IT is well wainſcotted, and the Pillars caſed up to the Gallery, which extends round the Church, except at the Eaſt End, with handſome Bolection-work in the Fronts.

THE Pulpit is Oak, curiouſly carved and enriched with Cherubims, Cupids, Anchors, and Branches of Palm, Feſtoons, fine Finniering, &c. And it is very uniform and well pewed, and has three Wainſcot inner Door-caſes.

THE Altar-piece is alſo Carved Wainſcot, of the Tuſcan Order, with two Columns; their Entablature and Arched Pediments; under which are three Cherubims in Relievo: Above the Arched is a triangular Pediment, with three Acroters, and (thereon) as many Lamps. The Intercolumns are the Commandments in Gold Letters on Black, and the extra Columns are the Lord's Prayer and Creed in Black on Gold; and the Chancel is all paved with Marble.

THE Apertures are regular and well placed, thoſe on the North anſwering to them on the South Side of the Church.

THE Length of the Church is 96 Feet, Breadth 63, and Height 48. The Altitude of the Steeple, which conſiſts of a Tower (ſtrengthned with Buttreſſes) and Turret, is about 116 Feet; in which Tower are eight noble Bells to ring in Peal.

Memoriæ Sacrum:

Here lieth the Body of Hippocrates de Otthen, nobly deſcended from the noble Family of the Otthens, out of Holſatia, Doctor of Phyſick in the Univerſity of Montpeliers, in France, and moſt worthily incorporated in the Univerſity of Oxford. After his firſt coming into England with his Father (who was the Emperor's Phyſician, and ſent for over by Queen Elizabeth) he was deſired by the Earl of Leiceſter himſelf, to pertain unto him, in whoſe Service (for many Years, both at home and abroad in the Low Countries, with his Lord) he performed ſuch worthy Parts, as well in his own Faculty, as being imployed in other laudable Services, that her Majeſty and the State took eſpecial Note of his Worth. After the Deceaſe of the Earl, he was in the ſame Eſteem and Regard with the Earl of Eſſex, and by her Majeſty commanded to attend upon him in the Wars of France, and afterwards in his proſperous Voyage to Cadiz. Returning home (hoping to retire himſelf to his own Practice, and a more private Life) he was again commanded to go (as Phyſician in Service into Ireland (with the Lord Montjoy (afterwards Earl of Devonſhire) her Majeſty's Lieutenant in that Kingdom. But, returning again into England with his Lord, in the beginning of his Majeſty's Reign, he continued not long, but went as Phyſician with the Earl of Hartford, his Majeſty's Ambaſſador unto the Archduke of Auſtria and Burgundy, in that Honourable Employment: And ſo returning again into England, he ſpent the Reſidue of his Years with his dear and moſt virtuous Wife, Miſtreſs Dorothy Drew, Daughter to Maſter Roger Drew of Denſworth in Suſſex, Eſq; in great Bliſs and Happineſs: And being a moſt zealous and penitent Chriſtian, full of Years, and (unto his laſt Gaſp) of perfect Memory, he ended his Pilgrimage here on Earth; and with Alacrity of Spirit ſurrendred his Soul into the Hands of his Creator, the 13 of November, 1611, For whoſe Love and Memory, his late Wife (the now Lady and Wife unto Sir Stephen Thornhurſt of Kent, (the moſt worthy and valorous Knight) hath cauſed this Monument to be erected, Amoris ergo P. UPON a fair Marble Stone in the Middle Iſle are the following Verſes:

William Saint Albone ſleeps at reſt, within this Marble Stone,
Whoſe Corps in Clay, and Soul well bleſt deſerves diſpraiſe of none;
He had ſuch Feats, ſo full of Fruits
ſo prompt with Word and Pen,
So skilful in his courtly Suits,
So dear a Friend to Men,
So ripe to rule the Works of Fame
ſo tempering hot and cold,
His Deeds deſerve that his good Name were ſiphered here in Gold.

On another Stone near the former is this Inſcription :

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth late Wife of George Dalton, Eſq; who died the ſecond Day of January, 1605, and hath left Iſſue of her Body to her Husband, Maximilian and Thomas.

Yea though I ſhould walk through the Valley of the Shadow of Death, I will fear no Evil, for thou art with me; thy Rod and thy Staff they comfort me.

Jeſus Chriſt is my Light and my Salvation, whom then ſhall I fear? God is the Strength of my Life, of whom then ſhall I be afraid?

A fair Stone in the Middle Iſle, near the Chancel, having this Inſcription :

A handſome Monument on the Wall, in the South Iſle with this Inſcription :

Here by lieth buried the Body of Edward Price, Gentleman, and of Edward, his only Son, who for the Space of twenty four Years, lived in this Pariſh, wherein God ſo bleſſed him, that of his good and charitable Devotion, he hath given three Pounds a Year for ever out of his free Land, called the Blue Lyon in the ſaid Pariſh, to be beſtowed in Sea Coals, and to be diſtributed freely to the Poor by the Church-Wardens. And alſo twenty Pounds for ever to be lent to two poor young Houſholders gratis, from two Years to two Years, ten Pounds a-piece.

He departed this Life the 8th of March, 1605.

On the ſame Tomb, under that above, is this written :

This Tomb was erected at the Charge of Elizabeth, the Wife of Henry Baten, Eſq; one of his Majeſty's Sergeants at Arms, and late Wife of Edward Price, deceaſed; who of her goodly Diſpoſition, hath given twenty Shillings a Year for ever to the Preacher of this Pariſh, to be paid out of her Houſe called the Three Cups next adjoining on the Weſt Side of the ſame Blue Lyon, only that he ſhall make Recital hereof at two ſeveral Sermons yearly; one on the Sunday before Chriſtmas Day, and the other on the Sunday before Midſummer Day. And the ſaid Elizabeth alſo, of her godly Love and Zeal to the Church, hath given a Flagon Pot, Silver and Gilt, weighing thirty eight Ounces and a half, for the Service of the Communion Table, to remain for ever; and three Pounds to the Poor, to be diſtributed at her Funeral, and five Pounds to the Poor of Kinton in Derbyſhire, where ſhe was born; ſhe departed the 10th of November, 1616.

A very fair Glaſs Table, hanging on a Pillar in the South Iſle, in which there is the Figure of a Gentlewoman all in Black, with a gilt Book in her Hand, laid as upon her Tomb; over her Head an Angel, over her, at the Feet, Death with a Dart and Hour-Glaſs.

Over her, adjoining to a very fair Coat, encompaſs'd with a Laurel Wreath, theſe Words :

Filius Ararhnes Cyllenii, Factor Paterque Tonaquillæ.

Under her :

Secundo Gulielmo Forſet Armigero : Poſtremo Gulielmo Bridges, interioris Templi LONDON Armigero : Vita ſua virtute clara, omnibuſque naturæ dotibus eximie prædita. Cui (poſt laudibilis vitæ ſtadium, nitentemque in aulam migrationem) E. G. defunctæ proles, officioſa Pietate (ut decet) Noviſſimum hoc Parentale Munuſculum exolvit.

Obiit 16 Maii, Anno a partu Virginis ſalutifero, 1598, Annoque Ætatis ſuæ 45.

On the South Side of the Communion-Table is a ſmall Monument for Dr. Duxon, formerly Rector of this Church; but placed at ſuch an Height that the Inſcription is out of Sight.

On the oppoſite, that is, the North Side, is another Inſcription; but placed ſo high as not to be read; only there is the Anchor, which is the Arms of the Pariſh, and Glory be to God viſible, ſo that it ſeems to be a Memorial of ſome charitable Benefactor.

On a Pillar in the Body of the Church is a Monument for one Tatham, Surgeon.

Divers flat Stones laid over Perſons deceaſed.

Under

Under the Belfrey are two ordinary Stones:

One for Walter Bowyer, Pewterer, and Walter and Charles, his Sons, and Anne, his Wife; he departed 1691.

The other for Elizabeth, Daughter of Charles Alcock, of Clonmel in Ireland, 1699.

Upon a Braſs Plate fixt to a Pavement in the the Middle Iſle an Inſcription for Elizabeth, Wife of Thomas Brown, died 25 Octob. 1705. aged 23.

Temple-bar* Ward, Sheer-lane Ward, Drury-lane Ward, and Holy-well Ward: The Lower Liberty is in the Dutchy of Savoy, and contains alſo four Wards, viz. Royal Ward, Church Ward, Middle Ward, and Savoy Ward.

IN this Pariſh are the three following Inns of Chancery, Lyon's-Inn, New-Inn, Clement's-Inn.

Lyon's-Inn, is an Inn of Chancery, ſituated on the Southerly ſide of Wytch-ſtreet, it has been ſuch an Inn ſince Anno 1420, or ſooner. It is governed governed by a Treaſurer, and 12 Antients; thoſe of this Houſe are three Weeks in Michaelmas Term; other Terms two in Commons, and pay 5 s. for the reading Weeks, for others 2 s. 6 d. Here are Mootings once in four Terms, and they ſell their Chambers for one or two Lives.

Their Armorial Enſigns are, Chequy Or and Azure, a Lyon Rampant Sable. They have a handſome Hall, built in the Year 1700.

New-Inn, an Inn of Chancery, belonging to the Middle-Temple, and ſituated on the North ſide of Witch-ſtreet, to which Place this Society, removed from Sea-Coal-Lane, (as Tradition tells us) to be, for their Conveniency, nearer to the other Inns of Court and Chancery.

This was, before their Removal hither, a common Hoſtery, or Inn, known by the Sign of the Bleſſed Virgin, and was procured from Sir John Fineux, ſometime Lord Chief Juſtice of England, for the Rent of 6 l. per Annum. And they Tenants at their own Will.

This Society is governed by a Treaſurer and 12 Antients, the Members are to be in Commons, in their Gowns and Caps, (as the other Inns) one Week in every Term, or pay if not there.

They ſell Chambers for one Life, and have Mootings once or twice a Term.

Their Armonial Enſigns are, Vert, a Flower-Pot Argent. To this Inn are pleaſant Walks and Gardens, and the North-eaſtwardly Part joins to Clement's-Inn; from which it is ſeparated by a handſome Iron Gate, ſhut up a Nights, which was placed here Anno 1723.

Clement's-Inn, an Inn of Chancery, ſituated near, tho' ſomewhat Northward from St. Clement's Church, not ſo called from the Well, but both the Church, Inn, and Well from the Pope, to whom the Church was dedicated. Here Students of the Law had their Inn, or Lodgings, about Anno 1478. It is ſaid to have deſcended to the Earls of Clare, from Sir William Hollis, Lord Mayor of LONDON, Anno 1539, who had it from one Cantlow's, about the Year 1528.

Here is a Hall and many handſome Chambers, built round three Courts, through which is a Paſſage from St. Clement's Church to Clare-market, in the Day time, when the Gates are open.

It is governed by one Principal, and four Antients. The Gentlemen are a Fortnight in Commons every Term, and longer in Michaelmas Term, and pay 5 s. per Week, though abſent; they have Mootings ſometimes twice a Term.

Their Armorial Enſigns are, Argent, an Anchor (without a Stock) in pale Proper, and a C. Sable paſſing through the middle.

The PARISH of St. JOHN the Evangeliſt, in Weſtminſter.

THE Church here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated, and Weſtminſter is added, to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches, dedicated to the ſame Saint. It is ſituated on the Weſt ſide of Mill-bank, near the Horſe-ferry, in the City of Weſtminſter.

It was founded in the Year 1721, and finiſhed in the Year 1728.

This Building, ſays the Author of the Critical Review, "Is in a very particular Taſte, and has "a great Mixture of Beauty and Caprice in it: "There are many Parts of it, which I approve, "and many more which I condemn: It is, to be "ſure, a fatal Miſtake, to endeavour at an Ex-"cellence, and then err ſo wide of the Mark, "as to ſtumble on a Deformity. All falſe Or-"naments become Faults immediately, and only "ſerve to make an Abſurdity more conſpicuous. "If the Architect of this Pile had once thought "of this Rule, I am perſuaded he would have "been abundantly more chaſte in his Compoſi-"tions, and cut his four Towers, like thoſe of "Babel, off in the Middle.

The Rector is the Reverend Mr. John Villa, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Fitzgerald.

Prayers are on Wedneſday's, Friday's, and Holidays, about 11 o'Clock in the Morning, and about three in the Afternoon. Here is no Organ, and but two Bells.

The Veſtry is ſelect.

Number of Houſes are about 1600.

In theſe Fields there is an Hoſpital called the Green Coats Hoſpital, erected by King Charles I. but endowed by King Charles II. for 25 Boys and ſix Girls, with a School-Maſter to teach them.

ADJOINING to this Hoſpital is Bridewel; a Place for the Correction of ſuch idle and looſe Livers, as are taken up within this Liberty of Weſtminſter, and thither ſent by the Juſtices of the Peace for Correction; which is Whipping, and beating of Hemp, (a Puniſhment very well ſuited to Idleneſs;) and are thence diſcharged by Order of the Juſtices, as they in their Wiſdom find Occaſion. The Keeper of this Bridewel is Mr. Reading.

IN Tothill-fields, which is a large ſpacious Place, there are certain Peſt-Houſes, now made Uſe of by 12 poor Men and their Wives, as long as it ſhall pleaſe God to keep us from the Plague. Theſe Peſt-Houſes are built near the Meads, as remote from People.

Stretton-grounds, a good, handſome, long, well built and inhabited Street, which runs up to Tothill-fields, almoſt againſt the new Work-Houſe, for employing poor People; and hath on the Weſt a Paſſage into the new Artillery-ground, a pretty large Incloſure, made Uſe of by thoſe that delight in Military Exerciſes.

Pear-ſtreet, narrow and ſhort, which comes out of Stretton-grounds, and falls into Duck-lane, which is ſeated betwixt Orchard-ſtreet and Peter-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account.

Pye-ſtreet lieth between Duck-lane and great St. Anne's-lane, being better built than inhabited.

New Pye-ſtreet, is a Paſſage from Old-Pye-ſtreet into Orchard-ſtreet, a pretty handſome, new built Place.

Perkin's-rents, comes out of Pye-ſtreet, and falls into Peter-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account.

Little St. Anne's-lane lies between Peter-ſtreet and Old Pye-ſtreet; but ordinarily built and inhabited: Out of this Lane is a narrow and long Paſſage into Great St. Anne's-lane, called Alding's-alley.

Great St. Anne's-lane, a pretty handſome, well built, and inhabited Place.

Orchard-ſtreet, very long, with good Buildings, which are well inhabited: On the North Side is a Place called the New Way, which has Houſes on the Weſt Side, the Eaſt being Sir Robert Pye's Garden Wall.

New Tothill-ſtreet, a good handſome well built Place, which lies betwixt Orchard-ſtreet and Old Tothill-ſtreet.

Dacre's-ſtreet, but ſhort, comes out of Chapel-ſtreet, and falls into New Tothill-ſtreet: On the South Side is a Place called Prince Rupert's Stables, which has a Paſſage into Orchard-ſtreet, now converted into a Brewhouſe.

Peter-ſtreet, very long, and indifferent broad, eſpecially that Part next to Tothill-fields, from which it paſſes by Duck-lane, and falls into Wood-ſtreet, and thence to the Mill-bank; and on the South Side it receives theſe Places, viz. Horn-court, Tomkins's-yard, Moor's-yard, and Laundrey's-alley; all of ordinary Account.

THE Bowling-alley falls into Great Dean's-alley, in the North: It is well built and inhabited; in which are Oliver's-yard, and a Place called Back-alley, both ordinary.

Maſham-ſtreet, long and ſtreight, with good Buildings well inhabited; it comes out of Peter-ſtreet, and falls into the Road which leads to the Horſe-ferry.

Tufton-ſtreet, a good, large, and open Place, having on the Eaſt Side a Row of well built Houſes, but the Weſt Side, as yet is unbuilt: In this Street is Benet's-yard, very ordinary.

Market-ſtreet, falls into the Mill-bank, and is but ordinary.

Vine-ſtreet, a pretty handſome open Place, which alſo falls into Mill-bank: On the South Side is Campaine-alley, which goes into Market-ſtreet.

Wood-ſtreet, very narrow, with ordinary Houſes, eſpecially on the North Side, being old boarded Hovels ready to fall, and wants new building; this Street alſo falls into the Mill-bank.

College-ſtreet, formerly called the Dead-wall, as lying againſt the Wall of the College-Garden, and Lindſey Garden: It has Buildings only on the South Side, which are pretty good, the North Side being the Wall: In this Street is Pipe's-ground, which has, at preſent, a few Houſes built, the reſt lying waſte: Here is alſo Brick-court, an indifferent Place.

THE Mill-bank, a very long Place, which begins by Lindſey Houſe, or rather by the Old Palace-yard, and runs up to Peterborough Houſe, whith is the fartheſt Houſe: The Part from againſt College-ſtreet to the Horſe-ferry, a good Row of Buildings on the Eaſt Side next to the Thames, which is moſt taken up with large Woodmongers Yards and Brewhouſes; and here is a Waterhouſe which ſerves this End of the Town: The North is but ordinary, except one or two Houſes by the End of College-ſtreet; and that Part beyond the Horſe-ferry, has a very good Row of Houſes, much inhabited by Gentry, by Reaſon of the pleaſant Situation and Proſpect of the Thames: The Houſe at the utmoſt Extremity of the City of Weſtminſter, was formerly called Peterborough Houſe, belonging then to the Earl of Peterborough; it is now rebuilt in a handſom Manner, and is in the Poſſeſſion of Sir Robert Groſvenor, Bart.

OF THE

City of LONDON, &c.

BOOK VI.

CHAP. I.

Of the SUBURBS without the WALLS and LIBERTIES.

HAVING ſpoken of this City, the Original, the Increaſe, the Walls, Ditch, Caſtles, Towers, Bridges, the Schools and Houſes of Learning; and their publick Charitable Foundations. And after that, how the ſame City is divided into Parts and Wards; and how the ſame are bounded; and what Monuments of Antiquity, or Ornaments of Building are in every of them: As alſo in the Borough of Southwark. We laſtly come to ſpeak briefly of the Suburbs, as well without the Gates and Walls, as without the Liberties, and of the Monuments in them.

CONCERNING the Eſtate of the Suburbs of this City, in the Reign of King Henry II. Fitz Stephen hath theſe Words: "Upwards on the "Weſt (ſaith he) is the King's Palace, which "is an incomparable Building, riſing with a "Vawmure and Bulwark, aloft upon the River, "two Miles from the Wall of the City, but "yet conjoined with a continual Suburb. On all "Sides, without the Houſes of the Suburbs, are "the Citizens Gardens and Orchards, planted "with Trees, both large, ſightly, and adjoining "together. On the North Side are Paſtures "and plain Meadows, with Brooks running "through them, turning Mater-mills, with a "pleaſant Noiſe. Not far off is a great Foreſt, "a well wooded Chaſe, having good Covert for "Harts, Bucks, Does, Boars, and wild Bulls. "The Corn Fields are not of a hungry ſandy "Mould; but as the fruitful Fields of Aſia, "yielding plentiful Increaſe, and filling the Barns "with Corn. There are near LONDON, "on the North Side, eſpecial Wells in the Suburbs, ſweet, wholſome and clear. Amongſt "which, Holywell, Clerkenwell, and St. Clement's Well, are moſt famous, and moſt frequented by Scholars and Youths of the City "in Summer Evenings, when they walk forth to "take the Air.

THUS far out of Fitz Stephen, for the Suburbs at that Time.

AND here, before we enter in theſe Suburbs, and paſs along through at the particular Places and Streets therein, it may be worth our while to ſtay a little, and take ſome Notice in general, both of the Inhabitants, and the multiplied Buildings.

IN

IN the Days of Queen Elizabeth, in that Part of her Reign that is upwards of 140 or 150 Years ago, when LONDON began to be very populous, there was a Confluence hither out of the Countries, of ſuch Perſons as were of the poorer Sort of Trades and Occupations: Who, becauſe they could not exerciſe them within the Juriſdiction of the City, followed them here, and within the Compaſs of three or four Miles of the City. By Reaſon of theſe Tradeſmen, bad Commodities were made and vended, to the wronging of the People. They made counterfeit Indigo, Musk, Saffron, Cochineal, Nutmegs, Wax, Steel, and other Commodities: But they were but Bunglers at their Buſineſs. They took Abundance of Apprentices, and kept them not their full Time, according to Law; but ſuffered them in a few Years to be out of their Times; whereby, few became ſufficient Workmen: And they that were ſufficient had ſo many Servants, that Numbers of Families were increaſed in the Suburbs and elſewhere. Whence (beſides that the Sickneſs was often increaſed) the Suburbs were abuſed by falſe and inſufficient Wares, and Deceits were practiſed by them; having none appointed to overſee them and their Works: For they belonged to none of the Companies of LONDON; and ſo were under no Controul or Reſtraint.

THIS at length cauſed a Petition to be put up to King James I. in the Year 1609, by the Tradeſmen and Artificers of LONDON, who ſet forth, "That there were ſpecial Laws and "Statutes for Strangers inhabiting near the City, "being no Freemen; yet thoſe Laws had not "been put in Execution, by Reaſon, that no "ſpecial Man had been appointed to take the "Overſight of it. And by Reaſon no good Government had been uſed, or Reſtraint made, "there had repaired, and daily did repair from "all Parts, Men of divers Trades and Sciences, "which had not ſerved any Apprenticeſhip, nor "had Skill in their Trades; and ſhrouded themſelves near the City, keeping Shops and uſing "Trades openly, as well as privately. Thereby "hurting the antient Inhabitants which dwelt "near the City, and had duly ſerved Apprenticeſhips, and the Companies of the ſaid City, and "abuſed the Subjects by bad Wares and Works, "increaſing Multitudes of Poor, and cauſing "great Scarcity.

"THEY prayed therefore, that the King "would grant unto Sir Thomas Chaloner, Sir William Wade, Sir Walter Cope, and Sir Nicholas Luſher, (whom they judged very fit Men "for this Employment,) and to their ſufficient "Deputies and Aſſigns, to erect and appoint "one, or more general Halls for all the ſaid "Tradeſmen and Artificers, that ſhould inhabit "the Suburbs, or within ten Miles of it; and "to authorize them, or any two or more of "them to call before them all ſuch as took upon "them to uſe any Art, Myſtery or Science, and "were not Freemen of the City and of ſome "Company. And for the better ordering them, "to eſtabliſh Yearly certain Officers over every Trade, Science and Myſtery, to have Care "and overſight of the Reſidue of that Trade, "with ſuch and like Orders, as thoſe of the "like Companies within the City of LONDON were ſubject to; and the Obſtinate to "be made ſubject to Impriſonment. And that "it might be lawful for the ſaid four Governors "and their Aſſigns, to impoſe upon them the "Penalties of ſuch Laws and Ordinances as in "ſuch Caſes were provided for Puniſhment of "Offenders. And that towards the Governor's "Pains, Charges and Travel in eſtabliſhing them "in an orderly Government, and having Care of "the Continuance of the ſame, it might be lawful for them to take of every Perſon to be ſo "ſettled under Government, ſuch ordinary Fees "and Duties, as by a general Conſent ſhould be "thought fit, according to the Uſe of the City "of LONDON.

THE Conſideration of this the King committed to certain Perſons, which were his Commiſſioners for Suits, viz. Sir Julius Cæſar, Sir Francis Bacon, Sir Thomas Parry, Sir Walter Cope, Sir Clement Edmonds, and others. And they hereupon directed their Letters to ſome Gentlemen of Middleſex, Surrey, and Eſſex, and to certain Aldermen of LONDON, viz. Sir Thomas Benet, Sir Henry Roe, Sir John Swinnerton, Henry Finch, John Mitchel, Edward Barkham, and George Smithes. Theſe Aldermen April 30, 1610, gave up a Certificate, upon a Reference given by thoſe his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, concerning the Government of the Tradeſmen inhabiting the Suburbs and other Places near the City. The Import was, That they had called the Parties before them, and examined the Cauſes of the Petition, and found that there were many ſuch Abuſes as were complained of. And they conceived it very needful, that ſome good Order might be eſtabliſhed for the Preſervation of lawful and neceſſary Trades; and that ſome ſevere Puniſhment might be inflicted upon ſuch as made falſe and counterfeit Wares; and that an Order might be eſtabliſhed for reſtraining the great Number of People which daily came from other Places. And that in their Opinion it was fit that the Tradeſmen in the Suburbs near adjoining might be drawn under, and be governed by the Companies in the City of LONDON, as with whom they have moſt Affinity. And had ſuch Orders, as well for the Search of their Wares, and Number of Apprentices, as were obſerved in the Companies in the City of LONDON: And that ſome ſpecial Men of every Trade might be yearly appointed out of, and by thoſe Companies to ſearch Wares, and to ſee ſuch Orders performed as ſhould be found convenient and needful for the ſaid Tradeſmen, upon ſuch Penalties as were inflicted upon Offenders, in the ſeveral Companies of LONDON. That both Freemen of the City, and thoſe that inhabited near the City, might live in their Callings to the Good of the Commonwealth. And that ſuch ordinary Duties and Quarteridge, Search and Fines for Offences as were paid by the Freemen of the City, might likewiſe be paid by them to the Companies of LONDON, to whom they ſhould be joined.

AND for as much as the Power and Authority of the City did not extend to the Maſters and Wardens of every Company, to whoſe Care and Government any of the ſaid Tradeſmen ſhould be joined, for their better Government, with two or more of every Company of the Tradeſmen, and to make Search and reform many of theſe Abuſes otherwiſe than in the ſaid City of LONDON, they conceived not how theſe Abuſes might be reformed unleſs his Majeſty ſhould be graciouſly pleaſed to give Authority to the ſaid Maſters, Wardens and others to be appointed, to reform the ſaid Abuſes, to make Search within five Miles, or ſo many Miles of the City, as to his Majeſty ſhould ſeem fit, to have the ſaid Courſe of Reformation to extend. And that this Search might be made twice every Year, and the Offender to be puniſhed by Fine or Mulct. And that the ſaid Maſter and Wardens of every Company for their Neglect and Miſcarriage in their Duties be puniſhed forty Shillings, to be levied by Aid and Aſſiſtance of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being.

THIS

This was the whole of the Opinion given in by the Aldermen of LONDON upon this Buſineſs of the Tradeſmen in the Suburbs, referred to them by the Commiſſioners.

The ſaid Commiſſioners did again deſire the Opinion of the Gentlemen of Middleſex, Surrey, and Eſſex, in this Matter. And for the laſt named County, in May, Anno 1611, they directed their Letters to Sir Michael Hicks, Sir William Rider and Mr. Blunt, praying them to enter into a Conſideration of the whole Matter, and of the Circumſtances thereof and to give the Commiſſioners a Meeting at a Day appointed, viz. May the 23d, at the Exchequer-Chamber, that with Conference with them and ſome of the Aldermen, ſome Courſe might be taken as ſhould be thought fit.

What farther became of this Matter is uncertain; but whether it was the Encouragement theſe petty Traders and Artificers met with, or the Multitude of the meaner Sort of People, that was the Cauſe, but great Numbers of Edifices were erected in the Suburbs, where before were only Fields and void Places, eſpecially on the Eaſt Parts of the City. This was at length much complained of, inſomuch that in the Year 1580, it was thought meet to take ſome Courſe to ſtop this by the Queen's Proclamation.

Many Inconveniencies are ſaid there to be occaſioned by daily Acceſs of People thither, as that the City could ſcarcely be well governed, by Reaſon of ſuch Multitudes flocking to live there, by the old Government, without deviſing of new Juriſdictions and Officers. It was thought alſo to increaſe a great Dearneſs of Proviſions, there being hardly ſufficient Victuals and Food and other Neceſſaries for Man's Life, to be had for reaſonable Prices, ſo many were ready to conſume the Proviſions brought in. It was alſo thought to tend to the rendering the City more ſickly, and to bring into it a Mortality; the Preſervation of the People in Health, ſeeming impoſſible to continue where ſuch great Numbers were brought to dwell in ſmall Rooms; whereof a great Part were very poor, and ſuch as muſt live on begging, or worſe Means; and they heaped up together, and in a ſort ſmothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one Houſe; and the Plague, or popular Sickneſs, when that might happen in the City, would, by the Contiguity of the Buildings, ſpread and invade the whole City and Confines; and ſo endanger the Queen's own Life, and the ſpreading of a Mortality over the whole Nation.

Therefore the Queen, to prevent this, and moved hereunto by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and other grave and wiſe Men in and about the City, commanded all Perſons to deſiſt and forbear from any new Buildings within three Miles from any of the Gates of the City; and to forbear from letting or ſetting, or ſuffering any more Families than one only, to be placed in any Houſe. And ſhe charged the Lord Mayor, and all other Officers having Authority in the ſame, Juſtices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Juriſdiction of the Lord Mayor, to forſee that no Perſon began to prepare any Foundation for any new Houſe; and to be prohibited and reſtrained ſo to do; but that the Perſon attempting the contrary, and all the Workmen be committed to cloſe Priſon, there to remain without Bail until they found good Sureties, that they ſhall not at any Time attempt the like: And to ſeize all Manner of Stuff brought to the Place where ſuch Building ſhall be intended; and, for the preventing this, none were to receive Inmates.

The whole Proclamation was as follows:

THE Queen's Majeſty perceiving the State of the City of LONDON (being antiently termed her Chamber) and the Suburbs and Confines thereof to increaſe by daily Acceſs of People to inhabit in the ſame, in ſuch ample Sort as thereby many Inconveniences are ſeen already; but many greater of Neceſſity like to follow: Being ſuch as her Majeſty cannot neglect to remedy, having the principal Care under Almighty God to foreſee aforehand to have her People in ſuch a City and Confines, not only well governed by ordinary Juſtice, to ſerve God, and obey her Majeſty; which by Reaſon of ſuch Multitudes lately increaſed, can hardly be done, without Device of mo new Juriſdictions and Officers for that Purpoſe, but to be alſo provided of Suſtentation of Victual, Food and other like Neceſſaries for Man's Life, upon reaſonable Prizes, without which no City can long continue. And finally, to the Preſervation of her People in Health; which may ſeem impoſſible to continue, though preſently by God's Goodneſs the ſame is perceived to be in better Eſtate univerſally, than hath been in Man's Memory: Yet where there are ſuch great Multitudes of People brought to inhabit in ſmall Rooms; whereof a great Part are ſeen very poor; yea, ſuch as muſt live of begging, or by worſe Means: And they heaped up together, and in a Sort ſmothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one Houſe or ſmall Tenement; it muſt needs follow, if any Plague or popular Sickneſs ſhould by God's Permiſſion enter among thoſe Multitudes, that the ſame would not only ſpread it ſelf and invade the whole City and Confines, as great Mortality ſhould enſue the ſame, where her Majeſty's Perſonal Preſence is many times required; beſides the great Confluence of People from all Places of the Realm by reaſon of the ordinary Termes for Juſtice there holden; but would be alſo diſperſed through all other Parts of the Realm, to the manifeſt Danger of the whole Body thereof. Out of which neither her Majeſty's own Perſon can be (but by God's ſpecial Ordinance) exempted, nor any other, whatſoever they be.

For Remedy whereof, as Time may now ſerve, until by ſome further good Order to be had in Parliament, or otherwiſe, the ſame may be remedied, her Majeſty, by good and deliberate Advice of her Council; and being alſo thereto much moved by the conſiderate Opinions of the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and other the grave, wiſe Men in and about the City, doth charge and ſtraitly command all Perſons of what Quality ſoever they be, to deſiſt and forbear from any new Buildings of any new Houſe or Tenement within three Miles of any of the Gates of the ſaid City, to ſerve for Habitation or Lodging for any Perſon, where no former Houſe hath been known to have been in Memory of ſuch as are now living: And alſo to forbear from letting or ſetting, or ſuffering any more Families than one only, to be placed, or to inhabit from henceforth in any Houſe that heretofore hath been inhabited.

And for ſo univerſal a Benefit to the whole Body of the Realm, for whoſe Reſpects all particular Perſons are bound by God's Laws and Man's to forbear from their particular and extraordinary Lucre, ſhe ſtraitly chargeth the Lord Maior and all other Officers, having Authority in the ſame; and alſo all Juſtices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Juriſdiction of the Lord Maior; to foreſee that no Perſon do begin to prepare any Foundation for any new Houſe, Tenement, but that they be prohibited and reſtrained ſo to do. And both the Perſon that ſhall ſo attempt to the contrary, and all Manner of Workmen that ſhall, after Warning given, continue in any ſuch Work, tending to ſuch new Building, to be committed to cloſe Priſon: And there to remain without Bail until they ſhall find good Sureties, with Bonds for reaſonable Sums of Mony, that they ſhall not at any Time attempt the like, &c. And further, the ſaid Officers ſhall ſeize all Manner of Stuff ſo (after Warning given) brought to the Place, where ſuch new Building ſhall be intended.

And for the avoiding of Multitudes of Families heaped up in one dwelling Houſe, and for the converting of any one Houſe into Multitudes, for Dwelling or Victualling Places, the ſaid Lord Maior, and all other Officers in their ſeveral Liberties ſhall commit any ſuch Perſons, giving cauſe of Offence, to cloſe Priſon. And for the Offences in this Part of Increaſe of many Indwellers, or as they be commonly termed Inmates or Underſitters, which have been ſuffered within theſe ſeven Years, contrary to the good, antient Laws and Cuſtoms of the City, the ſaid Lord Maior, and all other the Officers ſhall ſpeedily cauſe to be redreſt in their ordinary Courts Law-Days, between this and the Feaſt of All-Saints next. Within which Time ſuch Underſitters, or Inmates may provide themſelves other Places abroad in the Realm; where many Houſes reſt uninhabited, to the Decay of divers antient good Boroughs and Towns, &c. Given at Noneſuch, the 7th of July, 1580, in the 22d Year of her Majeſty's Reign.

THIS Proclamation could not hinder this ſtrong Propenſion in the People towards building new Houſes. So that in the Year 1583, notice was taken anew of it; and that in ſome very publick manner, and ſome Perſon puniſh'd for it, as it ſeems, in the Star-Chamber: For both the Lord Treaſurer of England made a Speech againſt it, and Serjeant Fleetwood the Recorder made another learned one. The former mentioned the Queen's Proclamation, and how it was grounded upon a great number of Caſes, to avoid great Inconveniences; partly for Preſervation of her Majeſty's Perſon; for Suſtentation of her Subjects with Victuals; for Preſervation from the Plague. The Offences were evident; firſt, In the Officers that have ſuffered them. The Example was needful, to puniſh the Offenders. That this was her Majeſty's own Complaint. And that it was her ſpecial Command to puniſh the Offenders, to remedy the Offences. Theſe Buildings were the Complaint of all Officers [by reaſon of many Miſdemeanors:] Occaſioned the encreaſe of the Plague; created a Trouble in governing ſuch Multitudes; a dearth of Victuals; multiplying of Beggars, and Inability to relieve them: An increaſe of Artizans in number more than could live together: Impoveriſhing of other Cities for lack of Inhabitants. It made lack of Air, lack of room to walk, to ſhoot, &c. And increaſe of People to rob the Queen's Cuſtoms. There were the Heads of the Lord Treaſurer's Speech.

The Speech of the other Lawyer, the Recorder, arguing learnedly in point of Law, ran to this Tenor: "That it was an antient Principle "in Law, that Tenant in Fee Simple of Lands "and Tenements, may either build or pull "down at his free Will. And yet is the ſame "Principle qualified by a Rule of the Common "Law; the which is, Sic utere tui, ut alienum "non lædas. i. e. So uſe your own, that you "hurt not another. That among the magnalia "Coronæ. there were no ſuch Prerogatives as are "Leges Foreſtæ (i e. the Laws of the Foreſt. "By the Foreſt Laws, if a Man build any Houſe "whatſoever within the Foreſt, without the "King's Licenſe, or the Licenſe of the Lord of "the Foreſt; the ſame being preſented at the "Swaine Mote, and opened at the Juſtice Seat, "may juſtly be defaced by due Courſe of Law, "and pulled down, and the Builder impriſoned, "and ranſomed for his Treſpaſs. Here ye ſee "that Tenant in Fee Simple may not deal with "his Lands as he liſts, but Secundum Leges & "Conſuetudines Locorum, i. e. according to the "Laws and Cuſtoms of Places. I do remember, "that in the Time of Edward I. the Lords of "the Parliament, being moved by the King to "deviſe a Law, that the King might have Power "to inhibit the bearing Armour among his Subjects; the Parliament concluded that it was not "meet to eſtabliſh any ſuch Law; for that it "was a Prerogative inſeparable from the Crown; "and the King, by his Prerogative Law might "take ſuch Direction therein, as by his Wiſdom "he ſhould think convenient. If this Prerogative Law were executed, then ſhould we not "daily meet ſuch an infinite Number of Sword-"Bearers within this City of LONDON, and "Weſtminſter-hall. And yet there be ſuch as "have not ſtuck to ſay, that neither the Queen's "Highneſs could by any Law, either inhibit "Building, or the Portage of Armour.

"By the Records of the Pipe it appeareth, "that we of LONDON, do pay for the City "a Fee-farm, and that we are Tenants in Fee-"farm, of the Room-ground, viz. of ſuch Places "as Smithfield is, and of all the Streets, and ſuch "like Places in LONDON; yea, and alſo of "London-bridge itſelf: And therefore we being "Tenants in Fee may pluck down, alter, change "and deface the Walls, the Ditches, the Gates, "the Bulwarks, the Poſterns, the Room Lands, "the Streets, the Thames Banks, and the Bridge "itſelf. This is not true; for, that, the Laws "of the Crown have ſuch Intereſt over the City "of LONDON, and over all the Members "thereof, that we may do none of theſe Things "without the Licence of the Crown: As ap-"pears in Anno quinto of Henry VII. wherein "Licence was given to the Executors of Whit-"tington to pluck down, and newly to re-edify "the Priſon-Houſe in Newgate.

"IN LONDON, Houſes are to be pulled "down with Engines, Hooks, and Ladders, pro-"vided for this purpoſe. And this is by the "Common Laws of the Realm; and this is for "avoiding of the Rage of Fire.

"IN LONDON, by the Law for avoiding "of Inconveniences, where the Plague is in any "Houſe, the Inhabitants thereof are to be ſhut "up within the Houſe: And this juſtifiable by "Law.

"IN LONDON, by the Law, no Man "may build, or make a Reredorſe for the Fire of "Charcoals within any Houſe, but he ſhall be "impriſoned and fined; and alſo the Reredorſe "to be defaced.

IN LONDON, Tallow-Chandlers may not "melt their Tallow in their own dwelling "Houſes, for annoying of their Neighbours.

"IN LONDON, Flaxwives, for fear of "Fire; Coriers for the Stynche; Inholders, cum ſuis finis, [i. e. with their Dunges] are inhibited. "And this is by the Common Law, and not by "any private Cuſtom.

"Aſſemblies of Markets, of Faires, of Courts, "unlawfully uſurped, are puniſhable, except "they have the King's Charters for the ſame.

"A fortiori, 'tmuſt needs be, that to erect "new Buildings, and to make new Streets with "Houſing, may not be ſuffered without Licence "of the Queen. And eſpecially where the ſame "doth tend to the Overthrow of the City of LONDON,

" LONDON, being the chief Chamber of the " Imperial Crown.

" St. Myghels-lane, in Lyme-ſtreet, was ſtopt " and mured up. And the Inhabitants there " dwelling, were driven to ſeek Houſes elſe- " where: For, Cauſe, Felons and Harlots were " there received in the Night Seaſon.

" So was the Lane from Bevys Marks unto " Aldgate, between Chriſt's-church and the " Walls of LONDON, ſhut up for the ſame " Cauſe; and ſo have been divers other Lanes " within LONDON; and all by the King's " Commandment.

" What can be a freer Thing than the Body " of a Freeman? And yet by the Law, if he be " a Lazar, by the Queen's Writ de Leproſo remo- " vendo, he ſhall be removed from his Dwelling- " houſe, unto a Lazar-houſe, out of the City.

" By the Laws of Corone inter Capitula Eſca- " etrie, if a Man do build a Caſtle of a Houſe of " Stone, or of any other Thing, and do embat- " tel the ſame, it ſhall be enquired of by the Eſ- " chetor, and after abated; although the Builder " be Tenant in Fee-ſimple of the ſame.

" In the 20th of King Henry VIII. Biſhop " Trecy [Vezy] of Exeter, purchaſed a great " Chace and a Lordſhip in Warwyckſhire; and " there built a Town, and did People the " ſame; but this was done by Licence.

" For the Preſervation of the King, his Corone " and Realm, the King may, by the Common " Law, make Caſtles and Bulwarks upon any " Man's Ground, for the Defence of the Realm. " Even ſo may the King deface any Buildings, " that may be for his ſafety: As it was done, " when the New Foreſt was firſt made.

" The Commiſſions for ſuppreſſing of Hedges, " Ditches, and other ſuch Incloſures, to the " Hindrance of Artillery, are granted by the " King, and yet are the Owners of the Lands, " Tenants in Fee-Simple.

" By the Laws of the City, if any Man build " within 16 Feet of the Walls, the Building ſhall " be pulled down, &c.

THIS Diſcourſe breaks off thus abruptly.

BUT yet, after all this, it was found that the Law was too ſhort to pull down Houſes that were already built; and all they could do was to inflict Puniſhment upon ſuch as had built contrary to the Queen's Proclamation; and now was another Stop put to the new Buildings, whereſoever they were in hand with, and among the reſt a Building of 110 Feet that began upon Wapping-Wall, by one William Page.

BUT ſuch flocking there was, notwithſtanding, to the City continually, and ſuch Numbers of People (and they for the moſt Part idle, vagrant Perſons) harbouring themſelves in it, filling the Houſes with Inmates, that the Queen's Succeſſor, King James I. in the firſt Year of his Reign, ſet forth his Proclamation againſt Inmates, and Multitudes of Dwellers in ſtrait Rooms and Places in and about the City of LONDON; and for the razing and pulling down of certain new erected Buildings; which Proclamation (occaſioned by the Plague that was this Year in the City) followeth:

WHEREAS it falleth out by woful Experience, that the great Confluence and Acceſs of exceſſive Numbers of idle, indigent, diſſolute and dangerous Perſons, and the peſtring of many of them in the ſmall and ſtrait Rooms and Habitations in the City of LONDON, and in and about the Suburbs of the ſame, have been one the chiefeſt Occaſions of the great Plague and Mortality, which hath not only moſt extremely abounded in and about the ſaid City and Suburbs thereof, and eſpecially in ſuch ſtrait Rooms and Places, and among Perſons of ſuch Quality thence hath moſt dangerouſly overſpread and infected very many principal and other Parts of this Realm, (which Almighty God ceaſe at his good Pleaſure) his Majeſty tendring the Safety of his loving Subjects, and minding as much as in himſelf lyeth, to avoid the Continuance, or renewing of ſuch Mortality, doth by the Advice of his Privy Council, not only ſtraitly require and command, that his Majeſty's good and profitable Orders and Directions already publiſhed for the ſtaying, if God ſo pleaſe, of the ſame Infection, be carefully, ſpeedily and duly executed; but alſo doth ſtraitly prohibit and forbid, that no new Tenants or Inmates or other Perſons, be admitted to inhabit or reſide in any ſuch Houſe or Place in the ſaid City, Suburb, or within four Miles of the ſame, who have been ſo infected during the Continuance of this Plague or Mortality in or about the ſaid City: Nor after, until ſuch Time as it ſhall be thought ſafe and expedient by the principal Officers there for the Time being, &c.

And the Aldermen and their Deputies, and every Juſtice of the Peace, to take ſpecial Care, that none of the foreſaid Rooms, Houſes or Places be hereafter peſtred with Multitude of Dwellers, or with any Inmates. And that ſuch of the ſaid Rooms, Houſes or Places, or by any Proclamation heretofore publiſhed are ordered to be razed or pulled down, ſhall forthwith, the ſame being now void, or as the ſame ſhall hereafter become void, and razed and pulled down accordingly; and being once pulled down, that they ſuffer not any of the ſame to be newly erected, &c. Given at his Majeſty's Manour of Woodſtock, the ſixteenth Day of September, in the firſt Year of our Reign.

THESE Buldings in the Suburbs of later Times, were taken Notice of in a Parliament, Anno 1656, and an Act was then made for the preventing the Multiplicity of Buildings in and about the Suburbs and within 10 Miles thereof. The Preamble ſets forth how thoſe new Buildings, Outhouſes and Cottages were found to be miſchievous and inconvenient, and a great Annoyance and Nuſance to the Commonwealth; and that divers Prohibitions heretofore had been made to the contrary; and yet the growing Evil was multiplied and encreaſed. So that there was a Neceſſity to take ſome further ſpeedy Courſe for the Redreſs. That by the Law the ſaid Houſes and Nuiſances ought to be abated, and the Builders, Occupiers and Tenants fined, which if executed, might be the undoing of many Men. The Act now ran, that for every Dwellinghouſe, Outhouſe, or any other Building erected within the Suburbs, or any other Place within 10 Miles of the Walls of the City, ſince the 25th of March, 1620, and not having four Acres of Land at leaſt, according to the Statute de terris menſurandis, continued therewith uſed, occupied and enjoyed, there ſhould be paid for the Uſe of the Commonwealth, one Year's Rent at the full and improved yearly Value, to be paid by the immediate Tenant or Tenants, or Occupier of ſuch Houſes at a rackt Rent: And after ſuch Payment to be for ever acquitted and diſcharged from ſuch Fine, Penalty or Forfeiture, as they were liable to loſe, or pay for the Building. And all that ſhould after this build any Houſe or Cottage upon a new Foundation within the ſaid Suburbs or within 10 Miles ſhould forfeit the intire Sum of 100 l. And every Perſon that ſhould uphold and continue ſuch new erected Houſe, to forfeit for the Uſe of the Poor of the Pariſh, where ſuch Offence ſhould be committed, the Sum of 20 l. for every Month that any ſuch Houſe ſhould be upheld or continued.

BUT

BUT to proceed to a particular View of the Suburbs, with the ſpreading Buildings, notwithſtanding the Oppoſitions made, as we have heard thereto.

ANOTHER Matter that required Remedy and Regulation, in theſe Suburbs eſpecially, was this. It was cuſtomary for the People to carry their Filth, as Intrails of dead Beaſts and other noiſome Things, and to throw them into the Ditches, Waters, Fields and Highways, whereby the Air was in Danger of being corrupted; and ſo to create infectious Diſeaſes in the City. This gave occaſion in the Year 1590, to the reviving of an old Act of Parliament in the Reign of King Richard II. which was at large ſet forth in the Queen's Proclamation; which Filth was upon a Penalty to be forthwith carried away; and it was thought convenient, that the Notice of it ſhould extend not only to the City, but to all the Cities and Boroughs in the Kingdom. It follows:

A PROCLAMATION, commanding the Execution of an Act of Parliament, provided for avoiding of dangerous Annoyances about Cities, Boroughs and Towns within the Realm.

THE Queen underſtanding that by a Statute made the twelfth Year of King Richard the Second, it was enacted that for ſo much Dung and other Filth of the Iſſues and Entrails, as well of Beaſts killed, as of other Corruptions, that were caſt and put into Ditches, Rivers, and other Waters; and alſo in many other Places within, about and nigh unto divers Cities, Boroughs, and Towns, and the Suburbs of them; that the Air was thereby greatly corrupted and infected; and many Maladies and other intolerable Diſeaſes did daily happen, as well to the Inhabitants, and alſo Dwellers in the ſame Cities and Boroughs, &c. as to others, thither repairing and paſſing: It was accorded and aſſerted, that Proclamation ſhould be made; as well in the City of LONDON, as in other Cities, Boroughs and Towns throughout the Realm of England: And that all which did caſt and put in Annoyances, Dung, Iſſues, Entrails and other Ordure, in Ditches, Rivers, Waters, and other Places, ſhould cauſe them to be removed, avoided and carried away between that and the Feaſt of Michaelmas next enſuing, every one upon Pain to loſe and to forfeit unto the ſaid King 20 l. and that the Maior and Bailiff of every ſuch City, Borough, &c. ſhould compel the ſame to be done upon like Pain.

And moreover, that Proclamation ſhould be made in the City of LONDON, as in other Cities, Boroughs, Towns, &c. that none ſhould do, to be ſet or thrown from thenceforth any ſuch Annoyances, &c. And if they did, he ſhould be called by Writ before the Lord Chancellor.

The Queen finding how neceſſary it ſhould be to have the ſame Act duely executed within the Cities of LONDON and Weſtminſter, and the Suburbs, and other Places near adjoining; and foreſeeing what Benefit may grow by the due Execution thereof in the Places aforeſaid, as well to the Inhabitants, as alſo to all Noblemen, Gentlemen and others, who for ſundry Reſpects have occaſion to remain, or to repair unto the ſame Cities; and for the avoiding of ſuch dangerous Infection, as otherwiſe by Means of theſe Annoyances, muſt grow within the Cities and the Suburbs; doth will the ſame Act to be proclaimed within the Cities of LONDON and Weſtminſter, and the Counties thereunto adjoining, &c. And charged all and every Perſon to abſtain and forbear to caſt or put forth any Entrails of Beaſts, or any other filthy and noiſome Thing whatſoever, into any Ditch, River or Water, or into any Field or Highway, in or near unto the City of LONDON and Weſtminſter; and that all ſuch noiſome, corrupt, infectious, or filthy Subſtance, as hath heretofore been thrown, or caſt forth into any Place or Places, in or near the ſaid Cities by any Perſon or Perſons whatſoever; whereby the Air is or may be corrupted, ſhall, before the 25th of Auguſt next be removed and carried away, upon Pain of Puniſhment and Penalty contained in the ſaid Statute, &c.

Given at our Manour of Greenwich the ſixth of June, in the thirty ſecond Year of our Reign.

THE ſecond Year of Henry III. the Foreſt of Middleſex, and the Warren of Staines were diſaforeſted: Since which Time, the Suburbs about LONDON have been alſo mightily increaſed with Buildings; for firſt, to begin in the Eaſt, by the Tower of LONDON, is the Hoſpital of St. Katharine, founded by Matilde, the Queen, Wife to King Stephen, as is aforeſaid in Portſoken Ward.

The PARISH of St. JOHN at WAPPING.

FROM this Precinct of St. Katharine at Wapping in the Woſe and Wapping itſelf, the uſual Place of Execution for hanging of Pirates and Sea-Rovers, at the low Water Mark, there to remain till three Tides had overflowed them, was not one Houſe, Stow ſays, within 40 Years of the Time of his writing his Survey of LONDON; but the Gallows being afterwards taken away, it became a continued Street, or rather a filthy ſtreight Paſſage, with Lanes and Alleys of ſmall Tenements or Cottages, inhabited by Sailors and Victuallers, along by the River Thames, almoſt to Ratcliff, a good Mile from the Tower.

THE Church here was at firſt a Chapel under St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel; the Building was procured by the ſpecial Care of Mr. Rowland Coitmore, Mr. Robert Bourn, Mr. Wilmoot, and other Inhabitants of this Hamlet, ſeveral Citizens of LONDON being Benefactors thereto, and Mr. Richard Sedwick, firſt Miniſter thereof, it having been conſecrated by the Biſhop of LONDON, July 7, 1617.

BUT this Precinct being large (for 'tis accounted one half of the Pariſh of St. Mary) an Act of Parliament paſſed, Anno 5 & 6 Guliel. & Mariæ, ſeparating it from the ſaid Pariſh, ordaining it a Pariſh of itſelf, and conſtituting this a Parochial Church, by the Name of St. John at Wapping.

IT is of the Tuſcan and modern Gothick Orders; the Walls are Brick, the Roof covered with Tile, and the Chancel is two Steps higher than the Body of the Church.

IT is well pewed with Oak, and has a handſome Pulpit with Columns and Entablament, carved on the Pannels, and a Glory is painted on the inſide of the Sound-Board.

ON the South Side is a pretty Gallery of the Tuſcan Order, with theſe Words ſubſcribed:

"This Gallery was built with Part of the "Benevolence that was given for the Uſe of "this Chapel, by the Mariners that went to the "Eaſt-Indies, Anno 1616, under the Command "of Captain Martin Ring, in the Royal James, "procured by the Care of Mr. Rowland Coitmore, "then Maſter of the ſaid Ship, and who was Warden of this Chapel, Anno 1622.

ALSO

Also here are these Words:

Know ye that the Unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdom of God.

And many other Sentences of Holy Scripture.

The Altar-Piece is of Oak, neat and spacious; the lower Part consists of three Pilasters of the Tuscan, and above these two of the Corinthian Order, with their Entablature; over which is the King's Arms under a Pediment: The superior Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, between Moses and Aaron finely painted in their proper Habits, which are placed between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in black Letters on Gold; the Whole having curious Enrichments of a Cherub, Cartouches, Festoons, Shields, Lamps, &c. well carved, inclosed with Rail and Banister; the Square within, which is paved with black and white Marble.

The Chancel is wainscotted, with good Bolection Work six Feet high, and the Front directly West from the Altar.

The Dimensions are, Length 74 Feet, Breadth 57, Altitude 24.

Benefactors are as follow:

On the Front of the said Gallery:

The pious and charitable Mrs. Godfrey gave to the Poor, in the dear Winter, 50 l.

Also two Gifts to the Sufferers by Fire, in 1696 and 1703, 39 l. 4 s.

And besides what is foregoing, this is done on the East End of the North Isle.

This Hamlet being one third of the Parish of Whitechapel, and a Hamlet of itself, providing for its own Poor, and chusing its own Officers, are to have for the Use of the Poor of this Hamlet one Third of all Gifts and Legacies that are given to the Parish of Whitechapel, and one Third of the Rents of certain Houses belonging to the said Parish; and also one Third Part of the 4 s. per Week, the Gift of Mr. Buck, and are to have Two-Pence of every Shilling of the Money given at the Communion at Whitechapel Church.

Here lies the Body of Robert Kingſton, Turner, late of this Pariſh, who died the 29th of Auguſt 1679. Aged 45 Years.

Draw near, and ſee this Heap of Duſt,
Which once was active, wiſe and juſt;
A Man whoſe Labours God did bleſs,
And crowned them with fair Succeſs:
But Care or Prudence cannot ſave,
Nor Wealth defend us from the Grave.
Prepare to follow, all to Death muſt bow,
He fell in his full Strength, and ſo may'ſt thou.

Number of Houſes are about 1600.

THE Rev. Mr. Ruſſel, not long ſince Rector of this Pariſh, built the Parſonage-Houſe from the Ground, ſtanding towards the Street, near the Church, which coſt about 450 l.

THERE is a free Charity School in Cock-alley, Eaſt of this Church, for poor Children of the Pariſh, to be educated there in Reading, Writing, and Cyphering, and Chriſtian Manners: Which Building, by Calculation, coſt about 180 l. Mr. Ruſſel, the ſaid Rector, very commendably undertook it, and went forward with it; depending upon the Charity of good People. He began on Lady Day, 1704, and gave 50 l. towards it. The School Room is in the middle Floor; the Ground Floor, and the Buildings over the School to be for Conveniences for the Teacher himſelf and his Family, who hath allowed him 30 l. per Annum. He hath the Care of 40 Boys, maintained by a Charitable Society, conſiſting of 30 Perſons, Inhabitants of this Pariſh; who by their own Contributions, and what they procure, partly by Collections in the Pariſh, once a Year, and partly at their Monthly Sermons every third Sunday at Five a Clock in the Afternoon, do maintain not only the ſaid Number of Boys at School, and cloath them alſo, but had in the Year 1708, taken into their Charity 25 Girls, to be cloathed and taught by a ſober School-miſtreſs: The Money for whoſe Maintainance, both Miſtreſs and Girls, they hoped to raiſe chiefly from the well diſpoſed Gentlewomen of the Pariſh.

THIS Charitable Society began about 40 Years ago; the Members then agreeing among themſelves to ſet up a Monthly Sermon, for Preparation to the Sacrament, and for a Collection to be made at the Church Door, and the Money to be diſtributed to poor Houſe-keepers, or others, not maintained by Penſion from the Pariſh. Afterwards they converted this Money for the keeping poor Pariſhioners Children at School. Which they continue commendably to this Day.

SIX poor Children of this Pariſh are educated at the Free-ſchool erected in the Pariſh of Alhallows Barkin. This Benefit they receive, purſuant to the Will of Alderman Hickſon, Brewer, and Citizen of LONDON, bearing Date the 16th of February, 1686.

Wapping is, to this Day, chiefly inhabited by Seafaring Men, and Tradeſmen dealing in Commodities for the Supply of Shipping, and Shipmen. It ſtands exceeding thick with Buildings, and is very Populous; having been very much improved by human Induſtry: For this Place, and the Parts about it, were formerly one great Waſh, covered with the Waters of the Thames. Afterwards it was by Pains and Art gained from the River, and made a Marſh, or Meadow Ground, commonly called Wapping Merſhes; and was defended fended from the Irruption of the Thames by Walls; which were very chargeable in the continual Maintaining of the ſame. And between the Years 1560 and 1570, the Force of the Water was ſuch, that it broke the Wall in ſundry Places, and overflowed the whole Marſhes. About the Year 1580, or thereabouts, the moſt Part of theſe Marſhes came to the Queen, that then reigned in Extent, till a great Sum of Money ſhould be paid: And ſhe rented out the ſame.

THE Rents here being ſomewhat uncertain, by the Breaches of the River into the Grounds about 1571, when the Water had again broke in, a View was made by the Commiſſioners of Sewers; who thought it neceſſary, that the Walls ſhould be built upon by any who would. Whereupon many took Land upon the Walls to build. And among the reſt one William Page; who took a Leaſe of 110 Feet of the Wall, and laid the Foundation of his Building, and beſtowed a great Sum of Money in making the Wall very ſtrong; and in Building to the ſtrong Defence of the ſaid Marſhes, and Commodity and Eaſe of the Repairs and Maintainers of the ſaid Wall. But in the Year 1583. the Queen iſſuing out a Proclamation for ſtopping all New Buildings, this Building was hindered for a Time; and Mr. Page was fain to make an humble Petition, and ſet forth his Caſe to the Lord Treaſurer; and praying his Allowance to go on with his Building, ſhewed how it would be a Benefit to her Majeſty, in Continuance of her Rent; and that it was not hurtful to any; and his Building began before the Proclamation; but what Succeſs Page's Petition had, is unknown; but it appears, it afterwards went forward, ſince all the Wall is now thick built upon.

Friday the 24th of July, 1629. King Charles having hunted a Stag or Hart from Wanſted in Eſſex, killed him in Nightingale-lane, in the Hamlet of Wapping, in a Garden belonging to one ——— who had ſome Damage among his Herbs, by reaſon the Multitude of People there aſſembled ſuddenly.

IN this Hamlet of Wapping, was built, Anno 1626. a large Houſe of Timber by Mr. William Turner, Gentleman, Mr. George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others for the making of Allum; which grew to ſuch an Inconvenience, through the Annoyance that was with Boiling of Urine, and other Materials, by reaſon of the ill Savour of it; and the Excrement of it, being found to be an Annoyance to the River of Thames, that upon the Complaint of the Inhabitants to the King and Council, it was proceeded withal, as appeareth:

THE ſixteenth of July, 1627. being Monday, and the Tide being near Low-water, about eight of the Clock in the Evening of the ſame Day, there was a Lighter of Allum-Greaſe, lying in the Hermitage-dock, which was taken out of a Ship lying athwart the Mouth of the Dock; and upon the emptying of the Water, out of the Lighter, which iſſued from the Greaſe, there did ariſe a moſt noiſome ſtinking Scum of a frothy Subſtance, and did ſpread all about the Mouth of the Dock, and run down into the Thames; and there was a Veſſel cauſed to be filled with it, and it did ſo ſtink, that we were not able to endure the Scent of it; inſomuch that it endangered all the Wells and Ponds thereabouts: This was ſeen and done in the Preſence of theſe under written:

Maſter Cornelius Godfrey, Merchant	Mr. Leonard Leonard
Mr. George Freeman	Mr. Michael Leech
Mr. Joſeph Jaques	Mr. Fulk Wormleighton
Thomas Pope	Mr. Joſeph Byrks
Henry Chandler	Nicholas Budgen
Thomas Davies	Tobias Green
Thomas Knight	George Raymond
Thomas Jones	William Cook
Auguſtine Cope	William Curteis
Thomas Powel	John Cope.

All which were ready to teſtify the Truth hereof upon Oath.

THE Inhabitants alſo put up this Petition to the Juſtices againſt this Allum-Houſe, as follows:

To the Right Worſhipful his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Middleſex, and Commiſſioners for Annoyances, and to all other his Majeſty's Officers, whom in this Caſe it ſhall concern,

WE his Majeſty's loving Subjects inhabiting within the Pariſh of Whitechapel, in the County of Middleſex, and St. Botolph's without Aldgate, LONDON, and in the Hamlets of Stepney, Wapping, Eaſt-ſmithfield, and St. Katharine's near the Tower of LONDON, finding and being continually choaked and poiſoned up with the daily and continual Stink, and moſt noiſome and infectious Smell that is lately begun amongſt us, by a Workhouſe for making of Allum (as is reported) by Mr. William Turner, Mr. George Lowe, and Mr. Thomas Jones, and others, erected at the Weſt End of Wapping, adjoining upon the River of Thames, and near unto the Tower of LONDON, and to his Majeſty's Store-houſe on Tower-hill, where the Proviſion for his Highneſs's Shipping is daily provided; do humbly ſhew, That we find that the noiſome Smell that comes of the making of the ſaid Allum (which we ſuppoſe to be Urine, and ſuch other infectious Materials, being long kept, and then boiled for the Uſe aforeſaid) doth breed and make ſuch an infectious and moſt noiſome Smell amongſt us, that we are not able to live in our Houſes, nor to keep our Families at work about us, the deteſtable Stink thereof is ſo infectious and intolerable now this Winter Time (much more will it be in the Heat of Summer:) So that if ſpeedy Redreſs thereof be not had, we ſhall not be able to continue our Habitations there, wherein we have long Time lived. And it is generally thought it will be a Decay and dangerous Infection to all Inhabitants both on this Side and the other Side the Water, within two Miles Compaſs of the Place it ſtands; for the Stink thereof (as the Wind ſtands) is further ſmelled, both by Land and Water, and daily Complaint made thereof. And now there is begun but two or three Furnaces, but ſhortly there will be many more Furnaces made there, to the further great Danger and Annoyance of his Majeſty's Subjects, which we humbly refer to your Worſhip's grave Conſideration, humbly deſiring your ſpeedy Aid and Reformation herein, otherewiſe we ſhall be compelled to leave our Houſes and Dwellings to our utter Undoings; for the noiſome Smell is ſo dangerous, that no Man will dwell thereabouts, if he might have his Houſe Rent-free: And we, as bound ſhall daily pray for your Worſhips.

To the King's moſt excellent Majeſty,

The humble Petition of your Majeſty's Liege People and Subjects, being in Number many Thouſands, inhabiting within one Mile Compaſs of your Majeſty's Tower of LONDON, within Middleſex and Surrey, and the Borough of Southwark,

Moſt humbly ſheweth,

THAT whereas of late divers Rooms have been newly erected in the Pariſh of St. Mary Matfellon, commonly called Whitechapel, in the County of Middleſex, by William Turner, Gentleman, George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others, near unto many great Brewhouſes, which brew Beer for the Uſe and Service of your Majeſty's Navy, and for divers within LONDON and Middleſex; which ſaid Rooms have been ever ſince their firſt Erection imployed for Boiling of Urine for making of Allum, which hath and doth daily caſt ſo noiſome a Savour and evil Air to all the Parts thereabouts, and to all Paſſengers that Way, or by the River Thames, that they are in no Sort able to endure the ſame, nor their Dwelling Houſes by Reaſon thereof, and the ſame has already caſt many of them into Extremity of great Sickneſs and Diſeaſes, by which evil and unwholeſome Savour of late many Fiſhes in the Thames there near unto, have been found ready to die, and dead, ſuppoſed to be poiſoned by ſome ill Subſtance iſſuing unto the River Thames; and all the Inhabitants thereabouts are much annoyed, and all the Paſture Ground lying near thereabouts is tainted and ſpoiled in ſuch Manner that Cattle do refuſe to feed on the ſame; and they farther humbly ſhew, that they have preferred their Grievances unto your Majeſty's Commiſſioners of Annoyances, and having cauſed the ſame to be preſented unto them by Indictment by ſeveral Jurors, ſworn upon Oath before your Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace in their general Seſſions for Middleſex, upon due Proof, and the Teſtimony of Witneſſes there alſo ſworn and examined, upon which Evidences the ſaid Jurors have given up ſeveral Verdicts, and preſented upon their Oaths the ſame Annoyance to be exceeding great and intolerable to all Inhabitants dwelling thereabouts, and to call other Paſſengers by the ſame, or upon the River Thames: Yet your Petitioners having no Redreſs thereby, are compelled by extreme Neceſſity to complain unto your Majeſty, and with much Grief, and with all Humility beſeech your Majeſty to take to Conſideration the ſpeedy Redreſs in that Behalf, the ſame Annoyance being ſo great and unſavoury, that otherwiſe your poor Subjects, being many Thouſands in Number, ſhall be compelled to forſake their Houſes, and abandon their Dwellings, to the Loſs of their Trades and Lives, and the utter undoing of them and their Families.

Wherefore they moſt humbly beſeech you to commit the Examination thereof to the Right Honourable Thomas Earl of Cleveland, Sir Allen Apſley, Knt. Lieutenant of the Tower, Sir Henry Spiller, Knt. Thomas Sanderſon and George Long, Eſqs; or any three or two of them, or any others, being Juſtices and Commiſſioners of Annoyances within the ſaid County of Middleſex, who, by your Majeſty's gracious Reference being thereunto required, may examine and hear the Allegations on all Parts; and that upon the Opinions therein, your Majeſty will be pleaſed to vouchſafe your poor Subjects ſuch Relief as the Caſe requireth:

And the Petitioners, according to their bounden Duties and Legiance ſhall daily pray for your Majeſty's long and proſperous Reign over us.

At Whitehall, the 25th of July, 1627.

Lord Keeper,
Lord Treaſurer,

Earl of Bridgewater,
Mr. Secretary Cook,
Maſter of the Rolls.
Mr. Chancellor of the Dutchy.

WHEREAS upon a Complaint formerly made by divers Aldermen of the City of LONDON, on the Behalf of the Inhabitants of the Pariſhes of St. Botolph's Aldgate, and divers other Pariſhes thereabouts, concerning a great Annoyance unto the ſaid Inhabitants, cauſed by certain Allum Works erected thereabouts by his Majeſty's Farmers of the ſaid Works: It was, by an Order of the twentieth of this preſent Month, ordered, that the Preſident of the College of Phyſicians, accompanied with ſix other Doctors of Phyſick of that Society, as likewiſe that ſome of the Aldermen ſhould, upon View of the ſaid Works, and ſuch Obſervations by them made as fall within their Experience, return Certificate to the Board their Opinions touching the ſame: Foraſmuch as thoſe whoſe Names are here under-written, did this Day accordingly make their Certificate in Writing to the Board as follows: In hæc verba; "May it "pleaſe your Lordſhips, according to an Order of this Honourable Board, of the 20th of "July laſt: We have viewed and obſerved the "Allum Works at St. Katharine's, and conſidered the Materials therein uſed and employed: And thereupon do humbly certify "unto your Lordſhips, and are of Opinion, "that the Works ſtanding in that Place muſt "neceſſarily breed great Annoyances, both to "the near Inhabitants, and by the ſpreading "Vapours from thence iſſuing to many Places "more remote, and to all ſuch Paſſengers as, "either by Land or by Water, have Occaſion to "frequent thoſe Parts, not only by their continual noiſome Savours to make all their Inhabitants grievous and unpleaſant, but alſo "by their putrid Quality to endanger their "Healths: And ſo we humbly reſt at your "Lordſhips

" Lordſhips Commands, July the 24th An. " 1627, ſigned, John Argent, Preſ. John Gif- " ford, William Harvey, William Clement, Ro- " bert Flud, Samuel Baskernite, Ottnel Meverel, " and by Hugh Hamerſley." Their Lordſhips upon Conſideration had thereof, did reſolve that the ſaid Allum Works in and about the City, were fit to be ſuppreſſed. Nevertheleſs, for that a Petition was now preſented to the Board by the Farmers of the ſaid Allum Works, ſhewing that it was not poſſible for them to erect and finiſh any new Works in the County, before our Lady-Day next, that if they ſhould be reſtrained from working here in the mean Time, the Kingdom would be unſerved of Allum, of which there is great Uſe, and likewiſe diſabled to pay his Majeſty's Rent: And therefore beſought the Board that they might have Leave to proceed in their making of Allum here until our Lady-Day next, as aforeſaid. It was thereupon thought fit and ordered, that they ſhould be at Liberty to make Allum in thoſe Places where their Works are already erected, until our Lady-Day next only and no longer; and that in the mean Time they preſume not to erect any other Works in any Places in or about this City. Provided nevertheleſs, that they ſuffer not the Dregs and Excrements proceeding from the boiling and making of the ſaid Allum to be caſt, or fall into any Places leading into the River of Thames, but that they cauſe the ſame from Time to Time to be either buried in the Night Time in the Grounds where their Works now are, or otherwiſe to be carried and buried in the Night Time in ſome other convenient Place, where the ſame may breed no Infection or Annoyance to any of his Majeſty's Subjects.

At Whitehall, the 12*th* September, Anno 1627.

PRESENT,

Lord Preſident,
Earl of Holland,
Earl of Kelly,
Maſter Secretary Cook,
Maſter Chancellor of the Exchequer.
Chancellor of the Dutchy.

WHEREAS an humble Petition was this Day exhibited to the Board in the Name of the Inhabitants of the Pariſhes of St. Botolph's near Aldgate, St. Catharine's, Whitechapel, Stepney, Rotherhith, St. Olave's, and others adjacent and near his Majeſty's Tower of LONDON: Shewing, That whereas it had pleaſed the Board, on the 27th of July laſt, after divers Hearings and Reports made by ſix Doctors of the College of Phyſicians of LONDON, to order that the Farmers of his Majeſty's Allum-works, who had tranſported themſelves out of the Northern Parts of the Kingdom near unto his Majeſty's Royal Chamber and City of LONDON, ſhould not preſume to erect any Work in or about, nor ſuffer the Dregs or Excrement of the Boiling of Allum to be caſt or fall into the River of Thames, but bury the ſame in the Night-time in ſome convenient Place where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance; yet nevertheleſs that ſithence the making of the ſaid Order, and eſpecially on the 16th of Auguſt laſt, the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies or Aſſigns, have, in Contempt of the Order, poured or cauſed the ſaid Filth, Dregs or Excrements to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames; whereby ſome of the Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for Brewing ſo tainted with the Taſte and Savour of Allum Excrement, as that within a very ſhort Space the Fiſh have been poiſoned, and the Water altogether unwholſome, for brewing or any other Uſe, as by Certificate under divers of the ſaid Petitioners Hands, the chief Officers and Inhabitants of the Tower, appeared; and therefore humbly prayed Redreſs of the growing Miſchief and dangerous Contagion proceeding from the ſaid Allum-works, ſeconded with a preſumptuous Contempt of the ſaid Order of the Board: To the End, that by a ſudden Reformation the Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be ſuffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours occaſioned by the ſaid Allum-works. The Board taking this Complaint into their due and ſerious Conſideration, and finding that the former Order of the Board was not obſerved, as is before-mentioned, and that the Annoyance cauſed hereby, extendeth it ſelf to the extreme Parts of the City, and even ſo far as his Majeſty's Court, when the Wind ſitteth that Way (which cannot but be of dangerous Conſequence by corrupting both the Air and the Water, whereof Beer is made for his Majeſty's Service and otherwiſe) thought fit and ordered that the ſaid Allum-works ſhould be preſently ſuppreſſed from working, and utterly removed by the Farmers or others whom it may concern, within a convenient Time, notwithſtanding the former Order, (which on their Parts have not been obſerved) and that ſome one of the Meſſengers of his Majeſty's Chamber ſhall be ſent with a Tranſcript of this their Lordſhips Order, to the Farmers or Deputies of the ſaid Work, and ſee the ſame duly executed; and of the Performance thereof to give Account to their Lordſhips within ten or twelve Days after the Date hereof. And of this their Lordſhips Order, as well the ſaid Farmers and the Meſſenger, as others whom it may concern, are to take Notice, and to regulate themſelves accordingly, as they will anſwer the contrary.

To the Right Hon. the Lords and others of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL.

The humble PETITION of the Inhabitants of St. Botolph's Aldgate, St. Catharine's, Whitechapel, Stepney, Rotherhith, St. Olave's, and others, adjacent and near his Majeſty's Tower of LONDON.

WHEREAS it pleaſed this honourable Board, the 27th of July laſt, after divers Hearings, and a Report made by ſix Doctors, being of the College of Phyſicians, LONDON, to order that the Farmers of his Majeſty's Allum-works (who had tranſplanted themſelves out of the North Parts near unto his Majeſty's Royal Chamber and City of LONDON) ſhould not preſume to erect any Works in or about the ſame, nor ſuffer the Dregs or Excrement proceeding of the Boiling of Allum to be caſt or fall into the River of Thames, but to bury the ſame in the Night-time, where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance.

But ſo it is, Right Honourable, that divers Times, ſithence the Order of this Honourable Board, but eſpecially upon the 16th of this Inſtant Auguſt, the ſaid Farmers, their Deputy or Aſſigns, have, in Contempt of the ſaid Order, poured or cauſed the ſaid Filth, Dregs or Excrement to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames; whereby ſome of your Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for Brewing ſo tainted and grownered with the Taſte and Savour of Allum Excrement, as that within three Hours after about forty Fiſhes were apparently found poiſoned, as by the annexed Certificate appeareth.

For Redreſs of which growing Miſchief and dangerous Contagion, ſeconded with a preſumptuous Contempt of your honourable Order, as formerly formerly, the Petitioners fly to this honourable Board, beſeeching a ſodain Reformation: To the End that your Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be ſuffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours, proceeding from the ſaid Allum-works.

And the Petitioners ſhall be (as ever) bound to pray for your Honours. 1627.

WE his Majeſty's Subjects whoſe Names are ſubſcribed, do for a Truth certify and will be ready to depoſe, that ſithence the 25th Day of July laſt, the Allum-farmers or their Aſſigns, have erected new Erections at or near Wapping, where the Allum-works are: And that upon the 16th Day of this Inſtant Month of Auguſt, by Means of the Excrement or Filth falling or being caſt and waſhed out of the ſaid Allum-works, by the flowing of the River Thames, was carried into Wells belonging to Brewers thereabouts; and where divers poor People for their Means, do reſort, and from thence do carry Water to divers Houſes, and to dreſs their Meat and Diet for their Families; as by Example, at that Time into one Well or Pond of one Joſeph Jaques, a Brewer near thereunto, where Eeles, and other Fiſhes, to the Number of forty and upwards, which, within three Hours after, therein were ſuffocated and poiſoned, in the Preſence of theſe Certificates.

Witneſs our Hands hereunto put the Day of Auguſt, 1627.

At Whitehall the 12th of December, An. 1627.

PRESENT.

Maſter Secretary Coke.
Maſter Chancellor of the Exchequer.
Maſter Chancellor of the Dutchy.

WHEREAS by an Order of this Board, made in July laſt, for Reaſons in the ſaid Order mentioned, the Allum-works were ſuffered to be in thoſe Places near LONDON, where they were then erected, until our Lady-day next only and no longer; and afterwards the 12th of September laſt, for Contempts, in not purſuing the ſaid Order of the 25th of July, and for Prevention of growing Miſchief that might come by Sufferance of the ſaid Allum-works, it was ordered that the ſaid Allum-works ſhould be preſently ſuppreſſed, and removed; which being not as yet done, although the Farmers of the ſaid Works have ſought out other Places, whither to remove the ſaid Works: Now the Board, upon the Petition of the Company of Dyers, being informed, that in theſe Times of Wars, and Danger, the Dyers and other Artificers uſing Allum, cannot be furniſhed with that Commodity from any other Perſons, or Places, but only from the Farmers aforeſaid, and their Magazines: And that the ſaid Artificers for want thereof ſhall be forced to give over their Trades to the great Damage of the Commonweal: And the ſaid Farmers informing, That by Reaſon of ſome Shipwrecks, and the Danger of Paſſages from out of the North hither, they have failed, nor cannot bring their Allums hither to LONDON, as they were wont: In Conſideration of all which, and for that their Lordſhips do conceive, that the ſaid Works will be leſs offenſive to the Inhabitants dwelling in thoſe Parts in this Winter Seaſon, the Board hath thought fit, and ordered, that the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies, and Aſſigns, ſhall be permitted, until our Lady-day next, according to the Permiſſion given by the former Order of the 25th of July, to convert the Materials now upon their Hands into Allum, at their Houſe in St. Catharine's, erected for that Purpoſe, and to ſell the ſame, for the Uſe of his Majeſty's Subjects: And preſently, upon our Lady-day next, to remove from the City of LONDON, and the Suburbs thereof. And it is ordered, that in the mean while the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies and Aſſigns, or ſome of them, ſhall ſeek, and find out ſome convenient Place for their ſaid Works, and ſignify unto the Board of what Place they have made Choice, to the End they may have their Lordſhips Allowance and Approbation for their Settlement in the ſame. Whereof all Perſons whom it may concern, are to take Knowledge, and accordingly to govern themſelves, as they and every of them will anſwer the contrary at their Perils. Provided always, and it is hereby willed and commanded, that all Things elſe required and ſet down to be done by the ſaid Farmers, in either of the ſaid Orders, beforementioned, concerning the Excrement of the Allum, and otherwiſe whatſoever, be duly obſerved and performed by the ſaid Farmers of the ſaid Allum-works.

NOW to proceed on the Eaſt Side, and by North of the Tower, lies Eaſt Smithfield, Hogs-ſtreet, and Tower-hill; and Eaſt from them both was the new Abbey, called, Of Grace, founded by Edward III. From whence, towards Radcliff, up Eaſt Smithfield, by Nightingale-lane, and to the Manor of Shadwell, belonging to the Dean of St. Paul's, there were raiſed many ſmall Tenements towards Radcliff, in Stow's Time; and Radcliff itſelf, ſo increaſed in Building, that it joined to Lime-hurſt, or Lime-hoſt, corruptly called Lime-houſe, which was ſome Time a Mile diſtant from Radcliff.

HERE in Ratcliff was above 100 Years ago a leaden Coffin dug up, and two or three Urns found with a Piece of Money, inſcribed thus on one Side, Imp. Pupienus Maximus, P. F. Auguſt. and on the Reverſe, two Hands joined and this Motto, Patres Senatus.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE in Middleſex.

THE Church here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated, and the Pariſh is diſmembered from St. Dunſtan at Stepney, containing the Hamlet of Wapping-Stepney.

IT was founded in the Year 1715, and built and finiſhed Anno 1729.

IT is ſituated a little Eaſtward from the Middle of the Eaſt Side of Cannon-ſtreet in Ratcliff-highway, in the County of Middleſex, without the Freedom and Liberty of LONDON, and and is one of the fifty new Churches built by Virtue of the Act of the 9th of Queen Anne.

THIS Church is a magnificent Pile, which commands the Attention of all judicious Obſervers, eſpecially the Chancel End thereof, which is truly magnificent. The Frontiſpiece to the Tower is of the Ionick Order, conſiſting of four Pilaſters ſupporting their Entablature, wherein Simplicity and Grandeur are well connected together.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Principal of Brazen-Noſe College in Oxford, the Value upwards of 300 l. per Ann. with Surplice Fees.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. William Sympſon, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Charles Huxley.

PRAYERS are Wedneſdays, Fridays, and Holidays, about 11 o'Clock, no Organ, one Bell.

THE Veſtry is general, conſiſting of ſuch as pay 2 s. per Month, or upwards to the Poor.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are,	The PEACE-OFFICERS are,
2 Church-Wardens.	1 Conſtable.

NUMBER of Houſes upwards of 2000.

HERE is a Charity-School for 50 Boys and 50 Girls, built at the Expence of Mr. Henry Raine, Brewer, who gives 40 Guineas yearly towards the Support of it, and it is believed he will endow the ſame with the ſaid Sum annually : The Children are cloathed, and the Boys taught to Read, Write and caſt Accompts ; the Girls are taught to Read, Sew and Mark ; which is done by the farther Addition of Subſcriptions ; and quarterly Sermons will be preached, for the further Maintenance of them by Collections at thoſe Times.

SIR Robert Cotton, the learned Antiquarian, diſcovered in Ratcliff-field the Monument of a Proprætor's Wife, which Biſhop Stillingfleet takes Notice of from Wever's Monuments. Which Relation of that induſtrious Man deſerves here to be tranſcribed at length : " Within the Pariſh " of Stepney in Middleſex, in Ratcliff-field, where " they take Ballaſt for Ships, about ſome four- " teen or fifteen Years ago (that is, Anno 1614, " 1615,) were found two Monuments, the one " of Stone, wherein were the Bones of a Man, " the other a Cheſt of Lead, the upper Part be- " ing garniſhed with Scallop Shells, and a Cro- " tiſter Border. At the Head of the Coffin and " the Feet, there were two Jars of three Feet " Length, ſtanding, and on the Sides a Number of " Bottles of gliſtering red Earth, ſome painted ; " and many great Viols of Glaſs, ſome ſix, ſome " eight ſquare, having a whitiſh Liquor with- " in them ; within the Cheſt was the Body of a " Woman, as the Chirurgeons judged by the " Skull. On the either Side of her were two " Sceptres of Ivory, eighteen Inches long ; and " on her Breaſt a little Figure of Cupid, neatly " cut in white Stone ; and amongſt the Bones " two printed Pieces of Jett, with round Heads, " in Form of Nails, three Inches long.

' It ſeemeth (ſaith Sir Robert Cotton, from " whom this Relation came) theſe Bodies were " burnt about the Year of our Lord 239, being " there were found divers Coins of Pupienus, " Gordian, and the Emperors of that Time : " And that one may conjecture by her Orna- " ments, that this laſt Body ſhould be ſome " Princeſs or Proprætor's Wife, here in Britain, " in the Time of the Roman Government.

AND hence the aforeſaid learned Biſhop concludes, that LONDON, ſo near adjoining to this Burying-Place, was the Metropolis of Britain, the Times that the Romans had to do here : Inaſmuch as it may be preſumed from the Burial of this Lady, that the Legate of the Emperor or Proprætor, had his chief Reſidence here ; and the great Buſineſs of the Province, as to Civil Matters, was brought hither to him. Here was his Prætorium, which at firſt ſignified the General's Tent ; but as the Name came from the Camp to the City, ſo the Prætorium was the Manſion-Houſe of the Governor.

CONCERNING

CONCERNING Eaſt-ſmithfield, Mention is made in Records, of Lands and Mills there, within the Pariſh of Whitechapel. In the 21ſt of Edward the Third, a Fine was levied between Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, Querent, and Sir John de Boulteneye Chevalier, Defendant, of Lands, and certain Mills in Eaſt-ſmithfield, in the Pariſh of Whitechapel, in the Suburbs of LONDON.

HAVING ſaid thus much for Building at Wapping, Eaſt-ſmithfield, Bramley, and Shadwell, all on the South Side of the High-way to Ratcliff; now one Note on the North Side alſo, concerning Pirates; I read, ſaith Stow, that in the Year 1440, in the Lent Seaſon, certain Perſons, with ſix Ships, brought from beyond the Seas, Fiſh, to victual the City of LONDON; which Fiſh, when they had delivered, and were returning homeward, a Number of Sea-Thieves in a Barge, in the Night came upon them, when they were aſleep in their Veſſels, riding at Anchor on the River Thames, and ſlew them, cut their Throats, caſt them overboard, took their Money, and drowned their Ships, for that no Man ſhould eſpy or accuſe them. Two of theſe Thieves were after taken and hanged in Chains upon a Gallows ſet upon a raiſed Hill, for the Purpoſe made, in the Field beyond Eaſt-ſmithfield, ſo that they might be ſeen far into the River Thames.

THE firſt Building at Ratcliff, ſays Stow in his Youth, (not to be forgotten) was a fair Free-School and Alms-houſes founded by Avice Gibſon, Wife to Nicholas Gibſon, Grocer, as before I have noted. But of late Years Shipwrights, and (for the moſt Part) other Marine-Men, have built many large and ſtrong Houſes for themſelves, and ſmaller for Sailors, from thence almoſt to Poplar, and ſo to Blackwall.

THE moſt remarkable Places in the Pariſh of St. George in Middleſex, are, Half of Well-cloſe-ſquare, and one Moiety of the Daniſh Church therein: Prince's-ſquare, and therein the Swedes Church; an Anabaptiſt Meeting, the Corner of Penitent-ſtreet, in Virginia-ſtreet, and another in Meeting-houſe-yard, in Broad-ſtreet, near Old Gravel-lane.

The PARISH of St. ANNE at Limehouſe.

THE new Church built here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated, in Honour of the late Queen ANNE, being one of the Fifty Churches appointed to be built by an Act of Parliament, paſſed in her Reign; and Limehouſe is added to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches of the ſame Name, and likewiſe on Account of its Situation.

THE Foundation was laid in the Year 1712, and the Church was conſecrated Anno 1730.

IT is ſituated at the End of Church-lane, in the Hamlet of Lime-houſe, in the County of Middleſex.

THIS Church, ſays an ingenious Architect, is a moſt ſurprizing beautiful Structure, which at a great Diſtance ſhews a ſolemn Solidity; yet, when nearly viewed, oppoſite to an Angle, is one of the moſt airy, light, elegant, and magnificent Buildings in this Kingdom. The Church itſelf conſiſts of ſuch ſimple Beauty, that there is hardly any where to be produced its Parallel; and its Eaſt or Chancel End (which is of the Dorick Order, ſtrictly executed after the antient Manner, without any other Baſe to the Pilaſters, than the ſquare Baſement of Building) is certainly in the moſt auguſt Taſte. The Tower is a moſt magnificent Pile, exhibiting the moſt ſolemn reverend Aſpect when viewed in Front; and when at an Angle the moſt gay and airy. This different Appearance, upon changing the Point of View, is ſurprizingly delightful.

IN each of the Windows to the Tower, are placed a Pair of Compoſite Columns, with their Entablatures, whoſe Capitals conſiſt of Acanthus Leaves, as in the Corinthian Order; but inſtead of having their Abacus after the Ionick Manner, (as has always been the Practice) they have Dorick Abacus's, which expreſs the Compoſite Order much better than has been yet done.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Principal of Brazen-noſe-college in Oxford; the Value per Ann. is about 230 l.

	2 Surveyors of the Streets.

IN Green-dragon-alley, is a Work-houſe for the Poor.

THIS Pariſh is taken out of that of St. Dunſtan's Stepney, and conſiſts of the Hamlet of Lime-houſe, and Part of the Hamlet of Ratcliff.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

In the Hamlet of Ratcliff.

Part of Butcher-row, and therein Dolphin-yard, and Sugar-loaf-court; Part of White-horſe-ſtreet, and therein Roſe-yard, Roſe-lane, in which is London-ſtreet; Part of Sermon-lane, Ratcliff-croſs, and therein Pump-yard, Queen-ſtreet, and therein Noah's-ark-alley, Ratcliff-narrow-ſtreet, and therein Crowder's-rents, Three-fox-yard, and Brand's-court.

In the Hamlet of Lime-houſe.

Lime-houſe, Fore-ſtreet, and therein Toytes-alley, in which is Diamond-court, Green-dragon-alley, Taplet's-yard, Rickman's-rents, Lime-houſe-bridge, Lime-houſe-bridge-dock, Ship-alley, Shoulder-of-mutton-alley, Globe-alley, Sun-and-gun-yard, Phillips's-rents, Vine-ſtreet, Nightingale-lane, and therein Chivers-court, Bull-court, Connoway's-yard, Frog-iſland, Rope-makers-field, and therein Jenkins's-rents, Well-alley, Limbury's-rents, Church-lane, Dick's-ſhore, and therein Dick's-ſhore-alley, Collingbourn's-rents, White's-rents, Thomas-rents, Ship-alley, Lime-houſe-corner, Three-colt-court, and therein Gun-lane, Wood's-yard, Pump-yard, Mulberry-yard, Lime-houſe-cauſeway, and therein the Orchard, Bennet's-court, Lime-houſe-hole, Lime-kiln-hill, and therein Lime-houſe-dock.

Number of Houſes are about 1000.

AT Poplar, that lieth within the Pariſh of Stepney, is a Chapel with an Alms-houſe for poor Seamen; both belonging to the old Eaſt India Company. Here is the Iſle of Dogs, a fine rich Level for fattening of Cattle. Eight Oxen fed here here formerly were ſold for 34 l. a Piece; and a Hog fed here, was ſold for 20 l. and 6 d. Here is alſo a well known wet Dock, called Blackwall Dock, belonging to Sir Henry Johnſon, Kt. very convenient for Building and Receiving Ships. About 20 Years ago, more or leſs, in breaking up an old Ship, that was returned from the Eaſt-Indies, they found a ſolid Piece of Oak in the Keel, pierced eight Inches deep, with a kind of Horn, that ſtuck faſt in it. The Maſter of the Veſſel did remember, than when they were on the main Sea, the Ship received a ſudden Shock, which made it ſtop for the preſent, tho' it were in full Sail. At firſt, they thought they had ſtruck on a Rock, but conſidering where they were, they concluded that could not be; and they found no Harm, tho' they went down and ſearched the Bottom of the Ship; but they obſerved the Sea bloody: Now the Cauſe appeared that it was ſome Sea Fiſh that ſtruck the Ship, and broke his Horn in the Side of it.

In the Year 1705, were two Whales of different Sorts brought, and cut up at Blackwall. One of them was the Parma Ceti Whale, which had a great deal of Blubber, a filthy Stuff ſo called, coming out of the Brain, falling from him; which, by the Direction of Dr. Meade, was cured, and made excellent Parma Ceti, to the great Benefit of the Apothecary, into whoſe Hand this Blubber came. The other was that kind of Whale, whence the Whalebone is made.

Now for Tower-Hill; the Plain there is likewiſe greatly diminiſhed by Encroachments, for building of ſmall Tenements; and taking in of Garden Plots, Timber-Yards, and what they liſt.

From this Tower-Hill towards Aldgate, (being a long continued Street) among other Buildings, was the Abbey of Nuns, called the Minorites or Minories, whereof we have ſpoken. And on the other Side of the Street lieth the Ditch, without the Wall of the City, from the Tower unto Aldgate, now all built upon.

From Aldgate Eaſt again, lieth a large Street, repleniſhed with Buildings, to wit, on the North Side the Pariſh Church of Saint Botolph, and ſo other Buildings to Hog-lane, and to the Bars on both Sides.

Alſo, without the Bars, both the Sides of the Streets are peſtered with Cottages and Alleys, even up to Whitechapel Church; and almoſt half a Mile beyond it, into the common Field; all which ought to lie open and free for all Men: But this common Field, being ſometime the Beauty of this City, on that Part, is ſo incroached upon, by building of filthy Cottages, and with other Purpreſters, ——Incloſures, and Lay-Stalls, that (notwithſtanding all Proclamations, and Acts of Parliament to the contrary) in ſome Places, it ſcarce remaineth a ſufficient Highway for the Meeting of Carriages, and Drovers of Cattle; much leſs is there any fair, pleaſant, or wholeſome Way, for People to walk on Foot; which is no ſmall Blemiſh to ſo famous a City, to have ſo unſavory, and unſeemly an Entry or Paſſage thereunto.

In the Time of Queen Elizabeth, ſome Part of the Way and Street hereabouts without Aldgate, particularly from the two Poſts called the Bars, to a Corner Houſe, then in the Occupation of one Thomas Sparrow, was very miry and deep. And beſide this Place in the High Street, there were other Places extraordinary bad to paſs, lying more towards the South, where the Queen's Carriages uſed to paſs from the Minories, Mary Graces [that is, where now are the King's Victualling Houſes for the Navy] and Ratcliff, where that Queen had Storehouſes; and ſo to the Tower: Namely, a Way leading from the Old Cage, ſo called, in the Pariſh of St. Botolph, to the North End of Nightingale-lane, in the Pariſh of St. Mary Matfelon; and another Way between the ſaid Old Cage, and a Mill, called Craſſe Mill, in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Mary. And as theſe bad Ways were very inconvenient to the Queen's Carriages, ſo for the Carriages of all others. The great Paſſages here, Courſe and Recourſe of the Queen's Subjects, both on Horſeback and on Foot, became ſo miry and foul, in Winter time eſpecially, that it was very troubleſome to all that had Occaſion to uſe theſe Ways. Whereupon, an Act of Parliament was made in the 13th of the ſaid Queen, that from Michaelmas, 1572, all theſe Places ſhould be paved with Stone; every Man to do his Part, along by their Manors, Lands and Tenements, adjoining to the ſaid Ways.

And the ſame Act made Proviſion for ſecuring the Overflowing of the Tower Ditch by great Quantities of Water that fell often upon the Ways between the ſaid two Poſts near Aldgate, called the Bars, and the Corner Houſe occupied by Sparrow aforeſaid (which ſeems to be there where the Lane is, now called Brick-lane) whereby the Tower Ditch might in ſhort Time be filled up: It was ordered therefore, that the ſaid Waters on both Sides the ſaid Highway, ſhould have their Fall and Courſe only down by the ſaid Corner Houſe: And from thence into a Ditch lying on the North Side of Hog-lane, and ſo to the Common Sewer at the Eaſt End of the ſaid Hog-lane.

The PARISH of St. MARY Whitechapel.

THE Church here, Stow ſaith, was a Sort of Chapel of Eaſe to the Pariſh of Stebinhith, or Stepney, and was in his Time called St. Mary Matfelon, upon the following Occaſion:

About the Year 1428, in the 6th of King Henry VI. a devout Widow of that Pariſh had long Time cheriſhed and brought up, of Alms, a certain Frenchman, or Briton born, who moſt unkindly and cruelly in a Night murdered the ſaid Widow ſleeping in her Bed, and after fled with ſuch Jewels and other Stuff of hers, as he might carry. But he was ſo freſhly purſued, that (for Fear) he took the Church of St. George in Southwark, and challenged Privilege of Sanctuary there, and ſo abjured the King's Land. Then the Conſtables (having Charge of him) brought him into LONDON, intending to have conveyed him Eaſtward; but ſo ſoon as he was come into the Pariſh, where before he had committed the Murder, the Wives caſt upon him ſo much Filth and Ordure of the Street, that (notwithſtanding the beſt Reſiſtance made by the Conſtables) they ſlew him out of Hand: And for this Fact it hath been ſaid, the Pariſh purchaſed that Name of Mary Matfelon, but it is in Record called Villa beatæ Mariæ de Matfelon, in the 21ſt of King Richard II.

More we read, that in the Year 1336, the 10th of King Edward III. the Biſhop of Alba, Cardinal, and Parſon of Stebinhith, Procurator-General in England, preſented a Clerk to be Parſon in the Church of Bleſſed Mary, called Matfelon, without Aldgate of LONDON, &c.

And therefore it is a more probable Account of the Name Matfelon, aſcribed to St. Mary, the Patroneſs of this Church, viz. that the Word is

is of Hebrew or Syriac Extraction, מטפל or מטפלן, i. e. Matfel, or Matfelon, ſignifying as much as Quæ nuper enixa eſt, i. e. She that hath lately brought forth a Son: And ſo the Word is fitly applied to St. Mary; and it is as much as St. Mary lately delivered of her holy Child: And it is probable her Image antiently ſtood in that Church with a Babe in her Arms, as ſometimes ſhe was wont to be figured or depainted. Nor ought any to ſay, that this is a far-fetched Notion of the Word, though brought as far as from Syria, conſidering what great Numbers of People formerly went out of theſe Weſtern Parts, and particularly out of England to the Holy Land, to viſit the Holy Sepulchre, and to fight againſt the Infidels. And that theſe Pilgrims and holy Warriers brought home ſome Smatterings of the Language with them. And that divers Oriental Words were uſed in England in former Times, appears from ſome old Epitaphs. In St. Faith's, under St. Paul's, was this upon one John Abney, a learned Preacher belonging to the Queen, Archilevita Dei Rabi Abnus Alme Joannes, &c. where he is ſtiled Rabi, or Rabbi and Archilevita, Titles given to the Jewiſh Maſters and Prieſts. And in the ſame Church, on another Monument, the Hebrew Word Adar, for the Month of March, is made uſe of.

X bis cum quinis in Adar bonus eſt ſibi finis.

So that, in ſhort, it is not unlikely (ſince in theſe Matters we can only conjecture) but that ſome Knight, that had dwelt in the Holy Land, was the Founder of this Church of Whitechapel, and dedicated it to St. Mary with the Babe in her Arms, which in thoſe Eaſtern Countries was called Matfelon.

This Church was founded about 400 Years ago, and how long before is uncertain; but Anno 1336, the Miniſter of Stepney was Patron of this Church, as Mr. Stow obſerves. It was enlarged, and the South Iſle added, in 1591; 390 l. was alſo laid out in its Repair by the Pariſh, Anno 1633; and eſcaping the Calamity of Fire in 1666, it (being old) was taken down and rebuilt in the Year 1673, towards which ſeveral contributed generouſly, more eſpecially William Meggs, Eſq; who was the principal Benefactor thereto.

As to the Nature and Order of the Buildings; the Walls are Brick, the Quoins, the Window-Caſes and other Ornaments on the Outſide is Stone; the Steeple is Bolder, and ſome ſquared Stone; the Roof is ſupported with four Stone Columns, and eight Pilaſters, of the Corinthian Order; the Roof at the four Angels being lower than the reſt. The Floor is paved with Stone, and that of the Chancel one Step higher than that of the Church, and at the Altar it is two Steps higher than the reſt of the Chancel: The Windows are of a Quadrangular and Circular Form.

The Ornament on the Outſide are Pediments, Cartouches, and Pine-Apples; the Roof within is adorned with Arches and Pannels of Fret-Work; and under that a Cantalivre Cornice with the Columns and Pilaſters aforeſaid, and Porthole Windows ſurrounded with Fret-Work.

There are Galleries on the North Weſt and South Sides of the Church, with Bolection-Work Fronts painted White, and veined; the two latter repaired, Anno 1684, at the proper Coſt of the two Hamlets of this Pariſh. The Pews are well made of Oak, with which the Church is wainſcotted ſeven Feet and a half high, and higher about the Altar; and there are two Door-Caſes of the ſame Kind of Timber.

The Altar-Piece is adorned with two Columns, their Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order; the Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, and the Pater-Noſter and Creed are black on Gold. In the Pediment is placed the King's Arms with Helmet, Creſt, and Supporters; all which Altar-Piece is Timber, and has Enrichments carved of the aforeſaid Vaſes, Cherubims, Fruit, Leaves, and Feſtoons, and incloſed with Rail and Balliſter.

Length of the Church 93 Feet, Breadth 63, Altitude 38, and that of the Tower and Turret about 85, wherein are ſix Bells to ring in Peal.

To ſhew the never-dying Love of theſe Pariſhioners, to their Paſtor Mr. William Craſhawe, the following Inſcription was ſet on the Gallery in the South Iſle:

To the Honour of God, the Advancement of Religion, and in Thankfulneſs to God for the ſafe Return of our hopeful and gracious Prince Charles, from the Danger of his Spaniſh Journey, this Gallery was erected at the Charge of this Pariſh, Anno 1623, and the ſeventh Year of Maſter Craſhawe's Reſidence.

As here, ſo in many other Places, his Name is remembered.

MONUMENTS.

On the North Wall is a handſome Monument thus inſcribed:

I know that my Redeemer liveth, Job xix. 25.

To the Honour of Jeſus Chriſt, to the Praiſe of Piety, to the Example of Poſterity, and for the Preſervation of the Godly Memory of Elizabeth, his moſt worthily beloved Wife; in whom (by a rare Conjunction) Godlineſs with Comelineſs, Wiſdom with Virtue, Beauty with Chaſtity, Youth with Diſcretion, and Diſcretion with Devotion, were moſt ſweetly combined. Who, in the Prime of her Years, upon her firſt Child, yielded up by untimely Death (as herſelf had often foretold) her Soul to God, her Life to Nature, her Body to the Earth, her Memory to the World, and left to the penſive Earth a dear bought Son, to her Friends Heavineſs, hard to be removed; to her Husband's Sorrow, not to be expreſſed; and to all that knew her, a longing Deſire after her.

William Craſhawe, her moſt ſad and ſorrowful Husband, Paſtor of this Church, moſt unwilling to part with her, but moſt willing to honour her with many Sighs and Tears, dedicating this Monument, in Aſſurance of her glorious Reſurrection. She died Octob. 8, in the 24th Year of her Age.

A handſome Monument with Iron Grates in the Church-yard:

To the Memory of Alice Shelton, Daughter of Sir Ralph Shelton, of Shelton-Hall in Norfolk, Kt. who had Iſſue by her firſt Husband, Thomas Waller, Eſq; nine Sons and nine Daughters: And by her ſecond Husband, William Wrooe, of London, Merchant-Taylor, had Iſſue two Sons and one Daughter. But had no Iſſue by her Third and laſt Husband, Tobias Wilkinſon, 1630.

ANOTHER cloſe by the former:

Favour is deceitful, and Beauty is Vanity; but a Woman that feareth the Lord, ſhe ſhall be praiſed.

Here lieth buried that vertuous Thamozin, that gracious young Woman, the faithful Wife of Maſter William Eeles of Lime-houſe, Mariner. This Mirror of young Women departed this Life on the 10th of July, 1620, ſhe being of the Age of 25 Years, and was Mother of a Son and a Daughter. But Thamozin the Daughter, departed this Life on the 18th of December 1621, being of the Age of ſix Years, and lieth here buried.

Every wiſe Woman buildeth her Houſe, but the Fooliſh plucketh it down with her Hands.

Remember,

As you are now, ſo was ſhe:
As ſhe is now, ſo you muſt be.
William Eeles.

Later Monuments erected, and flat Stones laid to preſerve the Memory of Perſons buried in St. Mary Matfelon's, are theſe:

In the Chancel:

M. S. To the Memory of Judith Meggs, Widow, the beloved Wife of William Meggs, of this Pariſh, Eſq; &c. 1662. Aged 83. And the ſaid William her Husband, 1620.

William Meggs, Eſq; and James Meggs, D.D. their two Sons, cauſed this Monument to be erected.

Some happy Hand may thus aſpire to ſave
From Death's Defeat thy Memory; but to grave
Thy Virtues, what Diamond's Point t'expreſs
Thy Wiſdom, Meekneſs, Graces, Holineſs;
What a ſeraphick Plume would it require?
Tymathes draw thy Veil, here Art retire.

THE Arms on this Monument are: Or, a Chevron ingrailed Azure, between three Maſcles Gules; on a Chief Sable, a Greyhound Courant Argent.

Impaled with Sable on a Chevron, between three Lions Heads eraſed Or; as many Ogreſſes.

RIGHT againſt the laſt, on the North Side of the Chancel, and uniform therewith, is this Inſcription:

Memoriæ Sacrum:

Under the Black Marble doth reſt, until he ſhall awake out of Sleep, whatſoever was mortal of William Meggs, Eſq; who with great Alacrity of Mind, from a ſtrong Hope, and Chriſtian Belief that his Body ſhall ariſe again at the laſt Advent of Chriſt our Saviour to Judgment, ſurrendered up his Soul to Almighty God, the 28th of May, 1678; who was a moſt worthy Member of this Pariſh, and the principal Benefactor towards re-edifying this Houſe of God.

To whoſe Memory his loving Nephew, Sir William Goulſton, in much Gratitude hath erected this Monument.

Arms are the ſame with the Firſt, under the laſt Inſcription.

Jonathan Ambroſe, Eſq; 1699. Alſo his Daughter Theodoſia, 1701.

On a grey Marble Grave-Stone in the Chancel, is this Inſcription:

In hope of a bleſſed Reſurrection,

Here lyeth interr'd the Body of Bathſhua Marſh, one that truly loved and feared God, and heartily embraced the Faith of a crucified Jeſus, laying hold of him, as her only Saviour for Salvation. She was alſo a moſt Indulgent and Affectionate Wife; a dear, loving, and moſt tender Mother; an honourable, wiſe, and moſt faithful Friend; ſhe moſt compaſſionately ſympathized with the Afflicted, and moſt bountifully diſtributed to the Poor; a moſt kind and diſcreet Governeſs of Servants: In Sum, one that abounded in every good Word and Work. She departed this Life. Jan. 8. 1701. Aged 60.

As you deſire to die well, remember to imitate this great Example.

On a Grave Stone, entering into the Chriſtening Pew, this Inſcription:

Here lye the Bodyes of two Sons, and one Daughter of William Grace, and Sarah his Wife of this Pariſh. John died May, 1696, in the 10th Year of his Age; Sarah, September, 1700, at five Years and five Months; William put on Immortality, the 1ſt of May, 1701, in the 17th of his Age.

Dilectiſſimi & Jucundiſſimi in vita ſua;
In Sepulcro quoque ſuo non ſeparati ſunt.

Mary Criſp, late Wife of Henry Criſp, 1699. And Henry Criſp, 1701.

William and Anne, Children of Captain Edward Rhodes and Mary his Wife.

AT the Weſt End of the South Iſle, on a grey Marble Grave-Stone this Inſcription:

Here lyes the Body of Captain Francis Maynard of this Pariſh, who departed this Life, Jan. 13, 1699, aged 40.

Alſo

Alſo the Son of Captain and Elizabeth Maynard lyes buried here aged 11 Months, three Weeks, and two Days.

In this cold Tomb, his ſilent Aſhes reſt,
Whoſe pious Soul is number'd with the Bleſt.
From Truth, in this falſe World, he never ſwerv'd,
But God and King with full Devotion ſerv'd;
To both obedient, to his Country juſt,
True to his Friend, and faithful to his Truſt;
Gen'rous to all, and to his Neighbour kind;
Liberal to the Poor, and of a Noble Mind.
Moral in all the Actions of his Life,
And a good Husband to a virtuous Wife.

Alſo the Body of Thomas their Son, who died, February the 27th, 1699. Aged ſeven Months.

A Hatchment for the Honourable Col. Thomas Lewis, Eſq; 1689.

Mary, the Daughter of William and Elizabeth Hollier, 1687.

On a Pillar, South:

Thomas, James, Daniel and John Caine, Sons of Captain John Caine.

On a Tomb Stone in the South Eaſt Cœmetery, this Inſcription:

Here reſteth the Body of Thomas Brown, Obiit Auguſt 29. 1665. Aged 50 Years; with ſix Sons and one Daughter; alſo Ann formerly his, but ſince the beloved Wife of Richard Charter, who, in Memory of her Virtues, hath erected this Monument.

She died May the 28th, 1681.

She whoſe unblemiſh'd Life, two Husbands bleſs'd,
From Cares and Labour, now is come to reſt.
Chaſt Love and prudent Charity, all that's good
She daily ſhew'd, as well as underſtood.
The Poor have loſt a Friend, I a good Wife;
But ſhe I truſt hath gain'd eternal Life.

Churchyard, North:

Mary Butler, Wife of John Butler, Citizen and Goldſmith of LONDON, 1693; and Martha and Thomas their Children.

A Grave-Stone in the Chancel at the Steps to the Altar, covering the Body of Captain Joſias Crowe, whoſe Example is worthy the Notice of Poſterity. As he was a gallant and brave Commander, ſo he was no leſs a meek and humble Chriſtian, and a ſincere good Man; truly pious toward God, and generous and beneficent to Men. He was a publick Benefactor to this holy Place, a Friend to the Helpleſs, a tender Father, and a careful Husband. And as he lived ſo he died, in a certain Hope of the Reſurrection of the Juſt. Let us follow him in his Life, as we muſt do to the Grave. Obiit 21 Sept. Anno. Dom. 1714. Ætat. ſuæ 56.

A Tomb in the Church-yard for Alice Jordan, late Wife of John Jordan of this Pariſh, March 14, 1701-2. Aged 52.

Stand, Reader, and ſpend a Tear,
And think of me, who now lies here;
And while you read the State of me,
Think on the Glaſs that runs for thee;
Let not this World, your Thoughts betray;
But think upon your dying Day.
In Chriſt alone, I only truſt,
To riſe in Number of the Juſt.

Alſo John Jordan, Nephew to the ſaid John, is here buried.

Another Tomb in the Church-yard for Thomas Bridgewater, Son of Thomas Bridgewater of this Pariſh, Silkthrower and Citizen of London. Sept. the 10th, 1704. Aged one Year and four Months.

No change of Place, nor Climate can prevent
The Stroke of Death, when once Man's Life is ſpent.

At the Weſt End of the Church-yard, a handſome raiſed Monument for James Roberts, late of this Pariſh, Silkthrower, 1688. Alſo three James's, William, and Samuel, his Sons.

THIS Pariſh hath an Houſe belonging to the Miniſter. It is ſituate on the Eaſt End of the Church; lately built of Brick. A Carpenter now dwells there.

THERE is a fair Free-ſchool alſo belonging to the Pariſh, for poor Children of the Pariſh to be taught gratis. It is ſituate on the Left Hand fronting the Street that leads out of Town, founded in King Charles the Second's Reign, by Mr. Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Pariſh. But wanting Endowment, it lately, by good Providence, was enriched by a Gift of 1000 l. As is expreſſed by an Inſcription on a Gallery in the Church, Weſt, where the Children of the School ſit, viz.

Anno 1701. A worthy Benefactor, unknown, gave 1000 l. towards the further Maintenance of the poor Children, educated at the School-houſe of Whitechapel, Towns-end: Erected and built at the proper Coſt and Charges of Mr. Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Pariſh. Which 1000 l. purchaſed 55 l. a Year, at Eaſt-Tilbury, in the County of Eſſex; being chiefly managed and compleated by the Care and Induſtry of

Mr. Richard Welton, Rector.

And { Mr. John Watmore, Mr. Thomas Palmer, Mr. Benj. Deſarmeus } Churchwardens.

THERE are about 80 Boys taught at this School. This nobly minded Perſon is yet unknown, that gave gave this 1000 l. but they ſay it was ſome Lady, who going out of Town, ſaw the School, and was informed of the great Number of poor People, Inhabitants of the Pariſh, not able to give their Children Education.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of Brazen-Noſe-College in Oxford; the Value is ſaid to be 300 l. per Ann. rated in the King's Books at 31 l. 17 s. 5 d. Half-penny.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. Shippen, Principal of Brazen-Noſe College; and the Lecture-ſhip is in Conteſt in the Biſhop's Court.

Number of Houſes are between 3 and 4000.

GOING out of Town from Whitechapel, Eaſtward, are two Rows of Alms-houſes on each Side of the Way, oppoſite to each other. That on the Left Hand, belongeth to the Pariſh, and containeth 16 Rooms, for as many poor Widows, who have a weekly Salary paid by the Pariſh. That on the Right Hand of a later Foundation, was built by William Meggs, Eſq; for 12 poor Widows; that is, ſuch as formerly, or their Husbands, had paid Scot and Lot to the Pariſh; they receive 5 l. a-Piece, yearly; formerly they had a Portion of Coals allowed them alſo, but it is now ſtopped: There is a pretty Piece of Garden-Ground behind their Houſe, belonging to them. The poor People are put into this Alms-Houſe, as the Rooms become vacant, by Sir James Etheridge, who married Mr. Gouldſtone's Widow, which Gouldſtone was Nephew to Mr. Meggs the Founder.

IN Whitechaple-ſtreet is a Court, called his Majeſty's Court of Record for the Manor of Stepney, for Tryal of Debts under 5 l. contracted within the ſaid Manor.

HERE is alſo a Priſon for Debtors, called Whitechapel Priſon.

HERE are two Free-ſchools in one Houſe, erected at the proper Coſt and Charges of Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Pariſh: The Maſter has 30 l. per Ann. for teaching 60 Boys, and the Miſtreſs has 20 l. yearly, for inſtructing 40 Girls. The Intereſt of the 1000 l. before-mentioned to this Uſe.

The Pariſh of St. DUNSTAN's STEPNEY.

NEXT adjoining to Whitechapel, on the Eaſt, is the Pariſh of Stepney, waſhed on the South with the River Thames, and touching on the Weſt and North Sides upon Aldgate, Biſhopſgate, Shoreditch, and Hackney. The Church is called St. Dunſtan's Stepney, written antiently Stebunhith, or Stephenhith. And if there were any antient Church or Chapel hereabouts dedicated to St. Stephen, it would be probable to ſuppoſe the Name to imply a Landing Place (as Hith ſignifies) for Boats and Veſſels at St. Stephen; or elſe, perhaps, from the Steepneſs of the Hith there.

SOMETHING may be ſaid of this Pariſh in general, and afterwards of ſome Particulars in it more eſpecially. It was a Pariſh of very great Extent, inſomuch that ſome Pariſhes have been taken out of it; as Whitechapel (which, according to the Name was once a Chapel of Eaſe to it) St. Paul's Shadwell, and of later Times, St. John's at Wapping, which belongs to Whitechapel, and three others, viz. St. George's in Middleſex, St. Anne's Limehouſe, and Chriſt-Church, Spittlefields. There were alſo in Stepney Pariſh ſome Chapels of Eaſe, as one at Poplar, and not long ſince ſince another was on the Northern Part of Bethnal-green; but that is now turned into Houſes: So that Stepney may be eſteemed rather a Province than a Pariſh, eſpecially if we add, that it contains in it both City and Country; for towards the South Parts, where it lies along the River Thames for a great Way, by Limehouſe, Poplar, and Radcliff to Wapping, it is furniſhed with every Thing that may entitle it to the Honour (if not of a City, yet) of a great Town; Populouſneſs, Traffick, Commerce, Havens, Shipping, Manufacture, Plenty and Wealth, the Crown of all. And were it not eclipſed by the Luſtre of the neighbouring City, it would appear one of the conſiderableſt Towns of the Kingdom, and would give place to very few Cities in England. And among other Places of Remark, at Blackwall is a wet Dock belonging to Sir Henry Johnſon, of ſufficient Bigneſs to contain Ships.

On the other Side Northward, this Pariſh hath the Face of a Country, affording every Thing to render it pleaſant, Fields, Paſture-Grounds for Cattle, and formerly Woods and Marſhes; for in old Writings we read of the Biſhop's Woods and Stebunhith Marſhes.

The Biſhop of LONDON had a Manor within this Pariſh of Stepney, and two Woods lying about it, which Richard de Graveſend, ſome Time Biſhop of LONDON, the 20th of King Edward I. about the Year 1292, was minded to incloſe for a Park; and for that Purpoſe had a Grant of free Warren from the ſaid King, but the Citizens of LONDON would not ſuffer it. As appears by this Record remaining in the Chamber of LONDON.

" On Thurſday next before the Feaſt of St. " Gregory, the Pope, the 20th of King Edw. I. " in the Preſence of Ralph de Sandwich, Cuſtos " of the City of LONDON, Robert de Baſing, John de Bacquil, William de Hereford, " Ralph de Blunt, Robert de Roks, Nicholas de " Winton, William de Mazeliner, William de " Farndon, &c. Aldermen of the ſame City, and " four Men of every Ward ſummoned, a Petition of the venerable Father R. de Graves- " end, Biſhop of LONDON, was ſhewn to " them by the Cuſtos, to this Purpoſe: That " the ſame Biſhop might incloſe his two Woods " in the Town of Stebunhith, lying about " his Manor in the ſame Town, and to put " wild Beaſts or Deer in them: Which four of " each Ward being choſen by the Commonalty " taking Counſel upon this Matter, anſwered " by themſelves preciſely, that from the Time " whereof no Memory is exrant, they had uſed " to take and hunt within the aforeſaid Woods, " and without Hares, Foxes, Conies, and other " Beaſts, where and when they would. And " they ſay, that they do not believe, that the " Lord the King granted him any Thing in Prejudice of the City's Liberties. Whereupon they " ſay, that they deſire to uſe the Liberties " which hitherto they have uſed: And they " pray, that the ſame Biſhop may hold his " Woods in the Form and Manner as his Anceſtors and Predeceſſors have held them: And " they will not conſent that he may incloſe " them, nor will they grant him any War- " ren, &c.

Mile-end Town ſtands here, built with many good Houſes, inhabited with divers Sea Captains and Commanders of Ships.

It uſed alſo to ſerve for Country Retirement to Citizens, and other wealthy Men; witneſs thoſe many fine Seats and noble Structures that appear ſcattered about in thoſe Parts; for ſo it was eſpecially in antient Times, when Courtiers and Perſons of the greateſt Quality had their Country Houſes here. Among the reſt, the Biſhops of LONDON uſed to retire hither for ſome Hundreds of Years paſt. Matthew Paris ſpeaks of Roger Niger, a Biſhop of LONDON that died at his Manſion-Houſe of Stebunhith above 400 Years ago. Henry Waleis, Mayor of LONDON, lived at Stebunhith, and (which is more) at whoſe Houſe, Anno 1299, the 27th of King Edward I. that King held a Parliament, being then Mayor of LONDON.

Here the Lord Cromwel, Earl of Eſſex, had a Houſe. Henry Colet, ſome Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, had Houſe and Lands here, which deſcended to his Son John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's. The Founder of Jeſus School by St. Paul's, who gave a fair Houſe (and as it ſeems, that very Houſe wherein he dwelt near the Church) to the ſaid School, for a Place for the Maſter and Scholars to retire to, when the Plague ſhould be at LONDON. The Dean often loved to retire hither from the City for Air and Contemplation. Sir Thomas More, who wanted Colet's Company, having been abſent abroad, in a Letter intices him home, and among other Arguments he uſes for that Purpoſe, one is, " That the Country about his Pariſh of Stepney " (as he called it) whereof he ought alſo not to " have the like Care, afforded him the leaſt De- " lights to thoſe which he had in the Place " wherein he then was; and from thence he " might, upon Occaſion, come to LONDON, " as into an Inn, and prayed him therefore to " return for Stepney's ſake, which mourned for " his Abſence, no leſs than Children did for the " Abſence of their loving Mother.

Country Houſes were alſo within this Pariſh built in Spittle-fields, Mile-end, and Bethnal-green, Bow, and Old-ford. In Bethnal-green was a fair Houſe built in Queen Elizabeth's Reign by one John Kirby. Fleetwood, Recorder of LONDON, in a Letter writ about 1578, to the Lord Treaſurer, mentioned the Death of certain rich Citizens, as Fairfax and Bowres, and of John Kirby that built a fair Houſe upon Bethnal-green; which Houſe, lofty like a Caſtle, occaſioned certain Rhimes, abuſive of him and ſome other City Builders of great Houſes, and had prejudiced themſelves thereby. Kirkebie's (or Kirbie's) Caſtle, and Fiſher's Folly, Spinola's Pleaſure, and Megſe's Glory, &c. And this Kirkie's Houſe, no doubt, is that now called The blind Beggar's Houſe there. Perhaps Kirbie beggered himſelf by it.

The North Weſt Parts of this Pariſh, (Spittle-fields and Parts adjacent) of later Times became a great Harbour for poor Proteſtant Strangers, Walloons and French: Who as in former Days, ſo of late, have been forced to become Exiles from their own Country for their Religion, and for the avoiding cruel Perſecution. Here they have found Quiet and Security, and ſettled themſelves in their ſeveral Trades and Occupations; Weavers eſpecially. Whereby God's Bleſſing ſurely is not only brought upon the Pariſh, by receiving poor Strangers; (Come ye Bleſſed of my Father, &c. for I was a Stranger, and ye took me in:) but alſo a great Advantage hath accrued to the whole Nation, by the rich Manufacturers of weaving Silks, Stuffs, and Camlets; which Art they brought along with them: And this Benefit alſo to the Neighbourhood; that theſe Strangers may ſerve for Patterns of Thrift, Honeſty, Induſtry and Sobriety.

It is to be further remarked of this Pariſh of Stepney, on the Southern Parts of it eſpecially, that it is one of the greateſt Nurſeries of Navigation, and Breeders of Seamen in England, the moſt ſerviceable Men in the Nation; without which England could not be England. For they they are its Strength and Wealth. And by how much the more Honour and Uſe our Mariners are to us, ſo much the greater Fame deſervedly accrues unto this Pariſh, that breeds and brings them up in ſuch great Number.

Stepney antiently was both a Parſonage and a Vicarage, to be held by two diſtinct Perſons. And the Parſon or Rector had a Right of Patronage to preſent a Vicar: For in an old Letter from King Richard III. to Thomas Kemp, Biſhop of LONDON; William Kemp, Deacon and Rector of the Parochial Church of St. Dunſtan's of Stepnethe, is called Verus Patronus Vicariæ hamoi. Eccleſiæ; i. e. True Patron of the Vicarage of this Church; which William had granted to Nicholas Sudbury, Haberdaſher of the City of LONDON, the next Advowſon, or jus Patronatus, of the ſaid Vicarage; one Richard Luke, Clerk, being then actually Vicar: Upon which Richard's Death, the ſaid Sudbury preſented Degory Watur, Prieſt, Batchelor of Degrees; but this gave Occaſion to a Conteſt about the Year 1484: For then the Biſhop of LONDON had a Mind that another ſhould enjoy the ſaid Vicarage, namely, Richard Fox, [the ſame, as it ſeems, that was afterwards Biſhop of Winchester, and Keeper of the Great Seal] who then was a Student in Paris, and a great Friend to Henry ap Tudder, Earl of Richmond, which the ſaid King Richard called his Great Rebel. The Endeavour to prefer him, ſhewed that Biſhops ſecret Good-Will to the ſaid Earl and his Cauſe. Hence when the ſaid Watur came to the Biſhop for his Inſtitution and Induction to the Living, he delayed and put him off, till it was lapſed. Watur upon this made Complaint to the King and his Council, and prayed his Highneſs for Remedy to aſſiſt him in his juſt Cauſe. Whereupon the King ſent once, and again, to the Biſhop in the ſaid Clerk's behalf, that he would inſtitute and induct him lawfully preſented into the ſaid Vicarage; but the Biſhop making Anſwer by a Meſſenger, named John Aſheby, one of the Clerks of the Signet, that if indeed it were found and proved, that the ſaid Fox were with the King's Traitors, then he willingly committed his Right and Authority to the King, and he might himſelf preſent a Perſon, as he thought good. The King ſeeing theſe Delays, he had the Preſentation put into his Hands by the Patron. And then by a third Letter, the King let the Biſhop underſtand further, of the Certainty of Fox's conſorting with his Traytor; and that he being now Patron both by the Biſhop's Conceſſion, and the ſaid Nicolas Sudbury's Right, did preſent the ſaid Watur his Clerk; and deſired him, canonically to inſtitute him to the ſaid Vicarage, all Exceptions and Delays laid aſide. Dated from the King's Place of the Wardrobe in the City of LONDON, 22d of January, 1484

ONE of the Vicars of this Church, named Jerom, was burnt in Smithfield, in King Henry the Eighth's Time, for the Profeſſion and Love of the Goſpel, about the Year 1540.

ANOTHER, and, as it ſeems, the next that ſucceeded, had been Abbot of the Abbey on Tower-hill, and put in here upon the Diſſolution and Surrender of his Houſe. He was a ſtout Papiſt, and his Predeceſſor was a ſtedfaſt Goſpeller. In his Time there was a Choir and Singing in this Church, and an excellent Ring of Bells: And when any Sermon had been preached there, which he did not like, as girding upon any Popiſh Errors and Corruptions, or commending the Evangelical Doctrine, he would ſometimes ſtand up, and preſently command the Bells to ring, or the Singing to begin in the Choir, while the Sermon was preaching; and ſometimes he would interrupt the Preacher in the midſt of his Diſcourſe. There were many Perſons in this Pariſh well diſpoſed to the Goſpel, who being grieved with this Vicar, for theſe and the like Doings, complained of him to Archbiſhop Cranmer; and being cited before him at Croydon, under King Edward VI, the good Archbiſhop gave him a gentle Reprimand, and ſent him home.

THE Parſonage and Vicarage of this Pariſh of Stepney, were purchaſed ſome Years ago, by the Principal and Scholars of King's-hall, and College of Brazen-Noſe, in Oxford, with the perpetual Advowſons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Preſentation to the ſaid Rectory, Parſonage, and Vicarage; which before the ſaid Purchaſe, was granted to others: And alſo the perpetual Advowſons, Donations, and Rights of Parſonage and Preſentation of, and to the Rectory or Parſonage of St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel: And alſo of and to the Rectory or Parſonage of St. John Wapping: And alſo a Leaſe of the ſaid Rectory of Stepney, formerly granted for three Lives, whereof one of them in Being; which ſaid Leaſe, Advowſons, Donations and Rights of Parſonage, were, and ſtood veſted in Truſtees, in Truſt, for the only Benefit of the ſaid Principal and Scholars of the ſaid King's-hall, and College of Brazen-Noſe, and of their Succeſſors and Aſſigns for ever: For the Payment of the Purchaſe Money, they were obliged to borrow, and take up, being great Sums of Money, at Intereſt.

FOR the confirming this Purchaſe to the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and of the Advowſon of Stepney, and the other Churches, and for the Settling the ſame to the Benefit of the ſame College, an Act of Parliament was obtained about the Year 1710. By this Act it was declared, That the Right Rev. Father in God, Henry, late Lord Biſhop of LONDON, Ordinary of the ſaid Church, and John Wright, the Vicar, were willing and deſirous, that upon the Terms there mentioned, the ſaid Vicarage ſhould be for ever united to the ſaid Rectory: And that the ſaid Principal and Scholars ſhould have, and enjoy, the yearly Penſion and Sum of 106 l. to be iſſuing out of the ſaid Rectory and Vicarage ſo united, and out of the Profits of the ſame, toward the reimburſing of the ſaid Sums by them borrowed, and for the better Support of the College and Principal: And ſo by Virtue of this Act, the ſaid Advowſons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Preſentations of thoſe ſeveral Pariſhes; and all their Rights, Members, and Appurtenances, were for ever veſted in, and confirmed to the ſaid Principal and Scholars, their Succeſſors and Aſſigns.

AND the ſaid Vicarage was for ever united and annexed to the Rectory. And the Rectory and Vicarage ſo united, to be deemed and called The Rectory of Stebunheath, alias Stepney. And John Wright, the then Vicar, thereby to be conſtituted and appointed the actual and full Incumbent of the ſaid Rectory and Vicarage, ſo united: And that without any Diſpenſation, inſtituted or inducted into the ſame, he paying, as long as he ſhould remain Incumbent, the Yearly Penſion of 106*l.* unto the ſaid Principal and Scholars, free of all Taxes and Payments whatſoever: The firſt quarterly Payment to begin at the Nativity of St. John the Baptiſt, Anno 1711. And from and after the Death, Reſignation, Ceſſion, &c. of the ſaid Wright, the ſaid Rectory to be, and be conſidered and underſtood in the Law to be, and under the Term of two Moieties or Portions of the ſaid Rectory. And that it ſhall and may be lawful for the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and their Succeſſors, under their common Seal, to preſent two fit Perſons, as Portioniſts, to the ſaid united Rectory, in Manner following: One Perſon, by the Name of the Portioniſt of Stepney, [Ratcliff Stepney:] And the the other Perſon, by the Name of the Portioniſt of Spittle-fields Stepney, who ſhall be ſeverally admitted, inſtituted, and inducted, as two Portioniſts, into their ſeveral Portions of the united Rectory. And the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and their Succeſſors, from Time to Time, upon the Death, Reſignation, Ceſſion, Deprivation, &c. of any of the ſaid Portioniſts, or any other Avoidance, to preſent a fit Perſon, to be inſtituted into ſuch void Portion.

The ſaid two Portioniſts to have their reſpective Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants of the ſaid Pariſh; and alternately to ſerve, viz. one of the ſaid Portioniſts to ſupply the Cure of his Pariſh, and perform all Duties belonging to the ſaid Cure, during the Space of one Month; and the other Portioniſt the ſucceeding Month; and ſo on in continual Succeſſion. And they, from Time to Time, to hold, take, receive and enjoy the ſame Rectory, and the Meſſuages, Glebe, Lands, Rents, Reverſions, Services, to the ſame Rectory and Vicarage appertaining; and all Manner of Tithes as well great as ſmall; and all Fruits, Oblations, Obventions, Perquiſites, &c. equally to be divided and enjoyed between them, Part and Part alike.

The Portioniſts likewiſe to pay to the Principal and Scholars of the ſaid College for ever, at the four moſt uſual Feaſts, and Days of Payment, the yearly Penſion of 106 l. free of and from all Charges, Payments, Taxes, &c. each Portioniſt to pay 53 l. (being his Share) to be made at or in the common Dining-Hall of the ſaid College, and without any Demand to be made for the ſame. Twenty Pounds thereof, Part of the ſaid yearly Penſion, to be paid and applied towards the Maintenance of two Scholars in the ſaid College, and other Uſes; for which the Principal and Scholars purchaſed and applied certain Wood-Grounds, called Aſhenſhaw, &c. which they ſold for the Purchaſe of this Rectory.

John Wright, during the Time he ſhould continue Rector, to hold and enjoy the Vicarage Houſe: And afterward, the firſt Portioniſt, of Ratcliff Stepney Portion, and his Succeſſors, may enjoy the Rectory, or Parſonage Houſe, with the Orchard and Gardens thereunto belonging, after the Determination of a Leaſe of the ſame, now in being, made by Edward Northey, Eſq; now Sir Edward Northey, &c. and others, for the Term of 99 Years, if Charles Earl of Peterborough, and Thomas White, the then Rector of Stepney, ſhould ſo long live, and until the Determination thereof; ſhall and may receive, enjoy and take the annual Rent of 26 l. reſerved by the ſaid Leaſe.

The firſt Portioniſt of Ratcliff Stepney to be liable to pay to the Queen's Majeſty, her Heirs and Succeſſors, the firſt Fruits and Tenths, as the ſaid Rectory of Stepney now ſtandeth charged with in her Majeſty's Books in the firſt Fruits Office: And alſo all Procurations, Synodals, &c. And the firſt Portioniſt of Spittle-fields Stepney's Portion, and his Succeſſors, to enjoy the Vicarage Houſe, with the Orchards, Gardens, &c. from and after the Death of John Wright, until a more convenient Houſe ſhall be provided for him, by and at the Charge of the Pariſhioners of the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney; to be approved of and by the Lord Biſhop of LONDON, and the Principal of the aboveſaid College. And after ſuch Proviſion of an Houſe, the ſaid Vicarage ſhall be and remain to ſuch Perſons as ſhall be the Church-wardens of the ſaid Pariſh for the Time being, for the Uſes and Purpoſes as the Veſtry ſhall from Time to Time order, direct, and appoint. And this ſaid firſt Portioniſt of Spittle-fields Stepney's Portion, and his Succeſſors, ſhall be liable to pay to the Queen, her Heirs and Succeſſors, all ſuch and the ſame firſt Fruits and Tenths, as the ſaid Vicarage of Stepney now ſtands charged with, in her Majeſty's Books in the Firſt-Fruits Office, and alſo all Procurations, Synodals, &c.

It ſhall be lawful for the Principal and Scholars of the ſaid College, and their Succeſſors, upon any Vacancy, from Time to Time, to nominate fit Clerks to officiate in the Chapel at Stratford Bow; and in all other Churches and Chapels, that now are, or ſhall be built within the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney; and to receive the Profits belonging to the ſame.

This Act to be taken and allowed in all Courts of Juſtice, as a publick Act. And all Judges and Juſtices, hereby required as ſuch, to take Notice thereof, without ſpecial Pleading the ſame.

Mr. Wright, the aboveſaid Vicar, died July ——, 1718. So that the ſaid Rectory being actually void, and the Act for dividing and diſpoſing it into two Portions commenced from hence. And accordingly the College have preſented their Clerks.

The Pariſh-Church here is dedicated to St. Dunſtan, of whom ſee an Account in Vol. I. Book II. Chap. II. and the Word Stepney, or Stebunheath, is added, it being the Name of the Manor, or Lordſhip to which this Church belongs.

The Weſt Portico was built in 1612; the Church was repaired and beautified Anno 1685, and again in 1725.

The Walls and Battlements are built of Brick, and wrought Stone cover'd with a Finiſhing, and the Roof with Lead; the Inſide whereof appears arched, and the Pillars, Arches, and Windows, are of the modern Gothick; and the Weſt Porch is of the Tuſcan Order.

There is a Corner Stone in the Portico, on the North Side of the Chancel, where are inſcribed theſe Words: (We ſuppoſe them genuine becauſe permitted to be there.)

Of Carthage great I was a Stone,
O Mortals read with Pity;
Time conſumes all, it ſpareth none,
Man, Mountain, Town, nor City.
Therefore, O Mortals, all bethink
You whereunto you muſt,
Since now ſuch ſtately Buildings
Lye buried in the Duſt.

Touching the Finiſh and Ornament within the Church: It is well pewed with Oak, and wainſcotted about eight Feet high; and the Pulpit is the ſame Sort of Timber.

The Altar-piece conſiſts of four Pilaſters, with Entablature and Pediments of the Corinthian Order, adorned with a Cherub, gilt Capitals, and Portraits of Moſes and Aaron, with the King's Arms carved. Here alſo are the Commandments between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in Black and Gold; alſo three handſome inner Door-Caſes, and Galleries on the North, South, and Weſt Sides of the Church: The Organ-Caſe is embelliſhed with Fames, &c.

The Dimenſions are Length 114 Feet, Breadth 54, Height 35, and the Altitude of the Tower and Turret 92 Feet, wherein are ſix Bells to ring in Peal.

There are the following Benefactors Names on the South Wall of the Church:

John Fuller, Eſq; gave by his Will, dated 1592, the Alms-Houſes on Mile-End-Green.

And out of his Lands in the County of Lincoln, to 12 poor ſingle Men of this Pariſh of good Name, and the Age of 50, or upwards, 50 l. per Ann.

Mr. Thomas Jones, of Ratcliff, gave to the Poor of that Hamlet, 2 l. per Ann.

Mrs. Elizabeth Colbert, 2 l. 5 s. per Ann.

Captain Edward Johnſon in Low-Layton, by his Will in 1669, gave 400 l. to be laid out in a Purchaſe, for the Relief of 20 poor Inhabitants of the Hamlet of Limehouſe, and 30 l. to be diſtributed among the Poor of the ſaid Hamlet.

Captain John Curtis of Mile-End, by his Will, made 1671, gave 60 l. per Ann.

Mr. Richard Underhill, by his Will, made 1671, gave 60 l. to be laid out in Lands, for 12 Penny Loaves to be given every Lord's Day to 12 poor People, and the Reſidue for preaching a Sermon yearly on the Day of his Burial.

Lady Henrietta and Lady Philadelphia Wentworth, gave 200 l. but there could be only recovered by Compoſition 100 l.

IN the Church of St. Dunſtan's Stepney are theſe enſuing Monuments.

In the Chancel:

One antient Monument of Sir Henry Collet, Kt. third Son of Sir Robert Collet, Eſq; twice Lord Mayor of LONDON, and free of the Mercers, and Father to Dr. John Collet, ſome Time Dean of St. Paul's. It was refreſhed by the Company of Mercers in the Year 1605, on the North Side.

The ſaid Sir Henry deceaſed 1510.

This Tomb was repaired the ſecond Time at the Charge of the Company of Mercers, LONDON, the 28th of July, 1697.

Sir John Wolfe, Kt. Maſter, and Sheriff of LONDON.

Laurence Moyer, Surveyor-warden,

William Willis, Houſe-warden,

William Trigg, Renter-warden.

ON the North Side of the Chancel is the following Inſcription:

Here reſteth the Body of Robert Clarke, Eſquire, Sonne of Roger Clarke, Eſquire, late Alderman of the City of LONDON: A Man humble in Proſperity, and a liberal Diſtributer to the Poore, courteous and affable to all; an upright and juſt Dealer in this World; and a moſt religious Seeker of the World to come. He had to Wife Margaretta, Daughter to John Langton, Eſquire, ſome Time Governor of the Engliſh Company in Sprucia, under the King of Polonia; who lived together in great Love and Integrity almoſt ſixe Yeeres. He had by her one only Daughter, named Frances, who lived one Yeere three Quarters; and here lies interred with her moſt deare and loving Father.

In whoſe Memory the ſaid Margaretta, to expreſſe her true Love and Affection, hath cauſed this Monument to be erected. He died the xxx Day of May, Anno Dom. 1610, having lived xxxvi Yeeres.

A little Monument on the South Side of the Chancel, has this Inſcription:

Genero ſuo Gulielmo Dawtrey, quondam Lincolnienſis Hoſpitii ſocio, Willielmi Dawtrey, Suſſexiæ, Armigeri, Filio & Hæredi; viro ingenii accumine, mentis acie, & non vulgari Municipalium Angliæ legum ſcientia præcellenti, Richardus Stonley, Armiger, hoc Amoris, & pietatis ſymbolum poſuit. Obiit 16 Octobris, 1589.

A Monument at the upper End of the Chancel has this Inſcription:

Sacræ Memoriæ

Janæ Nevillæ Dominæ Dethicke Matronæ Religioſiſſimæ, Modeſtiſſimæ, omnibus qua corporis, qua Animi (dum vixit) dotibus ornatiſſimæ: Jeſu Chriſti ſervæ devotiſſimæ; conjugi ſuæ fideliſſimæ, amantiſſimæ. Quæ cum viginti fere duos Annos feliciſſime tranſegerat, Alexander Nevillus, Armiger, hoc nunquam intermorituri amoris ſui Monumentum fieri, Teſtamento curavit. Poſtquam annos fere Sexaginta novem vixerat, viceſſimo nono Novembris 1606, placidiſſimè in Domino obdormivit.

Tobiah Worthington, Alexandro Nevillo, ex Teſtamento ſolus, ipſius mandato, hoc Monumentum poſuit.

ON a little Braſs Monument in the South Side of the Chancel is thus written:

Here-under lieth buried Nicholas Gibſon, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, and Avis his Wife, who were Founders of the Free-School at Ratcliffe; and after ſhe married with Sir Anthony Knevit, Knight, which lieth here buried alſo, which Nicholas died the xxiij of September, Anno 1510; and the ſaid Lady Avis died the third Day of October, 1554, whoſe Souls Jeſu pardon.

THE Writer of this Epitaph was guilty of Careleſſneſs, both in the Date of Nicholas Gibſon's Death, for he was Sheriff in the Year 1538, (that is long after the Year here ſet down, in which he is ſaid to die,) and alſo in the Name of Avis, her ſecond Husband, who was William Knevit, Eſq; as appears by the Verſes graven upon Nicholas's Marble Monument, yet preſerved in our Books (though not in the Church) which ran thus:

The fyve and twentyth Day of thys Month of September,
And of our Lord God the fifteenth hundryd and fourty Yeere,
Maſter Nicholas Gybſon dyde, as thys Tombe doth remembyr;
Whoſe Wyff aftyr marryed the worſchypfull Eſquier, Maſter William Knevet, one of the Kynges Privy-Chamber, &c.

BUT here the Monument itſelf is wrong; for his Name was indeed Anthony, as appears in Porter's Caſe, in the ſecond Book of Coke's Reports.

HERE were two others (and they ſpiritual) Perſons of great Note in their Time, buried antiently in this Church, with Monuments and Inſcriptions, which are long ſince gone, but preſerved in Weaver's Monuments.

THE one was John Kitte, or Kite, a Londoner born, firſt a Titular Archbiſhop in Greece, afterwards made Biſhop of Carliſle. He flouriſhed under three Kings, as the old Verſes on his Stone ſhewed; namely, King Edward IV. King Henry VII. and King Henry VIII. by which laſt he was ſent Ambaſſador to the King of Spain, died June 19, 1537. The Epitaph began,

Under

Under thys Stone cloſyd and marmorate lyeth JOHN KITTE, Londoner, natiff, &c.

THE other was Richard Pace, Dean of St. Paul's, a very learned, affable, and good Man, whom King Henry VIII. employed Ambſſador to Maxamilian the Emperor, and at Rome. He was bred up under Cardinal Wolſey. He died young, at the Age of 40, Anno 1532. His Epitaph was in tolerable good Latin Verſe, beginning, Richardus jacet hic venerabilis ille Decanus.

Qui fuit ætatis doctus Apollo ſuæ, &c.

IN the Chancel likewiſe was the Monument of one deſervedly to be remember'd to Poſterity, having been the firſt Founder of Trinity-houſe.

D. O. M.

Here-under was laid up the Body of Sir Thomas Spert, Knight, ſome Time Comptroller of the Navy to King Henry VIII. and both the firſt Founder and Maſter of the Society or Corporation of the Trinity-houſe. He lived innobled by his own Worth, and dyed the 8th of September, in the Year 1541. To whoſe pious Memory the ſaid Corporation hath gratefully erected this Memorial:

Not that he needed Monument of Stone,
For his well-gotten Fame to reſt upon:
But this was rear'd to teſtify that he Lives in their Loves, that yet ſurviving be.
For unto Vertue, which firſt rais'd his Name,
He left the Reſervation of the ſame.
And to Poſterity remain it ſhall,
When Braſs and Marble Monuments do fall.
Learn for to die, while thou haſt Breath,
So ſhalt thou live after thy Death.

Anno Domini 1622, by the Company of the Trinity-houſe, this Monument was erected 81 Years after the Deceaſe of their Founder.

Here lyeth alſo in the ſame Chancel, under the Communion-Table, the Body of Henry Steward, Lord Darnley, of the Age of three Quarters of a Year, Son and Heir of Matthew Steward, Earl of Lenox, and Lady Margaret his Wife; which Henry deceaſed the 28th Day of November, in the Year 1545, whoſe Soul Jeſu pardon.

THE noble Father of this Henry had another Son of the ſame Name, who afterwards had the Honour to marry Mary Queen of Scots, by whom he had James I. King of England.

ADD the Wife of John Brewſter, Eſq; ob. An. 1596, on a Braſs Plate theſe Verſes:

Here lyes the Wife of John Brewſter, Eſquire,
Whoſe heavenly Death declares her happy Life,
Fame, ſay thy worſt of her, I thee deſire,
And thou muſt blaze her for a godly Wife.
Of Rich and Poor thou know'ſt belov'd was ſhe,
Speak thou, therefore, the reſt of her for me.
I ſay no more, her Name was Thomaſine.
Now bleſſed is Almighty God therefore,
And praiſed be his Name for evermore.

AGAINST the Eaſt Wall, ſomewhat out of Sight, South of the Communion-Table:

In Memory of ..... Elizabeth, the Widow of Richard Starture, Citizen and Fiſhmonger of LONDON, who had Iſſue by him three Sons and four Daughters. After 16 Years ſpent with him, remaining 34 Years his Widow: In Life and Death a conſtant Example of true Vertue; and ſweetly ſlept in the Lord, Decemb. 5, 1620. Ætat. ſuæ 74.

Under this Monument:

Is a ſpacious fine white Marble Monument, adorned with a Cherub, Urn, Voluta's, Palm-Branches, and theſe Arms; Paly of Six, Or, and Azure, on a Bend Sable, three Mullets of the Firſt, impaled, with Azure, an Anulet and Fiſh between two Bends Wavy, Argent; this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Dame Rebecca Berry, the Wife of Thomas Elton of Stratford-Bow, Gent. who departed this Life, April the 26th, 1696, aged 52.

Come, Ladies, ye that would appear
Like Angels fair, come, dreſs you here.
Come, dreſs you at this Marble Stone,
And make that humble Grace your own;
Which once adorn'd as fair a Mind,
As ere yet lodg'd in Womankind.
So ſhe was dreſs'd; whoſe humble Life
Was free from Pride, was free from Strife.
Free from all envious Brauls and Jars
(Of human Life the Civil Wars)
Theſe ne'er diſturb'd her peaceful Mind,
Which ſtill was gentle, ſtill was kind.
Her very Looks, her Garb, her Mein,
Diſcloſed the humble Soul within.
Trace her through every Scene of Life,
View her as Widow, Virgin, Wife;
Still the ſame humble ſhe appears
The ſame in Youth, the ſame in Years;
The ſame in low and high Eſtate;
Ne'er vext with this, ne'er moved with that.
Go, Ladies, now, and if you'd be
As fair, as great, as good as ſhe;
Go learn of her Humility.

Underneath this Inſcription, a Tomb for Mary Elton, Daughter of Thomas and Winifrid Elton, 1680, with divers others of their Children.

These following are Altar Monuments, and ſeveral of them, very fair and coſtly, of Marble:

A Tomb for John Hills, late of Ratcliff, Baker, 1702-3, and Hanna Hills his Wife, 1698, and Robert his Son, 1692.

William Coles, late of Ratcliff, Ship-chandler, 1699, and ſome Children.

Michael Honey, late of Ratcliff, Mariner, 1703, and Matthew Hall, Mariner, 1703.

North Side of the Belfrey:

Divers Children of William Culham and Jane his Wife.

In the Church-Yard, Weſt:

On the Side of a Tomb is this Inſcription:

Mr. William Knight of this Pariſh, Mariner, was here born, Feb. 1570, and died November the 22d, 1636.

Mihi vivere Chriſtus & mori Lucrum.

Ceaſe, Labours: Reſt, ye Seas of Care and Fears,
Whoſe Waves have toſs'd me ſix and forty Years:
And now go ſleep, mine Eyes, ſleep here, 'till ye,
Waking, ſhall my Redeemer's Glory ſee.
Sleep 'till my happy Soul rejoyned may
With re-created Body live for ay.

Tandem Portum.

On the North Side near the Church:

On the ſame Side of the Church is another Tomb with this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Suſanna Ell, the Wife of Richard Ell, who departed this Life the 7th of May, 1643, aged 36 Years, who had Iſſue by Richard Ell, two Sons, 1ſt Richard, the other not chriſtened, and three Daughters, Abigal, Sarah, and Hannah.

To the Pious Memory of

SUSAN ELL.

To ſay an Ell lies here even that alone
Were Epitaph enough, no Braſs, no Stone,
No glorious Tomb, no Monumental Hearſe,
No gilded Trophy, or Lamp-laboured Verſe,
Can dignify her Grave or ſet it forth,
Like the immortal Fame of her own Worth.
Then Reader fix not here but quit this Room,
And fly to Abraham's Boſom there's her Tomb;
There reſts her Soul, and for her other Parts
They are embalm'd and lodg'd in good Mens Hearts.
A braver Monument of Stone or Lime
No Art can raiſe, for this ſhall out-laſt Time.

On an upright Stone near the laſt mentioned is this Inſcription:

Elizabeth the Wife of John Carles, of this Pariſh, Cooper, who departed this Life the 4th Day of April, Anno Dom. 1696, aged 29 Years.

She

She was modeſt, meek, and good indeed;
Courteous to all, helpful to thoſe in Need;
A careful Mother, a moſt loving Wife,
Calm was the End of this her well ſpent Life.
Her Body here in Grave compoſed is,
Her Soul now reſts with Chriſt in endleſs Bliſs.

On another:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mr. William Wilkes, Citizen and Goldſmith of LONDON, who departed this Life November 21, 1700. Aged 37.

And alſo here lyeth the Body of Alice Wilkes, the Daughter of Mr. William and Mrs. Sarah Wilkes, who departed this Life the 25th of June 1698, in the 9th Year of her Age.

Farewell, dear Flower, no ſooner came
Thy early Piety to bloome,
But Death hath cropt thy tender Bud,
And laid thee in this mournful Tomb;
With her who like thee, lay ſo near the Heart,
As made it even Death itſelf to part.
With Patience he the Torment did endure,
But endleſs Love deſign'd another Cure;
Think on't with Joy, here but his Body lies,
For Wilkes is fled, and triumphs in the Skies.

Captain Edward Pierce of Ratcliff, 1675.

Elmodum White, 1699.

Dorothy, Widow of Capt. John Burford, 1701. And Nicholas Son of Thomas and Freelove Swain his Wife, and Grandſon to Dorothy Burford.

Another raiſed Tomb with no Inſcription:

Mary late Wife of Peregrine Browne of Ratcliff, 1691.

Capt. Richard Burley of Ratcliff, Mariner, 1678. And four Children.

On a black Marble Tomb-ſtone a little Weſtward from the Weſt End of the Church is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mary, Wife of Capt. Malachi Simons, Mariner, who departed this Life the 29th of June, 1677.

Reſt thou, whoſe Reſt gives me a reſtleſs Life,
Becauſe I've loſt a kind and virtuous Wife:
I'll viſit thee, and when I leave this Light,
Come ſpend my Time in the ſame Cell at Night.
Till then farewel; farewel! I cannot take
A final Leave until thy Aſhes wake.

Henry Mudd, late of Ratcliff, Eſq; 1692, an Eaſt India Commander.

Capt. William Sharp of Ratcliff, Mariner, 1696. And Joan Sharp his Wife, 1700.

On a Tomb on the North Side of the Weſt Portico, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Richard Weble, Mariner, who departed this Life the 4th of May, 1694, aged 23 Years.

Let not this World your Thoughts betray,
But think upon your Dying Day.

On a Grave-ſtone before the Weſt Portico:

Here lyeth interred Thomas Barker, (and Elizabeth his Wife of Lime-houſe) who being Lieutenant under Sir Robert Holmes, Commander of his Majeſty's Ship the St. Michael, loſt his Life in the Engagement againſt the Dutch the 28th Day of May 1672, fighting valiantly in Honour of his King and Country. Aged 28 Years.

Northward from the Weſt End, and near the Church on a Grave-ſtone raiſed, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth precious ſleeping Duſt
Until the Riſing of the Juſt.
Heaven ſo great a Price it coſt,
That not one Atom ſhall be loſt;
But ſhall ariſe and cloathed be
In Bliſs and Immortality.

On a Grave-ſtone in the Foot Path, is this Inſcription:

Here lyes the Body of William Wheatley, who departed this Life the 10th of November 1683.

Whoever treadeth on this Stone,
I pray now tread moſt neatly:
For underneath this Stone here lyes
Your honeſt Friend Will. Wheatley.

Elizabeth Jefferſon, Wife of John Jefferſon, of Ratcliff, Goldſmith, 1677.

Elizabeth the Wife of Alexander Henderſon, ſome Time Curate of this Pariſh.

Here lies the Body of ſhe who was Sarah Hartland, 1696; aged 25.

Whoſe Heart, too tender for to hear,
From neareſt Friends ſuch Calumnies,
Receiv'd a Wound; and ſo ſhe fell
To Death a mournful Sacrifice:

But did aſcend in Peace and Joy,
To him who did her Prayers hear,
And will as in the Noon-day Light,
Her ſpotleſs Innocence declare.

On a grey Marble Tomb-ſtone, a pretty way Southward from the Eaſt End of the Church, is this Inſcription:

Here Thomas Saffin lyes interr'd: Ah! why,
Born in New England, did in London dy?
Was the third Son of Eight, begot upon
His Mother Martha by his Father John.
Much favour'd by his Prince he gat to be;
But nipt by Death at th' Age of twenty three.
Fatal to him was that we Small-pox name,
By which his Mother and two Brethren came
Alſo to breath their laſt, nine Years before;
And now have left their Father to deplore
The Loſs of all his Children, with that Wife,
Who was the Joy and Comfort of his Life.
Deceaſed 1687.

Alſo here are theſe Arms: Three Creſcents, each ſurmounted by an Eſtoile of Eight Points; impaled with a Lion Rampart, in chief an Eſtoile of Eight Rayes, ſurmounting a Crown Murall.

Cloſe by the Tomb laſt mentioned, is a Grave-Stone, having the following Acroſtick of James Bayly, &c.

J nclos'd lyes hid, as ſacred Remains,
A s ere was bound, by th' K. of Terrors Chains.
M aſter, and Chaplains Place he well did bear,
E ach threatning Wave aſtoniſh'd with his Pray'r
S hrunk in his Head when pious James was there.

B ayly on Board, the baffled Tempeſt flew
A s ſwift as Morning Sun exhales the Dew;
Y onder he comes, his joyful Men would cry,
L ower your Topſail, ſee the Maſter's by,
Y ou'd think when he was there ſome Angel nigh.

God gave him Leave to breath his laſt on Shore;
And what was ſent him by the Almighty Power,
He ſafely did convey by truſty Friend,
Who ſtrictly did perform the Donors End;
And ſpread the Bounty of his Liberal Hand,
Amongſt his poor Relations, which Command
Bought the Deceaſed ſure Title to the promis'd Land.
Born at Landelph, in the County of Cornwall.

On a large Marble Tomb-Stone, at the South Eaſt Corner of the Church Yard, is this Inſcription, and Acroſtick.

Here lies the Body of Chriſtopher Henley, late of Ratcliffe; deceaſed July the 2d. 1693.

C onceal'd from Care, beneath this Marble lies
H is ſacred Relicks, which again muſt riſe,
R emote from human Diſcords unoppreſs'd,
I n their cold Urn his peaceful Aſhes reſt;
S natcht in Earth's dark Boſom, free from all
T hoſe Troubles which a mortal Life befall.
O pious Reader! know his living juſt,
P rocures his quiet Slumbers in the Duſt.
H is virtuous Deeds crown his unthinking Clay,
E rect a Monument without Delay.
R aiſing his Soul to everlaſting Day.

H is Wife and Childrens Grief their Tears reveal,
E ach finds their Loſs too weighty to conceal.
N o unjuſt Act thro' his whole Race we find,
L oving he liv'd, and juſt to all Mankind:
E aſie he ſleeps till Heaven ſhall raiſe his Duſt,
Y ielding his Soul to th' Manſions of the Juſt.

On another Grave-ſtone, lying near the Tomb above mentioned, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mary Angel, Widow, who departed this Life the 29th of November 1693. Aged 72 Years.

To ſay, an Angel here interr'd doth lye
May be thought ſtrange, for Angels never dye.
Indeed ſome fell from Heaven to Hell,
Are loſt, and riſe no more.
This only fell by Death to Earth;
Not loſt, but gone before;
Her Duſt lodg'd here, her Soul perfect in Grace,
'Mongſt Saints and Angels now hath took its Place.

John Hatman of Lime-houſe, Mariner, 1657.

Joanna Frampton, Wife of Tho. Frampton, Gent. 1695-6.

On a Marble Tomb-ſtone Southward from the Chancel, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Capt. John Dunch, who departed this Life November 25, 1696, in the 67th Year of his Age.

Tho' Boreas' Blaſts, and Neptune's Waves,
Have toſs'd me to and fro;
In Spight of both by God's Decree,
I harbour here below;
Where I do now at Anchor ride
With many of our Fleet;
Yet once again I muſt ſet ſail,
Our Admiral Chriſt to meet.

UNDER a Stone pretty much Southward from the Church, was interred the Pilgrim, (as the People there call him) having this Inſcription on it:

Here remains all that was mortal of Mr. Roger Crabb, who entered into Eternity the 11th Day of September 1680, in the 60th Year of his Age.

Tread gently Reader near the Duſt,
Committed to this Tomb-ſtone's Truſt;
For while 'twas Fleſh it held a Gueſt,
With univerſal Love poſſeſt,
A Soul that ſtemm'd Opinion's Tide,
Did over Sects in Triumph ride:
Yet ſeparate from the giddy Croud,
And Paths Tradition had allow'd
Through good and ill Reports he paſt,
Oft cenſur'd yet approv'd at laſt.
Wouldſt thou his Religion know
In brief 'twas this: To all to do
Juſt as he would be done unto.
So in kind Nature's Laws he ſtood
A Temple undefiled with Blood;
A Friend to every Thing was good.
The reſt Angels alone can fitly tell;
Haſte then to them, and him; and ſo farewell.

Mary Wood, Widow, late Wife of Capt. Matthew Wood, 1693. And Hannah Wood his Daughter, 1688-9.

A little Southward from the Church, on a ſpacious Marble Tomb-ſtone, is this Inſcription:

Here lye interred the Bodies of Capt. Thomas Chivers, who departed this Life Nov. 18, 1675. Aged 44 Years.
And of Ann Chivers his Wife, who departed this Life Nov. 14, 1675; aged 34 Years.
And of John Chivers, their Son, who departed this Life Nov. 14, 1675. Aged five Days.

Reader, conſider well how poor a Span,
And how uncertain is the Life of Man.
Here lye the Husband, Wife and Child, by Death
All three in five Days Time depriv'd of Breath:
The Child dies firſt, the Mother on the Morrow
Follows, and then the Father dies with Sorrow.
A Cæſar falls by many Wounds, well may
Two Stabs at Heart the ſtouteſt Captain ſlay.

Katharine Dyke, late Wife of Captain William Dyke, 1683.

ON a Marble Tomb-ſtone, a little Southward from the Church is this Inſcription:

Captain Richard Matthews was buried here April 1665, and his Daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Marſh, who died April the 13th, 1695, late Wife of Mr. John Marſh of LONDON, Merchant.

Thus fled our Dear away, and with a Dove-like Mind,
She like a Dove in Spirit, and ſo ſhe was inclin'd,
And left us here to mourn, we who are left behind.

ON the North Side of the ſame Tomb, in gold Letters on Black, is this Inſcription:

H. S. E.

Under this Marble lyeth the Body of Suſanna, the beloved Wife of Mr. Samuel Sambrook, of London, Merchant, Daughter of Captain Arnold Brown, of this Pariſh, Eſq; educated in all Vertues, adorned with all Graces; beloved of all that knew her. She ſtudied to ſerve God, and to do Good; liv'd much deſired, and died much lamented, October 11. Ætat. ſuæ 18. 1672.

Near the South-weſt Portico is this Inſcription:

Here lies the Body of John Archer, Son of John Archer of Wapping, Mariner, and of Frances his Wife, who departed this Life, Aug. 1681. Aged 7 Months.

Farewell, dear Gift, ſince God will have it ſo,
'Tis a Sin to murmur at his Will we know.
He lyes aſleep within his Bed
Until the Reſurrection of the Dead.

On a Grave-ſtone, a little South-weſt from the Church:

Here lyeth the Body of Joyce Rich, Wife of John Rich of this Pariſh, who died Aug. 1679,

in

in the 74th Year of her Age; alſo Elizabeth Winter, Daughter of Joyce Rich, who died in the Lord, November the 9th, 1687, in the 47th Year of her Age.

We two within this Grave do lye,
Where we do reſt together
Until the Lord ſhall us awake,
And from the Goats us ſever.

Near the laſt; this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Ann Briſtan, the beloved Wife of Richard Briſtan, of Lyme-houſe, juſt and ſtedfaſt to the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Eſtabliſhed Church; living belov'd, and dying lamented by all that knew her.

She entred into Eternity the 14th of April, Anno Dom. 1694.

On a Stone, a little South-weſtward from the Church is inſcrib'd:

Here lyes the Body of Daniel Saul,
Spittlefields Weaver, and that's all.

Capt. William Wildy, Mariner, 1679, and Sarah his Wife, 1667. And Richard Wildy late of Ratcliff, 1703.

Capt. Edward Johnſon, late of Low Leyton in Eſſex, Gent. 1669. And Elizabeth his Wife, 1662.

Capt. Nicolas Sulk, 1664, and Margaret Sulk, his Wife, 1660.

Robert Wakelyn, late of Ratcliff, Rope-Merchant, 1679, and Mary his Wife, 1681.

Capt. John Willimot of Ratcliff, 1699.

Richard Power, late Captain of the Prince Rupert, 1681.

Thomas Wiſe of Ratcliff, Diſtiller, 1683.

William Alderſey, late Lieutenant of his Majeſty's Ship Kingsfiſher, 1691.

Capt. John Dawſon, late Commander of his Majeſty's Ship Advice, 1675.

Capt. Arthur Baily of Mile-end Green, Mariner, 1682.

James Luton of Yarmouth, Mariner, 1686, and Percis his Wife, 1686. Both in the Month of July within four Days.

All theſe, with a great many more, lie buried under fair Graves-ſtones, or raiſed Tombs in Vaults made for the reſpective Families. Whereby it comes to paſs that the Ground of the Church-yard is better improved for Graves: For, by digging theſe Vaults deep, there is more Room for Burial of Corpſes: Which the Church-yard, tho' large, is ſcarce able to contain. For they bury 2000 People, or upward, every Year.

In the Year 1703, from December the 13th, to December the 14th, 1704, were buried in Stepney Church and Church-yard 2150. Sometimes they bury more in a Week in this ſingle Pariſh, than are buried in that Space of Time in all the Pariſhes of LONDON, within the Walls. As in the Bill from the 5th of September to the 12th of the ſame, Anno 1704.

Buried within the Walls	45

There are Galleries about the Church, for abundance of People; a Table of Benefactors hanging up; a fair Vicarage Houſe and Garden, not far from the Church, lying on the Left Hand of the Road coming from LONDON, lately inhabited by the Reverend Mr. Wright, ſome Time Vicar. In the ſaid Houſe remains a good old Picture of Dr. Gouldman, ſome Time Vicar of the Pariſh, Doctor of Law, and Juſtice of Peace.

At Mile-end Town, within this Pariſh, there is another Burying-Place, which is peculiar for the Jews. There is a handſome Houſe of Brick, lately erected at the Eaſtern Part of the Town; through which the Corpſe is carried on Mens Shoulders into a large Piece of Ground of an Acre or more, where are abundance of Monuments of Marble, with Hebrew Inſcriptions, and the Corpſe are laid North and South.

The moſt remarkable Places in this Pariſh are: A Meeting-houſe in New Virginia-row, another at Bednal-green, another at Stepney: Bednal-green, and there Biſhop Bonner's-hall; Part of Ratcliff-croſs, and Spring-garden in King Edward's-row.

At the lower End of St. John-ſtreet is a Free-School founded and ſupported by the Donation of two Perſons; one was the Town Clerk of the Hamlet of Bednal-green, and the other the Beadle of the ſame: For 20 Boys of this Hamlet, who are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts; Accompts; and 10 Boys taught the ſame, for which Mrs. Clark left 10 l. per Ann. for ever.

In Stepney, againſt the Church-Yard, is a Charity-School for 23 Boys, who are cloathed in Red, and are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts, and 3 l. given with each of them when put out Apprentice. Here alſo are 10 Girls, who are alſo cloathed in Red, and taught to Read, Write, Knit, Sew, &c. with each of them is given 40 s. when put out. This School is for the Children of the Hamlet of Mile-end Old-town, ſupported by Subſcription, and the Collections made at the Church-Doors when Charity Sermons are preached.

In Whitehorſe-ſtreet is a Charity-School for the Hamlet of Ratcliff, where thirty five Boys are cloathed once a Year, and are allowed two Pair of Stockings, two Pair of Shoes, two Bands, and two Shirts every Year: They are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts, and 3 l. given with them when put out Apprentice. There are twenty five Girls who are taught to Read, Write, caſt Accompts, Knit, and work Plain-work; they are cloathed and allowed two Pair of Stockings, two Pair of Shoes, two Pair of Pattens, two Bands, and two Shifts, every Year; with each of them is given 3 l. when put out. All this is done by Subſcription of the Inhabitants of the Hamlet.

In St. John-ſtreet are ſix Alms-houſes for ſix decayed Men of Bednal-green Hamlet, who have been Houſe-keepers, founded and endowed by the ſame Perſon who founded the Free-School; each of them receive 12 s. 6 d. every quarter of a Year; but the full Allowance is 25 s. one Moiety is deducted to reimburſe the Money which has been laid out in repairing the Eſtate, which was given to ſupport theſe Houſes, and poor People.

Adjoining to theſe are ſix Alms-houſes for ſix poor Widows of Dyers, each of whom has 6 s. every Quarter, and 6 s. at Chriſtmas to buy Coals. All which is done by a voluntary Subſcription of Maſter Dyers.

At Dog-corner are the Drapers Alms-houſes, in Number eight, for as many Widows, four of the Freemen of that Company, and four of Seamen, each of them has 1 s. 8 d. per Week paid Monthly by the worſhipful Company of Drapers, half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown once in two Years. This was the Gift of John Pemell, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, Anno 1698.

In Dog-row are ſix Alms-houſes, built in the Year 1711, for ſix Widows of Commanders of Ships; four were built by Captain Fiſher, who endowed them with 40 l. per Ann. for ever; the Ground of the other two was purchaſed by Sir Charles Wager, Kt. and the Houſes built at the Expence of Sir William Ogborne, Kt. one of the Sheriffs of LONDON and Middleſex, in the Year 1728. Theſe Houſes are given in Truſt to the Fraternity of Trinity-houſe, and each Widow is paid 16 s. every firſt Monday in the Month, and allowed 10 s. at Midſummer, and Chriſtmas, for Coals.

At Mile-end, are 12 Alms-Houſes for 12 poor Widows of the Skinners Company, each of whom has 2 s. a Week, paid Quarterly, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly. Here is a Chapel, where they have Prayers twice a Day. Theſe were the Gift of Mr. Lewis Newbury, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, built by his Executor, Mr. Thomas Glover, (being committed to the Management of the Company of Skinners) 1686, and Mr. Prince, who reads Prayers here, left 100 l. the Intereſt whereof is given to a Perſon, who preaches a Sermon every Sunday Morning.

Near to theſe is the Hoſpital or Alms-houſes of the Corporation of Trinity-houſe, beautiful and well built, for 28 decayed Commanders of Ships, and Widows of ſuch; each of them has 12 s. paid the firſt Sunday in every Month, half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown once in two Years. There is a Chapel, and Prayers read by a Clergyman. The Ground was given by Captain Henry Mud, as is before-mentioned, and the Alms-houſes built in the Year 1695.

The next are 12 Alms-houſes for 12 decayed Vintners, each of whom has 2 s. per Week, paid by the Company of Vintners, and half a Chaldron of Coals given yearly.

Beyond theſe are 12 Alms-houſes for as many poor Men (paſt Labour) of the Pariſh of Stepney, each of whom has 4 l. a Year. Theſe were founded by Judge Fuller, Anno 1592, and the Money remitted to the Skinners Company, out of an Eſtate in Lincolnſhire.

In Stepney Church-Yard, on the Southerly Side, are 10 Alms-houſes for 10 poor Widows of Mercers, each of them has 3 s. 8 d. per Week paid Monthly by the Company; given and endowed by Dame Jane Mico, Relict of Sir Samuel Mico, Mercer. They were built in the Year 1691.

In Stepney, adjoining to the Charity-School, is a Workhouſe for the Poor of Mile-end Old-town.

This Pariſh contains the Hamlets of Bednal-green, Mile-end New-town, Mile-end Old-town, and a Part of the Hamlets of Ratcliff.

NUMBER of Houſes are between 5 and 6000.

Now to point to a few Places in this Pariſh of ſome Antiquity or Remark: Somewhat North from the Church lies Mile-end, being the great Thoroughfare to the Eaſt Parts from LONDON, ſo called from its Diſtance from the Middle Parts of LONDON. Here ſtood antiently an Hoſpital of poor Lazars, called the Houſe of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt and Mary Magdalen, at Mile-End of Stephenhuch in the County of Middleſex. To them a Protection to beg was granted by King Edward's Letters Patents, dated Feb. 18, 1551, and John Mills appointed their Proctor, as it is in the Journal of Goodrick, Biſhop of Ely, Lord Chancellor.

FURTHER North Weſt lie Spittle-fields, within this Pariſh, formerly, in the Memory of ſome, pleaſant Fields for the Citizens to walk in, and for good Houſewives to whiten their Clothes; now all built into Streets, with a very convenient Market-Place, and a Tabernacle for Divine Worſhip. It was very antiently a great Burying-Place, and 80 Years ago, more or leſs, were many Roman Urns digged up here; whereupon learned Men, (and particularly Dr. Merick Caſaubon) have made their Obſervations; which has been noted in Biſhopſgate Ward.

BUT to paſs from theſe North Parts of the Pariſh to the Southern, there lay formerly a great Marſh, or Marſhes, called Stebunhith Marſh, and Poplar Marſh; but it was found by a Jury, upon Inquiſition, to be one and the ſame Marſh, and not divers. There was a Manor antiently called Pountfret's Manor, lying in Stebunhith Marſh.

IN the 4th of King Henry VIII. the Abbot of Grace, or de Gratiis (which was an Abbey near the Tower) demiſed to the Biſhop of LONDON, for the Term of 80 Years, all his drowned Ground lying in the Marſh called, The wet Marſh of Stebunhith and Poplar, in the County of Middleſex, for the only Conſideration of 20 s. yearly Rent. King Edward VI. by Letters Patents granted unto the old Lord Wentworth and his Heirs, the Manor of Stebunhith, and all the Marſh Ground in Stebunhith. By which general Words the Lord Wentworth claimed the aforeſaid Abbot's Lands, demiſed to the ſaid Biſhop; which Lands letten by the Abbot were rated as Parcels of his Value. In Queen Elizabeth's Days one Hyde, a Servant of the Lord Chief Baron Manwood, pretending that the whole Wet Marſh, being worth 160 l. by Year, ſhould be the Abbot's Land, and letten by him by the aforeſaid Leaſe for 20 s. Rent; but he did not demiſe the Wet Marſh, but all his drowned Ground lying in the Marſh. And pretending that the ſaid Wet Marſh ſhould lie in Poplar Marſh, and not in Stebunhith Marſh: Therefore all the ſame Land ſo letten by the Abbot were ſuggeſted to be concealed from her Majeſty. Hence Letters Patents were procured thereof unto Mr. Farnham and his Heirs, 16 Years paſt, whoſe Eſtate therein Hyde purchaſed. The Lord Chief Baron Manwood, and Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord Chancellor, examined the Title of the Lord Wentworth ſhortly after, upon an Information of Intruſion before the Chief Baron. And albeit her Majeſty had before departed with her Right and Intereſt therein, there was by Trial and Judgment as much Land recovered from the ſaid Lord as was worth 80 l. by Year, over and beſide a great Sum of Money due for Arrearages of the ſame.

WHICH Judgment, examined and called in Queſtion, by Writ of Error, before the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, and other her Majeſty's Juſtices, was reverſed and made void, after a new Information of Intruſion was exhibited before the ſaid Baron for thoſe Lands: Whereupon Complaint unto the Queen, for the Chief Baron's partial Dealings, and that he was no competent Judge for the Cauſe; ſhe commanded her Attorney, and Solicitor, that no further Proceeding in Suit ſhould be in her Name before the ſaid Chief Baron. And that if Hyde ſo would, a new Information ſhould be exhibited in her Name, before her Juſtice of her Common Pleas, or her Bench (at Hyde's Election) of the ſame Lands, with good Regard, that there might be Proceeding therein (in Favour of Hyde) with all Indifferency: Whereupon, an Information was exhibited in the King's Bench, and the Matter at Iſſue; ſpecial Choice was made of a Jury, by the Attorney, in the Preſence of the ſaid Hyde, not any one being admitted, againſt whom he did except.) Which Jury returned, the Matter was deliberately heard before the Juſtice there; Mr. Attorney and Mr. Solicitor being there for her Majeſty, and Hyde to inform them. The Jury found, that the Lands demiſed by the Abbot was 20 Acres; and that the Marſh wherein the ſame lieth, was known as well by the Name of Stebunhith Marſh, as Poplar Marſh; and that they were all one, not diverſe. Upon which Verdict ſo found, Judgment was afterwards ſolemnly pronounced for the Lord Wentworth; after that, all the Judges had ſeverally, upon ſolemn Argument in open Court, ſhewed their Opinion to be very clear, that thoſe 20 Acres paſt for the King by Letters Patents made unto the Lord Wentworth.

SINCE which Time the Matter was called in Queſtion in the Star-Chamber; and ſince that Time, a new Suit by Information of Intruſion was commenced before her Majeſty's Juſtices of Common-Pleas. All this is taken out of a Breviate drawn by the Lord Wentworth, Grandſon to the firſt Lord Wentworth, to whom King Edward granted it.

IN the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth, and King James I. Conteſts happened between the Lords Wentworth, Lords of this Manor of Stepney, and of a Manor next adjoining upon it at Hackney, and and the Copyhold Tenants, concerning their Cuſtoms and Privileges; which at laſt was adjuſted and agreed by Covenant between them, ſeveral Thouſands of Pounds being paid by them to the ſaid Lords.

BESIDES other Charities already mentioned in the Pariſh of Stepney, there is one that is conſtant, by Means of a yearly Meeting of the Natives, called The Cockney's Feaſt; when after a Sermon preached at the Pariſh Church before them by ſome Clergyman born in the Pariſh, the eight Stewards and the reſt of the Natives commonly take a Walk with Officers and Muſick playing before them, through Lime-houſe and Ratcliff, and ſo return back to a Houſe near the Church, and there dine plentifully and friendly together: New Stewards choſen for the enſuing Year, and a Collection made for the putting out of poor Pariſh-Children Apprentices to the Sea or other Trades. The Collections uſually made Amount to 15, 18, or 20 l. of which each Steward takes his equal Dividend, and with it puts out ſome poor Child. And ſome of theſe Children thrive ſo well, that they have come to be Stewards themſelves. And that it may viſibly appear what Good is done by theſe yearly Aſſemblies, the ſaid Boys ſo put out, (which are now very many) are obliged to walk two and two before the Company in their ſaid Proceſſion.

CHAP. II.

Of the SUBURB without Biſhopſgate.

FROM Aldgate North Weſt, lies Houndſditch, leading to Biſhopſgate; North and by Eaſt of which, lies a large Street, or Highway, having on the Weſt Side thereof, the Pariſh-Church of St. Botolph.

THERE was formerly the Hoſpital of St. Mary of Bethlem, founded by a Citizen of LONDON, as is before ſhewed. Thence the ſaid Street leads to Nortonfalgate, a Liberty ſo called, belonging to the Dean of St. Paul's. Here was firſt of all ſet up a Charity-School, by a voluntary Combination of well diſpoſed Gentlemen; whereof Mr. Seymour, Mr. Turner, &c. were the Chief; out of Compaſſion towards thoſe poor People inhabiting in that Liberty, without any Pariſh, and ſo void of any Care to be taken of them in their Poverty. They maintain a School-maſter, allowing him 30 l. per Annum, who teaches the Children Reading and Writing, and to ſay their Catechiſm. There are in Number threeſcore and ten, and are cloathed as well as taught. The voluntary Subſcriptions upon the Death of the firſt Subſcribers began ſome Years ago to fall off. Mr. Turner then was the Chief Perſon that took the Care and Charge thereof. They ſend out twelve or more every Year, and ſo take in more to fill up the Number. Thence alſo up to the late diſſolved Priory of St. John the Baptiſt, called Halywell, an Houſe of Nuns, of old Time founded by a Biſhop of LONDON. Stephen Graveſend, Biſhop of LONDON, about the Year 1318, was a Benefactor thereunto, re-edified by Sir Thomas Lovel, Knight of the Garter, brought up in Lincoln's Inn, who built much there, and in this Place, in the Reigns of Henry VII, and of Henry VIII. He endowed this Houſe with fair Lands, and was there buried in a large Chapel by him built for that Purpoſe. Here he had alſo a Seat to dwell in. He made his Will December the 10th, in the 14th Year of King Henry VIII. therein bequeathing his Body to be buried within the Monaſtery of Nuns, called Halywel, in a little Chapel there made by him. He willed his Couſin Francis Lovel ſhould have his Manſion-place at Halywel. He died 1528. This Priory was valued, at the Suppreſſion, to have of Lands two hundred ninety three Pounds by Year, and was ſurrendered 1539, the 31ſt of Henry VIII. The Church thereof being pulled down, many Houſes were there built for the Lodgings of Noblemen, of Strangers born, and others.

AND near thereunto were built two publick Houſes, for the Acting and Shew of Comedies, Tragedies, and Hiſtories for Recreation. Whereof the one called the Courtein, the other, the Theatre; both ſtanding on the South Weſt Side toward the Field.

FROM this Houſe was carried the Corpſe of the Lady Rutland, Oct. 21, 1559, to Shoreditch Church, with thirty Clerks and Prieſts ſinging; about threeſcore poor Men and Women in black Gowns; Mourners, to the Number of an hundred; two Heralds of Arms, Garter and York; then came the Corpſe, afore a great Banner of Arms, and about her four goodly Banner Rolls of divers Arms. Mr. Becon preached. After was diſperſed a great Dole of Money, being 2 d. a Piece to each. And ſo all departed to the Place to Dinner. About the Vallance was written, Sic tranſit Gloria Mundi.

FROM Halywell, in the High Street, is a continual Building of Tenements to Shoreditch, or Sewers Ditch, where ſome Time ſtood a Croſs; now a Smith's Forge, dividing three Ways: Forthright, the Highway is builded upon either Side more than a good Flight Shoot towards Kingsland, Newington, Tottenham, &c.

ON the Left Hand is Ealde-ſtreet, or Old-ſtreet, which reacheth Weſt, to where a Stone Croſs ſtood, over-againſt the North End of Golden-lane, and ſo to the End of Goſwel-ſtreet. On the Right Hand of this Ealde-ſtreet, not far from Shoreditch, but on the North Side thereof, is Hoxton, a large Street, with Houſes on both Sides; and is a Prebend belonging to St. Paul's Church in LONDON, but of Shoreditch Pariſh.

ON the Right Hand, beyond Shoreditch Church, twards Hackney, are ſome Houſes upon the Common Soil, (for it was a Lay-Stall,) but theſe Houſes belong to the Pariſh of Stebenhith.

ON the other Side of the High-way, from Biſhopſgate and Houndſditch, the firſt Building was a large Inn called the Dolphin, then a handſome Houſe for the Lord John Pawlet; next to which, was a large Houſe and Gardens for Pleaſure, built by Jaſper Fiſher; from this up to the Weſt End of Berward's or Hog-lane, was a continued Building of ſmall Cottages, and then the Hoſpital, Hoſpital, called St. Mary's-Spittle, juſt within the Bars, which has been already ſpoken of in Biſhopſgate-Ward.

FROM which Bars, towards Shoreditch, on that Side, is all along, a continual Building of ſmall and baſe Tenements, amongſt which was one Row of proper ſmall Houſes, with Gardens, for poor decayed People, there placed by the Prior of the ſaid Hoſpital; every one Tenant whereof payed 1 d. Rent by the Year at Chriſtmas, and dined with the Prior on Chriſtmas Day. But after the Suppreſſion of the Hoſpital, theſe Houſes, for want of Reparations, in few Years were ſo decayed, that it was called Rotten-row, and the Poor worn out, for there came no new in their Place. The Houſes, for a ſmall Portion of Money, were ſold from Goddard to Ruſſel a Draper, who rebuilt them, and let them out for Rent enough; taking alſo large Fines of the Tenants, near as much as the Houſes coſt him purchaſe and building; for he made Bargains ſo hardly with all Men, that both Carpenter, Bricklayer, and Plaiſterer, were by that Work undone. And yet in Honour of his Name, it is now called Ruſſel's-row.

THE Manor of Shoreditch, with the Polhowſe and Bowes, (ſo expreſſed in the Record) lately belonging to John de Northampton of LONDON, Draper, was granted 15 Richard II. to Edmund Duke of York, and Earl of Cambridge, Iſabel his Wife, and Edward Earl of Roteland, Son of the ſame Edmund and Iſabel.

The PARISH of St. LEONARD in Shoreditch.

THE Church here was dedicated to St. Leonard, who was, about the Year 500, baptized at Raynes in France: He is ſaid to have wrought many Miracles; that he refuſed a Biſhoprick, but was afterwards Prelate in a Monaſtery, and died a natural Death, Anno 570.

IT is an old Gothick Building, having four Iſles, which is one more than is any where elſe to be met with. It is of Brick and Stone, the Roof covered with Tile, it was repaired in the Year 1675. (having been in no Danger of Fire in 1666.) The Gallery was built at the Charge of William Thornton, in 1581. The Altar-piece was new done, Anno 1700, and the Church was repaired in 1704.

AS to Ornament, the Inſide of the Roof is ceiled with Wood, and moſtly painted Nebulous.

AT the Weſt End is a Gallery, 'tis well Pewed with Oak, and the Pulpit Cedar. The Altar-piece has the Commandments, Lord's-prayer, and Creed, done in white on black. Over the two laſt, are the Words of St. John; God is a Spirit; and they that worſhip him, muſt do it in Spirit and in Truth.

AND over the Commandments the Words,

The Law was given by Moſes; but Grace and Truth came by Jeſus Chriſt.

WHICH Altar-piece is incloſed with Rail and Balliſter. Here is a ſmall painted Window. The Story is of our Saviour ſitting at his laſt Supper, with his twelve Diſciples; all ſitting upon Forms, (you muſt conſider the Art more than the Learning of the Workman) and Judas with his Purſe in his Hand; the Table furniſhed with a ſtanding Cup, a Candle, a Salt, two Penny Loaves, a Knife, ſquare Trenchers, and the Paſcal Lamb in a Diſh.

IN the Veſtry, hard by the Chancel, on the Eaſt Window, there is another fair painted Glaſs with the Figure of the Father embracing the Prodigal Son; and underneath a Signification of the Donor, and Date, in theſe Words inſcribed, Ex dono Thomæ Auſtin, Civis and Clothworker, London, Anno Domini 1634.

UPON a Place exalted in the Chancel, is mention made of the laſt Reparation of the Chancel, viz. The Commandments were new writ, and this Chancel raiſed and repaired at the Coſt of the Pariſh, Anno Dom. 1700.

THE Dimenſions of the Church are Length 75; Breadth 66, and that of the Steeple, (which is a Tower) about 70 Feet, wherein are five Bells.

MONUMENTS.

In this Church have been divers honourable Perſons buried, as appeareth by Monuments yet remaining, viz.

Sir John Elrington, with Margaret his Wife, Daughter and Heir to Thomas Lord Itchingham, Widow to William Blount, Son and Heir to Walter Blount, the firſt Lord Mountjoy; which Margaret died, 1481. &c.

On the South Side of the Altar, is a ſpacious Marble Monument, of the Ionick Order, with this Inſcription:

This Monument is erected in Memory of William Fremlin, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Thomas Fremlin, and Ann his Wife, both of this Pariſh, deceaſed; whoſe better Genius having diſpoſed his Deſires wholly unto Travel, he was in the 18th Year of his Age, entertained by the Honourable Eaſt India Company, and by them employed in the remoteſt Regions of Aſia, where his Abilities and fair Comportment found ſo good Approbation, that within three Years after his Arrival he was ſent to reſide Agent at the Court of the great Mogul; and then the more important Affairs of the Honourable Company wanting his Aſſiſtance, in the chief Reſidence at Surat, he was called thither to ſupply the Place of Second in Council and Command; which Truſt he diſcharged with ſuch approved Diligence and Dexterity, that by expreſs Order he was appointed Preſident, and ſo continued five Years, to the great Satisfaction of his Honourable Employers, and the abundant Content of his own Nation, whom he governed, and thoſe other among whom he lived. And then returning for England, God was pleaſed to deliver him from as iminent Danger of Shipwreck as ever any Man eſcaped, that he arrived in Safety after the Expiration of nineteen Years, three Months, and 21 Days, to find a Grave in the Land and Pariſh of his Nativity; for now, alas! he began to languiſh, and upon the 13th of March 1645, put a Period to this Pilgrimage, in the 38th Year of his Age, having by his laſt Will and Teſtament bequeathed to charitable Uſes 870 l. and more particularly to the Poor of this Pariſh 200 l.

Reſt weary Traveller, a quiet Repoſe
Suits well with active Men; but chiefly thoſe
Of whoſe unwearied Works we truly ſay,
They bear the Brunt and Burthen of the Day:
Such Days in ſuch a Climate ſo well ſpent,
As made the Precedent a Preſident.

Apres Travilie Repos.

ARMS: Gules a Chevron between three Helmets Argent: For the Creſt, an Elephant.

ON

On an antient Tomb in the Choir:

Orate pro animabus Humfredi Starky, Militis, nuper Capitalis Baronius de Scaccario Domini Regis, Hen. VII. & Iſabellæ uxoris ejus & omnium, &c.

On a very fair Tomb in the upper End of the Choir:

This Monument is erected in Memory, that within this Church do lie buried the Bodies of the Right Honourable and Noble Ladies, Lady Katharine Stafford, Daughter to Edward Duke of Buckingham, and Wife to Ralph, Earl of Weſtmerland, who dyed 1553, Lady Elianor, Daughter to Sir William Paſton, Knight, and Wife to the Right Honourable Lord Thomas, Earl of Rutland, buried 1551. Lady Margaret Nevel, Daughter to Ralph Earl of Weſtmerland, and Wife to Henry, Earl of Rutland, who dyed 1560. And the Lady Katharine Nevel, Wife to Sir John Conſtable of Holderneſs, Knight, and Daughter to Henry, Earl of Weſtmerland. And Lady Anne Manners, Daughter to Thomas Earl of Rutland, which Katharine died the ſeven and twentieth Day of March, Anno Domini 1591.

And that here do lie alſo the Bodies of two right worthy Gentlemen, honourably deſcended; namely, of Sir Tho. Mannors, Knt. and Oliver Mannors, Eſq; Brethren, being the fourth and fifth Sons of the aforeſaid Tho. Earl of Rutland. The firſt died about his Age of fifty, in June, 1591, after many valiant Services performed by him for his Prince and Country, both in Ireland and in Scotland, where he was Knighted, and witneſſed by ſundry great Wounds he therein received. The ſecond died in his younger Years, 1563, about his Age of twenty, yet not before good Proof made of his Valour and Forwardneſs, in the Service of Newhaven againſt the French, where he took the Sickneſs, whereof he died ſhortly after in Shoreſditch.

Founded by the Lady Adeline Nevel, at the Direction of the ſaid Lady Katharine Conſtable, deceaſed, her Siſters, in February, 1591.

Theodoſia } Oleum effuſum nomen tuum, Ideo
Vavaſour } Adoleſcentulæ dilexerunt te. Cant. 1.

{ Fallax eſt gratia, & vana pulchritudo: mulier timens Deum, ipſa laudabitur. Pro. 11.

On a fair Tomb in the Chancel is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth buried Elizabeth, the Wife of the late Reverend Father in God, John Shory, late Biſhop of Hereford. The ſaid Reverend Father, in the Reign of King Edw. VI. was Biſhop of Rocheſter, and tranſlated from thence to Chicheſter. He departed this Life at Whitborn in the County of Hereford, the 26th of June, Anno Domini 1585. And the ſaid Elizabeth deceaſed in Holywel in this Pariſh, the 8th Day of March, 1592.

Beati mortui qui Domini moriuntur.

Her Corpſe here lyes in Cheſt,
Her Soul in Heaven now lives;
And ſhe enjoys that Reſt,
Which God to his Saints gives:
For in Chriſt did ſhe truſt,
That he will her reſtore
Again out of the Duſt,
To live for evermore.

On an antient Marble in the Chancel:

Here lieth the Body of Sir Thomas Seymer, Knt. late Alderman and Lord Mayor of LONDON, and Dame Mary his Wife; the which Sir Thomas deceaſed the 11th Day of December, Anno Domini, 1532.

On an engraven Plate in the North Wall of the Choir:

Here-under lye the Aſhes and Bones
Of Sir Thomas Leigh that good and learned Knight,
Whoſe haſty Death (alaſs!) the Godly ſtill bemoans,
Though his Soul always rejoice in God's Sight;
Great was his Wiſdom, and greater was his Wit,
His Viſage comely, with no ſad Change diſmayed;
A Man in all Affairs, a King to ſerve moſt fit,
Had not Death ſo ſoon his mortal Life betrayed.

He died the 25th Day of November, Anno Dom. 1545.

South Side of the Chancel:

Jeane, the Wife of Ralph Hansby, Eſq; Daughter to William Vavaſor, Eſq; Grandchild to Thomas Manners, Knight, dyed the twenty ſecond Day of July, in the Year of our Lord 1617, and of her Age the twenty-third; to whoſe bleſſed Memory her dear Husband dedicates this ſaid Monument, to ſignify, that with her his Joys lies here interred.

If Birth, if Vertue, if fair Feature deckt
With Gifts of Mind, if Piety breeds Reſpect;
Her Tomb then view and grace, kind Paſſenger,
With whom ſo many Graces buried were.
Conquer'd by Patience, yet ſhe overcame;
Nor was her Youth Death's Triumph, but his Shame.

Middle Chancel this Inſcription in Braſs:

Georgius Gips, Generoſus, fide Subjectus, ſpe erectus, Charitate Deo unitus, vitam mortalem mutavit pro immortali 12 Julii 1611. Quatuor genuit filios, filiaſque undecim. Quorum Richardus, Georgius, Thomas, Anna, Maria & Martha, Patris clauſerunt, reliquorum ipſe clauſit Lumina.

A little below upon a Grave-ſtone:

May 22, 1618, Richard Leigh, Merchant and Citizen of LONDON, placed this Stone in Memorial of his dear Wife Anne Leigh, who lyeth here interred by the Body of Richard Brattuph her firſt Husband; and of her three Children, Richard, Sarah and John, which ſhe bare to the ſaid Richard Brattuph.

In ſome ſad Sickneſs Pain, and Pain Impatience,
In thee a patient Penitence is wrought.
Thy Sickneſs, Joy, thy Tribulation, Hope,
Thy Bodies Death gave Life unto thy Soul.
Thus for his Lambs the Lord can Hony draw
From th' all-devouring cruel Lyon's Jaw.

Ubi tua, O Mors, victoria? Ubi tuus, O Sepulchrum, Tumulus.

Over-againſt this, in the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel, in Braſs:

Here lieth Katharine Lively, Wife of Edward Lively, Gent. and Daughter of Henry Hodge, Citizen

Citizen and Brewer of LONDON, and Joice his Wife, who after ſhe had run a vertuous and religious Courſe of Life 21 Years, finiſhed the ſame the 15th Day of July, Anno Dom. 1623.

Proverbs x. 7. The Memory of the Juſt is bleſſed.

Add to theſe, in the North Wall:

Hereunder lyeth Robert Hary Young, and Margery hys Wyf; and Rychard Hary Young hys Sonne; and Elyzabeth and Margaret his Wyffs; ſome Tyme both Provoſts of the Kynge's Mynt within the Towre of LONDON, which Rychard Hary Young deceaſed the xxiii Day of Auguſt in the Yere of our Lord God MDXLV, in the xxxvi Yere of the Reign of Kynge Henry VIII. The reſt ſcratched out.

Over this Monument is another, viz.

Sir Alexander St. John, Knight, Son of the Right Honourable Oliver Lord St. John, Baron of Bletſo, cauſed this Monument to be erected in Memory of his late faithful and truly vertuous Conſort, Lady Margaret St. John, Daughter of John Trye of Hardwick in the County of Glouceſter, Eſq; whoſe Body lieth near unto this Place interred, expecting a glorious Reſurrection.

On the South Side in a Chapel, in Braſs:

Hic jacent Johannes Gadde, quondam Civis & Scharman LONDON: Qui ob —— die Menſis —— An. Dom. M. CCCC° —— Et Anna uxor ejus, quæ ob. primo die Menſis Jan. An. Dom. M. CCCCLXXXIII°.

The Prayers for their Souls defaced.

NOTWITHSTANDING of late one Vicar there, for Covetouſneſs of the Braſs, which he converted into coined Silver, plucked up many Plates fixed on the Graves, and left no Memory of ſuch as had been buried under them: A great Injury both to the Living and the Dead; forbidden by publick Proclamation, in the Reign of our Sovereing Lady Queen Elizabeth; but not forborn by many, that either of a prepoſterous Zeal, or of a greedy Mind, ſpare not to ſatisfy themſelves by ſo wicked a Means.

MONUMENTS there be theſe of later Times in this Church of Shoreditch:

In the Chancel:

Johannes Auſtin, Armiger, 1659. Qui obiit Conſcientia bona, & fama bona.

Thomas Auſtin, Armiger, 165....

Cutbert Burbage and Elizabeth his Wife; they departed in September 1636.

North Iſle:

Winifrid and Marina, Daughter of Sir Charles Pitfield of Hoxton, Knight, whoſe Daughter dyed 1673. And his Wife, 1676.

2 Church-Wardens.	4 Conſtables.
6 Overſeers.	19 Headboroughs.
	5 Scavengers.
	4 Surveyors of the Highway.

Remarkable Places and Things: In the Year 1581, William Thornton, of this Pariſh, Taylor, gave the Veſtry-houſe, joining to the Church, which is a handſome convenient Dwelling, ſet a-part for a Habitation for the Clerk of this Pariſh; adjoining to which is a large airy Houſe, and Garden, for a Dwelling for the Vicar.

In Holy-well-ſtreet is a Still-houſe, known by the Name of the Holy-well Still-houſe; belonging to which is a curious large Well, call'd, The Holy-well, from which the Street takes its Name; which Well was a Place of great Reſort in the Romiſh Times, when that which is call'd King John's Court, was a Priory.

In Hoxton is a handſome Square, well-inhabited, and on the Weſt Side of Pitfield-ſtreet is a pleaſant, well inhabited Square, call'd Charles-ſquare; and at the End of Pitfield-ſtreet, near the Farthing-pye-houſe-fields, is an excellent Spring of clear Water, vulgarly call'd, Anniſeed-clare, but properly, Agnes the Clear, now made a very handſome and commodious Cold Bath.

The laſt remarkable Place is King John's Court, which is a very antient Building, ſituated near Holy-well-lane.

In King ſland Road is a very handſome and beautiful School built by Subſcription, in the Year 1722, in which there are Apartments for a Maſter and Miſtreſs, who have 100 Children under their Care, viz. fifty Boys and fifty Girls, who who are maintained by Subſcription, are cloathed yearly, the Boys in light Grey, with Braſs Buttons, and the Girls in deep Blue, and have Books provided for them; when they arrive at the Age of 14 Years, they are put forth Apprentices, the Boys have 3 l. given with them, and the Girls 1 l. The Boys are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts, and the Girls to Read, Sew, Knit, Mark, &c.

AT the upper End of Pitfield-ſtreet is Aske's Hoſpital, of which ſee an Account Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV.

NEAR Hoxton are ſix Alms-houſes, containing 12 Rooms, for the Widows of 12 Weavers, each of whom has 1 l. per Ann. paid quarterly, and 24 Buſhels of Coals.

NEAR to theſe are 12 Alms-houſes for 12 poor Widows of Shoreditch Pariſh, each of whom has 4 l. per Ann. and one Sack of Coals, founded by Judge Fuller, as is before-mentioned in the Table of Benefactors. Theſe Alms-houſes were repaired Anno 1683.

ALSO eight Alms-houſes where eight poor Widows of this Pariſh, have 5 s. per Month, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, founded and endowed by John Walter, Citizen and Draper of LONDON.

LIKEWISE ſix Houſes for ſix poor Men (or for Men and their Wives) of this Pariſh, each of whom has 1 l. a Year, the Gift of Allen Badger, Eſq, Anno 1698.

NORTHWARD from the above in Hoxton Town, are two Alms-houſes built by Mr. Bearmore.

ON the Eaſt Side of Kingſland-road are 12 Alms-houſes given by Mr. Samuel Harwar, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, built in the Year 1713; in ſix of them the Drapers Company put in decayed Freemen, or their Wives, and the other ſix are filled up by the Pariſh. Every one has a Load of Coals yearly, and 6 s. per Month, paid by the Drapers Company.

NEAR to theſe, in the ſame Road, is Ironmongers Hopital, founded by Sir Robert Jefferies, of which ſee an Account Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV. But add this, that about ſix Years ago Mr. Betton, who was one of the Ironmongers Company, was here buried under a plain Tomb-ſtone, with only his Coat of Arms upon it, and left 10 l. a Year to increaſe the Salary of the Miniſter of the ſaid Hoſpital.

BEYOND theſe, towards Hackney, are ſix handſome airy Alms-houſes for decayed Members of the Goldſmiths Company, and to which Company they belong.

IN Mulberry-court, in the Liberty of Moorfields, are Alms-houſes belonging to the Dutch Church.

THERE is a large airy Workhouſe at the upper End of Hoxton, oppoſite to the Land of Promiſe. Here the Poor are employed to Card, Spin, Knit, Sew, &c. and a Maſter is kept in the Houſe to inſtruct the poor Children, who are there to Read: There is a Steward belonging to the Houſe, but the Church-wardens are Comptrollers over him; the chief Affairs are managed by a Committee of the Inhabitants, choſen out of the ſeveral Liberties of this Pariſh, who meet every Monday and Thurſday in the Afternoon for that Purpoſe.

THIS Pariſh is divided into four Liberties, viz. Church-end and Hoxton, Holywell-ſtreet, Moorfields, and Long-alley.

In the Liberty of Long-alley, are PART of Roſe-and-crown-alley, Pump-court, Flying-horſe-court, Thread-needle-alley, Maxhams-court, Hand-alley, Crooked-billet-court, Ball-alley, Crown-alley, Three-bowl-alley; Part of Primroſe-alley, and Part of Angel-court.

NUMBER of Houſes are about 2600.

ONE Note more of Shoreditch, and ſo an End of that Suburb.

WE read, that in the Year 1440, the 18th of Henry VI. a Fuller of Shoreditch appeached of Treaſon many worthy Eſquires and Gentlemen of Kent; but he being proved falſe, was attainted, condemned, and had Judgment to be drawn, hanged and quartered; which was done, his Head ſet on London-bridge, and his Quarters on the Gates. This Juſtice was done according to the 16th of Deuteronomy, The Judges ſhall make diligent Inquiſition, and if the Witneſs be found falſe, and to have given falſe Witneſs againſt his Brother, Brother, then ſhall they do unto him, as he had thought to do unto his Brother, &c.

We have likewiſe read of the King's Manor, called Shoreditch, in the Pariſh of Hackney; but how it took that Name, we know not.

This Houſe is now called Shore-place. The vulgar Tradition now goes, that Jane Shore lived here, and here her Royal Lover uſed to viſit her. But we have the Credit of Mr. Stow that the true Name was Shoreditch-place, and 'tis not unlikely to have been the Place of a Knight called Sir John de Sordich, a great Man in King Edward III. his Days, who was with that King in his Wars in France, and is remembered in our Annals in the 14th of King Edward III. He was Owner of Lands in Hackney, as well in Demeſne as in Service, which he gave to Croſton, his Chaplain. This, Wever notes, who thinks Shoreditch to be named from the ſaid Knight. This Shore-place, or Shoreditch-place was (they ſay) the Manor-houſe, called The King's-hold; in Diſtinction from another Manor called The Lord's-hold, both poſſeſſed by one Francis Triſſen of Shackelwel, Eſq; but this Houſe with the Lands about it, now belongs to Chriſt's Hoſpital.

The LIBERTY of NORTON-FALGATE.

THIS Liberty, which of a very antient Date is ſaid to belong to the Pariſh of St. Faith, by St. Paul's; but the Antients of this Liberty ſay, that it is Extra-Parochial, becauſe they maintain their own Poor, Marry and Bury where they pleaſe. But tho' Part of the Liberty may be ſo, yet the whole is not, for Part of Long-alley, Hog-lane, and Bloſſom-ſtreet, pay towards the Maintenance of the Poor of St. Leonard Shoreditch, in which Pariſh they ſtand; but as to Watch and Ward they pay to this Liberty.

They have a Tabernacle in Spittle-yard, which was built by Sir George Wheeler, and is now fallen very much to Decay, and the Miniſters, who have no certain Stipend, are the Reverend Mr. Lamplugh, who reads Prayers and preaches every Sunday Morning; and the Reverend Mr. Green, who does the like every Sunday in the Afternoon.

No Prayers on Week Days, except in the Time of Lent, and then they are on Wedneſdays and Fridays, about Eleven o'Clock in the Morning.

The Officers of this Liberty are as follows, viz.

2 Overſeers.	2 Scavengers.
1 Conſtable.	2 Surveyors of the
6 Headboroughs.	Highway.

All the Affairs of the Liberty are managed by the Antients, who are in the Nature of a Veſtry.

Over the Watch-houſe in Norton-falgate, is a Free-ſchool already mentioned.

In Bloſſoms-ſtreet is a Charity-ſchool for 25 Girls, who are taught to Read, Knit, Sew and Mark; they make their own Cloaths, and wear light Cinamon Colour Gowns. The Miſtreſs has a Houſe, in which the School is kept, is allowed two Chaldron of Coals a Year, 10 l. a Year, and one Guinea for inſtructing the Girls in Pſalmody. All this done by Subſcription and Collection at the Tabernacle Door, once in every Quarter of the Year, when Charity Sermons are preached for the Benefit of theſe poor Girls.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

Spittle-yard; Part of White-lion-yard, and therein Tinder-box-alley, Bloſſom-ſtreet, Elder-ſtreet; Part of Flower-de-luce-ſtreet, Porter's-ſquare, Sharp's-alley, and therein Part of Long-alley, Moor's-alley, Cock-alley, Wood's-court, and Part of Hog-lane.

Number of Houſes about 200.

The PARISH of Chriſt-Church in Spittle-Fields.

ON the Eaſt Side, and near the Middle of Church-ſtreet in Spittle-fields, is ſituated the new Church, called Chriſt-church in Spittle-fields; it was founded in the Year 1723, and built and finiſhed in 1729.

The Building here is very ſtrong and ſubſtantial, but greatly found Fault with by ſome Criticks in Architecture.

The Living is a Rectory in the Gift of Brazen-noſe College in Oxford, the Value is 300 l. per Ann. or upwards.

The Rector is the Reverend Mr. Wright, and the Lecturers are the Reverend Mr. Dubourdieu, and Mr. Lewis.

Prayers are every Wedneſday, Friday and Holiday at Eleven o'Clock, an Organ and eight Bells. Here are Charity Sermons once a Quarter, for the Charity Children, and laſt Lent Sermons were preached every Wedneſday and Friday for the ſame Uſe, which it is hoped will be continued: And on the laſt Friday in every Month is a Preparation Sermon.

The Veſtry conſiſts of thoſe who have ſerved or fined for the Office of Overſeer for the Poor, and are in Number about 195.

The Pariſh Officers are,	The Peace-Officers are,
2 Church-wardens.	1 Conſtable.
12 Auditors of Accompts.	9 Headboroughs.
4 Overſeers	1 Surveyor of the Highways.
1 Sideſman.	4 Scavengers.
	2 Surveyors of Streets.
	1 Aleconner.

The remarkable Places and Things are Spittle-fields-market, wherein there was a Market-houſe, but having been conſumed a few Years ſince by Fire, Stalls have been built all round the Market, and in the Middle are ſold Greens, Roots, &c. A Chapel on the Back-ſide of Wheeler-ſtreet, which was frequented by the Inhabitants before their Church was built, now maintained by the Inhabitants reſiding in the Old Artillery-ground, which Chapel was built by Sir George Wheeler. In the ſame Street is a French Church, another in Criſpin-ſtreet, another in Grey-eagle-ſtreet, at the Corner of Black-eagle-ſtreet, another in Brown's-lane, erected about eleven Years ago. On the South Side of Quakers-ſtreet is a Quakers Meeting.

Here is a Charity School for 30 Boys and 30 Girls; the Boys are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts, and the Girls to Read, Sew, Knit, &c. Maſter of the Boys has 20 l. per Ann. and there is a Miſtreſs for the Girls. In Roſe-lane and Criſpin-ſtreet are Alms-houſes for the Uſe of the Poor. In Bell-lane is a Work-houſe, a Building held by Leaſe, wherein the Poor are employed and maintained, who are in Number about 120, and their chief Work is winding of Silk for Throwsters. There is a House-keeper and Matron to look after them, and a Surgeon who attends twice a Week, and is allowed for Physick 12 l. per Ann. The House is managed by a Committee chosen by the Vestry, and they meet at this House every Thursday. In Grey-eagle-street, adjoining to the French Chapel, is an Hospital, in which the French maintain their own Poor.

THIS Parish is divided into the Old Town, and New Town, which was called the Hamlet of Spittle-fields, and is taken out of Stepney Parish.

STREETS, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c.

In the Old Town:

PART of Petticoat-lane, and therein Montagu-court, Cobb's-court, or Cobb's-yard, Fisher's-alley, Strype's-yard, King's-head-court, Frying-pan-alley, in which are White-lion-court, and New-buildings, Gun-yard; Part of Smock-alley, Little-Montagu-court, Cox's-square, Tabernacle-passage, Bell-lane, White-row, George-street, Plow-alley, Dean-and-flower-street, Keat-street, Thrall-street, Bunche's-alley, Brigg's-alley, Fossau-street, Three-link-alley, Small-coal-alley, Rose-and-crown-court, Moor's-yard, Horse-shoe-alley, Bird's-alley, Dorset-street, King's-head-alley, Little Pater-noster-row, vulg. French-court, Great Pater-noster-row, South-street; Part of Crispin-street, West-street; Part of Lamb-street, North-street, Spittle-fields-market, East-court, West-court, Maiden-head-court, or Corner-court, Glass-house-passage, East-street, Red-lion-street, Fryon-street, Angel-court, Great Red-lion-court, Little Red-lion-court, Church-street, Wood-street, Prince's-street; Part of Brown's-lane; Part of Brick-lane, Horse-and-Cart-yard, formerly Skinner's-yard, Small-coal-alley, Stay-maker's-court, vulg. Yorkshire-court; Part of Wentworth-street, Nag's-head-court, Sheer's-alley, Black-lion-alley, and New-court.

Number of Houses are about 2190.

The SUBURB without MOORGATE.

WE will now turn back from Shoreditch-cross to Bethlem-cross, and so pass thro' the Hospital of St. Mary Bethlem in Moorfields, which lies without the Postern called Moorgate.

THIS Field (of old Time) was called, The Moor, as appears by the Charter of William the Conqueror, to the College of St. Martin, declaring a running Water to pass into the City from the same Moor. Also Fitz-Stephen writes of this Moore, saying thus, When the great Fenn, or Moor, which watereth the Walls on the North Side is frozen, &c.

THIS Moorfield was in antient Writings called Magna Mora, because of the great Extent of this More or Mere: To which also belonged a Fishery for the Use of the City; both from antient Times in the Possession of the City. But in the 3d of King Edward I. Walter de Merton, Lord Chancellor, seized on them both; which, upon an Inquisition appointed that Year, the Jury of Alderman Pet. Aungier's Ward presented, and complained of, informing, That the City had been in full and peaceable Possession ever, unto the Time of Walter Hervey, late Mayor of LONDON, (viz. the 1st of King Edward I.) of one More or Mere, and one common Fishery in Cripplegate Ward, belonging to the Commonalty of the said City. Now the City was without the Seisin of the said Moor and Fishery, by Means of Walter de Merton, to the Disherison of our Lord the King, and the Damage of the said City, and they would know by what Warrant.

THIS Fenn or Moorfield, stretching from the Wall of the City, betwixt Bishopsgate and the Postern, called Cripplegate, to Finsbury and to Holywell, continued a waste and unprofitable Ground a long Time, so that the same was all letten for four Marks a Year, in the Reign of King Edward II. But in the Year 1415, the 3d of King Henry V. Thomas Fawconer, Mayor, caused the Wall of the City to be broken toward the said Moor, and built the Postern called Moorgate, for Ease of the Citizens to walk that Way upon Causeways into the Fields, towards Islington and Hoxton. Moreover, he caused the Ditch of the City, and other Ditches thereabouts, from Shoreditch to Deepditch, by Bethlem, into Moorditch, to be new cast and cleansed, by Means whereof the said Fenn or Moor was greatly drained and dried; but shortly after, viz. in 1477, Ralph Joceline, Mayor, for repairing of the Wall of the City, caused the said Moor to be searched for Clay, and the Brick to be burnt there, &c. by which Means this Field was made worse for a long Time.

IN the Year 1498, all the Gardens which had continued Time out of Mind, without Moorgate, viz. about and beyond the Lordship of Finsbury, were destroyed, and of them was made a plain Field for Archers to shoot in. And in the Year 1512, Roger Atchley, Mayor, caused divers Dikes to be cast and made, to drain the Waters of the said Moorfields, with Bridges arched over them, and the Grounds about to be levelled; whereby the said Field was made somewhat more commodious, but yet it stood full of noisome Waters; whereupon, in the Year 1527, Sir Thomas Seymour, Mayor, caused divers Sluices to be made to convey the said Waters over the Town Ditch, into the Course of Walbrook, and so into the Thames. And by these Degrees was this Fenn or Moor, at length, made main and hard Ground, which before being overgrown with Flags, and Rushes, served to no Use. Since which Time also the farther Grounds beyond Finsbury-court have been so over-heightned with Laystals of Dung, that now (says Stow in his Time) three Windmils are thereon set. The Ditches are filled up, and the Bridges over-whelmed.

Moorfields, to the Time of Sir Leonard Halliday, Mayor, Anno 1606, was but a noisome Place, like a Laystal, half environed with stinking Ditches, Ditches, offenſive to the City and Paſſengers; but now it is converted into very pleaſant Walks, gravelled, planted on all Sides with Rows of Trees, and divided into Quarters, and railed in, to keep the Graſs from being trodden down, fenced on the Outſides with Brick Walls coped with Stone. Alſo divers Vaults were made under Ground, partly to convey away foul Water, and partly to bring in freſh into the Town Ditch to keep it ſweet. For the forwarding of this good Work, Sir Leonard Halliday muſt have his Name recorded to his Praiſe.

HEREABOUTS is the New Artillery-ground, walled in, for the Exerciſe of the Militia of the City, after the Old Artillery without Biſhopſgate-ſtreet went out of Requeſt.

BUNHIL-FIELDS.

HERE adjoining on the Weſt is a Place called Bunhil-fields, where, ſome Time ago, was a large Piece of Ground encloſed for a Burying-Place, for the Convenience of ſuch as died of the Plague in the Year 1665. The Inſcription at the Entrance on the Weſt Side is this:

This Church-Yard was encloſed with a Brick Wall, at the ſole Charges of the City of LONDON, in the Mayoralty of Sir John Laurence, Kt. Anno Dom. 1665. And afterwards the Gates thereof were built and finiſhed in the Mayoralty of Sir Thomas Bloudworth, Knight, Anno Dom. 1666.

SINCE then this Place has been choſen by the Diſſenters from the Church of England, for the interring their Friends and Relations, without having the Office of Burial appointed by the Book of Common-Prayer ſaid at their Graves. There are a great Number of raiſed Monuments here with Vaults underneath, and Grave-ſtones with Inſcriptions not a few. The Price of Burial in the Vaults is 15 s. This Cœmitery lies Eaſt and Weſt.

ON the North Side, theſe Perſons are buried under Tombs, or ſepulchral Stones:

Anne Perry, Wife of Peter Perry, Citizen and Salter, who bare unto him one Son and two Daughters at one Birth; ſhe dyed the ninth of April, and the Children, named Elizabeth, Mary, and Peter, all dyed the ſame Month; Peter, the Eldeſt, lived longeſt, and dyed April 19, 1678.

EAST of Perry's Monument is a Head-ſtone with this Inſcription:

Here lyes the Body of Richard Burn, Gent. who departed the 26th of July, 1686, aged 45.

Elizabeth Burn.

When Death doth call me to my Boſom Friend,
Then all my grieving it will have an End.
And all my Sorrows will be vanquiſht quite,
When I am ſleeping with my Heart's Delight.

George Walker of the Pariſh of St. James Clerkenwell, dyed December the 3d, 1673, and Sarah his Wife, 1683, and Caleb their third Son, 1685.

A Head-ſtone:

In the Grave the Wicked cannot oppreſs;
For there the Weary are at Reſt.

Here doth the Body of John Dewbury reſt,
Waiting for the Reſurrection of the Juſt,
When Tears and Mourning ſhall be turned to Joy,
Then Sorrow and Sighing ſhall flee away.

Who departed this Life, March the 26th, 1685.

Francis

Francis Archer, Merchant, October the 14th, 1673, aged 59, and John Archer his Son, 1683.

A Head-ſtone:

To the Memory of Mrs. Patience Briggs, July the 16th, 1696.

What need of Marble to preſerve a Name,
Who lives inroll'd on the Records of Fame.
All noble Virtues that adorn the Mind,
In Miſtreſs Patience Briggs in Luſter ſhin'd.
The Piety which lodg'd within her Breaſt,
In all its beauteous Forms her Life expreſt
A Patroneſs, that with the mildeſt Awe
Preſcribed to her reſpectful Servants Law.
And yet obſerved the Honours that were due Unto her Parents and her Conſort too.
A bright Example in each State of Life,
A virtuous Daughter, and obedient Wife.

Here alſo lies Patience her Daughter.

Underneath this Stone doth lye
A Pattern of true Grace and Piety,
Who while ſhe liv'd did ſhine moſt bright,
And in God's Word did moſt delight.
And here ſhe lyes entomb'd in Duſt,
Till Reſurrection of the Juſt.

To the pious Memory of the Reverend Richard Marriot, a faithful Servant and Miniſter of Chriſt's Church: Who having fought a good Fight finiſhed his Courſe, and kept the Faith, exchanged this mortal Life for one of Immortality and Glory, Nov. 18, Anno Dom. 1696. Æt. 42.

The lovely Picture of this Holy Man
What curious Pencil can?
In his Houſe a Joſiah, in the Church a Paul,
A good Samaritan he was to all.
Born from above of a celeſtial Birth,
He dwelt in Heaven while he walkt in Earth.

In two Worlds much Vanity:
But in the Third he is at Reſt
With the Eternal, and there bleſt.
A God he did believe to be
Triune in one and Veritie.
His Form is ceaſt, his Life can't dy,
But's gone from Time into Eternity.
So that bleſt Soul hath tane his Flight
From earthly Body into Heaven's Light.
Where he in Glory now's at Liberty:
To praiſe the Lord to all Eternity.

Lucia Smith died Oct. 6. 1682, within a Day of twelve Years old, who lived much beloved, and died greatly lamented by all her Acquaintance; not having known her Equal for natural Endowments at her Age:

EPITAPH.

Here lies embalm'd in careful Parents Tears,
A Virgin Branch cropt in its tender Years.
Reader, as in a Glaſs thou perfectly may'ſt ſee
How all Things here below vain and uncertain be.
Dear Virgin Child farewel, thy Mother's Tears
Cannot advance thy Memory (who wears
A Crown above the Stars) yet I muſt mourn,
And ſhew the World mine Offerings at thy Urn.
'Tis not, dear Child, a Stone can deck your Hearſe,
Or can your Worth lodge in a narrow Verſe:
No, no, bleſt Virgin, this Engraver's Breath,
Is not to ſpeak your Life, but weep your Death.
This here is only laid by th' careful Truſt
Of a ſad Mother, in Honour of your Duſt.

Reader, pay thy Tribute here,
A Tear, a Roſe, and then a Tear.

Grief

Grief may make thee Marble too,
Yet weep on, as Marbles do.
Gently let the Duſt be ſpread
On a gentle Virgin's Head:
Preſt by no rude Paſſer by,
Nothing but a Mother's Eye.
Sacred Tomb, with whom we truſt
Precious Piles of lovely Duſt.
Keep them ſafely, ſacred Tomb,
'Till a Mother ask for Room.
Happy Soul, thy Hearſe prepare,
'Till ſhe comes and hugs thee there,
And when each Particle ſhall kiſs,
In her dear Arms, ariſe to Bliſs.

Rebecka Godolphin, Widow of John Godolphin, late Doctor of Laws, June 4, 1697, aged 56. Here reſteth in Hope, the Body of Hanna, Wife of Nehemiah Bourn, ſome Time Commander at Sea, and Commiſſioner for the Navy; by whom he had four Sons and one Daughter, who, after ſhe had lived with him as a moſt affectionate Wife 52 Years; during which Time ſhe was a moſt ſuitable Companion to him in various and extraordinary Paths of Divine Providence by Sea and Land, at home and in remote Parts; and an eminent Example and Pattern to all that knew her, as well in the ſeveral Excellencies of a natural Temper, as thoſe of the ſpiritual and divine Life, being ripened for a better. She departed this World at Ebiſham in Surrey, upon the 18th of June; from thence ſhe was brought to this Place, and buried the 21ſt in the Year of our Lord 1684, and of her Age 68.

In this Cœmitery was alſo buried, about the Beginning of the Year 1708, Dr. Eems, a Practiſer of Medicine, one of the Sect of the Propheſiers; of whoſe riſing again out of his Grave here, after a wonderful and terrible Manner, his Party confidently propheſied to happen on the 26th of May the ſaid Year: On which Day Thouſands of People were got together at this Tomb to ſee the Iſſue; but the Propheſy failed; the Propheſiers were very blank at it; notwithſtanding they affirmed the Propheſy was from God, but that he had deceived them.

CONCERNING the Incloſures of common Grounds about this City, Edward Hall ſets down a Note of his Time, viz. in the 5th or 6th of King Henry VIII.

" BEFORE this Time (ſaith he) the Inhabi" tants of the Towns about LONDON, as " Iſeldon, Hoxton, Shoreſditch, and others, had
" ſo incloſed the common Fields with Hedges
" and Ditches, that neither the young Men of " the City might ſhoot, nor the antient Perſons
" walk for their Pleaſure in thoſe Fields; but " that either the Bows and Arrows were taken
" away or broken, or the honeſt Perſons ar-
" reſted or indicted, ſaying, That no London-
" ers ought to go out of the City but in the " Highways.

" THIS Saying ſo grieved the Londoners, that
" ſuddenly this Year a great Number of the City
" aſſembled themſelves in a Morning; and a
" Turner in a Fool's Coat came crying through " the City, Shovels and Spades, Shovels and " Spades. So many of the People followed, that " it was a Wonder to behold; and, (within a
" ſhort Space) all the Hedges about the City
" were caſt down, and the Ditches filled up, and
" every Thing made plain; ſuch was the Dili-
" gence of thoſe Workmen.

" THE King's Council hearing of this Aſſem-
" bly, came to the Gray-fryars, and ſent for
" the Mayor and Council of the City, to know
" the Cauſe; who declared to them, the Injury
" and annoying done to the Citizens, and to " their Liberties, which though they would not
" ſeek diſorderly to redreſs, yet the Commonalty
" and young Perſons could not be ſtayed, thus
" to remedy the ſame. When the King's Coun" cil had heard their Anſwer, they diſſimuled
" the Matter, and commanded the Mayor to
" ſee that no other Thing were attempted, but " that they ſhould forthwith call home the " younger Sort, who having ſpeedily atchieved
" their Deſire, returned home before the King's " Council, and the Mayor departed without more " Harm; after which (ſays Hall) thoſe Fields
" were never hedged.

" BUT now, ſaith Stow, we ſee the Thing in " worſe Caſe than ever it was before, by Means
" of

" of Incloſure for Gardens, wherein are built " many fair Summer-houſes, and, as in other " Places of the Suburbs, ſome of them like " Midſummer Pageants, with Towers, Turrets, " and Chimney Tops, not ſo much for Uſe or " Profit, as for Shew and Pleaſure; bewraying " the Vanity of many Men's Minds, much un- " like to the Diſpoſition of the antient Citizens, " who delighted in the building of Hoſpitals, " and Alms-houſes for the Poor; and therein " both imployed their Wits and ſpent their " Wealths in Preferment of the common Com- " modity of this our City.

Finsbury, adjoining to Moorfields, is mentioned in an old Record granted 20 Richard II. to Robert de Wylingham, under the Name of The Garden of Vynesbury, Prebend in the Pariſh of St. Giles Cripplegate; whence it may be gathered that this Place had been once a large Garden for Vines, or a Vineyard.

A Part of the Suburb without Cripplegate alſo lay as a Part of the Moor, even to the River Wells, and no Houſes were there built, till the latter End of the Reign of William the Conqueror, and in the Reign of his Son William Rufus; about which Times ſome few Houſes were there built along Eaſt and Weſt, thwart before the ſaid Gate. One Alfune built for the Inhabitants a Pariſh Church which is of St. Giles, ſomewhat Weſt from the ſaid Gate, on the Bank of the Town Ditch; and ſo was there a Street ſince called Fore-ſtreet, as ſtanding before the Gate.

THIS Alfune, in the Reign of Henry I. became the firſt Hoſpitaller of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital in Smithfield, as in another Place is noted. And this Pariſh Church of St. Giles, being at the firſt a ſmall Thing, ſtood in Place where now ſtands the Vicarage-Houſe, but has been ſince (at divers Times) much enlarged, according as the Pariſh has increaſed, and was at length newly built in a Place where now it ſtands: But the ſame new Church being large, ſtrongly built, and richly furniſhed with Ornaments, was in the Year 1545, by Caſualty of Fire ſore burnt and conſumed; notwithſtanding, it was again, in a ſhort Space of Time repaired.

SOME little Diſtance from the Eaſt End of this Church ſtood a caſtellated Conduit in Fore-ſtreet. Then was a Boſs of ſweet Water in the Wall of the Church-Yard, afterwards made a Pump.

THERE was alſo, of old Time, a Pool of ſweet Water near the Church of St. Giles, wherein Anne of Lodbury was drowned as mentioned before.

The PARISH of St. LUKE in Middleſex.

OUT of the foregoing Pariſh of St. Giles's was taken, by Act of Parliament, another new one, called St. Luke in Middleſex, by Virtue of an Act of the 9th of Queen Anne, for building Fifty New Churches, and other ſubſequent Acts; the Pariſh Church ſtands on the North Side of Old-ſtreet, and is therefore commonly called Old-ſtreet Church. It is at ſome Diſtance from the Street, having a Church-Yard, with a handſome Iron Gate, and Iron Rails upon a Breaſt-wall before it. This Church being finiſhed, was dedicated to St. Luke the Evangeliſt, and conſecrated on the 16th of October 1733, by the Right Reverend Francis Hare, Biſhop of Chicheſter, and Dean of St. Paul's; which Ceremony was performed in the following Manner:

THE Biſhop came to the Church at half an Hour after Nine in the Morning, and the Church-wardens conducted him the Back-way into the Veſtry. After he was habited in his Robes, and his Chaplains in their Surplices, he went down the North Iſle, and turned under the Organ Gallery to the lower End of the Middle Iſle, where he was met by the Miniſter, Church-wardens, and ſome of the Inhabitants, and petitioned by them to conſecrate that Church.

THE Petition was ordered to be read by the Regiſter, and alſo the Biſhop of LONDON's Commiſſion. After his Lordſhip had declared his Readineſs to do as he was deſired, he and all the Clergy went up the Middle Iſle to the Communion Table, repeating the 24th Pſalm alternately as they went along.

THE Biſhop and his Chaplains went within the Rails, and others to their reſpective Places.

CHAIRS were provided on the North Side of the Table for the Biſhop and his Commiſſary, and on the South Side for his two Chaplains.

THEN one preſenting the Enrollment of the Diſtrict, the Biſhop laid it on the Communion Table.

THEN the Biſhop ſtanding up, the Congregation alſo ſtanding, read an Exhortation, and after that, all kneeling, ſaid ſeveral Prayers: Thoſe ended, the Biſhop ſat down in his Chair, and then the Sentence of Conſecration was read by his Commiſſary, and ſigned by the Biſhop, and by him ordered to be regiſtered, and was then laid upon the Table.

AFTER this the Miniſter read the Service for the Day, except where it was otherwiſe appointed, and the Biſhop and his Chaplain read the Communion Service.

SERMON being ended, all who did not receive the Holy Communion were deſired to withdraw; and the Doors being ſhut, the Chaplains collected the Offerings about the Rails, and the Church-wardens from the reſt of the Congregation.

THE Service in the Church being finiſhed, the Biſhop, Clergy, Commiſſary, and People went into the Church-Yard, and the Biſhop ſtanding in the Place prepared for the Performance of the Office there, the Act or Sentence of Conſecration was read by the Commiſſary, and ſigned by the Biſhop, and ordered to be regiſter'd; after which the Biſhop ſaid a Prayer ſuitable to the Occaſion, and concluded with The Grace of our Lord, &c.

THEN all proceeded to the other Church-Yard, where the ſame Ceremony was repeated.

THEN the Church-wardens and Pariſhioners waited upon the Biſhop to his Coach, and thanking his Lordſhip for his Trouble, took their Leave.

As to the Building of this Church, Criticks have differed, the Author of the Critical Review ſays, it is ſlight and trifling, by others it is eſteemed ſtrong and ſubſtantial, and particularly its Steeple, which is a fluted Obelisk, and which, if its Altitude had been half as high again as it is, would have been an elegant Piece of Architecture.

THE Columns that ſupport the Roof within are of the Ionick Order, the Roof is arched and adorned with Fret-work, there is a handſome Pulpit and Desk of good Wainſcot, and good Galleries on the North, South, and Weſt Sides, and a ſpacious Organ, under which is inſcribed in Gold Letters:

The Worſhipful Company of Ironmongers gave 100 l. towards the Charge of this Organ, 1733.

THE Chancel is paved with Marble; the Altar-Piece is painted Green and Gold, and adorned with Columns and Pediment of the Dorick Order, the Intercolumns are, the Creed, Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments, done in Gold Letters upon Black. There are two large Braſs Branches for Candles in this Church, but as yet no Monuments; in the Church-Yard are two Altar Tomb-Stones, thus inſcribed; on the firſt:

Here lyes interred the Body of Mr. William Paine, Citizen and Dyer of LONDON, and late of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the 15th Day of May, 1734, in the 52d Year of his Age.

On the other:

Here lies the Body of Frances Caſlon, Daughter of William and Elizabeth Caſlon, of this Pariſh, who departed this Life, Auguſt the 25th, 1734, aged one Year and 10 Months.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Biſhop of LONDON.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. Nichols, and the Lecturer the Rev. Mr. Price.

PRAYERS are at Eleven o' Clock in the Morning every Wedneſday, Friday and Holiday.

NUMBER of Houſes without the Freedom 3010.

IN the Eaſt End of Fore-ſtreet is More-lane, then next is Grub-ſtreet, of late Years inhabited (for the moſt Part) by Bowyers, Fletchers, Bow String Makers, and ſuch like Occupations, now little occupied; Archery giving place to a Number of Bowling Allies, and Dicing Houſes, which in all Places are increaſed, and too much frequented.

IN this Street lived the famous laborious John Fox, while he compiled and printed thoſe great Volumes of the Acts and Monuments of the Church, and the Martyrdoms of thoſe that were burned to Death under Queen Mary for Religion.

THIS Street ſtretches North to Everade's-well-ſtreet, which thwarts it to Whitecroſs-ſtreet: The next from Fore-ſtreet, North, is Whitecroſs-ſtreet, likewiſe extending itſelf up to the Weſt End of Everade's-well-ſtreet, and from the End thereof to Eald-ſtreet.

FROM the Weſt End of Fore-ſtreet lies Redcroſs-ſtreet; from which Croſs, on the right Hand Eaſt, lieth Beech-lane, and reaches to Whitecroſs-ſtreet; from that Croſs, North, lies Golding-lane, which ſtretches up to a Croſs in Eald-ſtreet; which Golding-lane (on both Sides) is repleniſhed with many Tenements of poor People.

ALL theſe Places lie in the Manor of Finsbury, commonly called Finsbury-fields, which ſtretch along theſe North Parts of Cripplegate thro' More-fields, and reach to ſome Parts of Shoreditch Pariſh.

ON the Left Hand, and Weſt of the Redcroſs, lies a Street, of old Time called Houndſditch, and of late Time called Barbican; and thus you have all the Suburb without Cripplegate.

CHAP

CHAP. III.

Of the SUBURBS without Alderſgate and Newgate.

NOW bending toward the North Weſt we have theſe Suburbs. Without Alderſgate, on the Left Hand, is the Pariſh-Church of St. Botolph; on the North Side of which Church lies a Way called Little-britain-ſtreet, towards the Priory of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield; but the Highway without Alderſgate, runs ſtrait North from the ſaid Gate unto Houndſditch or Barbican-ſtreet, on the Right Hand, and Long-lane on the Left Hand, which runs into Smithfield.

THEN from the farther End of Alderſgate-ſtreet, ſtrait North to the Bar, is called Goſwell-ſtreet, repleniſhed with ſmall Tenements, Cottages, Alleys, Gardens, Banquetting-Houſes and Bowling-Places.

BEYOND theſe Bars, leaving the Charter-houſe on the Left Hand, or the Weſt Side of the Way, ſtretches up towards Iſeldon, commonly called Iſlington, a Country Town hard by; which in the former Age was eſteemed to be ſo pleaſantly ſeated, that in the Year 1581, Queen Elizabeth, on an Evening, rode out that Way to take the Air; where, near the Town, ſhe was invironed with a Number of begging Rogues, (as Beggars uſually haunt ſuch Places) which gave the Queen much Diſturbance. Whereupon Mr. Stone, one of her Footmen, came in all Haſte to the Lord Mayor, and afterwards to Fleetwood the Recorder, and told them the ſame. The ſame Night did the Recorder ſend out Warrants into the ſame Quarters, and into Weſtminſter and the Dutchy. And in the Morning he went abroad himſelf, and took that Day ſeventy-four Rogues, whereof ſome were blind, and yet great Uſurers, and very rich. They were ſent to Bridewell, and puniſhed.

ON the Right Hand, or Eaſt Side, we turn into Eald-ſtreet, ſo called, for that it was the old Highway from Alderſgate-ſtreet, for the North Eaſt Parts of England, before Biſhopſgate was built. Which Street runs Eaſt to a Smith's Forge, ſome Time a Croſs before Shoreditch Church, from whence the Paſſengers and Carriages were to turn North to Kingſland, Tottenham, Waltham, Ware, &c.

THERE was ſome Time in this Suburb without Alderſgate, an Hoſpital for the Poor; but an Alien of Cluny, a French Order, and therefore ſuppreſſed by King Henry V. who gave the Houſe with Lands and Goods, to the Pariſh of St. Botolph's. And a Brotherhood of the Trinity was there founded, which was afterwards ſuppreſſed by King Henry VIII. or Edward VI.

THERE was (at the fartheſt North Corner of this Suburb) a Windmill, which was ſome Time, by a Tempeſt of Wind, overthrown, and in Place thereof a Chapel was built by Queen Katharine, (firſt Wife to King Henry VIII.) who named it the Mount of Calvary, becauſe it was of Chriſt's Paſſion, and was in the End of King Henry VIII. pulled down, and a Windmill newly ſet up as afore.

WITHOUT Newgate lies the Weſt and by North Suburb; on the Right Hand or North Side whereof (betwixt the ſaid Gate, and the Pariſh of St. Sepulchre) turns away towards Weſt Smithfield, called, Giltſpur-ſtreet, or Knight-riders-ſtreet; then is Smithfield itſelf, compaſſed about with Buildings.

AND without the Bar of Weſt Smithfield lies a large Street or Way called of the Houſe of St. John there, St. John's Street, and ſtretches towards Iſeldon.

HERE, in the Middle of the Street, ſtands Hicks's Hall, where the Juſtices of the Peace for Middleſex have their County Courts and other Meetings. It was built in the ſeventh Year of King James I. by Sir Baptiſt Hicks, Knt. a Citizen of LONDON; whereas before the Juſtices uſed to meet at a common Inn, called the Caſtle-Inn near Smithfield Bars, very inconveniently, being annoyed with Carriers and many other Sorts of People. King James, June 7. in the aforeſaid Year of his Reign, did infeoff * fifteen Knights and Eſquires of Middleſex, of this Piece of Ground, to be for ever uſed and employed for a Seſſions Houſe; and for the Keeping of a Priſon or Houſe of Correction for the ſame County. Upon which Piece of Ground and according to the Intent of the King's Letters Patents, Sir Baptiſt Hicks, Knight, one of the Juſtices of that County, built a Seſſions Houſe of Brick and Stone at his own proper Charges, with all Offices thereunto belonging. And upon Wedneſday the 17th of January, 1612, the Houſe being then finiſhed, there aſſembled ſix and twenty Juſtices of the ſaid County, being the firſt Day of their meeting there; where the Founder feaſted them all: And then, after they had conſidered what Name this Structure ſhould bear, they all with one Conſent gave it the Name of Hicks's Hall, in grateful Memory of the Builder: And he freely gave the Houſe to them and their Succeſſors for ever. He was a Mercer in Cheapſide, and youngeſt Brother to Sir Michael Hicks, Secretary to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley. It is alſo uſed for the ſitting of the Grand Jury (who meet eight Times a Year) upon Bills of the Indictments of Criminals to be afterwards tryed at the Juſtice Hall. Thirdly, for the Sitting of the Commiſſioners of the King's Tax for Holbourn and Finsbury Diviſion. Fourthly, for meeting of the Commiſſioners of Sewers, &c.

* To infeoff is a Law Term, which means to unite, or join to the Fee.

ON the Right Hand of this St. John's Street, ſtood the late diſſolved Monaſtery, called, The Charter-Houſe, founded by Sir Walter Manny, Knt. a Stranger born, Lord of the Town of Manny, in the Dioceſe of Cambray, beyond the Seas, who for Service done to King Edward III. was made Knight of the Garter.

THIS Houſe he founded upon this Occaſion: A great Peſtilence entering this Iſland, began firſt in Dorſetſhire, then proceeded into Devonſhire, Somerſetſhire, Gloceſterſhire, and Oxfordſhire, and at length came to LONDON, and overſpread all England; ſo waſting the People, that ſcarce the tenth Perſon of all Sorts was left alive; and Church-yards were not ſufficient to receive the Dead, but Men were forced to chuſe out certain Fields for Burials; whereupon Ralph Stratford, Biſhop of LONDON, in the Year 1348, 1348, bought a Piece of Ground, called, No Mans Land, which he incloſed with a Wall of Brick, and dedicated it for Burial of the Dead, built thereupon a proper Chapel, which is now enlarged, and made a Dwelling-Houſe: And this Burying-plot is become a fair Garden, retaining the old Name of Pardon Church-yard.

AFTER this, in the Year 1349, the ſaid Sir Walter Manny, in Reſpect of Danger that might befall in this Time of ſo great a Plague and Infection, purchaſed thirteen Acres and a Rod of Ground, adjoining to the ſaid No Mans Land, and lying in a Place called Spittle Croft, becauſe it belonged to St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, ſince that called The New Church Haw, and cauſed it to be conſecrated by the ſaid Biſhop of LONDON, to the Uſe of Burials.

IN this Plot of Ground there was, in that Year, more than 50,000 Perſons buried; the following Inſcription was fixed on a Stone Croſs, ſome Time ſtanding in the ſame Church-yard, and having theſe Words:

Anno Domini 1349. Regnante magna Peſtilentia, conſecratum fuit hoc Cœmiterium, in quo & infra ſepta præſentis Monaſterii, ſepulta fuerunt mortuorum corpora, pluſquam quinquaginta millia, præter alia multa abhinc uſque ad præſens; quorum animabus propitietur Deus. Amen.

That is in Engliſh:

A great Plague raging in the Year of our Lord 1349, this Church-yard was conſecrated; wherein, and within the Bounds of the preſent Monaſtery, were buried more than 50,000 Bodies of the Dead, beſides many other from thence to the preſent Time: Whoſe Souls God have Mercy upon. Amen.

IN Conſideration of the Number of Chriſtian People here buried, the ſaid Sir Walter Manny cauſed firſt a Chapel to be built, where (for the Space of twenty-three Years) Offerings were made. And it is to be noted, that above 100,000 Bodies of Chriſtian People had in that Church-yard been buried. For the ſaid Knight had purchaſed that Place for the Burial of poor People, Travellers, and others that were diſeaſed, to remain for ever; whereupon an Order was taken for the avoiding of Contention between the Parſons of Churches and that Houſe, to wit, that the Bodies ſhould be had unto the Church where they were Pariſhioners, or dyed, and after the Funeral Service done, had to the Place where they ſhould be buried.

AND the Year 1371, he cauſed there to be founded an Houſe of Carthuſian Monks, which he willed to be called the Salutation, and that one of the Monks ſhould be called Prior, and he gave them the ſaid Place of thirteen Acres and a Rod of Land, with the Chapel, and Houſes there built for their Habitation. But the three Acres of Land, lying without the Walls on the North Part, betwixt the Lands of the Abbot of Weſtminſter, and the Lands of the Prior of St. John; (which three Acres were purchaſed, incloſed, and dedicated by Ralph Stratford, Biſhop of LONDON, as is afore ſhewed) remained till our Time, by the Name of Pardon Church-yard, and ſerved for burying of ſuch as deſperately ended their Lives, or were executed for Felonies; who were fetched thither uſually in a cloſe Cart, veiled over and covered with black, having a plain white Croſs thwarting, and at the fore End a St. John's Croſs without, and within a Bell ringing (by ſhaking of the Cart) whereby the ſame might be heard when it paſſed; and this was called the Friery Cart, which belonged to St. John's, and had the Privilege, as Sanctuary.

IN this Charter-houſe be the Monuments of the ſaid Sir Walter Manny, and Margaret his Wife; Marmaduke Lumley, Lawrence Bromley, Knt. Sir Edward Hederſet, Knt. Sir William Manny, Knt. Dame Joan Borough, John Dore, Want Water, Knt. Robert Olney, Eſq; Katharine, Daughter to Sir William Babington, Knt. Blanch, Daughter to Hugh Waterton; Katharine, Wife to John at Poote, Daughter and Heir to Richard Lacie; William Rawlin, Sir John Lenthain, and Dame Margaret his Wife, Daughter to John Fray; John Peak, Eſq; William Baron, and William Baron, Eſq; Sir Thomas Thawites, Knt. Philip Morgan, Biſhop of Ely, 1434.

In the Cloyſtrie:

Monuments of Bartholomew Rede, Knight, Mayor of LONDON, buried 1505. Sir John Popham, &c.

THIS Monaſtery, at the Suppreſſion in the 29th of King Henry VIII. was valued at 642 l. and 4 d. Half-penny Yearly.

IN the Charter-houſe Chapel was buried James Sidgrave, Houſe-keeper of the ſaid Hoſpital, April 26, 1707. To which Hoſpital he gave 50 l. and 50 l. more to the Poor of Clerkenwel Pariſh.

OF the Charter-houſe ſee more, Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV.

A little without the Bars of Weſt Smithfield is Charter-houſe-lane, ſo called, for that it leads to the ſaid Plot of the late diſſolved Monaſtery; in Place whereof, firſt the Lord North, but afterwards Thomas Howard, late Duke of Norfolk, made large and ſumptuous Buildings, both for Lodging and Pleaſure. At the Gate of this Charter-houſe was a fair Water-Conduit with two Cocks, ſerving the Uſe of the Neighbours, to their great Commodity.

St. John's Street, from the entering this Lane, is alſo, on both Sides, repleniſhed with Buildings up to Clerkenwell. On the left Hand of which Street lies a Lane called Cow-Croſs, of a Croſs ſome Time ſtanding there; which Lane turns down to another Lane called Turnmill-ſtreet, which ſtretches up to the Weſt Side of Clerkenwell, and was called Turnmill-ſtreet, for ſuch Cauſe as is afore declared.

ONE other Lane there is, called St. Peter's Lane, which turns from St. John's Street to Cow-Croſs.

The Priory of St. JOHN of JERUSALEM.

ON the Left Hand alſo ſtood the late diſſolved Priory of St. John of Jeruſalem in England, founded about the Year of Chriſt 1100, by Jorden Briſet, Baron, and Muriel his Wife, near unto Clerk's Well, beſide Weſt Smithfield. Which Briſet having firſt founded the Priory of Nuns at Clerk's Well, bought of them ten Acres of Land, giving them in Exchange ten Acres of Lands in his Lordſhip of Welling Hall, in the County of Kent. St. John's Church was dedicated by Heraclius, Patriarch of the Holy Reſurrection of Chriſt at Jeruſalem, in the Year 1181, and was the chief Seat in England of the Religious Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem; whoſe Profeſſion was (beſides their daily Service of God) to defend Chriſtians againſt Pagans, and to to fight for the Church, uſing for their Habit a black upper Garment, with a white Croſs on the fore Part thereof. And for their good Service was ſo highly eſteemed, that when the Order of Templers was diſſolved, their Lands and Poſſeſſions were, by Parliament, granted unto theſe: Who, after the Loſs of Jeruſalem, recovered the Iſle of Rhodes from the Turk, and there placed themſelves, being called thereof, for many Years, Knights of Rhodes. But after the Loſs thereof, 1523, removed to the Iſle of Malta, manfully oppoſing themſelves againſt the Turkiſh Invaſions.

In the Year 1401 one Grendon was Prior of this Hoſpital, who took upon him to go to Rhodes, to fight, according to his Vow, in Defence of the holy Mother Church, &c. againſt Turks and Saracens. To whom King Henry IV. gave his Letters commendatory to all Foreign Princes, with a Character of high Reſpect for him.

The Rebels of Eſſex and Kent 1381, ſet Fire on this Houſe, cauſing it to burn by the Space of Seven Days together, not ſuffering any to quench it; after which Time, the Priors of that Houſe, new built both Church and Houſes thereunto appertaining; which Church was finiſhed by Thomas Docwray, late Lord Prior there, about the Year 1504, as appeared by the Inſcription over the Gate-houſe, not long ſince remaining. This Houſe, at the Suppreſſion in the 32 of Henry VIII. was valued to diſpend in Lands 3385 l. 19 s. 8 d. yearly. Sir William Weſton being then Lord Prior, died on the ſame 7th of May on which the Houſe was ſuppreſſed. So that great yearly Penſions being granted to the Knights by the King, and namely to the Lord Prior, during his Life 1000 l. but he never received a Penny. The King took into his Hands all the Lands that belonged to that Houſe, and that Order, whereſoever in England and Ireland, for the Augmentation of his Crown.

This Priory, Church and Houſe of St. John, was preſerved from Spoil or Down-pulling ſo long as King Henry VIII. reigned, and was employed as a Store-houſe for the King's Toyls and Tents for Hunting, and for the Wars, &c. But in the third of King Edward VI. the Church for the moſt Part, to wit, the Body and Side Iſle, with the great Bell Tower, (a moſt curious Piece of Workmanſhip, graven, gilt, and enamelled, to the great beautifying of the City, and ſurpaſſing all others) was undermined and blown up with Gunpowder, the Stone thereof was employed in building of the Lord Protector's Houſe in the Strand. That Part of the Choir which remained, with ſome Side Chapels, was by Cardinal Pool (in the Reign of Queen Mary) cloſed up at the Weſt End, and otherwiſe repaired; and Sir Tho. Treſham, Knt. was then made Lord Prior there, with Reſtitution of ſome Lands; but the ſame was again ſuppreſſed in the firſt Year of Queen Elizabeth.

There were buried in this Church Brethren of that Houſe, and Knights of that Order: William Bagecote, Richard Barrow, John Vanclay, Thomas Launcelen, John Malbore, William Turney, William Hulls, Hills or Hayles, John Weſton, Redington, William Longſtrother, John Longſtrother, William Tong, and John Wakeline. Then of others: Thomas Thornburgh, Gent. William Weſt, Gent. John Fulling and Adam Gill, Eſquires; Sir John Mortimor and Dame Eleanor his Wife; Nicholas Silverſton and William Plompton, Eſquires; Margaret Tong and Iſabel Tong; Walter Bellingham, alias Ireland, Keeper of Alms of Ireland; Thomas Bedle, Gentleman; Katharine, Daughter of William Plompton, Eſq; Richard Turpin, Gent. Joan, Wife to Alexander Dikes, John Bottle and Richard Bottle, Eſquires; Rowland Darcy, Richard Sutton, Gent. Richard Bottil, Gent. Sir William Harpden, Knt. Robert Kingſton, Eſq; and Margery his Wife; John Rock, Richard Cednor, Gent. Simon Mallory 1422; Robert Longſtrother, Ralph Aſteley, Eſq; William Marſhall, Eſq; Robert Savage, Eſq; Robert Gondall, Eſq; and Margery his Wife; William Babthorpe, Baron of the Exchequer, 1442.

The PARISH of St. JAMES CLERKENWELL.

Beyond this Houſe of St. John's, was the Priory of Clerkenwell, ſo called of Clarks Well adjoining. Which Priory was alſo founded about the Year 1100, by Jorden Briſet, Baron, the Son of Ralph, the Son of Brian Briſet, who gave to Robert a Prieſt, fourteen Acres of Land, lying in the Field next adjoining the ſaid Clerk's Well, thereupon to build an Houſe of Religious Perſons, which he built to the Honour of God, and the Aſſumption of our Lady, and placed therein black Nuns. This Jorden Briſet gave alſo to that Houſe one Piece of Ground, whereby to build a Windmill upon, &c. Upon the Diſſolution of this Priory, it became a Pariſh-Church, called St. James's Clerkenwell. About the Year 1623 the Steeple fell down, having ſtood Time out of Mind without any Reparation; nor among the Records of that Church could any Mention be found of any ſuch Thing. This Steeple, in the rebuilding thereof, and being near finiſhing, fell again, upon the Undertakers Neglect in not looking into the Strength of that upon which he was to rear ſuch a Burthen. With the Steeple fell the Bells, their Carriages and Frames, beating a great Part of the Roof down before them, the Weight of all theſe together, bearing to the Ground two large Pillars of the South Iſle, a fair Gallery over-againſt the Pulpit, the Pulpit, all the Pews, and whatſoever was under, or near it.

But all theſe Decays and Ruins were recovered and made whole again, the Walls firm and fair; and a new Door made in the South Wall. And the Church furniſhed with all Things new, and without and within beautified. And moreover the Steeple begun from the Ground, and raiſed as high as the Roof of the Church. And all this thus far finiſhed in the Year 1627, coſt 1400 l. or much upon that Sum. Notwithſtanding there was then much to do.

The Eaſt Part of this Church, with the Communion Table, was repaired and beautified about the Year 1638, as appears by what is writ upon the Wainſcot there, viz. This Wainſcoting, Railing and Pewing of this Communion Table was done Novemb. 20. Ann. Dom. 1638, at the ſole Charge of Richard Cook, Inn-keeper, dwelling at the Red Lyon in Gray's Inn Lane; who married with Suſan the third Daughter of John Goodcote of this Pariſh, Grazier, who was Churchwarden, Anno 1588. And the Commandments finiſhed, Anno Dom. 1639.

This Church was beautified and repaired again at the Coſt of the Inhabitants of this Pariſh, 1696.

The South Weſt Gallery was partly done at the Charge of Francis Loveday, in the Year 1704.

This Church is dedicated to St. James the Leſs, being Couſin German of our Lord, and ſo was called his Brother, according to the Cuſtom of the Jews. This St. James was an Apoſtle of Christ, and born about 16 Years before him; and Anno Christi 33, was by Jesus, after his Reſurrection, made Biſhop of Jeruſalem. He is ſometimes called James the Juſt, and was one of thoſe three Apoſtles to whom our Saviour immediately communicated the Gift of Knowledge, the better to fit him for that high Station of being the firſt Biſhop of the firſt Church in the World. He was a very holy Man, conſtant in Prayer and Faſting; was the Author of one of the ſeven Catholick Epiſtles; was martyred by being caſt down from the Top of the Temple, and then by a Blow on the Head with a Fuller's Club, in the Year of CHRIST 62, at Jeruſalem, after he had been Biſhop thereof 28 Years; his Age was 78.

THIS Church is built of Brick and rough Stone, partly Gothick, and partly of the Tuſcan Order; the Tower is all of Brick, built with Battlements, coped with Stone.

As to the Ornament and Finiſhing, the South Weſt Gallery looks neat, and there is another lower Gallery at the Weſt End of the Church for Charity Children, and another for the Family dwelling in Newcaſtle-houſe, above the reſt Northward, and a little Eaſt of the laſt.

THE Walls are lined with Oak of different Height; that round the Communion Table is about nine Feet high. The Pews and Pulpit are alſo Oak, tho' pretty old; as is alſo the Altar-Piece, where the Painting of the Commandments is ſomething decayed; they are placed between the Lord's Prayer, and Creed, and over are the King's Arms painted.

AT the Weſt End of the Church is a handſome Table, containing a Liſt of the Stewards for promoting Charity in the Years 1698, 1699, 1700, 1701, 1702, 1703, 1704, and 1705.

THE Dimenſions of the Church are, Length 69 Feet, Breadth 42, and Height 34, and the Altitude of the Steeple, conſiſting of a Tower and Turret, is 80 Feet.

MONUMENTS.

In this Pariſh Church was buried Conſtantius Bennet, a Greek born; he gave two Houſes, the one in St. John's-ſtreet, the other in Turnmil-ſtreet, the Rents of them to be diſtributed in Coals every Year againſt Chriſtmas, to the Poor of that Pariſh.

On an engraven Plate in the Chancel:

Here-under lieth buried Francis White, the fourteenth Son of Sir Thomas White of Southwerborne, Knight, deceaſed, and of Lady Anne, his Wife, who dyed at his Age of ſixteen, the laſt Day of February, Ann. Dom. 1566, he being their nineteenth Child.

On another plated Stone in the Chancel:

Hic jacet Iſabella Sackuil, quæ fuit Prioriſſa nuper Prioratus de Clerkenwel, tempore diſſolutionis ejuſdem Prioratus. Quæ obiit 21 Octobris, Anno Domini, Milleſimo Quingenteſimo Septuageſimo, & Anno Reginæ Elizabethæ Dei gratia, &c. Duodecimo.

On another:

Under this Stone lieth the Body of the good, charitable, and vertuous Gentlewoman, Mrs. Anne Blunt, Daughter unto Walter Blunt, of Blunt Hall in the County of Stafford, Eſq; and Siſter unto the Right Worſhipful the Lady Paulet, deceaſed, and to the Lady Sidenham, now living; which Anne died the 24th Day of April, Ann. Dom. 1504.

By the Communion Table:

Contegit hoc marmor Doctorem nomine Bellum,
Qui bene tum rexit Præſulis officium.
Moribus, ingenio, vitæ pietate vigebat,
Ladatus cunctis, cultus & eloquio.

Anno Domini, 1556, die Auguſt. 11.

THERE is an antient Marble Tomb in the North Wall of the Chancel, with the Figure of a dead Man by, in his Shrowd; and all the Plates are ſtolen away, only one Piece remaining, containing theſe Words:

Hoſpitalitate inclytus, genere præclarus.

THERE an Arms,

Hanc urna officii cauſa.

THE Effigies on this Tomb, which was ſupported with Pillars, is the Skeleton of a Man moſt artificially wrought; it was intended to repreſent Sir William Weſton, the laſt Lord Prior of St. John's of Jeruſalem, who dyed Ann. 1540; the Inſcription is fuller in Weaver's Monuments. This was of late broken and ſunk. Mr. Howard, in the Year 1704, being Church-warden, was minded to repair and make up this Tomb, and bid the Labourers dig where it was, in order thereunto; and near the Surface they met with a leaden Coffin, with the Figure of a Croſs on the Top; the Lead was all firm, only a ſmall Hole on the Top towards the Feet. He ſtrictly commanded them to inter the ſaid Corpſe as they found it; but the Workmen among themſelves opened it, and found nothing (as they were ready to ſwear) but they all decayed to Bones and Duſt, only they found a liquid Matter at the Bottom of the Coffin. Weaver has given a larger Account of this religious Knight and his Monument.

On a Braſs Plate faſtened to this Monument, were theſe Words inſcribed:

Spes me non fallat, quam in te ſemper habebam,
Virgo, da facilem votis natum, &c.

And on another Plate:

Ecce, quem cernis, ſemper tuo nomini devotum,
Suſcipe in ſinum, Virgo Maria, tuum.

On a plated Stone:

Here lieth the Body of the Lady Elizabeth Aſcough, ſome Time the Wife of William Dallyſon, one of the Juſtices of the King's-Bench; and afterward Wife to Sir Francis Aſcough, Knight: The which Lady departed this Life the ſixth Day of December, Ann. Dom. 1570.

And here alſo lieth William Dalliſon, Eſq; eldeſt Son to the ſaid William and Elizabeth; which William, the Son, deceaſed the ninth Day of Nov. Ann. Dom. 1585.

On another:

Here lieth the Body of Francis Butler, fourth Son of Sir John Butler, of Hatfield Woodhall, in the County of Kent, Knight, Ob. 4. Martii, 1615.

A fair Tomb in the North Wall of the Chancel:

The Lady Elizabeth Barckley of the Queen's Majeſty's Bed-chamber, and ſecond Wife to Sir Maurice Barckley, Knt. deceaſed (Standard-bearer to her Majeſty, to her Father, and to her Brother) departed this Life in this Pariſh the 16th Day of June, Anno Dom. 1585, (being 52 Years old) in the Faith of JESUS CHRIST, and was buried in the Floor under this Tomb. This Lady was the Daughter of Anthony Sonds, Eſquire: She had Children, two Sons and one Daughter, Robert, Margaret, and John.

Rogero Wood, Armigero, Servienti ad Arma, tam Sereniſſimo Regi, quam honoratiſſimo Conventuti Parliamenti. Roſa Conjux hoc poſuit Amoris pii, Memoriæ perpetuæ, Obſervantiæ debitæ, ſacrum Monumentum.

Obiit 18 Martii, 1609.
Ætat. ſuæ 46.

John Palmer of Clerkenwel, Eſq; was buried the 18th Day of February, Ann. Dom. 1585. He married Panclin, the Daughter of Anthony Sondes of Kent, Eſq; ſhe was alſo buried in this Chancel; by whom he had Iſſue Anthony Palmer, Elizabeth Cheiney, Jane Thursby, and Mary Palmer. Jane Thursby, had alſo one of her Daughters here buried, named Elizabeth.

In obitum Generoſiſſimæ, Chariſſimæque Elizabethæ Croftes, nuper uxoris Caroli Croftes, Armigeri.

Chriſtoph. Brook devotiſſimus, hoc memoriæ pignus poſuit. Ob. 20. Decemb. 1597.

Gentle Beholder of theſe doleful Lines,
With careful Mutes and mournful Accents ſounding,
Reſolve to Tears, viewing the ſad Deſigns
Of dreery Sorrow, and Hearts deepeſt wounding.
Conſuming Time, abridging Worlds Deſire,
Inſulting Death, fearful, prodigious ſtrange,
Eclipſing, waxing Heat of Nature's Fires,
With waining forc'd, and neceſſary Change:
Since you have done your worſt, to date her Days
Whilome the Worlds, now Heavens gracious Gheſt.
I, this ſad Memory of her Lives Praiſe
Preſume to write, in skilful Arts the leaſt:
She was deſcended of right gentle Blood, kind, courteous, affable and mild by Nature,
Modeſt her Thoughts, her Diſpoſition good.
Her mind Exchequers ſtore to every Creature,
Her Conſcience Spotles, her Religion pure,
Her Life ſincere, her Study Contemplation:
Her Hope was Heaven, with aye to endure,
Her Faith was conſtant, in her Souls Salvation:
Her vertuous Care her Children to direct,
Conform'd to Reaſon in her Husband's Will:
Her Bounty to her Servant, Friends Reſpect,
Deſire to help, and wiſh no Neighbour ill.
Thrice happy then (breathleſs) in Tomb that lieſt:
Earth hath but Earth, thy better Part ſurvives:
From worldly Warfare, ſummon'd to the higheſt,
Whoſe Death from Life, a ſecond Life derives.
Death Life confirms, Heaven Earth unites in one:
Her Life in Death, and Bliſs when World is done.

Here lieth the Body of Thomas Bedingfield, Eſq; ſecond Son unto Sir Henry Bedingfield, Kt. late of the County of Norfolk, and one of the Privy-Council to Queen Mary. Alſo this Thomas Bedingfield, was one of the honourable Band of Gentlemen Penſioners unto the late famous Queen Elizabeth, and Maſter of the Tents and Pavillions unto the moſt mighty King James, Monarch of Great Britain. He departed this Life the 11th Day of Auguſt, Ann. Dom. 1613.

This Monument was made and placed, at the Coſt and Charges of John Skillicorn, Eſq; being his Executor.

UPON a very worthy Friend, Maſter John Weaver, a learned Antiquary.

Weaver, who laboured in a learned Strain,
To make Men, long ſince dead, to live again,
And with Expence of Oyle and Ink, did watch,
From the Worm's Mouth the ſleeping Courſe to ſnatch,
Hath by his Induſtry begot a Way,
Death (who inſidiates all Things) to betray,
Redeeming freely by his Care and Coſt,
Many a ſad Herſe, which Time long ſince gave loſt;
And to forgotten Duſt ſuch Spirit did give,
To make it in our Memories to live.
Where Death deſtroy'd, when he had Power to ſave,
In that he did not ſeek to rob the Grave,
For where ſo e're a ruin'd Tomb he found
His Pen has built it new out of the Ground.
'Twixt Earth and him, this Interchange we find,
She hath to him, he bin to her like kind,
She was his Mother, he (a grateful Child)
Made her his Theme, in a large Work compil'd;
Of Funerals, Reliques, and brave Structures rear'd,
On ſuch as ſeemed unto her moſt indear'd.
Alternately a Grave to him ſhe lent,
O're which his Book remains a Monument.

Mr. Weaver upon himſelf:

Lankaſhire gave me Breath, and Cambridge Education,
Middleſex gave me Death, and this Church my Humation.
And Chriſt to me hath given
A Place with him in Heaven.

PERSONS that lie buried, and have Monumental Remembrances of them in this Church of St. James Clerkenwell, are theſe:

In the Church-yard an Epitaph againſt the South Wall of the Church, for a great Archer, almoſt defaced and gone:

I will preſerve it.

Sir William Wood lies very near this Stone,
In's Time of Archery excell'd by none.
Few were his Equals: And this noble Art
Hath ſuffer'd now in the moſt tender Part.

Long did he love the Honour of the Bow,
To him long Love tho' that alone did owe.
But how can Art ſecure? or what can ſave
Extreme old Age from an appointed Grave?
Surviving Archery muſt thy Loſs lament,
That in Reſpect beſtowed this Monument,
Where whiſtling Arrows did his Worth proclaim,
And eternize his Memory and his Name.

Ob. Sept. 4. Anno Dom. 1691. Ætat. 82.

HERE are alſo Tombs for Anne Weeks, and Caleb and Richard Weeks. And Nathaniel Spencer, and Margaret Wife of John Sanders; and Elinor Turner; and Frances Wife of Robert Hardwick, Surgeon, 1713. And for George Riley, 1731.

BENEFACTORS.

William Hern, a Maſter of Defence, and Yeoman of the Guard, 1580, gave Lands and Tenements to the Clothworkers of LONDON; they to pay yearly for ever fourteen Pounds to the Churchwardens of Clerkenwell, and fourteen Pounds to the Churchwardens of St Sepulchre's, towards Reparation of theſe Churches, and Relief of the poor Men.

More he gave after the Death of one Man yet living, eight Pounds the Year for ever, to the mending of Highways.

Thomas Sackford, Eſq; one of the Maſters of Requeſts, gave to the Poor of this Pariſh, forty Shillings the Year for ever out of his Alms-houſe at Woodbridge in Suffolk, where he is buried.

Henry Stoke, Gardener, buried there, gave twenty Shillings the Year for ever, towards Reparation of that Church.

BESIDES theſe Charities of antienter ſtanding, there be divers others: A particular Table of them all, both for Repair of the Church, and Relief of the Poor yearly, is placed againſt the North Wall of this Church, viz.

Anno 1660. Anne Valence, Widow, late Wife of Robert Valence, of this Pariſh, Eſq; deceaſed, gave the Sum of 50 l. to be diſtributed by the Veſtry among an hundred poor Men and Widows, that live by their honeſt Labour.

Anno 1699. George French, to twenty poor Houſe-keepers, or Widows, that have a Charge of Children, Two Shillings and Six-pence a-piece, to be paid them by the Haberdaſhers at Chriſtmas.

THIS Gentleman was a Lodger in Clerkenwell, with Mr. Howard, Churchwarden there; who communicated, ſaith Strype, the Contents of his laſt Will to me; whereby he gave 18 l. for ever to this and other Pariſhes in Charitable Uſes: Which may not be amiſs to give Account of in this Place.

IT bore Date the 10th of May 1699. Therein he gave Ten Shillings to the Miniſter of St. Antholin's, (the Morning Lecture there he much frequented) to preach a Sermon on a ſuitable Text every third Day, or nearer, before Chriſtmas-Day, at Nine o'Clock in the Morning; the ſaid Miniſter to read over his Charity before or after the ſaid Sermon. The Maſter or Upper Warden of the Company of Haberdaſhers, and the reſpective Church-wardens, to have Notice of it five Days before, for the diſtributing of the Charity hereafter given.

To give unto twenty poor aged Freemen of the Company of Haberdaſhers, or the Widows of ſuch whom the Maſter or Upper Wardens ſhall appoint by their Names in Writing, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece, with theſe Words, Give God the Praiſe.

Likewiſe, to twenty poor aged Houſe-keepers, or their Widows, of the Pariſh of St. Andrew's Holbourn below the Bars, whom the Churchwardens and Overſeers ſhall appoint by their Names in Writing, to be preſented by their Beadle, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

Alſo, to twenty aged and poor Houſe-keepers, or the Widows of ſuch as have a great Charge of Children in the Pariſh of St. James's Clerkenwell, whom the Upper Church-warden and Overſeer ſhall appoint by their Names in Writing to be preſented by the Beadle, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

And alſo to the Pariſh of St. Giles's Cripplegate, whom the Upper Church-warden and Overſeer ſhall appoint, to twenty of their Poor 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

And ſo alſo, to twenty Aged or poor Houſe-keepers, or their Widows, in the Pariſh of St. Olave's Southwark, that is, of ſuch Poor that live in or near George-alley, alias Croſs-keys-alley in Barnaby-ſtreet; their Names to be preſented by their Beadle, as aforeſaid, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

The like to twenty aged or poor Houſe-keepers, or their Widows, namely, ſuch as are frequent Hearers of the Morning Lecture at St. Antholin's, whether they live in, or out of the ſaid Pariſh; ſuch as the Miniſter, Church-warden or Overſeer there ſhall appoint by their Names in Writing, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

None to receive it that is of a looſe and ſcandalous Life.

The Miniſter and Clerk, the four Truſtees, Maſter of the Company, or in his Abſence the Upper Warden, with the five Churchwardens, to meet in the Veſtry before Sermon, and fit themſelves with a Pair of the beſt white Kids Leather Gloves, and the Executor and Succeſſor for ever do the like, for that Day, in Remembrance of the Donor.

The Clerk, and Sexton, and Beadles, to each one Shilling a-piece. Out of the Money remaining, to ſpend Ten Shillings at a Friendly Dinner for thoſe that have Gloves; and to give the reſt to other Poor.

The Truſtees to be Aſſiſtants to the Executor, in ſeeing the Charity fully performed.

The Eſtate in George-alley, and 7 l. 10 s. a Year, Ground-Rent, bought of Samuel Penſax, being the front Houſe in the Poſſeſſion of Mr. William Nightingal, Victualler. Alſo Five Pound Ground-Rent, due from a Houſe in Walbrook, now in the Poſſeſſion of Anthony Herrenden, Surgeon; and of the Star in the Wall, ſhall ſtand charged with the aboveſaid 18 l. a Year; and to make it good. He gave more 300 l. as a further Additional, ſecured, to make good the aboveſaid Charity.

Since

Since his Death, with this Money, are bought two Houſes fronting to St. John's Street, and the back Houſe behind them, fronting to St. John's Lane.

In caſe the Executor performeth not this whole Charity, without Deduction for any Manner of Tax whatſoever, then the Truſtees, with the Maſter of the Company of Haberdaſhers, and Church-wardens of the ſaid Pariſhes, to make their legal Entry upon all the aforeſaid Premiſes, and keep Poſſeſſion, till he pay double Coſt and Charges.

If Samuel Smith, Executor, and other Children of Mathuſelah Smith, have no Children of their Bodies lawfully begotten; then all the Eſtate, that is, the Whole of the aboveſaid Inheritance, to go as a further Addition to the aboveſaid Charity.

The Truſtees are Richard Edes, Sen. of the Prerogative Office, Gent. Joſeph Cames, Citizen and Haberdaſher; Daniel Hayes, Upholder, and Edmund Howard, Bridlecutter in Clerkenwell.

The Truſtees to have Rings of 20 s. a-piece, with this Poſie, A good Conſcience the beſt Treaſure.

The Natives of this Pariſh of Clerkenwell uſed to have an annual Meeting and Feaſt, for the keeping up Friendſhip and Encouragement of Charity, and putting out yearly a poor Child of the Pariſh.

This Feaſt was revived in the Year 1698; and there is a Table hanging up in the Church entering on the South Side, containing a Liſt of the Names of the Stewards that Year, and ſo continued.

This Pariſh bought their Church ſixty Years ago, or thereabouts; whereas before they rentted it. They purchaſed it of one Drake, living at Tottenham Court, by St. Giles's. But he reſerved the Rector's Houſe; which was formerly one Houſe, but now is divided into two, one wherein the Rev. Mr. Pede did formerly live; and the other, wherein Mr. Edmund Howard lived. Theſe Tenements Mr. Drake reſerved for himſelf and his Wife and Children, out of the ſaid Purchaſe. But they were afterwards bought and enjoyed by the ſaid Howard.

The Pariſh is bound, by Virtue of this Purchaſe, to provide a Reader to read Prayers every Day in the Week at Eleven o'Clock in the Morning, and in Lent in the Afternoon alſo: For which they are bound to pay the Miniſter that ſo officiates, 4 l. 18 s. 9 d. which they make 5 l. And beſides, he hath 6 l. more, being a Gift, for preaching a monthly Sermon, preparatory to the Sacrament, which is preached every Friday Morning before the firſt Sunday in the Month. They chooſe their own Miniſter, and require him to preach twice every Lord's Day: For which they, beſide his Salary, make a Collection in the Pariſh. And if he cannot conveniently preach himſelf, they allow him to take a Lecturer to be his Aſſiſtant, ſuch as they ſhall like of.

Add to the Charities belonging to this Pariſh, a Gift Sermon to be preached every Michaelmas Day; when theſe Payments are made:

To the Miniſter, 1 l.
To the Reader, 2 s. 6 d.
To the Sexton, 1 s.
To forty poor Widows, 6 d. a-piece.
To be ſpent among the Miniſter, Church-wardens and Overſeers of the Poor, 15 s.

Given of late to the Pariſh, 100 l. the Income whereof is for the Uſe of the Poor of the Pariſh, to be diſtributed in Bread every St. John the Evangeliſt's Day. Mr. Francis Loveday was the Donor. The Pariſhioners being ſomewhat ſtraitned for Room in the Church, Mr. Howard, Church-warden, thought it the beſt Way to improve this 100 l. by building a Gallery on the Weſt End of the ſaid Church, and the Pews or Places to be Let. From the Benefit whereof is reſerved for the Uſe of the Poor according to the Will of the Giver, 6 l. per Annum, the full Intereſt thereof.

The Living of Clerkenwell is a Curacy. The Pariſh are the Impropriators, who pay the Miniſter 11 l. 15 s. per Ann. 5 l. for reading Prayers, and the reſt for a Monthly Preparation Sermon, being the Gift of ſome Body deceaſed. But beſides, there is a yearly voluntary Subſcription made, amounting to 100 l. He hath alſo five Shillings for every Burial in the Church, and half as much for a Burial in the Church-yard. But the Ground in the Church belongs to the Pariſh.

The Curate is the Reverend Mr. Ley.

Prayers are every Day at Eleven o'Clock, and a Sermon at Eleven in the Morning, and at Three in the Afternoon on the Friday, preceding every Sacrament Sunday, Monthly. Beſides the Gift Sermon on Michaelmas-Day, there is another given by Thomas Croſs, Eſq; to be preached on St. Thomas's Day, for which the Miniſter has 20 s. the Clerk 5 s. the Sexton 1 s. 6 d.

Here is a fine Organ lately ſet up.

The Veſtry is General.

The Parish Officers are,	The Peace-Officers are,
2 Church-wardens.	5 Conſtables.

In Honey-coat-yard in Ailsbury-ſtreet are two Charity-Schools, one for 60 Boys, and one for 40 Girls, who are annually cloathed and inſtructed in Reading, Writing, Arithmetick, Pſalmody, and the Principles of the Chriſtian Religion, by the voluntary and charitable Contributions of well diſpoſed Perſons; by whoſe Charity thirty more Children have been added.

In Clerkenwell-Cloſe is a Houſe of Correction, or Bridewell, where idle Perſons in the County, ſuch as Night-walkers, &c. are ſet to Work.

On Clerkenwell-Green is a Priſon, called New Priſon, which was intended as an Eaſe to Newgate; and here Perſons, who are guilty of Miſdemeanors, &c. committed in the County of Middleſex, are ſent and detained till diſcharged by due Courſe of Law.

In Hockley in the Hole is a Bear-Garden.

In Ray-ſtreet is an excellent Spring, formerly called Clerkenwell.

In St. John's Court is a Chapel, where there are Prayers Wedneſdays, Fridays, and Holidays, and Sermons twice every Sunday. It was formerly a Priory, and now endowed by Juſtice Mitchel.

Here are two Quakers Meeting-Houſes, and one Charity-School for thoſe of their Perſuaſion.

Near the Road to Iſlington are ſeveral Spaws, and Northward from them is the New River Head.

This Pariſh begins at Piſſing-alley in St. John's Street, (including one Side of that Alley) and oppoſite to it, extends to the Guy of Warwick in Iſlington, and takes in Part of Muzzel-Hill, Great and Little Swan Alleys; Part of Goſwell-ſtreet, Mountmill, Wood's-cloſe, and the Streets therein. Alſo Ailsbury-ſtreet, Clerkenwell-Green and Cloſe, Red-lion-ſtreet, St. John's Court, court, and all St. John's-lane, except the two Houſes next to St. John's-ſtreet. In Turnmill-ſtreet it begins at Jacob's-court, incluſive, and at the Gully-hole, on the other Side of the Street, and takes in Peter-ſtreet as far as the Bar, and contains Mutton-lane to the Bridge, Rag-ſtreet, Hockley-in-the-Hole, Codpiece-row, Cold-bath-fields, and the Streets therein, and all the Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c. in this Compaſs.

IT extends North-Weſtward from the End of Codpiece-row, or Towns-end-ſtreet, to Sir John-old-caſtle's, and thence to Black-mary's-hole, taking in one Houſe there, and then Northward to the Stone in Wood's-fields, and to a little Wheel-Pond; thence to Sermon-lane, and then Croſs the Road to Goſwell-ſtreet.

THIS Pariſh is divided into the Liberty of Iſlington, and the Upper Liberty, which is called the Liberty of St. John's-ſtreet, or Swan-alley; the Lower Liberty, or St. Jeruſalem, Weſtminſter Liberty, and the Cloſe Liberty.

NUMBER of Houſes in the Pariſh 1900.

THE Priory here was valued to diſpend 262 l. 19 s. by the Year, and was ſurrendered the 30th of King Henry VIII. Many good Houſes for Gentlemen and other, are now built about this Priory, eſpecially by the Highway towards Iſlington.

So much of the Church which remains, (for one great Iſle thereof, which fell down) ſerves now as a Pariſh Church of St. James, not only for the Tenants and near Inhabitants, but alſo (as is aforeſaid) for all up to Highgate, Moſwell, &c.

NEAR to this Church, beſides Clerk's Well, lay divers other Wells, namely, Skinner's Well, Fog's Well, Tode Well, Loder's Well, Rede Well, &c. damm'd up, and ſo remained and altogether unknown till within theſe 50 Years, or thereabouts; when, upon ſome Occaſion, they, or ſome of them were new diſcovered, and being found Mineral Waters, of the Nature of Tunbridge, they came greatly frequented by Citizens, and uſed as Chalybiate Waters for correcting Hypochondriacal Diſtempers.

THE old Well of Clerkenwell, and from whence the Pariſh had its Name, is ſtill known among the Inhabitants: It is on the Right Hand of a Lane that leads from Clerkenwell to Hockley-in-the-hole, in a Bottom. One Mr. Croſs, a Brewer, has this Well incloſed, but the Water runs from him into the ſaid Place. It is incloſed with an high Wall, which formerly was built to bound in Clerkenwell-cloſe: The preſent Well being alſo incloſed with another lower Wall from the Street. The Way to it is through a little Houſe, which was the Watch-houſe, you go down many Steps to it. The Well had formerly Iron Work and Braſs Cocks, which are now cut off. The Water ſpins through the old Wall; it is excellently clear, ſweet, and well taſted. The Pariſh is much diſpleaſed that it is thus gone to Decay, and think to make ſome Complaint at a Commiſſion for charitable Uſes, hoping by that Means to recover it to common Uſe again, the Water being highly eſteemed thereabouts, and many from thoſe Parts ſend for it.

Skinner's Well is almoſt loſt, and ſo it was in Stow's Time; but it is ſaid to lie on the Weſt of the Church, incloſed within certain Houſes there. The Pariſh would fain recover the Well again, but cannot tell where the Pipes lie: But Dr. Rogers, who formerly lived in an Houſe there, ſhewed Mr. E. H. late Church-warden, two Marks in a Wall in the Cloſe, where theſe Pipes (as he affirmed) laid, that it might be known after his Death.

THERE was alſo a Ducking-Pond near to Clerkenwell, at which Pond a ſad Miſchance once happened, viz. the 19th of January, 1633, ſix young Lads going to ſport themſelves here upon the Ice, the Ice broke, and they all fell in and loſt their Lives, to the great Grief of many that ſaw them dying, and many more that ſaw them dead, as well as of their Parents.

IN the Year 1615, the Juſtices of Middleſex, by Licence from the King, built an Houſe of Correction for the County of Middleſex, near the Eaſt End of Clerkenwell, upon a large Garden-Plat, purchaſed by the ſaid Juſtices; which Houſe was for the Puniſhment and Employment of Rogues and Vagabonds of Middleſex, who formerly uſed to be taken into Bridewell, as well as the Vagrants of LONDON; but theſe Miſcreants ſo increaſed, that Bridewell could not contain them, nor imploy them; neither were the Governors willing to receive them of Middleſex from the ſaid Juſtices, holding it contrary to the Charter of LONDON, and the Foundation of Bridewell: But the City gave unto this Houſe 500 l. in Money, at the Requeſt of the Council, to make a Stock for the Employment of the Poor. The Purchaſe of that Plat of Ground, and the Building, coſt about 2500 l. Part of which was the free Gift of the Juſtices, and the reſt levied by the Inhabitants. The 500 l. which the City gave, inſtead of making a Stock, was imployed in building and furniſhing the Houſe. The Juſtices appointed over it two Maſters and Governors, and a Matron, who were to order and govern the Vagrants committed there, and to have a Salary of 200 l. a Year for their Pains; for which Salary they receive them, and keep them at Work, without further Charge to the County, unleſs they be diſcharged thence by Order of the Juſtices of Peace.

Now to return to Giltſpur-ſtreet, where we firſt began with this Suburb, there ſtands the Pariſh Church of St. Sepulchre in the Bailey, as is before ſhewed, from this Street to Turn-again-lane by Hoſier-lane, Cow-lane, and Holborn-Conduit, down Snow-hill to Holborn-bridge, and up to Holborn-hill, by Gold-lane, on the Right Hand, and Leather-lane beyond it, up to the Bars; beyond which Bars on the ſame Side is Port-pool-lane, Gray's-inn-lane, ſo called of the Inn of Court, named Gray's-inn, as belonging formerly to the Family of the Lord Gray, which having its chief Entrance out of this Street, ſhall be here taken Notice of, taking up almoſt all the Weſt Side of Gray's-inn-lane, into which it has a Paſſage. This is one of the four Inns of Courts, and is very ſpacious, containing ſeveral Courts, ſurrounded with good Buildings, taken up by Barriſters and Students of the Law. The chief Courts are Holborn-court, Chapel-court, and Cony-court: But ſince the taking down the Middle Row of old Chambers, which ſevered Cony-court from Chapel-court, both are laid open together; only a Separation of a Paliſado Pail running croſs, to keep the Coachmen from driving their Horſes into Cony-court, which ſince the levelling and gravelling, is kept very handſome. And this Court being the beſt ſituate, as to an open Air, eſpecially the Weſt and North Sides, which looks into the Garden and adjacent Fields, is of moſt Eſteem, and has the beſt Buildings. The Hall where the Gentlemen of the Society Dine and Sup, is large and good, but the Chapel adjoining is too ſmall; it were to be wiſhed that the Society would new build it, and raiſe it on arched Pillars, like Lincoln's-inn Chapel, and then there would be a good dry Walk underneath, in rainy Weather. Beſides theſe Courts, there is another more Weſtward, having the Garden Wall on the North Side, and Buildings on the Weſt, with ſome Part of the South. Out of this Court there is a Paſſage down Steps into Holborn-court, another Paſſage into Chapel-court, another into Fulwood's-rents, and another into Bedford-row.

Grays-Inn.

The chief Ornament belonging to this Inn, is its ſpacious Garden, with curious Walks, as well thoſe that are ſhady by the lofty Trees, as thoſe that are raiſed higher, and lie open to the Air, and the Enjoyment of a delightful Proſpect of the Fields. And this Garden has been, for many Years, much reſorted unto by the Gentry of both Sexes.

Some of their chief and antient Orders for Government are:

That one of the Sons of every double Reader ſhould be admitted without Fine, others to pay for Admiſſion 40 s. afterward this was raiſed to 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. excepting thoſe of Staple's and Bernard's-inn; it was afterwards ordered, that ſetting the Fine on Admiſſion ſhould be left to the Judgment of the Treaſurer and Readers of the Houſe.

After the 30th of Elizabeth none to be admitted, unleſs his Fine be paid down; and 36 Eliz. thoſe admitted were to find two Sureties for Payment of his Duties, as Penſion to the Houſe, for Chambers and for Commons; which Sureties were to be Fellows of this Houſe.

King James, in the 1ſt of his Reign, commanded, that none ſhould be admitted of this Society but Gentlemen by Deſcent, and he to be admitted was to give in his Name, that his Quality might be conſidered; and that none be admitted till they had paid all Duties per Order, 6 January.

And afterward, that none ſhould be admitted to any Chambers but for three Lives.

By 6 Car. I. it was ordered, that thoſe admitted ſhould pay 10 l. Fine, and 20 l. per Ann. Rent, and no Chambers to be ſold but for one Life; but at preſent the Building Term, for which Chambers are diſpoſed of is 51 Years, and the Renewing Term, 21.

For their better Improvement in Learning, at a Penſion held 24 Jan. 12 Eliz. ordered, that Moots ſhould be kept three Days in every Week, Mondays, Tueſdays, and Thurſdays, if not Holidays; and every Inner Barriſter, not putting Caſes according to the old Order, to pay 2 s. for every Default.

In 16 January it was ordered, that ſome one of the third Table ſhould aſſign a Caſe, and he that did it once, to be excuſed for that Term.

Any Gentleman who ſhall be expelled the Houſe, he is not to be re-admitted but by Penſion Order, and ſhall pay 40 s. for his Re-admittance; and the Fine for Admittance (Ann. 1664.) of a new Member not coming from the Inns of Chancery was 2 l. 13 s. 4 d. and there are ſeveral other antient Rules relating to Commons not now uſed.

The firſt Reader of this Houſe was John Spelman, Eſq; Anno 1516, firſt Treaſurer Anno 1530, but the Readers, Comptrollers, and Revels have of late (for ſome Years) been laid aſide.

The Arms in the Hall of this Inn of Court are of Charles Howard, Earl of Nottingham, Thomas Ratcliff, Earl of Suſſex, Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby, William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, Robert, Earl of Salisbury, Lord Gray of Wilton, Sir Richard Wingfield, Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter in the Time of King Henry VIII. Earl of Bedford, Lord Hunſdon, Lord Darcey, Lord St. John of Bletſo, Henry, Earl of Kent, Sir Nicholas Bacon, Keeper of the Great Seal, Sir Francis Bacon, Baron of Verulam, Lord Bergavenny, Lord Wentworth, Sir John Spelman, one of the Judges of the King's-Bench, Clement Spelman, Eſq; Curſitor Baron of the Exchequer, and many others, which here is not Room to inſert.

As to the Building, the Roof of the Hall is finely built of Timber in the Nature of Weſtminſter-hall; on the Turret is a Sun-declining Dial, with this Motto, LUX DIEI LEX DEI. That noble Court, called Cony-court, was built Anno 1687.

The Chapel here is a Gothick Building, and was, in the Year 1699, beautified and repaired, the Walls being covered with a handſome Finiſhing.

The Dimenſions are, Length 51 Feet, Breadth 37, Altitude about 20. Here are no Burials, nor (conſequently) any Monument.

THE preſent Preacher to this Honourable Society, is the Reverend Dr. Stebling, whoſe Income ariſes from the Members of the Houſe, who pay according to their Degree, as per Term :

A Student, 2 s. 6 d.
A Barriſter, 3 s. 4 d.
An Antient, 4 s.
And a Bencher, 6 s. 8 d.

WHICH is paid to the Treaſurer, and he pays the Preacher 160 l. per Ann. Quarterly ; out of which the Dr. allows the Afternoon Preacher 40 l. per Ann. who is now the Reverend Mr. William Noble ; and here are Prayers daily at Eleven and Three.

A Gentleman now pays for Admittance, 4 l. 8 s.
To the Officers at his coming into Commons, 17 s. 6 d.
To the Preachers and Butlers Rolls, per Term, 5 s.
To the Penſion or Parliament for Mooting, in order to be called to the Bar, 3 l. 3 s.
They are to be in Commons a Fortnight every Term, for which they pay, 16 s.

And in the Winter Terms more, 1 s. 6 d.

THEY are to be ſeven Years admitted (or if they come from the Inns of Chancery, five Years) 20 Terms in Commons, and have a Chamber in their own Right, and then having done their Exerciſe are called to the Bar.

THERE are Degrees of Tables for the Benchers, Barriſters and Students : And the Officers of this Houſe, are :

A Treaſurer.	A Pannier Man.
Steward.	Steward's Man, and
4 Butlers.	Chief Butler's Man.
2 Cooks.	2 Porters, and
	1 Gardener.

THE Garden is very ſpacious and pleaſant, and has ſix principal Walks, of which two are Terras Walks.

THE Armorial Enſigns of this Society are, Argent, a Griffin Rampant, ſegreiant proper.

Grays-inn-lane is furniſhed with fair Buildings, and many Tenements on both the Sides leading to the Fields towards Highgate and Hampſtead.

ON the High-ſtreet are many fair Houſes built, and Lodgings for Gentlemen, Inns for Travellers, and ſuch like, up almoſt (for it lacks but little) to St. Giles's in the Fields. Among which Buildings, for the moſt Part. being very new, one that was larger than the reſt, in Stow's Time, was built by a Widow, ſome Time Wife to Richard Arlington, Eſq; which Richard Arlington deceaſed in the Year 1561. And thus much for that North Side of Holborn.

Now from Newgate on the Left Hand, or South Side, lies the Old-bailey, and ſo down by Seacoal-lane End to Holborn-bridge, up Holborn-hill, by Shoe-lane, and Fetter-lane, to the Bars.

THESE two Croſs-Lanes, Shoe-lane and Fetter, or (Fewter) Lane, with the third, called Chancery-lane (all which lie between the two High-ſtreets, Fleet-ſtreet and Holborn, and are Paſſages from one to the other) were foul for Paſſengers and unpaved, till the 9th of King Edward II. Ann. 1315, when that King granted an Impoſition upon Commodites brought to the City, for the Mending and Paving of thoſe Lanes; and likewiſe to pave and mend the Highway from Portpole-bridge to Tyburn, and to Highgate ; and alſo the ſame Grant extended from the Paving between Temple-bar and Weſtminſter.

BEYOND the Bars was (in old Time) a Temple built by the Templers, whoſe Order firſt began in the Year of CHRIST 1118, the 19th of King Henry I. This Temple was left, and fell to Ruin ſince the Year 1184, when the Templers had built them a new Temple in Fleet-ſtreet, near to the River Thames. A great Part of this old Temple was pulled down, but in the Year 1595. Adjoining to this old Temple was the Biſhop of Lincoln's Inn, wherein he lodged, when he repaired to this City ; Robert de Curars, Biſhop of Lincoln, built it about the Year 1147. And John Ruſſel, Biſhop of Lincoln, Lord Chancellor in the Reign of King Richard III. was lodged there. It afterwards belonged to the Earls of Southampton, and therefore called Southampton-houſe ; which Houſe was conveyed in Fee to the Lord Wriotheſley, Earl of Southampton, and Lord Chancellor, in the Time of King Edward VI. for which the Biſhop has no other Houſe in or near LONDON, as is thought.

ONE Mr. Roper built much there ; by Means whereof, Part of the Ruins of the old Temple was ſeen to remain, built of Cane Stone, round in Form as the new Temple, by Temple-bar, and other Temples in England.

BEYOND this old Temple and the Biſhop of Lincoln's Houſe, was New-ſtreet, ſo called in the Reign of King Henry III. when he (of a Jew's Houſe) founded the Houſe of Converts, betwixt the old Temple and the new.

CONCERNING this Houſe of Converts ſome Things have been ſpoken before in Farringdon Ward Without ; let theſe Antiquities thereof be added here, for the better Knowledge of this Place :

Firſt, One Henry, a Convert, bequeathed a Tenement to it ſituate over-againſt this Houſe, in the Street called New-ſtreet, for the maintaining of a Luminary to the Holy Trinity in the Church of this Houſe ; which Tenement the Maſter of the ſaid Houſe, and the reſt of the Brethren afterwards demiſed to Will. Ailemer, the 9th of King Edward II.

Secondly, Women Converts were admitted here as well as Men ; and King Edward III. in the 18th of his Reign, admitted one Alioner M. who had not wherewithal to live, granting her to have ſo much in all Things for her Suſtentation, as well in Money at the Exchequer, viz. one Penny a Day, and the Aiſiamenta, i. e. the Conveniences of the Houſes and Gardens, as any one of the other Women enjoyed ; and alſo of the Deodands, and other Profits, as of the Rents and Tenements of the ſaid Converts of LONDON, being within the Kingdom of England, as much as any other Convert Women partook thereof.

CONCERNING the Deodands before-mentioned, the ſaid King Edward III. in the 4th of his Reign, granted to the Maſter of the Houſe of Converts, the Deodands belonging to him.

THE King preſented a Clerk to the Church of St. Dunſtan in Fleet-ſtreet, in the 10th of his Reign ; but it was Salva penſione inde capiend. Regis in Domo Converſorum.

THERE was alſo Proviſion made for the maintaining of the Children of ſuch as were of this Houſe. And there is a Patent, Anno 15 of that King, concerning providing for the Children of one of them deceaſed in the ſame Houſe.

AND in the 20th of the ſame King, the Converts were ordered to receive 10 d. ob. every Week.

THERE was a Governor of this Houſe, who was called the Keeper of it, one John S. Denys, Archdeacon deacon of Rocheſter, was Keeper there in the Time of King Edward I. which King took a voluntary Oath to make Proviſion for them, Rex Johanni de St. Dionyſio Archino, Roff. Cuſtodi Domus Converſorium Lond. Salut. Quia ad augmentum Fidei, Nos, ut illi qui a Cecitate ad Lumen Eccleſiæ ſunt converſi, in ipſa Fidei Firmitate roborentur, & alii qui adhuc in errore perſiſtunt, lubentius ad graciam Fidei ſe convertant, depoſuimus in eorum ſuſtentationem ſalubriter providero.

The ſame Street has ſince been called Chancery-lane, by Reaſon that King Edward III. annexed the Houſe of Converts by Patents, to the Office of Cuſtos Rotulorum, or Maſter of the Rolls, in the 15th of his Reign.

This Chancellor's-lane, (now called Chancery-lane) in King Edward V's Time was ſo foul and miry, that John Briton, Cuſtos of LONDON, had it barred up, to hinder any Harm that might happen in paſſing that Way; and the Biſhop of Chicheſter, whoſe Houſe was there, kept up the Bar for many Years: But after divers Years, upon an Inquiſition made of the Annoyances of LONDON, the Inqueſt preſented that John Biſhop of Chicheſter, 10 Years paſt ſtopt up a certain Lane, called Chancellor's-lane, Levando ibid. duas Stapulas cum una barra, i. e. by ſetting up there two Staples with one Bar croſs the ſaid Lane, whereby Men with Carts and other Carriages could not paſs. The Biſhop ſaid, that John Breton, while he was Cuſtos of LONDON, for that the ſaid Lane was ſo dirty that no Man could paſs, ſet up the ſaid Staples and Bar ad viam illum defutand. and he granted, that what was an Annoyance ſhould be taken away: And ſo the Sheriff was commanded to do it.

In this Street the firſt fair Building to be noted on the Eaſt Side, is called the Courſitors (or Curſitors) Office, built with divers fair Lodgings for Gentlemen, all of Brick and Timber, by Sir Nicholas Bacon, late Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, deceaſed in the Year 1578.

Near to this Curſitors Office are divers fair Houſes and large Gardens, built and made in a Ground ſome Time belonging to one great Houſe on the other Side the Street, there made by Ralph Nevil, Biſhop of Chicheſter. This Ground he had by the Gift of King Henry III. as appears hence, viz.

"The King granted to Ralph, Biſhop of "Chicheſter, Chancellor, that Place, with the "Garden which John Herlirum forfeited in that "Street called New-ſtreet, over-againſt the Land "of the ſaid Biſhop, in the ſame Street; which "Place, with the Garden and Appurtenance, "was the King's Exchete, by the Liberty of "the City of LONDON, as it was acknowledged before the King, in his Court of the "Tower of LONDON, in the laſt Pleas of "the Crown of that City. Cart. 11. King "Henry III.

Morris Brown, Citizen and Fruiterer, by his Will, July 6, 1488, gave to Margery his Wife the Profits of his Tenements and Gardens, which he held to farm of the Biſhop of Chicheſter, lying in Chancery-lane, in the Pariſh of St. Dunſtan in the Weſt.

The Biſhop of Chicheſter has ſtill a Propriety and Rents here for Grounds belonging to the See, on both Sides the Way. Firſt, on the Weſt Side from Lincoln's-inn, in the Street Southward near the Pump to ——— Feet of Ground; comprehending two Thorowfares, viz. Biſhop's-court, ſiding with Lincoln's-inn, and ſome Time taking in Part of it, (which ſaid Inn formerly paid 7 l. per Ann. as an Acknowledgment to the ſaid Biſhop;) and Chicheſter Rents, the other Thorowfare on that Side. On the Eaſt Side of the Street forwards, the ſaid Grounds extend from White's-alley to the Rolls; and backwards Eaſt as far as Bond's-Stables, with a Patch of Ground joining to it incluſive; comprehending all the Ground uſually called The Tenter-yard, and Simmond's-inn, and ſiding on the Rolls Southwards.

And Anno 7. Regin. Annæ, there was an Act made for explaining and making more effectual a former Act, Anno Reginæ 1. granting further Time to John Biſhop of Chicheſter, and his Succeſſors, to make Leaſes of certain Houſes and Ground in and near Chancery-lane, belonging to the Biſhoprick of Chicheſter.

The ROLLS LIBERTY.

There were many old Houſes belonging to the Rolls; and to encourage and warrant the Tenants to rebuild or improve them, an Act was made the 12th of King Charles II. to impower the Maſter of the Rolls to make Leaſes of them for Years. For before the Maſters could not grant ſuch Leaſes for Terms of Years as might prevail with Tenants to build their Houſes; and ſo they came much out of Repair, and not capable of Improvement.

Thomas Barrow was Maſter of the Rolls in King Richard III. his Reign; to whom that King gave a Grant of a Tun of Wine, to be taken in the Port of LONDON, which ſeemed to have been his Fee, as appears in a Ledger of that King.

Which Rolls are a Liberty, tho' of no great Compaſs: To ſet down its Circuit or Bounds, we ſhall begin at the Corner of Curſitors-alley, next to Chancery-lane, taking in the South Side to the Roſe Tavern, where it croſſes White's-alley; all which it takes in, and ſo into Bond's-ſtables; all which is alſo taken in, except two or three Houſes on each Side next to Fetter-lane; and there it croſſes into the Rolls-garden, which it likewiſe takes in; and from thence runs into Chancery-lane by Sergeants-inn, and croſſing Chancery-lane runs into Jackanapes-lane, about the Middle of which it croſſes into Pope's-head-court, which it takes all in, as it doth the Eaſt Side of Bell-yard, almoſt to the End next Temple-bar, except ſome few Houſes on the Backſide of Crown-court, which is in the City Liberty: And then croſſing Bell-yard, near Temple-bar, runs croſs the Houſes into Shear-lane, taking in all the Eaſt Side: And again, croſſing over to Lincoln's-inn-new-court, runs up to the Pump by the Palliſado-Pales, where it croſſes over into Chancery-lane, taking in the St. John's-head Tavern, and thence to the Corner of Curſitors-alley, where we began its Bounds, or Girt Line.

The Rolls, formerly a Church, now uſed for the Cuſtody of the Rolls and Records of Chancery; as alſo made Uſe of on Sundays in Term-Time for Divine Service and Preaching. Here the Maſter of the Rolls reſides, and has a handſome, new, well-built Houſe.

In the Chapel where Divine Service is performed, the Records are kept; this would admit of new Building. In the Yard belonging to the Rolls, is the Examiners-Office, being two in Number, with their Clerks.

Chancery-lane (wherein theſe Rolls are ſituate, formerly called New-ſtreet) is a Place of great Reſort and Trade, occaſioned by its Vicinity to the Rolls, Six-clerks-office, Sergeant's-inn, with Simmond's-inn, and the other Inns of Court and Chancery: But the upper Part of this Lane, next next Holbourn, lying in St. Andrew's Pariſh, is beſt built and inhabited, having alſo the Proſpect of Lincoln's-Inn Gardens.

THE particular Places in Chancery-lane are theſe:

ON the South Part, beginning next to Lincoln's-Inn, is,

Biſhop's-court, new built, with good Houſes, having a Free-ſtone Pavement, and a Paſſage into Lincoln's-Inn, where there is a Pair of Gates with open Iron Bars.

Chicheſter-rents, a pretty broad Court, with a Paſſage alſo into Lincoln's-Inn, through a Pair of Gates, ſhut up at Nights as thoſe at Biſhop's-court. It is a Place not over well inhabited, nor neatly kept, although it might be otherwiſe, as having a good Freeſtone Pavement. Next to this is a ſmall and narrow Place called Feathers-alley, which hath a Paſſage into the upper End of Bell-yard.

THE Six Clerks Office is a large Building, the Office is kept above Stairs, where the ſixty Clerks in one large Room, have their Seats; but the Six Clerks have there each their Apartments.

ENTERING into this Six Clerks Office, on the Right Hand, is the Enrollment Office of the Chancery.

THE Maſters of the Chancery have their Office in Chancery-lane, near Jackanapes-lane, being a Room where generally one or two attend in their Turns to take Affidavits, &c. and ſit for Buſineſs. It is ſituate in a Yard where the Crown and Rolls Tavern is kept. Their Dwelling-Houſes are elſewhere.

THE Maſters of Chancery are twelve of the Civil Law, who are Aſſiſtants to the Lord Chancellor.

WHEN Sir Thomas Smith writ his Commonwealth, there were but ſix, beſides the Maſter of the Rolls. The Nature of their Office, and what Encroachments were made upon them a good while ago, may appear by a Letter Petitionary, preferred to the Lord Treaſurer, An. 1608, drawn and ſigned by Sir John Tindal, and other of the Maſters: Complaining againſt extraordinary Maſters in Chancery, the Act of taking away the Rewards of Suitors, loſing the Benefit of the Alienation Office, and other Matters, which had greatly diminiſhed the Benefit of their Places. The Letter was as follows:

Right Honourable and our very good Lord,

WE the Maſters of the Chancery, which be the Maſters of the Chancery in Ordinary, and ſo known (whoſe Names be hereunto ſubſcribed) on the Behalf of ourſelves, and our Fellow Maſters in Ordinary now abſent, do moſt humbly and in all Duty ſhew unto your Lordſhip, That where by the Inſtitution of the High Court of Chancery, there were only twelve principal Aſſiſtants appointed to attend the Lord Chancellor in the Affairs of that Court, which be called The Maſters of the ſaid Court, of whom the Maſter of the Rolls is the Chief: Unto which Number the noble Kings of this Realm have given bountiful Allowance of Diet and Robes, and many great Things alſo towards the Charge of their Service, beſides many Fees of Right and Cuſtom belonging to their Places: So it is, Right Honourable, that as in many other Caſes, ſo of later Times, we know not by what deſerved Puniſhment, but by our Unhappineſs (as it ſeems) all our antient Allowances in a Manner (in this extreme Increaſe of Charges, when our Pains and Service by Reaſon of the Multitude of Suits are doubled and trebled) are taken from us, partly by Monopolies of great yearly Revenue, of ſuch Things as belonged principally to the ordinary Maſters, made by Patents unto ſuch as have not at all ſerved in the ſaid Court; partly by a late ſevere Statute whereby all Reward from Suitors is taken from them, a Matter admitted in all other Commonwealths; and not a little by the making in theſe Times of many extraordinary Maſters, which originally were not at all: But in Proceſs of Time a very few were uſed only in the remoteſt Parts of the Land, for the Eaſe of thoſe Subjects: But now, tho' they be not of the King's Fee, nor give Attendance in Court, do not only gleane, but carry away whole Sheaves from the Ordinary Maſters: So as in Effect there is left unto the true Maſters towards their great Pains and Charge, a bare yearly Stipend from the King's Majeſty of about twenty Nobles towards their Robes, and certain petty Duties; which the Extraordinaries take upon them alſo againſt all Right and Reaſon to carry from them.

AND for a plain Evidence thereof, may it pleaſe your Lordſhip to be informed, That the Duties which are payable in the Alienation-Office, whereof your Honour hath now under his gracious Majeſty the Governance, which do belong to a Maſter of the Chancery, were ever before the Erection of that Office belonging only unto the Maſters, and at the firſt Erection of that Office a Maſter in Ordinary was placed there. But in the Time of the laſt Lord Treaſurer, we know not by what Means, but as we believe chiefly by not knowing any Difference between the two Functions, an Extraordinary was placed there, to the great Prejudice and Damage, and (if we durſt ſay it) to the Wrong of the Ordinary Maſters. Now for as much as the ſame Perſon is yet employed in that Service in the ſaid Office, We therefore, the Ordinary Maſters of the ſaid Court of Chancery, his Majeſty's dutiful, faithful and moſt painful Servants in that Court, encouraged by the publick Fame of your admirable Diſpoſition to Juſtice and Equity, do humbly beſeech your Honour, to be a Means unto his Gracious Majeſty, that his moſt humble Subjects and Servants might in ſome reaſonable Sort, according to their Places and Service be reſpected: And your Honour in this very Particular Caſe, would be pleaſed to reſtore unto our Places, the Benefit of ſerving in the ſaid Office of Alienations.

AND ſo ſhall we be found no leſs ready than we ſtand bound to employ our beſt Endeavours, in the ſame his Majeſty's Service, under you: And will alſo teſtify our humble Thankfulneſs, by yielding unto your Honour our moſt willing Duties, and by recommending you always to the gracious Favour of the Almighty.

Jackanapes-lane, lately a bad, as well as frequent Paſſage for Coaches and Carts into Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, and thoſe Parts, being very troubleſome by Reaſon of its Narrowneſs, that two could not paſs by one another. But now by a late Act of Parliament, this Lane is widened. On the South Side, about the Middle, there is a Paſſage into Popes-head-court, which is a pretty ſquare Place, with a Free-ſtone Pavement. And of this there is another Paſſage into Bell-yard.

Bell-yard, a Place of a good Thoroughfare from Lincoln's Inn into Fleet-ſtreet, and chiefly conſiſting of Publick Houſes.

Shear-lane comes out of Little Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, and falls into Fleet-ſtreet by Temple-bar; the upper Part hath good Buildings, well inhabited; but the lower Part is very narrow, and more ordinary. In this Lane is a certain ſmall Court.

THEN on the Eaſt Side of Chancery-lane is Curſitors-alley, ſo called from the Curſitors Office there adjoining. This Alley, at the Entrance into Chancery-lane, is but narrow, but opens wider,

White's-alley, or rather Alleys, (for theſe are ſeveral) which lead to Buildings all old, and generally ill inhabited. Theſe Buildings have two Paſſages into Chancery-lane, the one called Three Crane-alley, and the other Bread's Buildings, a handſome open Place, with very good Houſes on one Side, the other is only a high Dead Wall, except one Houſe at the North End Corner.

Boar-ſtables hath a Paſſage into White's-alley, and another into Symond's-Inn; but the beſt into Fetter-lane, thro' a Sort of Street now lately built with good Houſes, and called the Rolls Buildings. In this Place is a ſmall Court called Crack-pitcher-court.

Symond's-Inn, this is one of the Inns of Chancery, but is poſſeſſed by two Maſters in Chancery, ſeveral Solicitors, &c. There are two handſome Brick Structures, and two pleaſant Courts; in one of which is the Regiſters Office; which is of great Import and much Buſineſs belonging to the Court of Chancery. There is one principal Regiſter; which Office is veſted in his Grace Charles Duke of St. Alban's, and Francis Earl of Godolphin. The Deputy-Regiſters are Edward Goldſborough, Eſq; and Richard Pyne, Eſq; For the Rolls, Mr. Thomas Parnell, and Mr. Thomas Parot. Their Buſineſs is to ſit in Court and regiſter the Proceedings with all Decrees and Orders, &c. of the Lord Chancellor or Keeper, or Maſter of the Rolls, and at their Office deliver out Copies of the ſame to thoſe concerned, &c.

THEN was the Houſe of Converts, wherein now the Rolls of Chancery are kept.

THUS much for the Rolls and the Liberty thereof. Then is Serjeants-Inn.

ON the Weſt Side of Nese-ſtreet was anciently, and ſtill is, the Houſe and Office of the Six Clerks, of old called Hoſtle-Inn. It belonged ſome Time to Nutley Park Priory in Buckinghamſhire. Upon the Diſſolution it came to K. Henry VIII. who in the 30th of his Reign gave it to Charles Duke of Suffolk, and Katharine his Wife. It conſiſted of a Meſſuage, a Garden and Curtelage. In which Year an Act of Parliament was made, whereby they were made a Corporation, under the Name of The Six Clerks of the King's Court of Chancery: And for them to hold and enjoy the ſaid Meſſuage, Garden and Curtelage, to them and their Succeſſors, the Six Clerks of Chancery, for ever in Succeſſion; and to hold it of the King in Fealty.

ON this Weſt Side of Nese-ſtreet, towards the North End thereof, was (of old Time) the Church, and Houſe of the Preaching Fryars: Of which Houſe, it is ſaid, that in the Year of Chriſt 1221, the Fryars Preachers, thirteen in Number, came into England, and having to their Prior one named Gilbert de Fraxineto, in Company of Peter de la Roche, Biſhop of Wincheſter, came to Canterbury; where, preſenting themſelves before the Archbiſhop Stephen, he commanded the ſaid Prior to preach, whoſe Sermon he liked ſo well, that ever after he loved that Order. Theſe Fryars came to LONDON, and had their firſt Houſe without the Wall of the City by Holbourn, near the Old Temple.

Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, was a great Benefactor unto theſe Fryars, and deceaſing at his Manor at Banſted in Surrey, or, after ſome Writers, at his Caſtle of Barkhamſted in Hertfordſhire, in the Year 1242, was buried in their Church: Unto the which Church he had given his Place at Weſtminſter; which the ſaid Fryars afterward ſold to Walter Gray, Archbiſhop of York, and he left it to his Succeſſors in that See,

And therefore the ſame was called York Place; which Name ſo continued until the Year 1529; that King Henry VIII. took it from Thomas Wolſey, Cardinal and Archbiſhop of York. and then gave it to Name, White Hall.

Margaret, Siſter to the King of Scots, Widow to Geffery, Earl Marſhal, deceaſed 1244, and was buried in this Church.

IN the Year 1250 the Fryars of this Order of Preachers, through Chriſtendom, and from Jeruſalem, were by a Convocation aſſembled together, at this Houſe by Holbourn, to intreat of their Eſtate, to the Number of 400, having Meat and Drink found them of Alms, becauſe they had no Poſſeſſions of their own. The firſt Day the King came to their Chapter, found them Meat and Drink, and dined with them. Another Day the Queen found them Meat and Drink: Afterward the Biſhop of LONDON, the Abbots of Weſtminſter, of St. Alban's, Waltham, and others. In the Year 1276, Gregory Rokeſly, Mayor, and the Barons of LONDON, granted and gave to Robert Kilwerby, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, two Lanes or Ways next the Street of Baynard's Caſtle, and the Tower of Mountfichet, to be deſtroyed. On which Place the ſaid Robert built Church, with the reſt of the Stones that were left of the ſaid Tower. And thus the Black Fryars left their Church and Houſe by Holbourn, and departed to their new.

THIS old Fryar-Houſe (juxta Holbourn ſaith the Patent) was by King Edward I. in the ſixteenth of his Reign, given to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln. Next to this Houſe of Fryars, was one other great Houſe, ſome Time belonging to the Biſhop of Chicheſter, whereof Matthew Paris writeth thus:

Ralph de nova villa, or Nevill, Biſhop of Chicheſter, and Chancellor of England, ſome Time built a noble Houſe, even from the Ground, not far from the New Temple and Houſe of Converts, in which Place he deceaſed, in the Year 1244. His Gardens, on the other Side of the Street, mentioned before. Matthew Paris called it the Biſhop of Chicheſter's Palace (ſuch it ſeems was the Magnificence of it,) and writes, that the Archbiſhop of Canterbury viſiting St. Bartholomew's, did lie at this Houſe. It is ſaid to be Let in Leaſe by the Biſhop's Predeceſſors for divers Years. Here Spelman writes, that Sir Richard Read, ſome Time a Maſter of Chancery, and Mr. Atkinſon a Counſellor at Law, Men eminent in their Times, (viz. under Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth) and others dwelt.

IN this Place, after the Deceaſe of the aforeſaid Biſhop, and in Place of the Houſe of Black Fryars before ſpoken, Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, Conſtable of Cheſter, and Cuſtos of England, built his Inn, and for the moſt Part was lodged there. He deceaſed in this Houſe in the Year 1310, and was buried in the New Work (whereunto he had been a great Benefactor) of St. Paul's Church, betwixt our Lady's Chapel, and St. Dunſtan's Chapel. You enter Lincoln's-Inn under a fair antient Gate-houſe, on which are the Arms of England: And on the Right Side thereof this Coat within the Garter: Or, a Lion Azure or Purpure, belonging to Lacy, Earl of Lincoln: On the Siniſter Side another Coat, within the Garter borne quarterly, being the bearing of the Lovels; underneath is the Date, A. D. 1518. Theſe Arms are of late new painted and refreſhed. By whom they were done, appears by an Inſcription there added underneath, viz. Lincoln's-Inn.

Armig. Solicitatore Generali, Theſaurario, 1695.

A fair Chapel for the Uſe of this Inn of Court, was built in the firſt Court, Anno 1623, and conſecrated upon Aſcenſion-Day that Year, by the Lord Biſhop of LONDON.

THIS Lincoln's-inn, ſome Time pertaining to the Biſhops of Chicheſter, as a Part of the ſaid great Houſe, is now an Inn, as before; but now lately increaſed with fair Buildings, and repleniſhed with Gentlemen ſtudious in the Common Law. In the Reign of King Henry VIII. Sir Thomas Lovel was a great Builder there; eſpecially he built the Gate-houſe and Fore-front towards the Eaſt, placing thereon as well the Lacie's Arms as his own: He cauſed the Lacie's Arms to be caſt and wrought in Lead, on the Lover of the Hall of that Houſe, which was in three Eſcutcheons, a Lion Rampant, for Lacie's, ſeven Maſcules voided, for Quincie, and three Wheat Sheaves, for Cheſter. This Lover being of late repaired, the ſaid Eſcutcheons were left out.

ABOUT the Year 1622, or 1623, the Chapel was built with an Ambulatory, or Walk underneath, paved with Free-ſtone, very convenient for ſtanding or walking in wet Weather, and where the Gentlemen of this Inn are buried, for whom there are numerous Inſcriptions. Over the Arch, at the Eaſt End of the South Walk, under the ſaid Chapel, is placed a Coat of Arms of the Biſhop of LONDON, who conſecrated this Chapel, and theſe Words underneath:

GEORGIUS LONDON Epiſcopus conſecravit in Feſto Aſcenſionis, DOMINI ANNO 1623.

IT is a fair Chapel, built without any Pillars; the Windows all finely painted, with Apoſtles, Kings, and Prophets; under which are many Shields with Coats of Arms of ſuch as either were honourable Members of this Inn, or as gave the Windows, with Inſcriptions under each. As on the North Side there are 12 Windows with the Figures in the Glaſs at large, of David, Daniel, Eli, Eſaias, Jeremias, Ezekiel, Amos, Zacharias, Abraham, Moſes, John Baptiſt and St. Paul; and on the South Side the 12 Apoſtles. The Inſcriptions under theſe 12 on the North Side as follow:

THE Eaſt Window has the Arms of England painted large, with the Ineſchutcheon of King William III. with the Royal Supporters, and the Words Je meintiendray, and divers other Coats.

THE Weſt Window alſo full of Coats of Arms, with the Names ſubſcribed.

Lincoln's-inn-hall alſo had divers Coats of Arms in the Windows, pertaining to noble or eminent Perſons formerly of that Houſe, or Befactors to it, viz.

Henry Hobert, Kt. John Pickering, Keeper of the Great Seal, Chriſtopher Wray, Kt. Lord Chief Juſtice of England, who had there two Shields, 1. Azure, on a Chief, Or, three Martlets, Gules. 2. Arg. a Chevron, Sable, three Mullets of the Firſt, pierced, between as many Eagles Heads, erazed. Spencer, Stanley, Earl of of Derby, Radcliff, Earl of Surrey, Ruſſel, Earl of Bedford, Egerton, Viſcount Brackley, &c.

Lincoln's-inn has a conſiderable Part in the Pariſh of St. Clement's; another Part in the Pariſh of St. Giles's in the Fields; another Part in the Pariſh of St. Andrew's Holbourn, and a fourth in the Liberty of the Rolls.

Of late Years it has been much increaſed by the additional Buildings, taken out of Little Lincoln's-inn-fields, conſiſting of three very good Rows, all taken up by Gentlemen of the Society, having fair and commodious Apartments, the ſaid three Rows incompaſſing three Sides of the Court; which is ſpacious and neatly kept, and covered with Gravel, raiſed towards the Middle, to caſt off the Rain Water when it falls. In the Middle of the Court is a curious Stone Pillar artificially wrought, on which is a Dial-Clock, with four Boys who uſed to ſpout Water out of Triton Shells, and at the Bottom is a Baſon that received the ſaid Streams of Water falling down from the Shells, all incompaſſed with handſome Iron Bars. The North Side lies open to the Gardens, which are now exceedingly improved with curious Walks, Graſs-Plats, fine Rows of ſhady Trees to walk under, and a Terras Walk or Mount, which gives the Proſpect of Lincoln's-inn-fields.

To return to the Chapel; it is a ſtrong, neat, well-built Structure; the Walls are beautiful Stone, ſtrengthened with Buttreſſes, and adorned with Vaſes on Acroters: It is elevated on ſtrong Gothick Pillars and Arches, adorned with Coats of Arms, Carving, &c. ſo that there is a Cloiſter, or open Wall, under the Chapel; the Windows are ſpacious of the ſame Order, and it has a camerated Roof.

As to the finiſhing and ornamental Part, the Roof is neatly cieled with Timber, and the Walls are wainſcotted round with Oak about ſix Feet high.

The Pews and Pulpit are of the ſame Kind of Timber, the Fronts of the former being carved in the Semblance of the Gothick Arch.

The Communion-Table is incloſed with ſtrong Rail and Baliſter, and the Window over is ſpacious and beautiful. The Commandments are placed on the South Side of the Church, done in Black on Gold, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, in Gold Colour on Black.

The Door-Caſe at the Entrance, at the Weſt End, is very handſome, being Oak, with Pillars and Entablature of the Dorick Order.

Within the Cloiſter, under the Chapel, are ſeveral Gentlemen buried; ſome of the moſt remarkable, Grave-ſtones are theſe, with the following Inſcriptions:

Here lyes the Body of
JOHN THURLLO,
Secretary of State to the Protector OLIVER CROMWELL, and a Member of this Society, he dyed Feb. the 21ſt, 1667.

Another with this Inſcription:

Hic conditur Gulielmus Martyn, Ar. antique Socius & Benefactorus hujus Hoſpitii.

Qui ob. 21 Octob. 1696. Ætat. 60.

Here lyes the Body of Thomas Jones, Eſq; Son of Sir Thomas Jones, Kt. late Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, who departed this Life the 6th of Sept. 1711.
aged 72.
Senior Bencher of this Society.

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Thomas Greene, who departed this Life the 23d Day of Auguſt, 1716, aged 70 Years.

Rodericus Lloyd, Arm.
Nuper hujus Hoſpitii Socius.
Ob. 26°. Maii, 1730.
Ætat. ſuæ 72.

Here lies the Body of Thomas Barneby, Eſq; late of Lincoln's-inn, who departed this Life the 1ſt of Sept. 1730, aged 78.

N. B. This Mr. Barneby had the good Fortune to win the great Prize of 20,000 l. in one of the State Lotteries.

Here lyeth the Body of
JOHN DOBSON,
Son of THOMAS DOBSON of Vicarage, in the County of York, Gent.
Student of this Society, who dyed the 4th of May, 1732, aged 20 Years.

Here lyeth the Body of JOHN FREWEN, Gent.
a Member of this Society, who departed this Life, April the 1ſt, 1733, aged 60.

PENISTON LAMB, Eſq;
dyed 31ſt January, 1734,
aged 64.

The Preacher to the Society of Lincoln's-inn, is the Reverend Mr. Cranks, Value 31 l. per Term. The Afternoon Preacher and Reader is the Reverend Mr. Rawlings. Prayers are daily at Eleven and Five.

There is no Organ in this Chapel. In one of the Windows Hall of this Inn, are lately painted the Arms of the Lord Talbot, the preſent Lord High Chancellor of England; and the Arms of Sir Robert Walpole, the preſent Chancellor of the Exchequer, both Members of this Honourable Society.

Here within the Bounds of Lincoln's-inn was lately propounded by Mr. Wheedon, the Erection of a beautiful Range of Building, to be only one Story, without Chimneys, and to be covered flat with Lead, all along by the dead Wall, on the Eaſt Side of Lincoln's-inn-garden, upon the waſte Ground between the ſaid Wall and the Gravel Walk, for the Uſe of ſome, or all the Offices in Chancery, viz.

The Six Clerks
The Curſitors
The Maſters in Chancery
The Examiner
The Petty Bag
The Regiſters
The Affidavit
The Hamper and
The Subpœna
} Office.

The Reaſons offered for this Erection, were, that the ſaid Building would be much more ſecure and ornamental to the ſaid Garden, and all the Chambers in the ſame; defending them from Robbery, and the Duſt and Noiſe of the next adjoining Street. And a Row of fine regular Saſh Windows would be a much pleaſanter Sight on the Garden Side, than an old dirty black Wall. And it might yield a very conſiderable Ground-Rent to the Society. And theſe Offices would be moſt coveniently ſituated, almoſt in the Centre of the Inns of Court and Chancery. And the ſame Offices being thus joined together ther would be of very great Eaſe to all the Officers; and alſo to all Attorneys, Solicitors and Practiſers, as well as all other People that ſhould have Occaſion to reſort to the ſame; whereby all the Offices might have a mutual Correſpondency one with another: And the Situation being healthful, it might contribute not only to the great Eaſe, but the Health alſo of the ſeveral Officers and their Clerks, eſpecially thoſe of the Six Clerks Office, who, the greateſt Part of the Year, write by Candle-Light in the Day-Time, annoyed with the Smoak and Smell of Candle-Greaſe, and are ſo many, and ſo near crowded up together in little Boxes.

Now High-holborn-ſtreet, from the North End of New-ſtreet ſtretches on the Left Hand up to St. Giles in the Fields; but the Way leading from the Bars in Holborn, Weſtward, towards the ſaid St. Giles, was very foul and full of Pits and Sloughs, and very perilous and noiſome to all that repaired and paſſed that Way, as well on Foot as on Horſeback, or with Carriages; and ſo were other Lanes and Places that led out of or into Holborn, as Shoe-lane, Fetter-lane, New-ſtreet, or Chancery-lane, and Gray's-inn-lane. Upon Complaint whereof an Act was made in the 32d of King Henry VIII. An. 1542, to pave all thoſe Places with paving Stones; as alſo on the Eaſt of the City, the Way from Aldgate to Whitechapel Church, which had the ſame ill Paſſage; all to be paved and made convenient for Paſſengers, by the Feaſt of St. John Baptiſt, 1542, in Manner and Form as the Cauſeway, or Highway leading from Strand-bridge to Charing-croſs, had been made and paved.

THE Extent of this Pavement in Holborn-ſtreet was to the far End of it, to St. Giles in the Fields.

WHICH St. Giles was an Hoſpital founded by Matilda the Queen, Wife to Henry I. about the Year 1117. This Hoſpital, ſays the Record of King Edward III. the 19th Year, was founded without the Bar, Veteris Templi London. & Converſorum.

MOREOVER, ſays the ſame Record, in the 20th of King Edward III. the ſaid King ſent Commandment under his Great Seal, to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, willing them to make Proclamation in every Ward of the City and Suburbs, That all leprous Perſons within the ſaid City and Suburbs ſhould avoid within 15 Days; and that no Man ſuffer any ſuch leprous Perſon to abide within his Houſe, upon Pain to forfeit his ſaid Houſe, and to incur the King's farther Diſpleaſure; and that they ſhould cauſe the ſaid Lepers to be removed into ſome Out-Places of the Fields, from the Haunt and Company of all ſound People; whereupon it followed, that the Citizens required of the Guardian of St. Giles's Hoſpital, to take from them, and to keep continually the Number of 14 Perſons, according to the Foundation of Matilda, the Queen, which was for leprous Perſons of the City of LONDON, and the Shire of Middleſex.

THIS Hoſpital of St. Giles for Lazars was confirmed by King Edward III. in the 4th of his Reign.

IN this Hoſpital was a Chapel, wherein King Edward I. in the firſt of his Reign, founded a Chantry ('tis like, for his Father and Anceſtors,) for which this Hoſpital took yearly, at the Exchequer, for the Maintenance of it 3 l. and 20 s. more, at the Hand of the Sheriff of Surrey.

THERE were Alms due, and accuſtomably paid toward this Hoſpital, in the City of LONDON; and there was a Patent the 15th of King Richard II. for requiring and confirming them.

THIS Hoſpital was founded as a Cell to Burton Lazar, of Jeruſalem in Leiceſterſhire, as may appear by a Deed dated the 24th of Henry VIII. in theſe Words:

" Thomas Norton, Knt. Maſter of Burton " Lazar, of Jeruſalem in England, and the " Brethren of the ſame Place, Keepers of the " Hoſpital of St. Giles, without the Bars of the " Old Temple of LONDON, have ſold to " Jeffery Kent, Citizen and Draper of LON- " DON, a Meſſuage or Houſe, with two Sollars " above edified, in the Pariſh of Alhallows-hony- " lane, in Weſt-cheap, adjoining to the Weſt " Part of a Tenement, called The Goat on the " Hope, pertaining to the Drapers of LON- " DON, for 31 l.

AT this Hoſpital the Priſoners conveyed from the City of LONDON towards Tyburn, there to be executed for Treaſons, Felonies, or other Treſpaſſes, were preſented with a Bowl of Ale, thereof to drink (at their Pleaſure) as their laſt Refreſhing in this Life.

Now without Ludgate lies the South End of the Old-bailey, then down Ludgate-hill by Fleet-lane, over Fleet-bridge, up Fleet-ſtreet, by Shoe-lane, Fetter-lane, New-ſtreet, or Chancery-lane, and to Shear-lane, by the Bar on the Right Hand; and from Ludgate, on the Left Hand or South Side, by Bride-lane, Croker's-lane, now Water-lane, Sergeants-inn, and the New Temple by the Bar, all which is of Farringdon Ward, as is afore ſhewed.

The Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields.

THE antient Hoſpital of St. Giles was taken Notice of before by Stow, but the Pariſh not at all, perhaps becauſe it ſtood at ſuch a Diſtance from the City in his Time; but ſince that, being ſo exceedingly ſpread in Buildings, it is become contiguous, and ſo reckoned among the Suburbs.

AND the preſent State of the Pariſh ſtands thus:

IT is of a very large Extent, and as populous, with a Mixture of rich Inhabitants, viz. of the Nobility, Gentry, and Commonalty, but withal abounding in Poor.

As to the Bounds, or Girt-Line, of this Pariſh, we ſhall begin on the Backſide of Portugal-row, in Lincoln's-inn-fields, towards Clare-market, at the Pariſh-Mark; thence it runs along the Stabling in the ſaid Row, taking in only the Houſes; from thence it croſſes into Lincoln's-inn-new-ſquare, where the Pariſh-Mark is ſet up in the Wall, and ſo to the Pump that ſtands by the Garden Pales; and from this Pump it runs Northward in a direct Line, croſſing the Garden into Holborn, by the Entry called Grid-iron-alley, which is about 10 Doors from Turn-ſtile; and from thence it runs on the South Side as far as New-turn-ſtile-alley, where it croſſes the Street to the North Side, to the Houſe where the Stone-Mark is at the Door, being ſix Doors from King's-gate; thence it croſſes the Buildings into Eagle-ſtreet, and turning to the Corner of the ſaid Street, runs Northward by the Wall of the Gardens belonging to King's-ſtreet in Bloomsbury; and ſo ſtrait into the Fields to the Conduit called The Devil's Chimney.

IN

In Duke-ſtreet it extends on the South to one Houſe beyond the Stable-yard, adjoining to the Popiſh Chapel, incluſive, and on the North Side of that Street to Great-wild-ſtreet, which it takes in; and alſo all Prince's-ſtreet, all the Eaſt Side of Drury-lane, beginning at one Houſe Southward of the Rummer and Horſe-ſhoe Tavern to St. Giles's-ſtreet.

And on the Weſt Side of Drury-lane, beginning at Little-turn-ſtile-alley, it reaches Northward to St. Giles's-ſtreet. It takes in alſo the North Side of Little-turn-ſtile-alley and Caſtle-ſtreet to Cock-and-pye-fields, all thoſe Fields, the Eaſt Sides of Weſt-ſtreet and Hog-lane, or Crown-ſtreet.

On the North Side of St. Giles's-ſtreet, it begins at Dyot-ſtreet, taking in the Weſt Side of that Street, and extends Weſtward thro' St. Giles's-ſtreet and High-ſtreet to the End of Tottenham-court-row, together with all Lanes, Streets, Courts, &c. in this Circuit.

There is a new Church built, and lately finiſhed here; but firſt let us ſpeak of the old one. This Church was dedicated to St. Giles the Abbot and Confeſſor, and is ſaid to be in the Fields, becauſe it was ſo till the Town was built up to it, as is ſaid before; and alſo to diſtinguiſh it from St. Giles Cripplegate. It was begun to be raiſed in the Year of our Lord 1623, was finiſhed 1625, and encompaſſed with a Brick Wall, Anno 1631, as was expreſſed over the Door on the North Side, by the following Inſcription:

Quod felix bonumque ſit
Poſteris,
Hoc Templum loco veteris ex Annosâ
vetuſtate
Collapſi, Mole & ſpendore Auctum
Multo Paræcorum Charitas
Inſtauravit,
In quibus pientiſſimæ Heroinæ
D. Aliciæ Duddeley
Munificentia gratum marmoris hujus meretur eloquium
Huc etiam acceſſit aliorum quorundam pietas,
Quibus proviſo Cœlo ſunt grates.

Opus { Surgere Cœpit / Ad umbilicus deductum / Muro undiquaque vallatum } Anno { 1623. / 1625. / 1631. }

Heus! Viator, an effætum eſt bonis operibus hoc ſeculum?

To the raiſing, finiſhing and (in every Part of it) richly and very excellently beautifying of this great Work, there were many and great Benefactors. The Names of all, with their particular Gifts, my Time, ſays Stow, gave not Leave to compaſs them; neither for many of them, could by any Enquiry get, they deſiring to be concealed, and by Virtue of what they have done, obliging thoſe that knew them, not to divulge or reveal them.

For the rich and coſtly Glazing of this Church, the Work and Work-Maſters thus follow:

A very rich and beautiful Window in the Head of the Chancel, of four ſeveral Panes or Parts. In the firſt, the Figure of Abraham ſacrificing his Son. In the ſecond, Moſes with the Tables of the Commandments. In the third the Figure of the Holy Prophet David. In the fourth and laſt, Solomon.

The Inſcription to the firſt is this:

Credidit Abraham Deo, & reputatum eſt illi ad Juſtitiam. Anno Dom. 1628.

Of the ſecond is this:

Erat vir Moyſes. Mitiſſimus ſuper omnes homines qui morabantur in terra, 1628.

Of the third this:

Solum medium tutum, 1627.

Of the fourth this:

Dum Spiro, Spero, 1628.

The firſt of theſe was the Charge of Abraham Speckart, Eſq;

The ſecond of Hamo Claxton, Eſq;

The third of Sir John Fenner, Knt.

The fourth of Francis, Lord Mount-Norris.

A very fair Window on the South Side of the Chancel; at the Top of it,

JEHOVAH.

Under the Figures in it:

Shelbery 1617, Shelbery and Wrothe.

Domine miſerere noſtri.

A very fair Window on the North Side of the Chancel; two Figures in it, the one of the Virgin Mary, with Chriſt in her Arms, the other of Mary Magdalene.

Under this Window lies buried the Body of Mary Pill, of this Pariſh; which Window was ſet up at the Charge of Mary Maudit, her Daughter and Heir, 1629.

Under the firſt theſe Verſes:

From Mary's Fears to Mary's Joy,
This Mary is tranſlated:
And after threeſcrore Years annoy,
In Heaven ſhe is inſtated.
With this ſhe choſe the better Part
Never to be repented;
And held her Saviour in her Heart,
Thus are her Joys augmented.

Under the other theſe:

This, ſought her Saviour at his Tomb,
His Feet with Tears bedewed,
That, bore our Saviour in her Womb,
Whereby our Joys renewed.
Then happy Soul, thrice happy this,
Happily intereſſed;
In Mary's Tears, and Mary's Bliſs,
Reſt thou for ever bleſſed.

A very fair Window, with the King's Arms in it, over the Entrance into the Chancel:

Glazed at the Charge of Sir Willam Segar, Knt. alias Garter, Principal King of Arms, Ann. Dom. 1626.

A very fair Window at the upper End of the South Iſle:

Glazed at the Charges of Marmaduke Rawdon, Citizen and Clothworker of LONDON, Anno Domini 1625.

Another next to this downward:

Glazed at the Charge of Robert Rawdon, Citizen and Fiſhmonger of LONDON, Anno Dom. 1625.

Another next to this downward, bearing the Figure of a Lion in the Wilderneſs:

Glazed at the Charge of Mr. John Johnſon, Inn-keeper in High Holbourn, 1625.

ANOTHER next to this downward, having the Figures of St. John, St. Philip, and St. Matthew.

Glazed at the Coſt and Charges of Philip Parker.

NEXT to this downward, a very fair Window:

Glazed at the Charges of Catharine Beſt, Widow, late Wife of John Beſt, deceaſed: Who gave Order in his Life-time for the Glazing of this Window, and was buried thereunder, the 7th of April, 1625. And there lie alſo his Son James, and his Daughter Dorothy.

NEXT to this downward, a very fair Window:

Glazed at the Charges of Alice Hodges, Widow, late Wife to Thomas Hodges, Baker, deceaſed, who was buried under this Window, the 6th Day of October, 1625. And here lie alſo his three Children.

A fair Window next to this, the loweſt in the South Wall:

Glazed at the Coſt of William Perkins, of LONDON, Merchant-Taylor, 1626.

AT the lower End of this Iſle, over the South Weſt Door, a very fair Window, bearing in it (very curiouſly done) the Figure of our Saviour.

OVER his Head, as in a Garland ſupported by two Angels, theſe Letters:

I.H.S

Round about him Clouds full of Cherubims.

On one Side of him this:

I am the Door, by me if any Man enter in, he ſhall be ſaved, John x. 9.

On the other Side:

Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you Reſt, Mat. xi. 28.

Beckinghamus Boteler, Armiger fieri fecit.
Anno Dom. 1627.

OVER the great Weſt Door is a fair Window, with the Carpenters Arms, and a fair Coat of Arms cloſe by it.

THIS Window hath no Name, or other Inſcription; it was the Gift of a Stranger.

ONE, that upon a Day that they made a Collection for it, being there, was (among the reſt) deſired to beſtow his good Will, he anſwered, He had no Money, but if the Glazing of a Window, if they had any yet undiſpoſed of, would be accepted of, he would be at the Charge to do it. The Collectors giving him Thanks, and ſhewing this Window, he ſuddenly ſet a Glaſier on Work, and what he had promiſed he performed.

A very fair Window at the Head of the North Iſle, bearing the Figure of Chriſt crucified, as alſo (one on the one Side, the other on the other) of the two Maries.

On the Right Side of him this:

Woman, Behold thy Son.

On the Left:

Behold thy Mother.

Glazed at the Coſt of Thomas Eſto, Cook, of this Pariſh, Anno Dom. 1625.

Another next to this downward:

Glazed at the Charges of John Beacon, of the City of Weſtminſter, Yeoman, 1625.

Another next to this downward:

Glazed at the Charges of Robert Johnſon, free of the Company of the Joyners. 1625.

A fair Window over the Door in the Middle of the North Iſle, bearing a worthy Coat of Arms, with theſe Words:

Whitaker & Egerton.

THIS Window is divided into three Parts; under the firſt this:

Ego ſum oſtium, per me ſi quis introierit, ſervabitur, & ingredietur, & egredietur, & paſcua inveniet. Joh. x. 9.

Under the ſecond thus:

In tuo Lumine (Domine Jeſu) Lumen Æternum videre ſperantes, vitreum hoc luminare fabricari fecerunt Laurentius & Margareta Whitaker, Anno ſalutis humanæ, 1625.

Under the third thus:

Eligo frequentare limen in domo Dei mei magis quam habitare in tentoriis improbitatis, Pſal. lxxxiv. 11.

A fair Window next to this downward, bearing a very fair Coat of Arms, with theſe Words:

Cope & Aſton.

Glazed at the Charges of the Lady Katharine Cope, Widow, late Wife to Sir Ed. Cope, of this Pariſh. 1625.

A very rich Window next downward, divided into three Parts, bearing the curious Figures of the three Theological Virtues under them:

Fides, Spes, Charitas.

Under Faith this:

Faith Root, Hope Stock,
the Branch is Charity;
Faith ſees, Hope looks,
for Charity is free;
Faith knits to God, to Heaven Hope, Love to Men;
Faith gets, Hope keepes,
and Love pours out agen.
1626.

Mandatum

Mandatum novum do nobis, ut diligatis unus alium, Joh. xiii. 34.

Under Hope this:

Tres Elohim: pater eſt
Primus qui procreat, inde
Filius eſt, ex his
Spiritus almus adeſt.
Sunt Tria dona Dei:
Sit prima Fides pia Mater, Filia ſpes, ex his Tertius ortus Amor.
1626.

Nam ſpe ſervati ſumus, ſpes autem ſi cernatur non eſt ſpes; quod enim quis cernit, cur ſperet? Rom. viii. 24.

Under Charity this:

Now remain theſe three, Faith, Hope, Charity; but the greateſt of theſe is Charity, 1 Cor. xiii. 13.

Scriptum eſt, Juſtus ex Fide vivet, Rom. i. 17.

Next to this downward, the laſt of this North Iſle, is a plain Window, without either Colour or Inſcription.

This Church was built all of rubbed Brick, and ſo was the Steeple. The South Gallery was built in the Year 1671, by Gift, for the Benefit of the Poor, and made uniform to the other Galleries. The North and Weſt Galleries, as they appeared laſt, were begun 1676-7.

Now for the Monuments in this Church of St. Giles's in the Fields.

Upon a fair Grave-ſtone in the Middle Iſle was this Inſcription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth, late Wife of Richard Maunſel, Eſq; one of the Daughters and Heirs of Roger Wingfield, of great Dunham, in the County of Norfolk, Eſq; She departed this Life upon the 6th of October, in the Year of our Lord God, 1620.

Upon a fair Stone near to the other this Inſcription:

Interred the Corps of Baron Birch lies here,
Of Grays-Inn, ſome Time by Degree, Eſquire;
In Chequer eighteen Years a Judge he was,
Till Soul from aged Body his did paſs
Alive his Wife Eliza doth remain,
Of Stydfolk Stock, one Son and Daughters twain
She bare by him; the eldeſt in his Life,
He gave to Thomas Boyer for his Wife.
His Body ſleeps till Angels Trump ſhall ſound,
God grant we all may readily then be found.

Johannes Birch, obiit Ann. Dom. 1581, Maii, Ætatis ſuæ 66.

On another Stone near to the former, this Inſcription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth Birch, Widow, late Wife of John Birch, Eſq; and one of the Barons of her Majeſty's Court of Exchequer, Daughter of John Stydfolk, Eſq; who deceaſed the third Day of December, 1588.

Cloſe by the former,

Lieth buried the Body of John Denſill, ſome Time Sergeant at Law, and Mary his Wife.

In the ſame Iſle was a very fair Stone, which hath been beautified with many fair Figures in Braſs; but much of it being gone, all that could be ſeen of it before the Church was pulled down, was this:

Here lieth George Carew, the fourth Son of Sir Edmund Carew, &c. 1583.

In the South Iſle:

Lies buried the Body of Alexander Barns, Vintner, ſome Time Church-warden of this Pariſh, &c. He deceaſed the 4th of November, 1714, being of the Age of 57 Years.

Alexander Barns
here doth lie, Glory be to God on high,
For he on Earth
hath finiſhed his Days
And now liveth in Heaven to God give Praiſe.

On the North Side of the Choir:

Chariſſimæ Matris Alliciæ Uxoris venerabilis olim viri Alexandri Sheppard, Legum Doctoris: necnon ſuaviſſimæ nuper Conjugis Annæ ex antiquâ Daunte-ſeyorum Familia in agro Wilton oriundæ.

Pietatis & Amoris ergô.

Poſuit Thomas Sheppard hic loci; juxta quem (ſi Deo videbitur) mortales ſuas Exuvias humandas, deſignavit providus, Anno Dom. 1631.

Another Monument on the North Side:

Here before lieth buried the Body of William Styddulphe, third Son of John Styddulphe, of Mickleham in the County of Surrey, Eſquire. He had Iſſue by his Wife Elizabeth, Daughter of John Fox of St. John's in LONDON, Gent. William, Jane, Mary, Thomas and Elizabeth. He departed this Life at the Age of 55, being the laſt of December, Anno Dom. 1600.

Alſo here before reſteth the Body of the above-named Elizabeth, who departed this Life at the Age of 60 Years, the 10th of February 1623.

And now having done with the Monuments in the Church, we begin in the Church-yard with this Inſcription, ſtanding in the middle of the South Wall.

Laus Deo.

In cujus, & Chriſtianæ Sepulturæ, honorem, nimis arcti olim Cœmeterii fines, novi hujus, 128, pedes longi, & 17 lati, Donatione, Abrahamus Speckart, Arm. & Dorothea Uxor ejus Ampliarunt, Anno Dom. 1630.

A very fair Tomb-ſtone in the Church-yard; about it theſe Verſes:

Thornton of Thornton,
in Yorkſhire bred,
Where lives the Fame
of Thornton's being dead:
Full South this Stone
four Foot doth lye,
His Father John,
and Grandſire Henry.

Upon

Upon it:

Johannes Thornton, in Memoria Chariſſimæ Uxoris Margaretæ, Filiæ Georgii Collins, hujus Parochiæ ſancti Ægidii in Campis, hoc Monumentum poſuit:

Under this ſad
Marble ſleeps,
She, for whom even Marble weeps:
Her Praiſe lives ſtill
though here ſhe lies Seeming dead,
that never dyes:
Religion, Love,
in ſuffering Breaſt,
Her Charity, Mildneſs,
and the reſt,
Hath crowned her Soul;
all mourn with Fame,
Her Husband's Loſs, and Midwife's blame
She dyed in Childbed:
ſeventy Times bleſt and ſeven,
Her Children and ſhe deliver'd both in Heaven.

Obiit octavo die Januarii, Anno Dom. 1611. Ætat. ſuæ 16.

On a fair Stone in the Church-yard is this Inſcription:

I.H.S.

Hereunder lieth buried the Body of Joan Barker, late Wife of Richard Barker, ſeventeen Years of this Pariſh, who deceaſed the laſt Day of July, Anno Dom. 1626. Whom the Lord ſend a joyful Reſurrection.

Expecta donec veniat.

Upon it thus:

Honeſta Mors initium vitæ.

Turn again then unto thy Reſt, O my Soul, for the Lord hath rewarded thee; and why? thou haſt delivered my Soul from Death, mine Eyes from Tears, and my Feet from falling.

I will walk before the Lord, in the Land of the Living, Pſal. 116.

This Stone was laid by her Husband Richard Barker, one of the Yeomen of the Guard to Queen Elizabeth and King James thirty Years, and now to King Charles: And was married to his late deceaſed Wife twenty Years and one Month, and had ſeven Children, whereof five live, Horatio, Anne, Elizabeth, Katharine and Mary.

Cloſe by this lies buried the Body of William How, April 3, 1626.

Alſo the Body of Elizabeth Maſon, Wife of Amos Maſon, Curate of the Temple, July 18, 1632.

Of John Cartwrite, Gent. Aug. 13, 1620.

Of Richard Beſtbitch, Son of Daniel Beſtbitch.

THE Perſons that have more lately been interred in the Church of St. Giles in the Fields, and have monumental Memorials for them, are theſe;

In the Chancel North Wall:

Sir Tho. Widdrington, Knt. Serjeant at Law;

Vir in dicendo cæleſtis.

His four Daughters ſet up his Monument. He died 1674.

Frances Widdrington, the Wife of Sir Thomas, died in Childbed, 1649, Daughter of Ferdinand Lord Fairfax of Cameron. And their Daughter Dorothy, 1649, aged 12 Years.

ON the North Side of the Chancel was a black and white Marble Monument, with Columns and Entablature of the Ionick Order, and theſe Arms: A Chevron between three Flowers de liz, with a Creſcent for a Difference; impaled with three Swords in Pile.

Alſo theſe ARMS:

A Feſs between three Croſs Croſlets; and this Inſcription:

This Monument was erected Anno 1670, in the Memory of the Honourable John Lord Belaſyſe, Baron Worlaby, ſecond Son of Thomas Lord Viſcount Fauconberg, his Wives and Children.

Who for his Loyalty, Prudence and Courage, was promoted to ſeveral Commands of great Truſt by their Majeſties King Charles I. and II. viz. having raiſed ſix Regiments of Horſe and Foot in the late Civil Wars, he commanded a Tertia in his Majeſty's Armies at the Battles of Edghill, Newbury, and Naſeby; the Sieges of Reading and Briſtol; afterwards being made Governor of York, and Commander in Chief of all his Majeſty's Forces in Yorkſhire. He fought the Battle of Selby, with the Lord Fairfax; then being Lieutenant-General of the Counties of Lincoln, Northampton, Derby and Rutland, and Governor of Newark, he valiantly defended that Garriſon againſt the Engliſh and Scotch Armies, till his Majeſty came in Perſon to the Scotch Quarters, and commanded the Surrender of it; at which Time he alſo had the Honour of being General of the King's Horſe Guards. In all which Services, and during the Wars and other Atchievements, he deported himſelf with eminent Courage and Conduct, and received many Wounds, ſuſtained three Impriſonments in the Tower of LONDON; and after the happy Reſtauration of King Charles II. was made Lord Lieutenant of the Eaſt Riding of the County of York, Governor of Hull, General of his Majeſty's Forces in Africa, Governor of Tangier, and Captain of his Majeſty's Guard of Gentlemen-Penſioners.

He married to his firſt Wife Jane, Daughter and ſole Heir to Sir Robert Boteler, of Woodhall, by whom he had Sir Henry Belaſyſe, of the Honourable Order of the Bath, who lyes interred in this Choir; and Mary married to the Lord Viſcount Dunbar.

He married to his ſecond Wife Ann, Daughter and Coheir to Sir Robert Crain, of Chilton in the County of Suffolk, Knight; who lies alſo interred in this Choir.

And

And to his third Wife, the Lady Ann Paulet, Daughter to the Marquiſs of Winchester, by whom he had Iſſue, beſides other Children now living, Ann, John, Elizabeth, and Francis, who all died young, and are alſo interred in the Choir of this Church.

By the North Door-Caſe, opening into the Chancel, a very neat Marble Monument, inſcribed thus:

Near this Place interred lyes the Body of the much lamented William Thorold, Eſq; Son and Heir apparent of Sir William Thorold, of Marſton in the County of Lincoln, Baronet.

The Arms are:

Sable three Goats Springant Argent, impaled with Gules on a Chevron Argent, three Mullets Sable.

South Wall in the Chancel:

Philip Lord Stanhope of Shelford, and Earl of Cheſterfield, Son and Heir to Sir John Stanhope, by Cordel, Daughter and Coheir of Richard Allyngton, Eſq; and Jane his Wife, Siſter and Heir to Sir William Cordel of Long Melford, Knt. 1656.

To the Memory of his dear Father, Arthur Stanhope erected this Monument. Which Arthur had Iſſue Philip and Henry, interred in this Church.

Near this was another handſome white Marble Monument adorned with Cherubims, Cornucopia's, &c. and this Inſcription:

To the living Memory of Chriſtopher Dudley, of Yeanwith in Weſtmerland, Eſq; was this Monument by his ſorrowful Wife Agnes, for her dear Husband, here erected.

A Dudley lodgeth here, Peace Idle Fame,
It's Epitaph enough to have that Name:
A Dudley too, who in the baſeſt Time,
When to be juſt and loyal was a Crime;
Was both; and 'gainſt the Rebels bravely ſtood,
Unſhaken and undaunted with a Flood
Of Tyranny. Now his Tomb's ſole Intent
Shews he deſerv'd, but needs not Monument.
When Rebels die, a Tomb ſome Life may give,
He actuates the Marble, makes it live.
Shrines may pourtray our Treaſures on a Wall;
But Goodneſs crowns them, that is all in all.
Statues preſent Lives, Families and Days;
But th' inward Structure only merits Praiſe.
This Shrine was rear'd by her, whoſe Love was ſuch,
Her Charge in his Concern was ne'er too much:
So dear his nuptial Zeal, tho' th' outward Part Turn Duſt, it holds Impreſſion in the Heart.
Obiit Sept. 9, 1660.

His Arms: Or, a Lion with a double Rampant Vert, impaled with Argent a Fret Gules.

On the South Side of the Chancel was a neat blue veined Marble Monument, with this Inſcription:

Underneath lyeth the Body of Thomas Cornwallis, Eſq; Son of Sir Francis Cornwallis and Elizabeth his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heir to Sir Henry Jones, Baronet, of Abermarleſs in the County of Caermarthen.

He married Emma, Daughter to Sir Job Charleton, Knight and Baronet, by whom he had four Sons and five Daughters; three Sons died before him, and one Son and five Daughters ſurvived.

His Perſon was graceful, and his Soul ſublime; Virtue, Honour, and Complacency, guided all his Actions; a Lover of his Country; moſt tender and indulgent to his Wife and Children; obliging and ſerviceable to his Friends; hoſpitable and generous to his Neighbours; juſt, charitable and courteous to all he converſed with.

He lived beloved, and died much lamented by them all, the 16th of July, A. D. 1703. His Noon was Night, being made perfect in thirty-three Years.

His Grandfather Charles, his Father Sir Francis, and his Brother Charles, lye buried in this Church near the Pulpit.

His diſconſolate Widow cauſed this Monument to be erected in Memory of her dear Huſband and his Relations.

His Arms here are, eight Goats quarterly.

ON a ſmall White Marble Monument on a South Pillar, almoſt over-againſt the Pulpit, was this Inſcription:

Near to this Marble Judith Bailey lies,
Who was both modeſt, ſober, chaſt and wiſe.
Religion was her Study, and her Care,
A fervent Lover of the Houſe of Prayer;
Her Parents had her Duty and her Love,
Who now are pleas'd in Hope ſhe's bleſt above.
Virtue was ſtill her Guide her End and Aim,
Her Zeal was conſtant to her as her Name:
Near 18 Years of Age, who can forbear
To read her Character without a Tear?

She departed this Life the 18th of October, 1683.

Her Brother John 14 Days after dy'd,
Aged ſeven Years, lies by his Siſter's Side.

She was the eldeſt Daughter, and he the only Son of John and Judith Bailey, of this Pariſh.

Sarah another Daughter ſleeps in Mould,
She left this Life when almoſt ſix Years old:
She that was fill'd with Duty, Wit and Love,

James Hearden, 1658, Prudence his Wife, and William his Son, 1662.

Reader, let thy Reaſon know
We were once as thou art now,
Whilſt we liv'd we wrought in Stone,
And now attend the Corner one;
And in Health did this prepare
For us, our Wives, and Children here.
Death's only by the Wicked fear'd,
The Righteous 'gainſt his Sting's prepar'd:
Then Reader, let thy Care in Life be ſuch,
Earth may thy Body, not thy Spirit touch,

George Chapman the Poet, MDCXX —— Ignaſius Jones, Architectus Regius ob honorem bonarum Literarum famliari ſuo hoc Mon. D. S. P. F. C.

Againſt the South Portal:

Thomas Walton, 1668, and his two Sons and two Daughters.

Richard Shepheard, Church-Warden, erected this Stone in Memory of Elizabeth, his Wife, who died 1685, with three Daughters and one Son, her Mother and Brother.

On a grey Marble Tomb-ſtone, Southward from the Chancel in the Church-Yard, was this Inſcription:

Here lye the Bodies of John, Anne, and Obediah, Children of John and Anne Eaſton, of this Pariſh:

The ravenous Eagle, Death, greedy of Prey,
Whoſe piercing Eye found where theſe Infants lay;
He cruſh'd them with his Talons, and convey'd
Their Souls to Heaven, and here's their Aſhes laid,
Where now they reſt in Providence's Store,
'Till Time and Death and Years ſhall be no more.

Alſo Anne, the Wife of the ſaid John Eaſton, died Auguſt 1679.

Earth hath poſſeſs'd their Aſhes, Clay, and Duſt,
And Heaven contains their Souls among the Juſt.

On a Marble Tomb-ſtone near the South Eaſt Corner of the Church: Here lyeth Richard Pendrell, Preſerver and Conducter to his ſacred Majeſty King Charles II. of Great Britain, after his Eſcape from Worceſter Fight, in the Year 1651, who died Feb. 8, 1671.

Hold, Paſſenger, here's ſhrouded in this Herſe
Unparellell'd Pendrel thro' the Univerſe.
Like when the Eaſtern Star from Heav'n gave Light
To three loſt Kings; ſo he in ſuch dark Night
To Britain's Monarch, toſs'd by adverſe War,
On Earth appear'd a ſecond Eaſtern Star.
A Pole a-ſtern in her rebellious Main,
A Pilot to her Royal Sovereign.
Now to triumph in Heav'n's eternal Sphere,
He's hence advanc'd for his juſt Steeridge here;
Whilſt Albion's Chronicles, with matchleſs Fame,
Embalm the Story of Great Pendrell's Name.

Jane Baker, 1701, and Edmund Wright, her former Husband.

O! Mortem nimis invidam
Qua ex eadem manu rapuit
Calamum Poetæ, Oratoris, & Secretarii.
O! Fatum tamen non infauſtum
Quod Juveni, cui nihil plus ultra
Datur vel Literaturæ, vel Ingenuî
Vitam dedit nunquam
Morituram.

Ob. iv. Oct. MDCXCIV. Ætat. xviii.

A Monument on the Outſide of the South Wall in the Church-Yard, in a Vault, is Interred the Body of Alatheia Payler, Daughter of Watkinſon Payler, and Dame Mary Stoughton, his Wife, and Grand-daughter and Coheir of Sir Watkinſon Payler, late of Thoroldly Hall in the County of York, Bar. ſhe died Oct. 14, Ann. Dom. 1716, aged 15.
Sicitur ad Aſtra.

UPON a mural Monument at the Outſide of the North Iſle:

All that was mortal of HUGH MERCHANT, Gent. born in this Pariſh; a Perſon eminent for all Chriſtian Vertues, and a great Lover of Art, lies interred underneath. In Memory of whom his beloved Wife, the Daughter of William Jarman, Citizen of LONDON, (by whom he had Iſſue nine Sons and nine Daughters) erected this Marble. Ob. Jan. 24, 1714. Ætat. 55.

When by Inclemency of Air,
Theſe golden Letters diſappear.
And Time's old cankred Teeth have ſhown
Their Malice on this Marble Stone,
Vertue and Art ſhall write his Name
In Annals, and conſign his Fame
To Monuments more laſting far,
Than Marble Stones, or Golden Letters are.

IN this Church was interred the famous Andrew Marvell, Eſq; and in the Year 1688, the Town of Kingſton upon Hull contributed a Sum of Money to erect a Monument over him; for which an Epitaph was compoſed by ſome able Hand, expreſſive of the ſincereſt Grief and Gratitude of an obliged and afflicted People. They embraced the Opportunity of the glorious Year of the Revolution, to do what they were fearful of in the two foregoing Reigns; but they were even then prevented ſhewing their Zeal in the Manner they much deſired, by the Oppoſition of the Miniſter of this Church, who, thro' a Spirit, either of Bigotry or Envy, forbid both the Inſcription and Monument being placed there. The Inſcription was as follows:

Near this Place
lyeth the Body of Andrew Marvell, Eſq;
A Man ſo endowed by Nature,
ſo improved by Education, Study and Travel,
ſo conſummated by Experience,
That joining the moſt peculiar Graces of Wit and Learning, with a ſingular Penetration and Strength of Judgment, and exerciſing all theſe, in the whole Courſe of his Life, with an unalterable Steadineſs in the Ways of Virtue,
He became the Ornament and Example of his Age; beloved by good Men, feared by bad, admired by all:
Tho' imitated, alas! by few,
and ſcarce parallelled by any,
But a Tomb-ſtone can neither contain his Character; nor is Marble neceſſary to tranſmit it to Poſterity; it is engraved in the Minds of this Generation, and will be always legible in his inimitable Writings.
Nevertheleſs, he having ſerved near 20 Years ſucceſſively in Parliament, and that with ſuch Wiſdom, Dexterity, Integrity and Courage, as became a true Patriot.
The Town of Kingſton upon Hull,
From whence he was conſtantly deputed to the Aſſembly lamenting in his Death the publick Loſs, have erected this Monument of their Grief and Gratitude, 1688.
He died in the 58th Year of his Age, on the 16th Day of Auguſt, 1678.
Heu fragile humanum Genus! heu terreſtria Vana!
Heu quem ſpectatum continet Urna Virum!

THERE were ſome few charitable Gifts taken Notice of, by Inſcriptions in the lower Part of the Church.

Againſt a Pillar theſe Words:

To the Intent the Poor of this Pariſh may for ever hereafter receive the Gift of the Donor, this following Inſcription was here fixed and ſet up:

Sir William Cony, of this Pariſh, Kt. hath been pleaſed to give to the Poor of the ſame Pariſh 50 l. to the End that the Intereſt thereof may be for ever diſtributed in Bread to the Poor, that is to ſay, twelve Penniworth every Sunday in every Year, and eight Holidays in the ſame Year; ſuch as are particularly mentioned in the Act Book of the ſaid Pariſh, remaining in their Veſtry. Given in the Year of our Lord 1672.
James Partherick, } Church-Wardens.
Robert Hulcup, }

Another Inſcription to this Tenor:

Deo Votiva, Pauperibuſque Tabula. The Honourable Robert Bertie of this Pariſh, one of the Sons of the Right Honourable Robert, Earl of Lindſey, L. Great Chamberlain of England, and General of all the Forces of King Charles I. who was ſlain at the Battle of Edgehill; hath given into the Hands of the Church-Wardens 50 l. that ſo the Intereſt thereof may be diſtributed from Time to Time, and for ever, to the Poor in Bread, viz. Twelve Penniworth on every Sunday in the Year, and on every New Years Day 5 s. if Sunday, if otherwiſe, 4 s. and on the laſt Sunday of Auguſt in the ſame Year, 5 s. Began the firſt Day of January 1677.

Again, The Gift of Richard Holford, in the Year of our Lord God, 1658.

R. H. of the Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields, in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; did give the Sum

Sum of 29 l. yearly, for ever, to be iſſuing out of three Meſſuages or Tenements lying in the ſaid Pariſh; to be diſtributed Quarterly, among the moſt aged and neceſſitated poor People of the ſaid Pariſh, by the Miniſters, Church-Wardens and Overſeers of the ſaid Pariſh, ſucceſſively for ever; and to no other Perſon or Perſons, or Uſes whatſoever.

On the Top is an Arm holding a Bag of Money.

Upon a Mural Monument at the Weſt End of the Church, over the Belfry Door, South Corner, this Inſcription:

In Memory of Mr. John Pearſon, late of this Pariſh, who, at his Deceaſe, Ann. Dom. 1707. left a Gift of 50 l. a Year, for 99 Years, viz. 25 l. a Year to put out five Boys, Sons of poor decayed Houſe-Keepers of this Pariſh, Apprentices yearly, to Handicraft Trades: And 25 l. a Year to the twenty Women in the Alms-Houſes at the End of Monmouth-Street.

John Marriot, James Cannon, } Truſtees.

And after their Death to the Care of the then Rector of the ſaid Pariſh.

Upon a Monument fix'd to a Pillar on the South Side of the Church:

To the pious Memory of Alice, Wife of John Pearſon, late of this Pariſh, and of John Pearſon, Goldſmith, Son of the ſaid John and Alice; ſhe died the 13th of April, MDCLXXII, aged 45; he died March the 30th, MDCXCV, aged 21. Alſo of the firſt aboveſaid, John, who died the 7th of January, MDCCVII, in the lxviii Year of his Age.

Upon the Gallery on the South Side of the Church, is this Inſcription:

William Bambrigg, late of this Pariſh, Eſq; gave toward the Building of the South Gallery, 3000 l. for the Uſe of the Poor, in the Year 1671.

But of all the Benefactors to St. Giles's Church and Pariſh, the Lady Alice, Dutcheſs Dudley, muſt ſtand in the Fore Front; ſhe lived in her Houſe near the Church, and there ſhe died, at the Age of 90 Years, and has a Monument in the ſaid Church, though her Corpſe was conveyed to the Church of Stonely in Warwickſhire, and there entombed, in which Pariſh ſhe was born. But now to give a Catalogue of this Lady's Charities, as Dr. Boreman, ſome Time Incumbent, took them out of the Church's Regiſter, and publiſhed them with her Funeral Sermon, Anno 1669.

When the old Church before the laſt, which was decayed by Age, lay as it were in Rubbiſh, there being a void Space at the upper End of the Chancel, wherein were old Coffin-Boards, and the Bones of dead Men thrown, ſhe being offended at that unhandſome Proſpect, erected a decent Skreen to divide the ſaid Chancel from that Place, to hide it from the Eyes of thoſe that paſſed by.

When the aforeſaid old Church was fallen, with the Fall whereof that Skreen was demoliſhed, the Pariſhioners erected a new Church in the Room and Place where the former ſtood. It began to be built Anno 1623, and was finiſhed with the Wall about it, Anno 1631, many Hundreds of good Chriſtians in other Pariſhes contributing to ſo good a Work. And then did this Lady give to the ſaid Work, and the Wall encompaſſing the Church, many Hundred Pounds: Of which her magnificent Bounty the then grateful Pariſhioners erected a Monument, which was placed over the Great Gate on the North Side of the Church. The Words engraven in a large Square are theſe:

Quod fœlix bonumque ſit Poſteris, hoc Templum loco veteris ex annoſa Vetuſtate Collapſi mole & ſplendore auctum multo, Paræcorum Charitas inſtauravit. In quibus pientiſſimæ Heroinæ D. ALICIÆ DUDLEY Munificentia gratum Marmoris hujus meretur Eloquium. Huic etiam acceſſit aliorum quorundam pietas. Quibus proviſæ in cœlo ſunt Grates.

The Church being finiſhed, that the Inſide of it might correſpond with that which was without, the ſaid Lady gave Hangings of Watcher Taffata, to cover the upper End of the Chancel, and thoſe bordered with a Silk and Silver Fringe.

Item, For the Back of the Altar, a rich green Velvet Cloth, with theſe three Letters in Gold I. H. S. embroidered on it.

Two Service-Books in Folio, emboſſed with Gold.

A green Velvet Cloth, with a deep Gold Fringe, to cover the Altar on Sundays.

A Cambrick Altar-Cloth, with a deep Bone-Lace round about.

Another fine Damask-Altar-Cloth.

Two Cuſhions for the Altar, richly embroidered with Gold.

A large Turky Carpet, to be ſpread on the Weeks Days over it.

A beautiful Skreen of carved Work, which was placed where the former in the old Church ſtood.

Moreover, ſhe gave a neat Pair of Organs, with a Caſe richly gilded.

Item, Very coſtly handſome Rails, to guard the Altar, or the Lord's Table, from prophane Abuſes.

Item, The Communion Plate of all Sorts in Silver, and gilt for that ſacred Uſe; which is as large and rich as any in the City and Suburbs.

Besides all this, ſhe was at the Charge of Paving the upper End of the Church with Marble, and gave the great Bell in the Steeple; which, as often as it rings, ſounds her Praiſe, and was at the Charge of Caſting and Hanging the other five Bells.

Only this Bell, and the aforeſaid Plate excepted, all the forenamed Ornaments of the Church (being counted Superſtitious and Popiſh) were demoliſhed and ſold (under Pretence of relieving the Poor out of the Money received for them) by the Reformers (as they were called) in the Civil War Time.

Besides theſe Largeſſes and Chriſtian Liberalities to St. Giles, ſhe gave, long ſince, to the Churches of Stonely, Mancheſter, Leke, Wotton, Aſhow, Kennelworth, and Monks Kirby, all in Warwickſhire, 20 l. and upwards, per Ann. a-piece, for a perpetual Augmentation to the poor Vicarages of thoſe reſpective Churches for ever.

Moreover, ſhe beſtowed on the ſame Churches, and likewiſe upon the Churches of Bidford in the aforeſaid County of Warwick, Acton in Middleſex, St. Alban's in Hertfordſhire, Patſhil in Northampton, divers Pieces of fair and coſtly Plate, to be uſed at the Celebration of the Holy Communion in each of them.

Besides all this, ſhe purchaſed a fair Houſe and Garden near the Church of St. Giles aforeſaid, and gave it for a perpetual Manſion to the Incumbents after three Lives, whereof two were expired, Anno 1669.

She alſo allowed a yearly Stipend to the Sexton of this Church, to toll the great Bell, when the Priſoners condemned to die, ſhall be paſſing ſing by, and to ring out after they ſhall be executed.

She likewiſe gave great Sums of Money for the repairing of the Cathedral Church at Litchfield, and for the re-edifying of St. Sepulchre's in LONDON.

ALL theſe, with many more, were the Products and Fruits of her noble Charity, while ſhe lived; and at her Death, ſhe made theſe following Bequeſts:

I. For the Redemption of Chriſtian Captives from the Hands of Infidels, 100 l. per Annum for ever.

II. To the Hoſpital ſituate near the Church in St. Giles's, 400 l. for 20 l. a Year, for ever.

III. For the placing out for ever of poor Pariſh Children of St. Giles's Apprentices, 200 l. to purchaſe a Piece of Land at 10 l. per Annum, and two to be put out every Year.

IV. To the Poor of the aforeſaid Pariſhes of Stonely, Kenilworth, Leke-Wotton, Aſhaw, Bidford, in the aforeſaid County of Warwick; and Patſhil, Lichborow, and Blakeſley in the County of Northampton, 100 l. per Annum, to be diſpoſed and diſtributed among them, in ſuch Sort and Manner as her Will directs her Executrix. And

V. Upon the Day of her Funeral 50 l. to be diſtributed among the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Giles's, and other adjoining Pariſhes.

VI. To fourſcore and ten Widows, according to the Number of Years ſhe lived, ſhe bequeathed to each a Gown and a fair White Kerchief, to attend the Hearſe wherein her Body was carried; and one Shilling a Piece for their Dinner after that Solemnity was performed; which was on the 16th Day of March 1668.

VII. She appointed by her Will 5 l. to be given to every Place or Town, where her Corps ſhould reſt in its Paſſage from LONDON unto Stonely; where ſhe had a noble Monument long ſince prepared by herſelf.

VIII. She ordered that Six-pence ſhould be given to every poor Body that ſhould meet her Corpſe on the Road.

IX. She gave to Blakeſley, Litchborough, and Patſhil, 10 l. a Piece to be diſtributed among the Poor the ſame Day her Corpſe was interred.

X. To the Pariſh of Stonely 50 l. which was diſtributed the ſame Day.

THERE is a Monument ſet up for her in St. Giles's Church thus inſcribed:

ALICE, Dutcheſs DUDLEY,

A Lady of a charitable Mind, and who did many good Deeds to that Pariſh. She dyed Anno 1669, third Daughter of Sir Thomas Leigh, of Stonely in Warckſhire, Knt. and Bart. Her Mother was Katharine, Daughter to Sir John Spencer, of Wormleighton, Knight, and Great Grandfather to Earl Sunderland. The foreſaid Sir Thomas Leigh had by the ſaid Katharine, John Leigh, Knt. who was the Father of the Lord Leigh, Baron of Stonely.

THERE is her Funeral Sermon preached by Dr. Boreman, Miniſter of St. Giles's; and a Narrative of her Life and Death, which was publiſhed after the Sermon.

SHE was the Relict of Sir Robert Dudley, Kt. Son to Robert, Earl of Leiceſter. And for his excellent Merits created a Duke by Ferdinand II. late Emperor of Germany. She was by Letters Patents, bearing Date at Oxford the 20th of May, 20 Car. I. advanced by him to the Title of a Dutcheſs: Being by the foreſaid Robert the Mother of five Daughters, Alice Douglas, Frances, Wife of Sir Gilbert Kniveton, Knt. Anne, Wife of Sir Robert Holburne, late of Lincoln's-Inn. All theſe deceaſed; and Katharine, the only ſurviving Picture, in Piety and Goodneſs, of her Lady Mother, and Widow of Sir Richard Leviſon, Knight of the Bath. She was born in the Town of Stonely.

THERE is a Catalogue of her Charities to the Reparation and Rebuilding of the Church, and the Ornaments of the Altar; beſides her Charities to Stonely, where her Body lies intombed; and many other Churches and Augmentations of poor Vicarages. She purchaſed a fair Houſe and Garden near the Church of St. Giles, for the Incumbent there, and other Charities: Which are all ſet down in an Account of her good Deeds in her Life, and at her Death.

As to the New Church built here, the Author of the Critical Review gives the following Account of it:

"THE New Church of St. Giles's is one of "the moſt ſimple and elegant of the modern "Structures: It is raiſed at very little Expence, "has very few Ornaments, and little beſide the "Propriety of its Parts, and the Harmony of the "Whole, to excite Attention, and challenge "Applauſe; yet ſtill it pleaſes, and juſtly too; "the Eaſt End is both plain and majeſtick, and "there is nothing in the Weſt to object to but "the Smallneſs of the Doors, and the Poverty of "Appearance that muſt neceſſarily follow. The "Steeple is light, airy, and genteel, and argues "a good deal of Genius in the Architect, and "looks very well both in Compariſon with the "Body of the Church; and when 'tis conſider'd "as a Building by itſelf in a diſtant Proſpect. "Yet after all I have confeſs'd in Favour of this "Edifice, I can't help again arraigning the Su-"perſtition of ſituating Churches due Eaſt and "Weſt; for, in Complaiſance to this Folly, the "Building before us has loſt a great Advantage "it might otherwiſe have enjoy'd; I mean the "making the Eaſt End the Front, and placing it "in ſuch a Manner, as to have ended the Viſta "of what is call'd Broad St. Giles's; whereas, "now, it is no where to be ſeen with Eaſe to "the Eye, or ſo as juſtly to comprehend the "Symmetry and Connection of the Whole.

THE Ornaments within this Church are not many; the Roof is arched, adorned with Fret-work, and is ſupported by ſtately Columns of the Ionick Order. The Chancel is raiſed one Step higher than the reſt of the Church, and is paved with Marble; there is an Iron Rail and Baliſter before the Communion-Table, and ſeveral Wainſcot Pannels about it, but nothing written in them. The Organ that was in the Old Church is a very good one, and is intended to be ſet up again in this New one; but at preſent there is none, nor any Bells.

THIS Church being finiſhed, was opened upon Eaſter Sunday, the 14th Day of April, 1734.

THE Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, for the Time being; the Value upwards of 400 l. per Annum, and rated in the King's Books at 4 l. 2 s. 6 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Galley, and the Lecturer the Rev. Mr. Smith.

PRAYERS are every Day at Ten in the Forenoon, and at Three in the Afternoon.

THE Veſtry is Select, conſiſting of the Rector and Church-wardens for the Time being, and 36 other Inhabitants.

THERE is a Chapel in Great Queen-ſtreet, in this Pariſh of St. Giles's, erected by the Means of one William Baguley, pretending to be a Miniſter of the Church of England. Wherein, for ſome Time, he preached without Licence or Authority, conſecrated the Holy Sacrament, and adminiſter'd the ſame. Wherefore in this Chapel the Biſhops of LONDON and Peterborough cauſed two Declarations, Dec. 22, 1706, to be read.

THAT of the Biſhop of LONDON was: "That whereas he was credibly informed that "Mr Baguley gave out to the Congregation aſ-"ſembled in that Place, that he had his [the "Biſhop's] Permiſſion and Encouragement for "what he did, he thought it neceſſary, for the "undeceiving of this Part of his Flock, with the "Care of whoſe Souls the Divine Providence had "entruſted him, to publiſh and declare that he "had ſeveral Times ſent to the aboveſaid Mr. "Baguley, and had ordered him to exhibit to "him the Teſtimonial of his Ordination, that "he might be the better enabled to judge of "his Qualifications for the Miniſtry: But that "the ſaid Mr. Baguley, though often called up-"on, had never given him any Satisfaction in "this Particular. That he had Reaſon there-"fore to conclude that he had not been admitted "into the Order of Prieſthood in the Church of "England. And that therefore he was not duly "qualified for the reading of publick Prayers, or "preaching of God's Word, and adminiſtring "of the Holy Sacrament in the ſame. And "that for this Reaſon all good Chriſtians ought "to take Care how they communicated with

"ſuch

" ſuch a Perſon who proceeded in Contempt of " the Epiſcopal Authority, and the good Diſci- " pline eſtabliſhed in the Church of England.

Henry London.

AT the ſame Time was publiſhed the following Certificate under the Hand of the Biſhop of Peterburgh, viz. "Theſe are to certify whom it may " concern, that William Baguley offered himſelf " to me this Day to be admitted to the Order of " Prieſthood; which I refuſed him, there being " Crimes of a very heinous Nature alledged " againſt him. Witneſs my Hand this 21ſt Day " of Decemb. 1706.

Rich. Peterburgh.

THIS Chapel was not built for this Purpoſe, but made out of an old Houſe, and is but ordinary, conſidering the Neighbourhood, and how many Perſons of Faſhion attend it. The Length of it being North and South, the Communion-Table is on one Side the Pulpit, on the Eaſt Side, there are three Pannels over it againſt the Wall, with the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and Ten Commandments, done in Gold coloured Letters upon Black. There are three Galleries, one on the Weſt Side, and two other at the North and South Ends; that on the North has Doors into it out of ſome Houſes in Great Queen-ſtreet.

THERE are Prayers here every Day at Eleven o'Clock in the Forenoon, and twice on a Sunday. The Morning Preacher is the Reverend Mr. Stevens, and the Afternoon Preacher and Reader the Reverend Mr. Burges, whoſe Father is the Owner of the Chapel.

THERE is no Organ, and but one little Bell.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE at Bloomsbury.

OUT of the Pariſh of St. Giles was taken the new Pariſh of St. George at Bloomsbury. The Church here takes its Name from St. George the Martyr, to whom it was dedicated in Honour of of his late Majeſty King George I.

IT was conſecrated January the 28th, 1731.

IT is ſituated on the North Side and at the Weſt End of Hart-ſtreet, and Bloomsbury is added to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches dedicated to the ſame Saint.

THE Author of the Critical Review, before quoted, gives the following Account of this Church: "It will be impoſſible, ſays he, to " paſs by the new Church of St. George, Bloomsbury, without giving it a very particular Survey: 'Tis built all of Stone, is adorned with " a pompous Portico, can boaſt many other Decorations, has been ſtinted in no Expence; and " yet, upon the Whole, is ridiculous and abſurd " even to a Proverb. The Reaſon is this, the " Builder miſtook Whim for Genius, and Ornament for Taſte; he has even err'd ſo much, " that the very Portico does not ſeem to be in " the Middle of the Church, and as to the " Steeple, it is ſtuck on like a Wen to the reſt " of the Building: Then the execrable Conceit " of ſetting up the King on the Top of it, excites nothing but Laughter in the Ignorant, " and Contempt in the Judge. In ſhort, 'tis a " laſting Reflection on the Fame of the Architect, and the Underſtanding of thoſe who employed him.

THIS Living is a Rectory, is in the Gift of the King, the Value is about 400 l. per Ann.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. Vernon, and the Lecturer is the Rev. Mr. Kapper.

PRAYERS are twice every Day, viz. at Eleven in the Morning, and Four in the Afternoon. No Organ, 1 Bell. The Veſtry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are,	The PEACE-OFFICERS are,

IN Plumbtree-ſtreet is a School for 101 Boys, and as many Girls; the Boys are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts, and 3 l. given with each of them when put Aprentice. The Girls are taught to Read, Mark, Knit, and Sew, and put to Service, but no Money given with them. Thirty of the Girls are cloathed, fed, and maintained, in the School, which is ſupported by Subſcription, and Collections at the Church twice in the Year.

THIS Pariſh begins two Houſes Eaſtward from the Vine Tavern in Holbourn, and extends to Dyot-ſtreet in St. Giles's-ſtreet, and takes in all the Eaſt Side of Dyot-ſtreet; thence croſſing Great Ruſſel-ſtreet, it takes in Part of Dr. Stewart's Houſe, and ſo to the End of the Ground belonging to the Pariſh in the Fields behind the ſaid Houſe. From the Doctor's Houſe Eaſtward it reaches to King-ſtreet, taking in Southampton-row and Southampton-court, at the North End of King-ſtreet, Swan-paſſage, the Weſt Side of King's-gate-ſtreet, and thence to the ſecond Houſe, incluſive, beyond the Vine Tavern in Holbourn; and all the Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c. in this Compaſs.

THIS Pariſh, which is taken out of St. Giles in the Fields, as is before ſaid, conſiſts of Part of the ſecond Part of the Old Town, and Part of the third Part of the Old Town.

STREETS, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c.

In Part of the ſecond Part of the Old Town:

NUMBER of Houſes about 900.

IN this Pariſh is the Houſe of his Grace the Duke of Montagu, which, ſays the ingenious Author before quoted, " has been long, but very " ridiculouſly eſteemed one of the moſt beau- " tiful Lodgings about Town. I muſt own 'tis " grand and expenſive, will admit of very noble " Ranges of Apartments within, and fully an- " ſwers all the Dignity of a Britiſh Nobleman of " the firſt Rank: But after I have allowed this, " I muſt add, that the Entrance into the Court- " Yard is mean and Gothick, more like the Por- " tal of a Monaſtery than the Gate of a Palace; " and the Cupola over it is even ſtill more con- " temptible and abſurd. I am ready to confeſs " the Area ſpacious and grand, and the Colon-nade,

" nade to the Wings, graceful and harmonious; " but then the Wings themſelves are no Way " equal to it, and the Body of the Houſe has " no other Recommendation than merely its " Bulk, and the Quantity of Space it fills. It is " my Opinion, that the Height is not equal to " the Length, and that the Roof and Garrets " are both a Load to the Fabrick, and abſurd " in themſelves; that the Windows are too large " and numerous; that Decorations are wanting, " and that the whole Front is defective, both in " Beauty and Variety.

The Houſe of his Grace the Duke of Bedford, in Bloomsbury-ſquare, which is likewiſe in this Pariſh, is ſituated as well as any Houſe poſſibly can be; and being likewiſe much decayed in its Beauty, is now lately repaired in a Manner that ſhews the fine Taſte of the Owner.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE the Martyr, in Queen-Square.

THE Pariſh next adjoining to St. Giles, is St. George in Queen-ſquare: The Church here was originally a Chapel of Eaſe to the Church of St. Andrew in Holbourn, and was built by Subſcription of divers Gentlemen, in the Year 1706. It was made Parochial, Anno Domini 1723, by Virtue of the Act of the 9th of Queen Anne for building 50 new Churches.

It takes its Name from being dedicated to St. George the Martyr, in the County of Middleſex, and Queen-ſquare being added to it, partly by Reaſon of its Situation, and partly to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches dedicated to the ſame Saint.

It is ſituated on the Weſt Side of Queen-ſquare, near Great Ormond-ſtreet, and at the End of Gloceſter-ſtreet, in the ſaid County of Middleſex.

It is a Rectory in the Gift of the Duke of Montagu.

The Rector is the Reverend Mr. Green, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Richard Lucas.

Prayers are every Day at Eleven and Four. No Organ, one ſmall Bell. Here are two Charity Sermons in the Year, one for the Boys, and one for the Girls.

The Veſtry is Select, conſiſting of 30 Gentlemen.

The Parish-Ofeicers are,	The Peace-Officers are,
2 Church-Wardens.	2 Conſtables.
2 Sideſmen.	2 Headboroughs.

The remarkable Places and Things are, the Lord Powis's Houſe in Ormond-ſtreet, now let to the Conde Montijo, Ambaſſador from Spain; it is a noble Houſe looking into the Fields backwards towards Highgate, and was built at the Expence of the late French King, his Ambaſſador, the Duke d'Aumont, in the Reign of Queen Anne, living in the former Houſe of the Lord Powis, which at that Time was conſumed by Fire; the Front is Stone, adorned with Pilaſters of the Corinthian Order, and over the Door is carved the Emblem of a Phœnix riſing out of the Flames alluding to the afore-mentioned Accident. The Stair-Caſe within is finely painted by that great Artiſt Signior Amiconi.

In this Pariſh are two Charity-Schools for 50 Boys and 40 Girls. The Boys are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts; and when put out to Trades, with each Boy is given 5 l. The Girls are taught to Read, Write, Knit, Sew, and do Houſhold Work, and with each of them is given 3 l. when put out to Service or Trade.

The Burying Ground belonging to this Pariſh is at ſome Diſtance from the Church, in the Fields, where are ſeveral Monuments and Grave-ſtones, the moſt remarkable are the following:

A handſome Marble Monument with an Urn at Top, being the firſt that was erected here; there is a very long Latin Inſcription on it, which tells us it was placed here to the Memory of Robert Nelſon, Eſq; who died the 16th of January 1714, aged 59.

This Gentleman was a Man of great Piety, and wrote ſeveral Religious Books, particularly one on the Faſts and Feſtivals of the Church.

A ſquare Marble Monument with Iron Rails round it, erected to the Memory of Dr. Thomas Gibſon, Phyſician, who died the 16th of July, 1722, aged 75; and Anne Gibſon, Daughter of Richard Cromwell, the prudent, pious and chaſte Wife of Thomas Gibſon, who died the 7th of Deeember, 1727, aged 69.

On a large Marble Monument, having an Urn at the Top, with a Flame iſſuing out it, is this Inſcription:

To the Memory
of
Mr. ROBERT BURFORD,
who departed this Life the 10th of March, 1727, in the 65th Year of his Age.

This Monument is erected according to his laſt Will.

On the Baſe of a high and very handſome Stone Obelisk, is this Inſcription:

In this Vault lies the Body of Thomas Falconer, Eſq; deſcended from an antient honourable Family of the ſame Name in Scotland, who after having been employed eighteen Years by the Honourable Eaſt-India Company at Bengal, returned into England in 1727, with the juſt Reward of his extenſive Skill, and honeſt Induſtry, in Commerce, an eſtabliſhed good Name, and a very ample Fortune, with that rare Felicity and Largeneſs of Mind, that knew the Pleaſure of poſſeſſing only from the Power it gave him of diſpenſing; of being generous to his Acquaintance, grateful to his Friends, and charitable to the Poor; with the ſame ſound Church of England Principles in Religion that he took with him from home, and in which he died on the 25th of January 1729-30, and in the 35th Year of his Age. To the Memory of this, her much beloved Son, his Mother erected this Monument.

On a poliſh'd white Marble Table-Monument, erected in the Wall, at the Eaſt End of the Burying Ground, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Reverend Dr. Marſhal; he was many Years Morning Preacher of St. George's Chapel in Queen-Square, and the firſt Rector of St. George the Martyr, in the County of Middleſex.

Obiit 2d die Octob. An. Dom.

On a white Marble Grave-ſtone:

To the Memory
Of Dame Alice, the late Wife of Sir Brocas Gardiner, of Roche Court in the County of Southampton, Bart. who intends to be buried in the ſame Grave. She dyed on the third Day of January, 1734, in the 66th Year of her Age.

The Buttings and Boundings of this Pariſh are as follow; beginning at the North End of Lamb's-conduit-ſtreet, it extends on the North Weſt Side of Red-lion-ſtreet to Eagle-ſtreet, and extending Weſtward on the North Side of Eagle-ſtreet to King's-gate-ſtreet, taking in the Eaſt Side of that Street. It takes in all Gloceſter-ſtreet, New Little Ormond-ſtreet, and all Queen-ſquare, and Brunſwick-court, and from thence extends to the End of Great Ormond-ſtreet, with all the Streets, Courts, &c. in this Compaſs.

 Lamb's

CHAP. IV.

The LIBERTY of the DUTCHY of LANCASTER.

NEXT without Temple-bar, and the Liberty of the City of LONDON, the New Temple is a Liberty pertaining to the Dutchy of Lancaſter, which begins in the Eaſt on the South Side, or Left Hand, near the River Thames, and ſtretches Weſt to Ivy-bridge, where it ends. And again, on the North Side or Right Hand from ſome ſmall Diſtance without Temple-bar, to where ſtood a Stone Croſs, taking in one Middle Row of Houſes, opening partly to the South, and partly to the North.

IN the Room of which Croſs of later Years was placed a Maypole, commonly called The Maypole in the Strand, being above 100 Feet in Height. This being grown old and decayed, was, Anno 1717, obtained by Sir Iſaac Newton, Knt. of the Pariſh; and being taken down, was carried away thro' the City in a Carriage of Timber, to Wanſtead in Eſſex. And by the Leave of Sir Richard Child, Bart. Lord Caſtlemain, now Earl Tinley, granted to the Reverend Mr. Pound, Rector of that Pariſh, was reared up and placed in his Park there, the Uſe whereof is for the raiſing of a Teleſcope, the largeſt in the World, given by a French Gentleman to the Royal Society, he being a Member thereof.

AND theſe are the Bounds of this Liberty.

BUT to go over the Bounds again, with the modern Names of the Places, for the better underſtanding thereof, according to a late Survey.

THIS Dutchy begins without Temple-bar, and runs on the South Side, as far as the Eaſt Side of Cecil-ſtreet, which is built on the Ground where Great Salisbury Houſe and Garden ſtood; and ſo running down to the Thames, and thence to Eſſex Buildings, taking in all to Temple-bar. Then on the North Side, ſome Diſtance from Temple-bar, there is a large Row of Houſes which runs up in the Strand Side, as far as the ſaid Maypole, where antiently ſtood the Stone Croſs; and ſo coming down to Hallowel-ſtreet, commonly called the Backſide of St. Clement's, paſſes by the Butcher-row, taking in all that large Rank of Buildings: Then beyond the Place of the Maypole, this Liberty again begins by the Fountain Tavern in Catharine-ſtreet, and thence into the Strand by Wimbleton Houſe; thence to Exeter-change, and ſo turning up Burleigh-ſtreet runs up to the Corner of Exeter-ſtreet, except four Houſes, and thence it croſſes over the Buildings into Catharine-ſtreet, by the Fountain Tavern.

AND theſe are the Bounds of that Liberty which ſome Time belonged to Brian Liſle, ſince to Peter of Savoy, and then to the Houſe of Lancaſter, as ſhall be ſhewed.

BY a Record it is likely that this Place of the Savoy did alſo ſome Time belong to Montford Earl of Leiceſter, before it was the Earl of Lancaſter's. The Record is this, Tho. Comit. Lancaſtr. placea ſubtus litus Thamiſe, ubi Com. Leic. aliquando hab. manſum ſuum, &c. "The "Earl of Lancaſter's Place, near the Thames "Side, where ſome Time the Earl of Leiceſter "had his Manſion, and 37 s. Rent there of a "Meſſuage below the Bars, called the New "Temple, and 4 l. 9 s. Rent belonging to the "ſame Meſſuage of a Place of Land near the "Thames Side, bordering upon the Curtalage of "the Biſhop of Landaff.

IN the Reigns of King Edward I. and II. were many vacant Pieces of Land from Temple-bar, and ſo toward the Strand, lying in the Pariſhes of St. Clement's Danes, and St. Mary Strand, which were then granted and built upon. Theſe are to be met with in the 29th of King Edward I. "Walter Le Barbur had granted "him a void Place in the High-ſtreet in the "Pariſh of St. Clement's Danes without the Bars "of the New Temple. The ſame Year Robert Le "Spencer had another vacant Place of Ground in "the ſame Pariſh, containing 40 Feet in Length, "40 in Breadth. The 2d of King Edward II. "Thomas Earl of Lancaſter granted to the "Biſhop of Landaff, a Place of Ground near "the Church of St. Mary at Strond, containing fourſcore Feet in Length, and eight in "Breadth, pro manſo ſuo ibidem elangand, i. e. "for the enlarging of his Manſion-Houſe there. "And 15 Edward II. John de Langton obtained "for the Biſhop of Worceſter a Place in the Pa-"riſh of St. Mary at Strond, containing thirty "Perches in Length, and four in Breadth.

Henry III. in the 30th Year of his Reign, did grant to his Uncle, Peter of Savoy, all thoſe Houſes upon the Thames, which ſometimes pertained to Brian de Inſula, or Iſle, without the Walls of this City of LONDON, in the Way or Street called the Strand, to hold to him and to his Heirs, yielding yearly in the Exchequer, at the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, three barbed Arrows for all Services, dated at Reading, &c. This Peter of Savoy built the the Savoy.

THIS

This Liberty of the Dutchy lying between LONDON and Weſtminſter, was look'd upon as ſome Security to the Court, when any Plague ſhould happen to be in the City, by the Care that ſhould be taken to keep it thence: And therefore, when the Plague came among the Citizens, great Care was taken to keep it from ſpreading Weſtward. In the Year 1577, the City being infected, and the Court removed to Windſor and elſewhere, in this Dutchy was appointed one Ledſham, Bailiff, who had been negligent in taking Care of the Dutchy. The Earl of Leiceſter hearing of the Increaſe of it there (where he alſo had a Houſe) grew very angry with him, and threatned the ſaid Ledſham (who was his Servant) to pluck his Coat from his Back, and to puniſh him otherwiſe for his Negligence: And for the Sick there he offered very honourably, to give as much as any ſhould for their Relief. But Fleetwood, the Recorder, an active and a good Man, having ſomething to do in that Liberty alſo, was very comfortably diligent, weekly himſelf ſurveying the Dutchy; and took order there to ſtop the Increaſe of it. He twice paſt with all the Conſtables between the Bars and the Tilt-yard in both Liberties, to ſee the Houſes ſhut in.

Amongst other Buildings, memorable for Greatneſs, the firſt was Exeter Houſe, ſo called, for that the ſame belonged to the Biſhops of Exeter, and was their Inn, or LONDON Lodging; who was the firſt Builder thereof, is not to be read; but that Walter Stapleton was a great Builder there, in the Reign of King Edward II. is manifeſt; for the Citizens of LONDON, when they had beheaded him in Cheap, near to the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, they buried him in a Heap of Sand or Rubbiſh, in his own Houſe without Temple-bar, where he had made great Building. Edmond Lacy, Biſhop of Exeter, built the great Hall in the Reign of King Henry VI. &c. The ſame has ſince been called Paget Houſe, becauſe the Lord William Paget enlarged and poſſeſſed it; obtained from John Biſhop of Exeter (who made a great Spoil of his Church Revenues) and was confirmed to Sir William Paget, and alſo a certain Parcel of Land within the Garden of the Middle Temple, LONDON.

Then Leiceſter Houſe, ſo named, becauſe Robert Dudley, Earl of Leiceſter, of new built there; and Eſſex Houſe, the Earl of Eſſex there inhabiting. And it was thought the Biſhop of Exeter had no Recompence for the ſame, of any other Houſe in or near LONDON, as Sir Henry Spelman writes.

Then Weſt was a Chapel dedicated to the Holy Ghoſt, called St. Spirit, upon what Occaſion founded is unknown.

Then is Milford-lane down to the Thames; but why ſo called, none have conjectured.

Then was the Biſhop of Bath's Inn, called alſo Hampton-place) built (for a great Part threof) by the Lord Thomas Seymour, Admiral, being Parcel of his Poſſeſſion. This Houſe of the Biſhop of Bath and Wells was aſſured to the ſaid Admiral Seymour in King Edward VI's Reign, and was quite ſevered from that Biſhoprick without Recompence; which Houſe came ſince to be poſſeſſed by the Earl of Arundel, and thereof called Arundel Houſes. This Earl having upon the Admiral's Attainture, bought it of King Edward VI. in the 3d of his Reign, with ſeveral other Meſſuages, Lands and Tenements in the Pariſh, for 41 l. 6*s.* 8 d.

Next beyond which, on the Street Side, was ſome Time a fair Cœmitory, or Church-Yard, and in the ſame a Pariſh Church, called of the Nativity of our Lady, and the Innocents at the Strand; and of ſome (by Means of a Brotherhood kept there) called of St. Urſula at the Strand.

William Wynningham, Rector Eccleſiæ Sanctæ Mariæ Le Strand, Anno 1376.

In former Time it was an Highway leading from LONDON to Weſtminſter, and ſo was called in a Deed. Roger, called The Amner, gave and confirmed to Roger de Mulent, or de Molend, who was alſo called Longeſpe, Biſhop of Cheſter, in the Year 1257, a Parcel of Land and Buildings lying in the Pariſh of St. Mary le Strand, without LONDON, toward Weſtminſter; and the ſame to hold to the ſaid Roger and his Succeſſors, by the yearly Rent of 3 s. at Eaſter, for the Purchaſe of which, the ſaid Biſhop gave 20 Marks of Silver. On this Land we preſume Cheſter Inn was built, ſituate by St. Mary le Strand.

For near adjoining to the ſaid Church, betwixt it and the River Thames, was an Inn of Chancery, commonly called Cheſter's-inn, becauſe it belonged to the Biſhop of Cheſter; by others named of the Situation, Strand-inn.

Then was there a Houſe belonging to the Biſhop of Landaff: For it is ſaid in a Record, the 4th of King Richard II. that a vacant Place, lying near the Church of our Lady at Strand, the ſaid Biſhop procured of Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, for the enlarging of this Houſe.

Then in the High Street was a fair Bridge, called Strand-bridge, and under it a Lane or Way down to the Landing-Place on the Bank of Thames.

Then was the Biſhop of Cheſter (commonly called of Litchfield and Coventry) his Inn, or LONDON Lodging. This Houſe was firſt built by Walter Langton, Biſhop of Cheſter, Treaſurer of England, in the Reign of King Edward I.

These two Biſhops Places, viz. that of the Biſhop of Landaff, and this of the Biſhop of Cheſter, (that is, of Litchfield and Coventry) were defaced and taken away, without any Recompence to the ſaid Biſhops.

And next adjoining to it was the Biſhop of Worceſter's-inn. All which, viz. the Pariſh of St. Mary at Strand, Strand-inn, Strand-bridge, with the Lane under it, the Biſhop of Cheſter's-inn, the Biſhop of Wincheſter's-inn, with all the Tenements adjoining, were by the Command of Edward Duke of Somerſet, Uncle to King Edward VI. and Lord Protector, pulled down and made level Ground, in the Year 1549. In Place where he built that large and goodly Houſe, now called Somerſet Houſe.

King James I. his Queen made this Houſe her Palace, and on Shrove Tueſday, Anno 1616, ſhe feaſted the King here. At this Time the King changed the Name of this Houſe, appointing it to be henceforth called Denmark Houſe. This Houſe was much repaired and beautified, and improved by new Buildings and Enlargements by this Queen, who alſo brought Water from Hyde-park in Pipes.

The Biſhop of Worceſter, in Reſpect of his former Houſe demoliſhed, was recompenced with an Houſe in White-friars; which formerly in Sir Henry Spelman's Time, the Biſhop of Worceſter enjoyed. This, perhaps, was in Favour to Biſhop Hooper, Biſhop of Gloceſter and Worceſter, ſome Time the Duke of Somerſet's Chaplain.

In the High-ſtreet near to the Strand, ſome Time ſtood a Croſs of Stone, againſt the Biſhop of Coventry or Cheſter his Houſe, where it is read, that in the Year 1294, and divers other Times, the Juſtices Itinerants ſat without LONDON, at the Stone Croſs over-againſt the Biſhop of Coventry's Houſe; and ſome Time they ſat in in the Biſhop's Houſe, which was hard by the Strand, as is aforeſaid.

AT or near which Croſs in the Strand ſtood, 'till of late a Maypole, commonly called the Maypole in the Strand; near to which is erected a Stone-building over a Spring, deſigned at firſt to ſupply the Neighbourhood with Water, but now of little Uſe.

THE Savoy Houſe is a very great, and at this preſent a very ruinous Building. In the Midſt of its Buildings is a very ſpacious Hall, the Walls three Feet broad at leaſt, of Stone without, and Brick and Stone inward. The Ceiling is very curiouſly built with Wood, and having Knobs in due Places hanging down, and Images of Angels holding before their Breaſts Coats of Arms, but hardly diſcoverable: On one is a Croſs, Gules, between four Stars, or elſe Mullets. It is covered with Lead, but in divers Places periſhed where it lies open to the Weather. This large Hall is now divided into ſeveral Apartments; a Cooper has a Part of it for the ſtowing of his Hoops, and for his Work. Other Parts of it ſerve for two Marſhalſeas for keeping Priſoners, as Deſerters, Men impreſs'd for Military Service, Recruits, &c. Towards the Eaſt End of this Hall is a fair Cupola with Glaſs Windows, but all broken, which makes it probable the Hall was as long again, ſince Cupola's are wont to be built about the Middle of great Halls.

IN this Savoy, how ruinous ſoever it is, are ſome good Houſes, as Mr. Nut's Printing-Houſe, a Priſon, a Pariſh Church, and three or four other Churches and Places for Religious Aſſemblies, viz. for the French, for Dutch, for High Germans and Lutherans; and laſtly, for the Proteſtant Diſſenters. Here are alſo Harbours for many Refugees and poor People.

IN the Year 1687, Schools were ſet up and ordained here at the Savoy, the Maſters whereof were Jeſuits. Rules were provided for theſe Schools, and publiſhed in print. It was declared therein, that the Intention of them was to teach Youth, Vertue and Learning: That thoſe that came thither ſhould be taught gratis, and to be at no further Charge than in buying of their own Pen, Ink, Paper and Books: That theſe Schools ſhould be common to all of what Condition ſoever, and none to be excluded when they ſhould be thought fit to begin to learn Latin, and writ ſufficiently well. In theſe Schools, to be taught Greek and Latin, Poetry and Rhetorick. And whether Catholicks or Proteſtants came to theſe Schools, yet in Teaching no Diſtinction to be made, but all to be taught with equal Diligence and Care; neither by Maſters or Scholars any tampering or meddling, to perſuade any one from the Profeſſion of his own Religion. But few there were but did believe, nay could not believe otherwiſe than that this pretended charitable Project was for the Advantages hereby to be compaſſed for the promoting the Roman Religion. Theſe Schools were ſoon diſſolved, upon the ceaſing of the Government of King James; and the Clock that was made for the Uſe of this Savoy School, was afterwards ſet up upon a Gentleman's Houſe in Low-Leyton, as was ſaid.

IN this Savoy were placed by King William III. many Families of poor French Proteſtants, and where they that had Skill in Trade and Manufacture, wrought to get ſomething for their Livelihood; however they were oppoſed and complained of by many of the Tradeſmen of LONDON, as hindering and prejudicing many of them. Here alſo was, and is, a Church for them. The late Biſhop of LONDON came thither himſelf ſometimes, and paſſionately deſired their Good, and maintained many of their Proſelytes. The poor French here inhabiting with their Families had, many of them, three Shillings Allowance weekly, and ſome four. To countenance them the more, to this Church came many of the ſaid King's Privy-Counſellors, Secretaries of State, and other great Officers of the Kingdom. And thro' them and their Contributions, the Church chiefly was able to ſubſiſt. They uſed the Liturgy of the Church of England, turned into French, and their Miniſters are epiſcopally ordained.

THE Deans of Weſtminſter hold themſelves Viſitors of the Savoy; and when ſome Exchange of Lands belonging to this Hoſpital was in Hand, Anno 1565, with Mr. Fanſhaw, Dr. Goodman, the Dean, out of his great Care that no Wrong might be done to that charitable Foundation thereby wrote an earneſt Letter to the Lord Treaſurer, "That being in Conſcience much bound to that "poor Hoſpital; and conſidering the good "Meaning of the moſt noble Founder, he de"ſired him for God's Sake, that in that Bar"gain of Exchange that was towards, nothing "might paſs to the Prejudice thereof"; ſuſpecting it ſeems, and not without Cauſe, the Integrity of that Maſter.

THE Pariſh of St. Clement Danes is large, well built and inhabited, by many Perſons both of the Nobility and Gentry, as well as rich Tradeſmen: Where alſo many Noblemens Seats ſtood, as Eſſex Houſe, Arundel Houſe, &c. though now pulled down, and improved in Rents, by building them into fair Courts and Squares.

To give the Girt Line, or preſent Bounds of this Pariſh, we muſt in abundance of Places run through, or croſs Houſes, nay long Piles of Buildings. We ſhall begin at the Weſt End of Portugal Row in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, where the Pariſh Stone-Mark is ſet up; and from thence it runs croſs the Back-ſides of the Houſes in Portugal Row, taking in the Play-houſe, and the Stablings into the New Court in Lincoln's-Inn, almoſt to the Pump placed at the Palliſado Pales by the Garden; and from thence ſtrait croſs the Court and the Row of New Buildings into Shear-lane, and down the ſame to the Gate by Temple-bar, taking in all the Weſt Side thereof. Then it runs from Temple-bar, croſs to the Cock Ale-houſe on the other Side of the Way, and ſo to the River Thames; taking in all the Buildings, except the Temple: Which the Templers and Bariſters claim a Juriſdiction unto: So that it paſſes from the Cock Ale-houſe in the Street-ſide, unto all the Buildings to the Palſgraves Head Court, which it takes in, and ſo down into Devereux-court, with all Eſſex Buildings on both Sides to the River Thames: Then along the Banks of the River from Eſſex Stairs unto Strand Bridge; and there it runs Northwards, taking in the Eaſt Side, with Part of the Weſt Side, at the upper End; where it joins to the Garden-Wall of Somerſet-houſe: Which Buildings it croſſes, and ſo up to Three-helmet-court, over-againſt St. Mary in the Strand, and there it croſſes the High Street to the Bell-Inn; thence through the ſaid Inn, and croſſes Wich-ſtreet to May-pole-alley; from whence it paſſes by Craven Houſe and Craven Buildings, on the Eaſt Side of Drury-lane to two Doors on this Side the Horſe-ſhoe Tavern; and there it croſſes the Houſes on the Back-ſide of Princes-ſtreet, and ſo croſs Stanhope-ſtreet and then runs down the South Side of Duke-ſtreet, to the Houſe where the Pariſh Stone Mark is ſet up; and from this Houſe it croſſes the Houſes into Bear-yard, and ſo into Sheffield-ſtreet by Clare-market, next the Oil-Shop, where it croſſes the Street to the Glaſiers, and ſo thro' the Houſes; and again croſſes to the Pariſh Stone Mark, on the Backſide of Portugal Row, where we began. But there is a conſiderable Part of the the Pariſh ſeparate from the reſt, and that Part begins at Wimbleton Houſe in the Strand, over-againſt Dutchy-Lane, and ſo runs to the Corner of Exeter Exchange, and from thence up Burleigh-ſtreet, taking in Exeter-court, with Exchange-alley, and the back Buildings againſt Exeter-ſtreet, with all the Eaſt Side of Burleigh-ſtreet, except two or three Houſes by the Corner of Exeter-ſtreet. Then again from the Corner of the ſaid Exchange it runs croſs the Strand, taking in Fountain-court down to the River Thames, with all Beauford Buildings, and the Eaſt Side of Cecil-ſtreet, built out of Great Salisbury Houſe: All which ſaid Buildings it takes in: And this is the Extent of this Pariſh.

Now for the Deſcription of the Streets, Lanes, Alleys and Courts in this Pariſh, with their Buildings of chief Note: We ſhall firſt begin at Temple-bar, and ſo go Weſtward. Firſt is the Strand, on both Sides to St. Mary's Church; and here this Street is not ſo broad as by and beyond the ſaid Church; but being ſo great a Thoroughfare, is well inhabited by Shop-keepers. The Blue Poſts Tavern, adjoining to Temple-bar, is a noted Houſe. Thence, paſſing Weſtward, is Croſs-key-alley, very ſmall; the Roſe Tavern is a well accuſtomed Houſe with good Conveniences of Rooms, and a good Garden. The next Place that offers itſelf is the Palſgrave's-head-court, very handſome, large, well built and inhabited, with Free-ſtone Pavement, aſcended by Steps, which cauſes it to lie dry and clean. It has an Outlet into the Temple with a Door to it. Next to this is a ſmall Alley not worth naming. Then through a Paſſage is an Entrance into Devereux-court, which leads to the Temple Back-gate. It is a large Place with good Houſes, and by Reaſon of its Vicinity to the Temple, has a good Reſort, conſiſting of Publick Houſes, and noted Coffee Houſes; from this Court is a Paſſage into Eſſex-ſtreet.

Almoſt againſt St. Clement's Church is an open Paſſage for Coaches into Eſſex-ſtreet, or Building, being a broad, clean, and handſome Street, eſpecially beyond the Turning into the Temple, where it croſſes Little Eſſex-ſtreet into Milford-lane. It conſiſts of two Rows of good built Houſes, well inhabited by Gentry; at the Bottom of which Street is a Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water Side where Watermen ply. This Place, before its being converted into Buildings, was a large Garden with one great Houſe, firſt called Exeter Houſe, as belonging to the Biſhop of Exeter. Afterwards it came to the Earls of Eſſex, and was called Eſſex Houſe. Which Name it retained, although afterwards poſſeſſed by Seymour, Marquis of Hertford. At length it was purchaſed by Dr. Barbon, the great Builder, and by him and other Undertakers converted into Buildings, as now it is; of late the Paſſage into it out of the great Street is widened and made more convenient.

Out of this Eſſex-ſtreet, Weſtward, is a ſmall Street or Paſſage for Carts, called Little Eſſex-ſtreet, which leads to Milford-lane, which opens out of the Strand, againſt St. Clement's Church, and this Lane runs down on the Backſide of Eſſex-ſtreet to the Water Side; a Place much peſtered with Carts and Cars, for the bringing Coals and other Goods from the Wharfs by the Water Side, and therefore this Lane is but ill inhabited, with old Buildings, and the rather for that the Entrance into it out of the Strand is ſo narrow. On the Weſt Side of this Lane, and oppoſite to Little Eſſex-ſtreet, is Greyhound-court, a handſome new built Place, which has a Paſſage into Water-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Norfolk-buildings. Then lower down in Milford-lane, near the Wood-Wharf, is a ſmall Place called Piſſing-alley, a very proper Name for it; and this Alley goes down to Milford Stairs, and alſo up into Water-ſtreet, being aſcended by Steps.

Betwixt Milford-lane and Arundel-ſtreet, is Crown-court, very ſmall. Then betwixt Norfolk-ſtreet and Surrey-ſtreet in the Strand, is Angel-court, containing two or three Houſes, and hath a Free-ſtone Pavement. Then beyond Surrey-ſtreet is the Talbot-Inn, well reſorted unto, which hath a Paſſage into Surrey-ſtreet, next to Mr. Foxe's Houſe.

Strand-bridge goes down to the Thames Side, a Place of ſome Note, for its Stairs to take Water at. The Eaſt Side of this Lane joins to Surrey-ſtreet, into which there is a Paſſage up Stone Steps; and the Weſt Side hath a Brick Wall belonging to Somerſet-houſe Garden.

Beyond Strand-bridge, towards Somerſet-houſe, is a ſmall Court called Three-halbert-court, which is the Extent or Out-bounds of this Pariſh Weſtward.

Now back to Norfolk-buildings, formerly the Biſhop of Bath's Inn, which in Proceſs of Time came to the Family of the Howard's, Dukes of Norfolk; it then was a very large and old built Houſe, with a ſpacious Yard for Stabling, towards the Strand, and with a Gate to encloſe it, where there was the Porters Lodge; and as large a Garden towards the Thames. This ſaid Houſe and Grounds was ſome Years ſince converted into Streets and Buildings, and contains four large Streets graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited, and reſorted unto by Gentry; three of which, in a ſtrait Line from the Strand, run down to the River Thames, where there are good Stairs for taking Water, viz. Arundel-ſtreet, Norfolk-ſtreet, and Surrey-ſtreet; and the fourth, viz. Howard-ſtreet, runs croſs about the Midſt. The firſt of theſe Streets Eaſtward is Arundel-ſtreet, which hath the beſt Buildings towards the Thames; on the Eaſt Side is a Street called Water-ſtreet, chiefly for Coaches and Stabling; at the Bottom of which is a pretty handſome Houſe with a Garden towards the Thames; and under the Houſe there is a Paſſage into the Thames for the watering of Horſes. Out of this Street are two Paſſages into Arundel-ſtreet, one of which is broad for Coaches, and the other narrow, which is called Piſſing-alley. And out of this Place there are two Paſſages into Milford-lane, the one towards the Bottom very ſmall and bad, being deſcended by Steps, very ill built and inhabited; the other is called Grey-hound-court, already mentioned in the Deſcription of Milford-lane. At the upper End of this Street is the Crown Tavern, a large and curious Houſe, with good Rooms and other Conveniencies fit for Entertainment.

Norfolk-ſtreet, very large and ſpacious, lies in the Midſt, and is eſteemed the beſt both for Buildings and Pleaſantneſs of a Proſpect into the Thames.

Surrey-ſtreet, alſo repleniſhed with good Buildings, eſpecially that of Neviſon Fox, Eſq; towards the Strand, which is a fine, large and curious Houſe of his own Building; and the two Houſes that front the Thames; that on the Eaſt Side being the Houſe of the Honourable Charles Howard, Eſq; Brother to Henry Duke of Norfolk, both fine Houſes, with pleaſant tho' ſmall Gardens, towards the Thames.

Howard-ſtreet, alſo a large open Street, running croſs as aforeſaid, but not ſo well inhabited as the others.

The North Side of the Strand begins at Temple-bar, from thence runs to the Butcher-Row, which goes to the Paſſage into Clement's-Inn, thence to the Angel-Inn, and ſo on the Backſide of St. Clement's Church, unto where the May-Pole ſtood.

THE Pariſh-Church of St. Clement's is before-mentioned; near to which, on the North Side, is Clement's-Inn, which has a Paſſage into New-Inn, and another into Clare-market.

St. Clement's-lane comes out of Butcher-Row, and fronts Clements's-Inn. And near the Gate is the Lamb-Inn, of ſome Note and Trade. Then paſſing by Clement's-Inn, and Boſwel-court, it runs Northwards into Clare-market, and in its Paſſage takes in St. Clement's Pump, or Well, of Note for its excellent Spring-Water. A little above this Pump, is Plough-alley, which with three Turnings, goes into a Street by the Plough Stables, which fronts the Play-houſe by Lincoln's Inn Grange, in little Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. More towards Clare-market is Horſe-ſhoe-court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, having a Proſpect into Clement's-Inn Garden. And oppoſite to this Court is Yates's-court, not over good nor large; and then nearer to Clare-market, on the Right Hand, is a very ſmall Place, with a narrow Entrance, called Pigmy-court.

BETWEEN Temple-bar and the Turning into Clement's-Inn on the North Side of the Butcher-Row, (ſo called from the Butchers Shambles on the South Side) are ſeveral Courts, moſt of which are but ſmall. The firſt is Ship-yard, a Thoroughfare into Little Shear-lane, with a pretty broad Paſſage; on the Eaſt Side is an open Place going into a ſmall Court, called Chair-court, with a fair Free-ſtone Pavement. This Yard ſeems to take its Name from the Ship Tavern at the Entrance thereof. Next to Ship-yard are theſe Courts, Swan-court, very ſmall; Star-court, indifferent good and large, with an open Air. White-hart-court, long, but narrow; Lock-alley, but ſmall; Windmill-court, very ſmall and inconſiderable; Crown-court, hath an open Air about the Midſt, and leads into Little Shear-lane; Bear and Harrow-court, ſo called from ſuch a Sign, a noted Tavern, at the Entrance into it. This Court (or rather Alley for its Length and Narrowneſs) runs into Boſwel-court. Then, beyond St. Clement's-lane is the Angel-Inn, a very large Place, and of great Reſort, eſpecially for the Corniſh and Weſt-country Lawyers. And near unto this Inn is Knights-court, a Place of ſmall Account.

Hollowel-ſtreet, commonly called the Backſide of St. Clements, a Place inhabited by divers Saleſmen and Piece-Brokers. This Street runs up to the New Church in the Strand, where is the Five-Bell Tavern, which is a Thoroughfare into Wich-ſtreet; and near it is a ſmall Alley called Sallets Alley, alſo with a Paſſage into Wich-ſtreet. In this Hollowel-ſtreet is Lyon's-Inn, another of the Inns of Chancery, which is but ſmall and old. It hath a Back-door into Wich-ſtreet; and againſt the Fore-Door is a ſmall Paſſage into the Strand, called Piſſing-alley, perhaps in Contempt.

Wich-ſtreet begins at the Angel-Inn, and ſo runs into Drury-lane; it is a Street much taken up by Upholſters for the Sale of Bedding and ſecond-hand Houſhold Goods. In this Street is New-Inn, another Inn of Chancery; and here the Students of Strand-Inn ſettled, when that Houſe was pulled down in the Reign of King Edward VI. for the Building of Somerſet-houſe. This Inn is of late much increaſed by the new Buildings in the Garden Part; which is ſevered in with Palliſadoes, and neatly kept with Graſs-Plats and Walks, ſet with Rows of Trees, ſo that the Chambers (which all front the Garden) are very pleaſant and airy. Through this Inn there is a Paſſage into Haughton-ſtreet, and another into Clement's-Inn.

Near unto New-Inn is Wickham-court and Wich-alley, both very ſmall; and on the North Side, next to Lyon's-Inn, is Ogden's-court, alſo but ordinary. May-pole-alley alſo hath a narrow Paſſage into Stanhope-ſtreet, but meanly inhabited; the Eaſt and Weſt Sides are taken up by the back Buildings of Craven-houſe: And over-againſt Haughton-ſtreet is Sherborn-Court, which is but ſmall and ordinary.

Drury-lane, ſo called from Drury-houſe, once the Seat of the Earl of Craven, which with the Additions built by his Lordſhip, called Craven-houſe, made together a very large Houſe, or which may be termed ſeveral Houſes: The Entrance into this Houſe was thro' a Pair of Gates which leads into a large Yard for the Reception of Coaches, and on the back Side was a handſome Garden.

Blackmoor-ſtreet, near unto Craven-houſe, a Street of no great Account. In this Lane, on the Eaſt Side, which is in this Pariſh, are theſe Places of Name, Clare-court, a very handſome open Place with a Paſſage into Blackmoor-ſtreet; and another into White-horſe-yard; it hath very good new built Houſes, fit for good Inhabitants, and is handſomely paved with Free-ſtone. White-horſe-yard hath a Paſſage into Stanhope-ſtreet, being a Place but ill built, nor over well inhabited. King's-head-court hath a Paſſage down Steps into Stanhope-ſtreet, an indifferent good Court. Rain-deer-yard, but ordinary, and hath a Paſſage into Stanhope-ſtreet, and Drum-court, or alley, a ſmall Place.

Stanhope-ſtreet, a pretty broad, well built and inhabited Street; and beſides the Places which come out of Drury-lane, on the ſame Side is Blue-boar-court, which is but ſmall.

Peter-ſtreet, but ſhort and ordinary.

Clare-ſtreet, a good open Place fronting the Market, here is White-horſe-inn.

Holles-ſtreet, alſo fronting the Market.

Haughton-ſtreet, alſo falling into the Market, all which three laſt Streets are well built and inhabited; and from this Street to Peter-ſtreet, there runs an Alley without a Name, that croſſes Holles-ſtreet and Clare-ſtreet.

Vere-ſtreet comes out of Duke-ſtreet, and falls into Clare-ſtreet, a Street well inhabited by Tradeſmen; on the Eaſt Side is a Paſſage into Bear-yard, which is a broad Place with Shambles and Stalls built, as deſigned for a Market-Place to join to Clare-Market, but the Project did not take; ſo of no Uſe, and but ordinarily inhabited. Out of this Yard is an Alley which leadeth into Lincoln's-inn-fields againſt Portugal-row, and another Paſſage into Shefford-ſtreet, adjoining to the Market, a Place of ſome Trade.

Clare-market, very conſiderable and well ſerved with Proviſions, both Fleſh and Fiſh; for beſides the Butchers in the Shambles, it is much reſorted unto by the Country Butchers and Higglers, the Market Days are Wedneſdays and Saturdays. The The Toll belongs to the Duke of Newcaſtle, as Ground Landlord thereof.

ON the Backſide of Portugal-row, is a Street which runneth to Lincoln's-inn-gate, which uſed to paſs without a Name, but ſince the Place is increaſed by the new Buildings in Little-lincoln's-inn-fields, and the Playhouſe being built there, it is called Playhouſe-ſtreet. Fronting the Playhouſe, is a Street which goes to Plough-ſtables; which alſo had no Name; but it is now called Carey-ſtreet, in this Street is the Grange-inn, a Place of good Reſort; near which is the Pariſh Round-houſe, on the Backſide of which is a Church-yard alſo belonging to the Pariſh.

The new Buildings made by Sir Thomas Cook in Little-lincoln's-inn-fields, now make a large Street with good built Houſes, and before likewiſe had no Name; but now may be called Lincoln's-inn-ſtreet, at the Upper End of this Street is Plough-alley, and Stable-alley, already ſpoken of; then Hooker's-court, a very fine large Court, with with very good Buildings, well inhabited; it hath a Paſſage down Steps in Boſwel-court, and to both Paſſages or Entrances are Gates to ſhut up in the Night, for the Safety of the Inhabitants.

Boſwel-court, chiefly for Stablings and Coach-Houſes, except the End towards St. Clement's-inn, where there are ſome Houſes; this Court hath a Paſſage into Little-ſhear-lane; which is but narrow and not over well built.

Hemlock-court, a neat Court with a Free-ſtone Pavement, lately new built with pretty good Houſes; it hath a Paſſage into Lincoln's-inn, and fronts Ship-yard.

Shear-lane, very narrow towards Temple-bar, but upwards againſt Little-ſhear-lane it groweth wider, hath better Buildings and well inhabited: Of this Lane, only the Weſt-ſide is in this Pariſh, the other being in the Liberty of the Rolls.

Serle's-ſtreet, hath on the Eaſt, the new Row of Buildings of Lincoln's-inn, and on the Weſt that large Pile of Buildings which takes up the reſt of Little-lincoln's-inn-fields; and in the Midſt of which is Cook's-Court, which is a very handſome and cleanly Place, with good Buildings very well inhabited.

We ſhall next ſhew the Buildings lying Weſtwards and ſeparate from the Body of the Pariſh; to wit, in the Strand, beginning at Wimbleton Houſe, a very handſome large Houſe, and ſo all the Houſes, with Exeter-Exchange and Court, and the Houſes adjoining, the Eaſt Side of Burleigh-ſtreet, except ſome few Houſes, together with all the Back Buildings into the Fountain Tavern in Catharine-ſtreet, and the Courts within the ſame, as aforeſaid; likewiſe all Beauford-Buildings, and the Eaſt Side of Cecil-ſtreet, built on Part of great Salisbury Houſe and Garden.

To begin with Exeter Change, with Exchange-alley, Exeter-ſtreet, and Burleigh-ſtreet, &c. Theſe formerly belonged to Exeter-houſe and Garden, until thus built, being a large Houſe belonging to the Earls of Exeter, and was antiently ſaid to be a Convent or Monaſtery; and Covent-Garden, then unbuilt, was the Gardens and Fields belonging to it. This Exchange contains two Walks below Stairs, and as many above, with Shops on each Side, for Semſters, Milleners, Hoſiers, &c. the Builders judging it would come in Great Requeſt; but it received a Check in its Infancy, perhaps by thoſe of the New Exchange; ſo that inſtead of growing in better Eſteem, it became worſe and worſe, inſomuch that the Shops in the firſt Walk next the Street can hardly meet with Tenants, thoſe backwards lying uſeleſs, and thoſe above converted to other Uſes; and here the Managers of the Land Bank keep their Office. From hence the Company of Upholders furniſh out Funerals. Here was lately drawn the Lottery granted by Parliament to the Sufferers in the Charitable Corporation. Adjoining to this Exchange Eaſtwards in the Strand is Exeter-court, very handſome, and well inhabited, with a good Free-ſtone Pavement.

Burleigh-ſtreet comes out of the Strand and runs up to Exeter-ſtreet, a Place not over well inhabited. And behind the Exchange is Exchange-alley, which hath one Paſſage into this Street, another into Exeter-ſtreet, and a third into the Change. The Court is indifferent large, and well inhabited.

Then on the South Side of the Strand, near adjoining to the Savoy, but more weſtwardly, is Beauford-buildings, which formerly was a very large Houſe with a Garden towards the River Thames, with vaſt Ground and Yards behind it Eaſtward, called Worceſter Houſe, as belonging to the Earls of Worceſter, and deſcending to Henry Duke of Beaufort; his Grace finding it crazy, and by its Antiquity grown very ruinous; and altho' large, yet not after the modern Way of Building, thought it better to let out the Ground to Undertakers, than to build a new Houſe thereon, the Steepneſs of the Deſcent to the Thames rendering it not proper for great Courts, nor eaſy for Coaches, if the Houſes were built at ſuch a Diſtance from the Street as would have been proper: And having, at the ſame Time, bought Buckingham Houſe at Chelſea, in an Air he thought much healthier, and near enough to the Town for Buſineſs. However, his Grace cauſed a leſs Houſe to be there built for himſelf to diſpatch Buſineſs in, at the End of of a large Street leading to it, and having the Conveniency of a Proſpect over the Thames. On both Sides are now very fair and good Houſes built, well inhabited generally by Gentry, eſpecially in the Part next the Thames, which is much broader than at its Entrance out of the Strand. The Front Houſes in the Strand, which are lofty and well built, are inhabited by Tradesmen, with one very large Tavern, the Sign of the Fountain, very conveniently built for that Purpoſe, with excellent Vaults, good Rooms of Entertainment, and a curious Kitchen for dreſſing of Meat, which, with the good Wine there ſold, makes it well reſorted to: Cloſe by this Tavern is an Alley that leads to Fountain-court, a very handſome Place, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, and good Buildings, which are well inhabited. Out of this Court is a Paſſage into the Street, where the Duke's Houſe ſtood, which gave the Name to Beauford-buildings. This Houſe of the Dukes, with ſome others, was formerly burnt down by the Careleſsneſs of a Servant in one of the adjacent Houſes. This is now built into a very handſome Court: On the Weſt Side of this Houſe is a Paſſage out of the Strand for Carts and Cars that belong to the Wharfs adjoining to the Thames.

Concerning building the old Houſe there goes this Story; that there being a very large Walnut Tree growing in the Garden, which much obſtructed the Eaſtern Proſpect of Salisbury Houſe, near adjoining, it was propoſed to the Earl of Worceſter's Gardener, by the Earl of Salisbury, or his Agent, that if he could prevail with his Lord to cut down the ſaid Tree, he ſhould have 100 l. Which Offer was told the Earl of Worceſter, who ordered him to do it, and take the 100 l. both which was performed to the great Satisfaction of the Earl of Salisbury, as he thought; but there being no great Kindneſs betwixt the two Earls, the Earl of Worceſter ſoon cauſed to be built in the Place of the Walnut Tree, a large Brick Houſe, which then took away the whole Eaſt Proſpect.

Near to this Houſe was Salisbury Houſe, already ſpoken of, built by Sir Robert Cecil, Knt. Principal Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, made Lord Treaſurer and Earl of Salisbury, by King James I.) being both large and ſtately, and called Salisbury Houſe; and to make it commodious for Paſſengers, he cauſed the High Street of the Strand, near adjoining, to be levelled and paved.

This Houſe afterwards became two, the one being called Great Salisbury Houſe, as being the Reſidence of the Earl, and the other Little Salisbury Houſe; which was uſed to be let out to Perſons of Quality, being alſo a large Houſe; and this was many Years ago contracted for, of the then Earl of Salisbury, for a certain Term of Years to build on, and accordingly it was pulled down and made a Street, called Salisbury-ſtreet, which being too narrow, and withal the Deſcent to the Thames too uneaſy, it was not ſo well inhabited as was expected. Another Part, viz. that next to Great Salisbury Houſe, and over the long Gallery, was converted verted into an Exchange, and called the Middle Exchange, which conſiſted of a very long and large Room, (with Shops on both Sides,) which from the Strand run as far as the Water Side, where was a handſome Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water Side to take Boat at; but it had the ill Luck to have the Nick-name given it of the Whores-neſt: Whereby, with the ill Fate that attended it, few or no People took Shops there, and thoſe that did, were ſoon weary and left them. Inſomuch that it lay uſeleſs, except three or four Shops towards the Strand; and coming into the Earl's Hands, this Exchange, with Great Salisbury Houſe, and the Houſes fronting the Street were pulled down, and now converted into a fair Street called Cecil-ſtreet, running down to the Thames, having very good Houſes fit for Perſons of Repute; and is accordingly very well inhabited. The Eaſt Side of this Street only is in this Pariſh, the Weſt Side being in that of St. Martin's in the Fields.

THUS much for the Bounds and Antiquities of this LIBERTY, which is governed by the Chancellor of the Dutchy, who is at preſent the moſt Noble John Duke of Rutland.

To the Court of the Dutchy of Lancaſter alſo belongs an Attorney-General.

Receiver-General, Richard Lechmere, Eſq;

Record Keeper, Mr. Wainwright.

Attornies, Mr. Thomas Aſheton, Mr. John Page.

Uſher, John Grubb, Eſq;

Deputy-Clerk and Regiſter, Mr. John Wolfe.

A Deputy-Uſher and Meſſenger.

THEN are there four Burgeſſes, and four Aſſiſtants, to take up Controverſies; a Bailiff, who has two or three Under-Bailiffs, that make Arreſts within that Liberty; four Conſtables, four Wardens that keep the Lands and Stock for the Poor; four Wardens for Highways; a Jury or Inqueſt of 14 or 16, to preſent Defaults; four Aleconners, which look into the Aſſize of Weights and Meaſures, &c. four Scavengers and a Beadle; and their common Priſon is Newgate.

THERE is in this Liberty 50 Men, who are always to be at an Hour's Warning, with all neceſſary Furniture, to ſerve the King as Occaſion ſhall require. Their Charge at a Fifteen is 13 s. 4 d. Thus much for the Suburb in the Liberty of the Dutchy of Lancaſter.

CHAP. V.

St. PAUL's SHADWELL, and other Pariſhes within the Bills of MORTALITY.

THE Pariſh Church of St. Paul Shadwell is ſituated on the South Side of Upper Shadwell, near the Market, without the Walls, Liberty and Freedom of LONDON, being Eaſtward of the Tower about 1560 Yards.

IT is denominated from St. Paul the great Apoſtle of the Gentiles, as is farther explained in the Account of St. Paul's Cathedral.

IT was firſt built Anno 1656, and made Parochial, and diſtinct from the Pariſh of Stepney, in the Year 1666, the diſmal Fire that Year not ſpreading ſo far Eaſtward as this Church, by about a Mile. The Veſtry was built about 1675, the South Gallery at the Charge of the Inhabitants in 1683, and the North at the Charge of Mr. Thomas Bryant, Anno 1691; in which Year the Porch on the South Side was alſo built, and the Church repaired at the Pariſh Charge: The Tower has theſe Dates on it, 1671, and 1683.

THE Walls and Tower are built of Brick. The Roof within appears camerated, and is ſupported with Columns which are of no ſingle Order; the Galleries are ſupported with Columns of the Tuſcan Order; there are three Iſles, and Areas paved with Stone.

THE Finiſhing and Ornament is as follows: The Roof is adorned with Arches of Timber; there are Galleries on the North, South and Weſt Sides of Deal, painted White, and veined. It is pewed with Oak, and about half the Church towards the Eaſt is wainſcotted, and the Pillars caſed about ſix Feet and a half high. The Altar-Piece is adorned with the Decalogue between the Portraitures of Moſes and Aaron, and theſe between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done as the Commandments, Black on Gold, each in a handſome moulded Frame. Over the Commandments is a Glory, and a little higher, the King's Arms under a Compaſs Pediment, all embelliſh'd with painted Cherubims, Roſes, &c. encloſed with Rail and Baliſter; the South Portico is adorned with Pilaſters and Entablature of the Tuſcan Order, enrich'd with Cherubims, Feſtoons, &c.

DIMENSIONS within are, Length, 87 Feet, Breadth, 63, and Altitude about 28 Feet; and that of the Tower (wherein are ſix Bells to Ring in Peal, that chime at Twelve and Four) is about 60 Feet.

To the pious Memory of Mr. James Cook.

View, Traveller, as you paſs by,
Cook's Relicks of Mortality;
Whoſe Angel's Face, Seraphick Skin,
Proclaim'd ſome noble Soul within;
Whoſe blooming Hope, whoſe airy Breath,
Whoſe Bud was nipp'd by cruel Death.
Whoſe ſacred Gueſt was forc'd to fly
By Death's tyrannick Cruelty,
And take a Manſion in the lofty Sky.
View all his Virtues (if you could Have Time to ſtay) Modeſt and Good,
Pious to God, to all was kind,
In ſhort, a univerſal Friend.
Go, Traveller, and now begin
A virtuous Life, make God thy Friend,
Give him thy Heart in youthful Days,
As pious Cook, whoſe very Praiſe
Will warbled be, Ages ſhall hear
Cook's great and mighty Character.

Iſabella Berry, Wife of Thomas Berry, deceaſed, 29 March, 1696, aged 54.

Reſt thou, whoſe Reſt gives me a reſtleſs Life,
Since I have loſt a kind and virtuous Wife;
Whoſe Charity procured her ſuch a Name
As is recorded in the Book of Fame.
Her well plac'd Charity the Needy knew;
None that were truly poor eſcap'd her View.
But Vagabonds and common Beggars ſhe
Never admitted to her Charity.
The real Objects were her chiefeſt Care
To ſuch ſhe never would her Bounty ſpare;
Therefore the Poor do much her Loſs deplore,
For few did give ſuch Alms, but none gave more.

Arms; Ermin, on a Bend ingrailed, three Flowers de Lis, impaled, with a Lion rampant within a Bordure, ingrailed, charged with ſix Mullets.

On the North Side of the Church, the Children of Mr. Robert and Anne Spelman; and on a Stone ſtanding upright this Inſcription:

Here lieth interred the Body of Martha Willis, Wife of Thomas Willis, obiit Decemb. 1699, aged 21 Years.

Of Death and Judgment, Heaven and Hell,
Who oft does think, muſt needs die well.

On a Tomb near the North Eaſt Angle of the Church, this Inſcription:

Here lieth interred three Sons and two Daughters of Richard and Anne Merry; and alſo three Sons and two Daughters of Andrew Herring, Grandchild to the ſaid Richard and Anne Merry.

Let Friends forbear to mourn and weep,
While ſweetly in the Duſt they ſleep.
This toilſome World they left behind,
A Crown of Glory for to find.
Their Days were ſhort, like Winter's Sun,
From Earth they came, to Heaven they run:
God bleſs the reſt with Length of Days,
On Earth to live, his Name to praiſe.

On a Grave-ſtone a little Weſtward from the laſt, this Inſcription:

Here lies the Body of Anne, Wife of Ambroſe Goodwin, ob. Febru. 20, 1673; alſo ſix Sons of Henry Goodwin and Jane his Wife.

No Age ſo young that Death will ſpare,
All Ages they muſt die;
Therefore to die, let us prepare
To live eternally.

NUMBER of Houses 1800.

The PARISH of St. JOHN's at Hackney.

ON the Side of the River Ley is situated the pleasant and healthful Town of Hackney, where divers Noblemen in former Times had their Country Seats, as an Earl of Northumberland, a Countess of Warwick, Lord Brook, &c. This Church of Hackney hath been of late stiled by the Name of St. John's at Hackney, as tho' it belonged to the Knights Templars of St. John at Jerusalem, as certainly they had a Mill and some Tenures in the Parish. But in an antient Record of the Tower, it is found to have been written Ecclesia Parochialis S. Augustini de Hackney. And in the Cotton Library there is a Volume about the Knights Templars, wherein Mention is made of St. Augustin's Hackney, and of the Lands and Rents they had there, namely, about twelve Acres, and 7 l. Quit Rents, and a Mill commonly called Temple Mill.

THERE is in the Tower Records a Patent, being a Licence to erect a Guild in the Church of Hackney, to the Holy Trinity, and the Glorious Virgin Mary, granted to Henry Sharp, Persone Ecclesie Parochialis S. Augustini de Hackney.

THE Bishop of LONDON had Demesnes in Hackney, in the Time of Edward I. In the 19th of whose Reign, which was Anno 1290, free Warren was granted to Richard de Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, in terris suis dominicis de Stepenhethe, [alias Stebunhithe] & Hackeneye.

THERE was one John Duckett held Lands in Hackney, of the Bishop of LONDON, who had granted them to St. Mary's Spittle without Bishopsgate, as was found by an Inquisition in 12 E. 1. concerning a Licence, Hoſpitali Ste. Marie extra Biſhopſgate, for Lands in Hackney granted to John Duckett. The Inqueſt found that he held thoſe Lands of the Biſhop of LONDON, and the Biſhop of the King.

Hackney Church had, five hundred Years ago, a diſtinct Rectory and Vicarage, as appears by a Record in the Tower, 20 E. 1. of the Value of that Eccleſiaſtical Preferment: Eccleſia de Hackeney val. 50 Marc. Vicaragia 12 Marcas. Which was occaſioned by an Order from Pope Nicholas, that all the Benefices in England ſhould be taxed, to know their Values.

ADD alſo a Patent 26 Ed. 3, about 1352, to the Biſhop of LONDON, that inſtead of the Church of Stortford in Hertfordſhire, (which belonged to the Precentor of St. Paul's) for the Church of Hackney, to be appropriated to the ſame Precentor of St. Paul's, for the Maintenance of his Quality. The Patent run to this Tenor:

" UPON the Supplication of Radulph, Biſhop " of LONDON, for the better Suſtentation " of the Eſtate of the Precentor of St. Paul's, " to which the Church of Stroteford of the Tax- " ations of twenty Marks, was only annexed; " which by Reaſon of the Smallneſs of it, was " not ſufficient to ſuſtain a Man of ſo great Eſ- " tate: We do will and grant to the ſaid Bi- " ſhop that he, for the Augmentation of the " ſaid Precentorſhip, and that he that is now " Precentor, and his Succeſſors, may more de- " cently live, and in a more competent Manner " ſuſtain themſelves, may annex, appropriate, " and unite the Church of Hackney, which is of " the ſame Biſhop's Advowſon, taxed at fifty " Marks to the ſaid Precentorſhip, in the Room " of the ſaid Church of Stortford. So that the " Precentor of the ſame Dignity, and his An- " ceſtors, may have the ſaid Church of Hackney " annexed and appropriated, in the Room of the " ſaid Church of Stortford, to him and his Suc- " ceſſors.

THE King once preſented a Clerk to the Living of Hackney, in the Vacation of the Biſhoprick. So it is found in the Patent Rolls of the 10th of E. 2. (i. e. about the Year 1316) Robertus de Wodehouſe Clericus habet literas Regis de Preſentatione ad Eccleſiam de Hakeney, Lond. Dioc. vacantem ad Regis donationem Spectant. rone. Epatus. London. vacantis & in manu Regis exiſtent. Et diriguntur litere Regis Electo Lond. Confirmato. In cujus, &c. Teſte Rege apud Clarryndon x die April.

WE will here alſo ſubjoin King Edward IV's Letters Patents, for allowing the Chantry abovemention'd in the Church; that as well ſomething may be ſeen of the Devotion of the Inhabitants of Hackney in thoſe Times; as alſo what Tutelary Saint this Church then owned.

Omnibus ad quos, &c. That is in Engliſh, " To all whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, greet- " ing. Know ye, that of our ſpecial Grace, we " have granted and given Licence for us and our " Heirs, as much as lies in us, To our beloved " Maſter Henry Sharp, Parſon of the Parochial " Church Sti. Auguſtini de Hakeney, to our be- " loved Symon Elryngton, Gentilman, and John " Elryngton of Hackney, Gentilman, Pariſhioners " of the Parochial Church aforeſaid; that he, or " any of them, or their Executors, longeſt li- " ving, to the Praiſe, Grace, and Honour of " the Holy Trinity, and the Glorious Virgin " Mary, may, either he or they, in the ſame " Church, begin, found, erect, unite, create, " and eſtabliſh one perpetual Fraternity or Guild, " conſiſting of two Guardians, and Brethren, and " Siſters of the ſame Pariſh, and of others, who, " of their Devotion, will be of the ſame Frater- " nity or Guild. And that the Guardians, and " Brethren, and Siſters, may augment the ſame " Fraternity or Guild, as often and when it " ſhall ſeem hereafter to them neceſſary: And " on the Feaſt of Trinity they might chooſe to " themſelves two Guardians.

Hackney has ſeveral Wells of wholeſome and excellent Water; as Pig-well; another Well in Church-field; another, which gives the Name to Well-ſtreet; another on the Downs; and alſo Shacklewell ſeems to take its Denomination from ſome Well thereabouts. There is alſo another Chalybeat Well, paſſing a little Way out of Church-ſtreet towards Dorleſton, but now diſuſed. For the greater Convenience of this Pariſh, Pipes have been lately laid from the River up to Clopton, and ſo to other Parts and Places of the ſaid Town, at the Charge of Mr. Tyſſen, late Lord of the Manor.

IN Shacklewell is an antient Manor-Houſe, formerly belonging to the Family of the Rowes, eminent Citizens, ever ſince Queen Elizabeth's Time: Late poſſeſſed by Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; Father and Son, both deceaſed. In the Hall and Parlour Windows are ſeveral painted Coats of Arms, that ſeem to have ſtood there from antient Times; as, beſides the Rowes, the Mortymers, &c.

THE Manor of Wyke in Hackney and Stepney, was granted antiently, 1 Hen. 4. to Matild Wife of Alane Buxhul, and John Aubrey; and after married to John Montague, Earl of Sarum. She was Daughter and Heir of Adam Francis, a mighty wealthy Citizen, and Alderman of LONDON.

THERE is a Manor in this Pariſh, called, The King's Hold; where, near Well-ſtreet, is an antient Houſe, called Shore-place; becauſe, they ſay, Jane Shore had an Habitation here. And, in this Houſe, to preſerve this Tradition, now, or late, was her Picture. We have been told, it was formerly the Manor-Houſe, and the Lord's Court kept here. It now belongs to St. Thomas's Hoſpital in Southwark. But more probably its right Name is Shoreditch-place; and ſo Stow calls it, though he cannot tell why it is ſo named. 'Tis likely enough it was the Manſion of Sir John Shoreditch, a Gentleman that lived 3 or 400 Years ago, read of in our Chronicles, and whoſe Corpſe lay in Hackney Church, and had antiently a Monumental Stone and Inſcription, tho' now gone.

THERE was a fair Houſe near the Church, called, The Black and White Houſe, formerly belonging to Sir Thomas Viner, ſome Time Alderman and Mayor of LONDON, now a School for young Gentlewomen. In a large Dining-Room above Stairs, is a very fair Bow Window, with ſeveral Coats of Arms curiouſly painted; whereof one is the Arms of K. James I. underneath is his Motto, Beati Pacifici. Next, the ſame Arms with a Label, for Charles Prince of Wales; underneath are theſe two Letters, C. P. then are the Arms of the Prince Palatine of the Rhine, (whoſe Titles were Elector, Cup-bearer, and High Steward of the Empire) impaled with the Arms of Elizabeth, eldeſt Daughter of the ſaid King James, with the Creſt and Supporters of the ſaid Elector, who married the ſaid Princeſs Elizabeth, Feb. 14, 1612, the Anceſtors of our preſent King George II. All which Arms make it probable, that that Prince ſome Time dwelt here, or, at leaſt, that it was his Houſe of Country Retirement.

ONE Stephen Cobbe, Eſq; formerly lived in this Pariſh: And by his Will, bearing Date Dec. 4. 1565, willed to be buried in the Chapel of the ſaid Pariſh-Church: " Where my Wife lyeth " buried; and my Arms there to be ſet up for " a Memorial. At which Burial I will, ordain, " and

" and appoint, that there be 24 poor Men, and " that every one of them, during the Funeral " Service, bear and hold a black Staff in his " Hand, ſtanding about the Corpſe; to every " of which poor Men I give, will, and bequeath, " a Gown of Black Frieze at 18 d. the Yard, " and 12 d. in Money. Item, I give and be- " queath to all ſuch poor People, Man, Woman, " or Child, as ſhall inhabit in the ſaid Pariſh of " Hackney, and to every of them, 4 d. Item, I " give and bequeath to the worſhipful and ableſt " to live in the ſaid Pariſh, for Token of good " Will, for a Dinner among them, to be had on " the Day of my Burial, 10 l. And to the " Preacher that ſhall fortune to preach at the " ſaid Time of my Burial, 6 s. 8 d. Item, I give " and bequeath 10 l. of lawful Money of Eng- " land, to be paid by my Executors at their " Diſcretion, toward and for the Maintenance " of two Singing-Men, or Conducts, for the due " Miniſtration of God's Service, celebrated and " done within the Pariſh-Church of Hackney " aforeſaid" And he appointed his well-be-loved Son Rob. Cobb, and his faithful Friend Henry Smith, Citizen and Girdler of LONDON, to be his Executors, &c.

Joh. Roberd of Hackney, Yeoman, by his Will, dated Oct. 28, 1484, gives to the Vicar of Hackney, and his Succeſſors for ever, an half Acre of Land, in a Field called Dammold's Field: To the Intent, that they every Sunday pray for the Souls of him the ſaid John; Alice and Iſabel his Wives; Nicholas Roberd, his Father, and Agnes and Cecille his Wives; Joh. Roberd, and Elyn his Wife; in the Pulpit in the Church.

Alexander Broke of Hackney, buried in the Church-yard there, by Will, Aug. 16, 1484, gave to Agnes his Wife 20 l. and his whole Houſe; and one Cottage, called Buſterd's Houſe, with a Garden, in Fee Simple. And alſo bequeaths to his Son William Broke, Baſtard, xx Marks, and two Cottages in Well-ſtreet, in Fee Simple.

THIS Church takes its Name from the Saint to whom it was dedicated, and the Word Hackney, partly by Reaſon of its ſtanding in that Town, and partly to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches, which are dedicated to St. John.

IT is ſituated in Church-ſtreet, on the Eaſt Side.

THIS Living is a Vicarage in the Gift of the Lady Tyſon, Value 3 or 400 l. per Annum.

THE Vicar is the Reverend Mr. Peter Newcome, and the Lecturers are the Rev. Mr. Dubourdieu, Mr. Simſon, Mr. Coppin, and Mr. Sherlock.

PRAYERS are every Wedneſday, Friday, and Holidays, about 11 o'Clock. An Organ and Six Bells.

THE Gift Sermons are; one on the Fifth of November, the Gift of Mrs. Ann Wood, for which the Miniſter has 20 s. One on the 17th of November, the Gift of George Clarke, Eſq; to the Miniſter 20 s. to the Clerk 5 s. to the Sexton 5 s. One on New-Year's-Day, the Gift of a Perſon unknown. One on Good Friday; and one on Aſcenſion-Day, both the Gift of the Rev. Mr. Jamſon, who was Vicar of this Pariſh; for which the Miniſter has 20 s. each Sermon.

THE Veſtry is Select.

The PARISH OFFICERS are,	The PEACE-OFFICERS are,
2 Church-wardens.	2 Conſtables.
2 Sideſmen.	8 Headboroughs.
2 Overſeers and Collectors.	2 Surveyors of the Highways.
	2 Aleconners.

THE remarkable Places and Things are, three Diſſenting Meeting-Houſes, one of which is lately ſet up in Brook-houſe. And in this Pariſh are ſix Boarding-Schools, three for Gentlemens Sons, and three for young Ladies. And here is a Chapel in Homerton, built by Stephen Ram, Eſq;

ONE Free-School in the Church-yard, wherein twelve Boys of this Pariſh are taught to Read, Write, and caſt Accompts. This School was built by Chriſtopher Uſwick, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. who was then Rector of this Pariſh, and about one hundred Years after endowed by Mrs. Margaret Audely, with 20 l. a Year to the Maſter, paid by the Skinners Company.

ONE Charity-School, wherein 50 Boys are taught to Write, Read, and caſt Accompts, and 5 l. given to put each of them out to Trades: Alſo twenty Girls, who are taught to Write, Read, and Work with their Needle, with each of whom is given 5 l. all done by Subſcription of the Gentlemen of the Pariſh.

IN Church-ſtreet are ſix Alms-houſes for ſix poor Widows, who are allowed 4 l. a Year, the Gift of Dr. Spurſtow, who was Vicar of this Pariſh.

IN Clopton are Ten Alms-houſes, for ten poor Widows, the Gift of Biſhop Wood, they have 5 l. a Year allowed them, and cloathed once in two Years.

IN Well-ſtreet are Alms-houſes for ſix poor Men and their Wives, and are allowed 50 s. a Year to every Houſe.

THE Bounds of this Pariſh are as follow: Cambridge-heath, near the Watch-houſe, is the South Bound. The Weſt is the Spittal-houſe, in Kingsland Road, and takes in the Eaſt Side of the Road through Newington. The North Bounds are the Lower Part of Stamford-hill next Tottenham. The Eaſt is Temple Mills, which were formerly Powder-mills, and were blown up, but now are Lead-mills.

Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c.

PART of Cambridge-heath, Hackney-road; Part of Kingſland, Hackney, and therein Mare-ſtreet; and therein is Shoulder of Mutton-lane, Flying-horſe-yard, Water-gruel-row, Tower-ſtreet, or London-fields, Church-ſtreet, and therein is Baxter's-ſtreet, Jeruſalem-ſquare, Mourning-lane, Clopton, in which Street is Brook-houſe, and Homerton; in this Street is Homerton-Row, Shepherd's-lane, Tattlebury-court, Adam and Eve-yard; Part of Hackney-marſh, Hackney-marſh-bridge, Jeremy's-ferry, Morris's-ferry, Temple-mills; Well-ſtreet, Grove-ſtreet, Dorlſton, Love-lane, Shacklewell, Shacklewell-lane; Part of Newington; and Part of Stanford-hill.

NUMBER of Houſes are upwards of 600.

IN this Church of Hackney are theſe enſuing Monuments of later Times.

Firſt, in a Chapel South of the Communion-Table, the Monument of Sir Henry Row and his Lady, repreſented in Effigy kneeling: Before him a Head-piece and Gauntlet, before her a Bible.

Here, under Fine of Adam's firſt Deſection,
Reſts in the Hope of happy Reſurrection,
Sir Henry Row, Son of Sir Thomas Row,
And of Dame Mary, his dear Yokefellow:
Knight and right worthy (as his Father late)
Lord Mayor of London, with his virtuous Mate,
Dame Suſan, his twice fifteen Years and ſeven:
Their Iſſue five, ſurviving of eleven.
Four named here, in theſe four Names forepaſt;
The fifth is found, if Eccho ſound the laſt.
Sad Orphans all, but moſt their Heir (moſt Debtor)
Who built them this, but in his Heart a better.
Pie obiit Anno Salutis 1612, die Novembr. 12.
Ætatis 68.

His Coat, Gules, a Quaterfoil, Or, impaled with hers, a Feſſe Sable. Underneath, kneeling, ſix Figures, viz. three Sons and three Daughters.

This Monument is oppoſite unto the other, ſupported by two Boys in white Marble, one with a Spade, ſetting one Foot on it, and the other holding a Torch downwards, reſting on a Death's Head, and has this Inſcription on the Wall North.

Memoriæ Sacrum.

What needs an Epitaph, to ſound our Praiſe,
Our Wealth, our Greatneſs, Birth, or Length of Days;
When briefly on this Marble we may read
The Glory of the Living and the Dead?
A modeſt, chaſte, religious, loving Wife,
Lyes here at reſt, patient in Death and Life:
Even all the Graces which 'mongſt many were Divided, ſweetly flow'd and met in her.
And tho' Death did his worſt, thinking in Rage
To leave no Pattern for ſucceeding Age;
Yet lives her Vertue, and this Memory
Tells what ſhe was, and what her Sex ſhould be.

Erected by John Bennet, in Memory of Elizabeth his beloved Wife, who departed this Life the 18th of Novemb. 1625. The Coat of Arms, Gules, three Demi-Lions, Argent.

In the ſame Chapel, againſt the Eaſt Wall, is another very handſome large Table Monument of black poliſhed Marble; and on it theſe Words:

In Memoriam Henrici Rowe de Shacklewell in Com. Middleſex. Armig. Qui duxit in uxorem Warwick Staverton, unam è filiis Deodati Staverton de Everſly in Comitat. Southampton, Armig. Obiit 15 die Auguſti, An. Dom. 1670, & Ætat. ſuæ 36. Poſuit hoc illi mœſtiſſima Conjux.

In the Chancel, over the Veſtry Door, a Monument againſt the Wall, with the Effigies of a Man and Woman, and this Inſcription:

Here-under lyeth the Body of Henry Thoresby of Thoresby in the County of York, Eſquire, late Counſellor in the Law, Bencher and Reader of Lincoln's-inn, Juſtice of Peace, and of the Quorum; one of the Maſters of the moſt Honourable Court of Chancery, and one of the ſixteen Governors of King James's Hoſpital, elected at the firſt Foundation thereof by John Sutton, Eſquire, the only Founder. Which Henry Thoresby paſſed his Pilgrimage in this Life in all Godlineſs and Chriſtian Piety, and ſo conſtantly did continue unto his laſt Breath, which he yielded up to the Almighty in this Town of Hackney, on the eleventh Day of May, 1615.

Under the Woman thus:

Here-under lieth the Body of Jane, late Wife of the ſaid Henry Thoresby, Eſquire, Daughter to John Palmer of Clerkenwell, in the County of Middleſex, Eſquire, and Paulina his Wife, Daughter of Anthony Sandes of Throwly in the County of Kent, Eſquire; which Jane lived with the ſaid Henry in Wedlock 30 Years and more, and had Iſſue by him two Daughters, viz. Jane, who died in her Infancy about ſix Years of Age, and Eleanor Lady Hardres, the now Wife of Sir Thoms Hardres of Great Hardres in the County of Kent, Knight, by whom ſhe had Iſſue four Sons and one Daughter; which ſaid Jane over-lived her ſaid Husband Henry Thoresby, and died in all Chriſtian Piety on the 18th Day of Auguſt, 1616.

An Epitaph upon the Death of the virtuous and worthy Gentleman, Edward Saunders, Eſq; obiit ultimo die Novembris, Anno 1599.

His Name, his Place, the Gentry of his Birth,
And Credit held unto his dying Days,
Were Things that gave him Favour here on Earth,
But gave him not the greateſt of his Praiſe.

His greateſt Glory was his godly Life,
The Bounty of his Houſe, and open Door;
His Country's Love, his Kindneſs to his Wife,
Faith to his Friend, and Pity to the Poor.

His Virtue, Valour, and all good Deſires,
His Zeal and Life agreeing to the ſame;
And laſt the Death that ſuch a Life requires,
Theſe be the true Records of laſting Fame.

Theſe write him Bleſſed in the Heavens above,
And leave him in the World Good-will and Love.

On the North Side of the Chancel, firſt an antient Table Monument, with a fair grey Marble Stone without Inſcription; there were Coats of Arms on the Sides, but torn off. This Monument is concealed by the School-maſter's Pew.

Next a Memory of the Right Honourable the Lady Lucy Latymer.

Such as ſhe is, ſuch ſurely ſhall ye be,
Such as ſhe was, ſuch if ye be, be glad;
Fair in her Youth, tho' fat in her Age ſhe grew,
Virtuous in both, whoſe Glaſs did never fade:
Tho' long alone ſhe led a Widow's Life,
Yet never Lady liv'd a truer Wife.
From Wales ſhe ſprang, a Branch of Worceſter's Race,
Graft in a Stock of Browns her Mother's Side,
In Court ſhe held a Maid of Honour's Place,
Whilſt Youth in her, and ſhe in Court did bide.
To John Lord Latymer then ſhe became a Wife;
Four Daughters had they breathing yet in Life,
Earl of Northumberland took the firſt to Wife,
The next the Heir of Baron Burleigh choſe;
Cornwallis Hap the third for Term of Life,
And Sir John Danvers pluck'd the youngeſt Roſe.
Their Father's Heirs, them Mothers all ſhe ſaw;
Pray for, or praiſe her, make your Liſt the Law.

Made by Sir William Cornwallis, Knt. this Lady's Son-in-Law.

This is a very advanced Monument, whereon lies a Lady with a Coronet, in a Scarlet Robe, praying, her Hands broke off; and againſt the Eaſt Wall are theſe Words inſcribed:

The Right Hon. Baron John Nevyl, Kt. Lord Latymer, departed this Life at his Manor of Snape, in the County of York, the 22d of April, 1577, in the Year of his Age 61, and lyeth buried with his Anceſtors at his Church in his Town of Well.

Under her Head, near the Bottom, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Right Honourable Lady Lucy, Daughter to the Right Noble Henry Earl of Worceſter, Wife to the late Right Honourable John Nevyl, Kt. Lord Latymer; by whom ſhe had Iſſue four Daughters, Katharine, Dorothy, Lucy, Elizabeth; ſhe departed this Life the 23d of February, 1582, in the Year of her Age 59.

As ſhe had four Daughters, ſo they are placed kneeling under her, two on one Side of the Monument, and two on the other; their Names, and with whom they matched, mentioned, and ſet

ſet over their Heads, and their Children Names under them. The two former on the South Side, are obſcured by a Pew, that they cannot be read. Thoſe on the North Side are as follows:

Dorothy, her ſecond Daughter, married with Sir Tho. Cecyll, Kt. and had Iſſue as hereunder appeareth, viz. William Cecyl, Richard, Edward, Chriſtopher and Thomas; Katharine Cecyl, Lucy, Mildred, Mary, Suſan, Elizabeth, Dorothy and Frances.

Next on the ſaid North Side, kneels the youngeſt Daughter, and over her thus written:

Elizabeth her youngeſt Daughter, married with Sir John Danvers, Knt. and had Iſſue as hereunder appeareth, Charles and Henry Danvers, Anne, Lucy, Eleanor and Mary; with another Name obſcure.

Near this, againſt the North Wall, Altarwiſe, is an old Monument without any Inſcription at all; only on the Sides appear the Arms of the Hernes, antiently Lords of Shacklewell.

But to return back to the upper-moſt Part of the Chancel:

On the North Side, againſt the Veſtry Wall, is another antient Monument, whereon is engraven, Anno Dni. 1519.

Chriſtophero. Urſwyk. Rectore.
M. J. A.

The Coat of Arms is, The Field —— a Bend, Sable, charged with three Lozenges, on each of which are as many Croſſes, Gules.

At the Foot of this Monument is the Effigies of the Man at Length, in Braſs, with his Habiliments, and this Subſcription under him:

Chriſtoferus Urſwicus Regis Henrici VII. Elemoſynarius: Vir ſua ætate clarus; Summatibus atque Infirmatibus juxta charus: At exteros Reges undecies pro Patria Legatus: Decanatum Ebor. Archidiaconatum Richmondiæ, Decanatum Windoſore habitos vivens reliquit. Epiſcopatum Norvicenſem oblatum recuſavit. Magnos Honores tota vita ſprevit, frugali vita contentus hic vivere, hic mori maluit; plenus annis obiit, ab omnibus deſideratus. Funeris Pompam etiam Teſtamento vetuit. Hic ſepultus carnis Reſurrectionem in adventum Chriſti expectat.
Obiit anno Chriſti incarnati MDXXI. die xxiiii Martii, Anno ætatis ſuæ LXXIIII.

Above this old Monument is the Effigies of another Churchman, a Biſhop in his Ruff and Lawn Sleeves, and a Book in his Hand, in a preaching Poſture.

P. M. S.

Hic jacet, Juſtorum Reſurrectionem expectans, Reverendus in Chriſto Pater David Doulben, S.S. Theolog. Dr. Epiſcopus Bangorenſis Gegrotti in Agro Denbienſi natu. Penatibus non obſcuris. Qui cum in Paſtorali hujus Eccleſiæ Curâ tria annorum Luſtra tranſegiſſet, Epiſcopus Bangorenſis factus eſt. Unde in Beatorum numerum adſcitus eſt xxvii die Novembr. An. Dom. 1633. Ætatis ſuæ LII.

Above his Head are theſe Latin Verſes:

Conditus exiguâ jacet hic Doulbenus in urna,
Qui nuper Præſul Bangorienſis erat.
Hic tria Luſtra prius Chriſti invigilabat Ovili,
Et Domino errantes voce reduxit Oves.
Ergo quies ubi ſudor erat, meſſemq; ubi ſevit,
Expectat, munuſq; hic, ubi pavit Oves.

Not far hence, ſomewhat on the North Side of the Communion Table, was buried alſo another Vicar of this Pariſh, under a flat Stone, having a Braſs Plate faſtened on it, with the Reſemblance of a Man in a Gown, and this Inſcription:

Robertus Stokes, vir Doctrina & morum Probitate inſignis, Cantabrigiæ olim Sacræ Theologiæ Baccalaureus fuit; necnon hujus Villæ Hackneæ per duos & viginti annos Vicarius. Qui Anno Dom. 1570, Octavo Calendas Aprilis Naturæ conceſſit: à Summis juxta atque ab infimis magnopere deſyderatus.

There is yet in this Chancel the Monument of another Vicar of this Pariſh; where, upon a Pillar on the North Side is a Braſs Plate, with the Effigies of a Miniſter in a Pulpit, with this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Hugh Johnſon, who was Vicar of this Church 40 Years, and departed this Life the 16th of Jan. 1618, aged 72; and was a good Benefactor to the Poor of this Pariſh, and to the Poor of the Town of Macclesfield in Cheſhire, where he was born.

Mr. Strype retrieved one Vicar more, incumbent here in former Times, but whether buried in this Chancel, he could not tell, namely, Thomas Hert, who had his Monument in this Church, and his Effigies thereon, and theſe Monkiſh Verſes:

Subjacet hic ſtrictus hoc marmore nunc homo pictus
Thomas Hert dictus hic Vicarius benedictus.
O Cambrig. per te fuit ille Magiſter in Arte.
C. quater & Mille, Sex X. quarto ruit ille,
Et Julii plena Septena luce ſerena.

So that you may compute his Death to fall on the 7th of July, Ann. Dom. 1464.

Advanced on the South Wall againſt the Communion Table, is the Monument of the Woods; the Man and Woman ſtanding before one Desk, facing one another, with their Hands in a praying Poſture; Sons and Daughters behind them, with a Mitre at the Side of the third Son, who was a Biſhop, viz. of Litchfield. The Inſcription is as follows:

In the Vault near to this Place lye the Bodies of Thomas Wood, Eſquire and Suſan his Wife:
He was buried the 18, May, 1649, } aged {84
She was buried the 17, Octob. 1650, } {80
They had Iſſue four Sons and four Daughters; Sir Henry, Kt. and Bart. John Citizen of LONDON, Thomas, D. D. and Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles I. and King Charles II. and William, one of the Clerks of his Majeſty's Spicery.
Joan Dorothy, Mary and Elizabeth.

All go unto one Place: All are of the Duſt, and all turn to Duſt again, Eccl. iii. 20.

Juſt without the Rail on the South Side of the Communion Table, a flat Stone thus engraven:

Here lyeth interred the Body of George Clark, deceaſed 14 Aug. An. Dom. 1668.

If any deſire to be me nigh,
Pray let my Bones in quiet ly,
'Till Chriſt come in the cloudy Sky,
Who will us all both judge and try.

This

This Gentleman left 20 s. yearly for an Anniverſary Sermon to be preached on the 17th Day of November; and other Monies to be diſtributed charitably in the Pariſh on that Day.

In the Body of the Chancel, under a fair black Marble, is this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Joannes Ivat de LONDON, Mercator, filius natu ſecundus Gulielmi Ivat, hujus Parochiæ Generoſ. Qui dum rem mercatoriam per varios annos proſperè egiſſet, tandem hanc vitam pro beatiori ſine prole mutavit, 23 die Februarii, 1693. P. M. tam dilecti viri Maria conjux ſuperſtes hoc Marmor mœrens ploranſq; poſuit, Ætatis ſuæ 44.

The Coat of Arms here engraven is Baron and Femme. Baron, a Croſs charged with five Flowers de Lis. Femme, a Feſſe with three Trefoils, between as many Bulls Heads guardant, erazed.

Upon the Ground, on the North Side of the former, under a fair Marble Stone with an Inſcription, is buried the Body of Thomas Blackall, Eſquire, late of this Pariſh, who departed this Life, Novemb. 7, 1688, in the 68th Year of his Age. And Thomas Blackall, his eldeſt Son, who departed Jan. 22, 1693, in the 45th Year of his Age. The Coat of Arms engraved upon this Stone is, A Greyhound running, upon a Chief indented three Roundlets.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, on the upper End of the North Iſle, is a Monument for Richard Hallily, Gent. who married Margaret Lathom, died 1605.

Now to paſs over to the South Iſle:

Firſt, againſt the Eaſt Wall, a good Monument, where appear two Statues, the one of a Man in a Gown kneeling, the other of his Wife kneeling alſo, facing each other, and this Epitaph:

Near this Place interred ly the Bodies of Henry Baniſter, Eſq; of late Citizen, Goldſmith, and ſome Time Sheriff of LONDON, and Juſtice of the Peace in the County of Middleſex. He was born in Preſton in Anderneſs in Lancaſhire, and deceaſed in this Pariſh on the 25th of July, Ann. Dom. 1628, aged 90. He was

The Hand of Amity to all deſerving,
The Heart of Integrity in all his Dealing,
And the Soul of Sincerity in religious Living.

And of Anne his Wife, who, after his Deceaſe, married to Sir William Bulſtrode, of the County of Rutland, Kt. She left this Life on the 4th of Jan. Anno Dom. 1633, aged 55. She was

The Mirrour of Diſcretion, in chuſing and uſing her Friends,
The Platform of Providence for her Kindred.
And the Pattern of Piety both in publick and private.

Reader, note this, and labour to lay down,
Such Earneſt for an everlaſting Crown.

A Tablet hung up near this Monument, thus inſcribed:

An EPITAPH,

Made by Sir William Bulſtrode, Kt. upon the Death of his moſt dear Wife Anne, Lady Bulſtrode, and conſecrated to the Memory of her excellent Virtues, and his faithful Affection:

Sad Fate! here lies interred Woman's Glory;
Whoſe rich and rare Endowments were a Story,
Fit for the Shrill and golden Trump of Fame
To make eternal; that her virtuous Name
Might be a ſober Pattern, Rule and Guide,
To all her frailer Sex, in whom, beſide
Her modeſt Beauty, grave and pious Wit,
Wiſdom and Judgment ſo enthron'd did ſit,
And ſo unnatur'd in her Female Paſſion,
As all the Actions of her Life, Diſcretion
Did always meaſure; and to crown her Praiſe,
Religion was the Pilot of her Ways.
Nor did ſhe her great Zeal as fruitleſs ſmother,
But by her Practice ſtill incited other:
Her Nature ſweet, fix'd with a Mind ſo even,
As here on Earth her Soul enjoy'd a Heaven.
Which to Perfection her ſtrong Faith hath carried,
And to the Lamb for ever bleſſed married.
So that her Death but Jacob's Dream expreſt,
A Ladder to convey her Soul to reſt.
Reſt then, dear Soul, ne'er to return to me.
While I here mourn, and long to come to thee.

She dyed Jan. 4, 1633.

On one Side of this Monument, againſt the ſame Eaſt Wall, is a Braſs Plate, repreſenting a Man kneeling before a Desk, and four Women kneeling before Desks, behind each other, and Children behind them; and upon the ſame Plate theſe Epitaphial Verſes:

Here-under lyeth Authur Dericote,
Who was buried of late:
Of LONDON ſome Time Citizen
And of Eſquires State.
Of Drapers whilome Company,
But late of Hackney Town,
A Pariſhoner he was full good;
All Vice he laid a down.
Wives four by Marriage he had,
That lawful was and right,
Mary, Anne, and Margaret,
And Jane the fourth the hight.
By whom two Children here he had,
And ended then his Life,
The twelfth Day of November Month,
One Child alive and Wife.
A thouſand and five hundred
And ſixty Years and two.
Since Chriſt his Incarnation,
He 'gan to live a-new.
God grant to Chriſtians all,
Of Life ſuch Race to run,
That at length they may receive
Of Chriſt a joyful Doom.

The Coat of Arms of this Dericote ſet here, is, A Dragon paſſant, on a Chief three Eſcalop Shells.

This Gentleman's Funeral was ſolemnized after this Manner, on the 18th of November, 1562. He gave 24 poor Men 24 Gowns of Rats Colour, at 7 s. the Yard. He had a Penon of Arms, and Coat Armour. Mr. Richmond was the Herald attending. Many black Gowns more were given, and 32 Dozens of Eſcutcheons were uſed; 20 Clerks of LONDON ſinging before the Corpſe, with the Maſters of the Hoſpital walking with their green Staves; Mr. Avenon and Mr. Minors Chief Mourners.

The Funeral Sermon preached by Mr. Pleſſyon, and after, all return'd to his Place to Dinner.

On the other Side of Baniſter's Monument are the Reſemblances of a Boy and two Girls kneeling upon Cuſhions, named Henry, Mary, Anne, holding each by their Hand over their Heads, and theſe Verſes:

By

By Truth, the Word of God, theſe guided were,
By Death, the Way together they did go:
The happy Life where living now they are
In Joy celeſtial, void of earthly Woe.
Theſe Daniels far ſurpaſt the Graces three,
Which did in Life and Death ſo well agree.

Between them kneeling is this Word:

The Way,

The Boy points upward to a bright Cloud, wherein is writ,

To Life.

Above their Heads theſe Words:

Menſe Oct. 1592, diem obierunt.

But who theſe were, it is not mentioned, their Sirnames being omitted, but probably the Children of Henry Baniſter.

In this Iſle, on the South Wall, is Sir Thomas Row's Monument: The Man and his Wife kneeling before a Desk, with their Hands together in the Poſture of Praying. The Coat of Arms is, Sable, a Chevron charged with three Bezants, between as many Cinquefoils.

Anno Dom. 1570, Septemb. 2.

Sir Thomas Rowe lies buried here,
Of LONDON Knight and Alderman;
Who late was Maior, and Rule did bear,
To right the Cauſe of every Man.
A Merchant Venterer was he,
Of Merchant-Taylors Company:
A Citizen by Birth alſo,
And eke his Wife Dame Mary Rowe.
In Wedlock one and thirty Year,
They did continue Man and Wife:
Eleven Children ſhe did bear,
But five of them have left this Life,
And ſix alive do yet remain,
Four of them Sons, and Daughters twain.
His Soul, we hope, with God is bleſt,
And doth remain in Abraham's Breaſt.

Next to this, againſt the Wall in the Chancel, is a little neat Monument of white Marble, thus inſcribed:

Near this Place lyeth interred the Body of John Stock, late of LONDON, Gent. born at Royle in Comitat. Lancaſt. May 18, 1631, deſcended from a very antient and good Family, Ob. 17 Jan. 1703. Ætat. 73.

Lower in this South Iſle, againſt the Wall, is this Inſcription in gilded Letters, for the Father of the wealthy and wiſe, notable and proſperous Eaſt-India Merchant, Sir Joſiah Child, Bart.

Richard Child, Merchant of LONDON, died May the 7th, 1638, and Elizabeth his Wife, late Wife of Thomas Sone, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, departed Jan. 1, 1670; left behind her two Sons and one Daughter, by her firſt Husband, viz. John, Joſiah, and Anna.

Lower, towards the Belfrey, is a very comely Table Monument of black Marble poliſhed, inſcribed with Letters deeply engraven:

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Fredeſwede Kekewich, Wife of Mr. Samuel Kekewich, Merchant, who dyed in Puerto Sta. Maria, [in Spain] the 29th of Aug. 1693.

And there alſo is buried her Husband, being a Gentleman of a good Family in Cornwall, who dyed about the Year 1701.

UNDER the Belfrey, another fair Table-Monument of black Marble, with this Inſcription:

Here lye the Bodies of Capt. Robert Dean, who dyed the 13th of Feb. 1699, the 46th Year of his Age. And Mary and Robert, and Katharine his Children, who all dyed before him.

THIS was lately erected at the Charge of his Wife, now or late living at Portſmouth.

AT the lower End of the North Iſle of the Church, joining to the Wall, is a Table-Monument of black Marble poliſhed, for JOHN DOD, Citizen and Mercer of London, Son of Peter Dod of Tuſſingham in Cheſhire, Gent. by Jane his Wife. Who married Mary Daughter of Richard Thorowgood, Eſquire, Alderman of LONDON, and Elizabeth his Wife. By whom he left Iſſue five Sons, and one Daughter, viz. Benjamin, Richard, John, Piers, Edward, and Mary. He departed this Life June the 4th, 1681. Ætat. 44.

ON the Stone is this Coat: On a Feſſe three Creſcents, between two Bars wavy.

AGAINST this Wall, at the Weſt End of the Church, is ſet up a handſome Monument of white Marble, of Thomas Cartwright's making, with this Inſcription:

Prope jacent Cineres BENJ. DOD, Generoſi & Civis Londinenſis: Ob patrium ferè in ſuos, & verè fraternum animum, ab iis præcipuè multum Lugendi: Ob genii autem Probitatem & Mores ſuaviſſimos, ab omnibus deſideratiſſimi. Qui vitæ benè tranſactæ Documentis mortis incertæ Monitionem adjecit, præcipiti ex Equo Caſu immaturè, improviſò decumbens, Anno Ætat. 32. Domini 1706.

Memorati etiam jacet chara, unica & dilectiſſima Soror MARIA CRADDOCK, ejuſdem Tumuli Conſors, tridui ſolummodò ſuperſtes: Hujus vitæ exuvias deponens in ſpem melioris.

Obiit { Jun. 10. / Ætat. 19.

THE two laſt Monuments ſet up in this North Iſle, ſomewhat higher againſt the North Wall, are:

ONE for Richard de Beavoir of Balmes, in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; of the Iſland of Guernſey. Who departed this Life the 17th of June, A. D. 1708, in the 67th Year of his Age. His Arms: Argent, a Cheveron Gules, between three Quatrefoils of the ſame.

THE other higher Eaſtward: In Memory of Mr. James Cæſar Paget, of LONDON, Merchant. Who dyed the 11th of Dec. 1714. In the 80th Year of his Age.

IN the Body of the Church, upon a flat white Stone, this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Robert Matſon, Citizen and Salter of LONDON. Departed the 18th of Novemb. 1695. Aged 44.

The Body of Edward Matſon, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON. Departed the 30th of September, 1688. Son of John Matſon of Dover, and Mary his Wife.

Mr. John Johnſon, departed the 4th of November, 1686.

ON a fair Marble:

The Body of Sarah, the loving and beloved Wife of John Pierſe. She departed the 26th of Aug.

Aug. 1702. And John Pierſe, their Son, the 23d of Jan. 1694. Aged 4 Years.

THE Coat: A Bend wavy, between two Unicorns Heads erazed.

IN the Body of the North Iſle, a fair Stone covering the Body of Mr. Thomas Cook, Merchant: Who departed the 20th of December, 1694, in the 60th Year of his Age.

AND lower, under another Marble Stone:

Alex. Johnſtown, Eſq; buried 1709. Aged 60.

A Hatchment upon a Pillar in the Chancel Northward, thus inſcribed:

In the Vault near this Place, lyeth the Body of Dame Katharine Reynolds, Widow to Sir Samuel Reynolds of Caſtle Camps in Cambridgeſhire: Who was buried the 3d of March, 1658, in the Year of her Age 52. Alſo the Bodies of Phebe Berry her Mother, and Elizabeth South her Siſter.

IN this Church was buried Frances, the Wife of John Mauchel, or Machel, of Hackney, Eſq; Daughter to Will. Coton of Panfield in Eſſex, Eſq; Dyed at her Houſe in Homerton, May 11, 1574, in Childbed: Deliver'd of two Children, John, Son and Heir, and Frances. Buried May 21. But her Monument (if ſhe had any) is gone.

THE Monuments of many more of antienter Times are periſhed and gone; and ſo had their Names and Memories too, had they not been preſerved by an induſtrious Antiquarian in the former Age. Some of the moſt remarkable we ſhall ſpecify:

Henry Lord Percy, Earl of Northumberland, of the moſt Honourable Order of the Garter. Who died 1537, 29 H. 8. the laſt Day of July.

Sergeant Alexander, a Lawyer, who, in his Inſcription, was characſtered to be,

——— Sacer Eccleſièq; Deiq;
Cultor, & in populo Pacificator erat.

He dyed 1438.

The Date of his Death being ſet out by this Diſtich:

Seno ter deno bis centeno quater anno,
Milleno Domini qui pius aſſit ei.

Alice Ryder, ſhe dyed 1517.

HER Portraiture was in Braſs, with a Milk-pail upon her Head. She ſeems to have been a Milk-woman, and to have obtained great Wealth by ſelling it into the City. She was ſaid to have been a good Benefactreſs to the Church. This was her Epitaph:

For the Sowl of Allis Ryder of your Cherite,
Say a Pater Noſter, and an Ave.

Hic jacet in foſſa Robertus Stork, Elizabeth uxor ſuo honore vivebant Pauperes debiles & alebant Robert. Obiit primo die Menſis Octobr. Anno Dom. M°CCCC°XVI. Elizabet. obiit ..... die Menſis, Anno Domini M°CCCC°.

Quorum aiab. propitietur Deus.

Jane Onely, the onely moſt faithfull Wiffe of John Onely of Warwickſhire, Eſquire.

To whoſe Sowle the Onely Trinity be mercifull, Amen. She dyed 1525.

BY another induſtrious Collector of Monuments, ſhe is written, Jane, Daughter of Henry Smith, of Sherſand in the County of Warwyke.

William Heneage, the Son of Robert Heneage, one of the King's Auditors. Dyed Auguſt the 5th, 1535.

John Elryngton, Filycer [or Filazer] of LONDON, and Keeper of the Records of the Common Pleas. Departed 1504. He was Founder of a Guild in this Church.

Robert Walſingham, third Clerk of the Spicery to King Henry VIII. and Margaret his Wife. Dyed 1522 [1524]

BY the Review of theſe Perſons here interred, one might conclude, that many of the Nobility and Court in former Times, choſe to have their Country Seats at Hackney.

To all the reſt we ſhall add theſe few very antient:

Here lies Joan Curtelys, the Daughter of .... Shordych, Anno 1399. This Gentleman might give Denomination to that old Houſe near Well-ſtreet in this Pariſh, called Shoreditch-place.

Roger Ford, 1453.
John Butterfield, 1454.
Thomas Symond, May 11, 1542.
John Catcher, May 9, 1487.
Henry Therket, 1503.
John Jennyngs, 1423.
William Lowthe, of LONDON, Goldſmith, 1528.

John Hern, Eſq; hath a Monument without an Inſcription or Date, and was the Founder of this Church, as is ſuppoſed, by the Repreſentations of Herons graven in Stone upon every Pillar of the Church.

MONUMENTS in the Church-yard.

ON the North Side of the Church are theſe Table-Monuments adjoining to the Church.

NEAR the little Chancel-Door is a Table-Monument for Bailiff, thus inſcribed:

Succeſſioni.

You that remain, diſturb not the Reſt of the Body of Thomaſine, when ſhe lived, the Wife of John Bailiff, Eſq; ..... here under this Stone preſerve the Duſt, by the Power of the Almighty, unto the appointed Day for the Reſurrection of the Juſt. She died the ſecond Day of February, in the Year of Chriſt her Redeemer 1641.

Erat. Eris.
Cogita. Para.

ANOTHER well-wrought Table-Monument of Marble, more Weſt, on the ſame Side, is ſet up for Thomas Trench, a very honeſt, diſcreet, charitable, pious, as well as wealthy Merchant of LONDON, while he lived; buried here according to his laſt Deſire, with this Inſcription only:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Trench, Eſq; who died the 10th of December 1699, aged 51. Near this Place lye Rebecca and Thomas, his Children, that dyed very young.

ON this Side alſo Eaſt, is a Monument for George and James, Sons of Andrew Hutchinſon, and Luce his Wife. The former dyed An. 1688. The latter 1689.

A raiſed Monument alſo on this Side adjoining to the Church, for William Gray, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON. Who dyed Aug. 5, 1663. And his Son Joſiah Gray, 1669, aged 26.

ON the South Side of the Church in the Church-yard, is a Monument for John Burſtall, late of LONDON, Merchant: Who dyed May 28, 1681, aged 40.

ANOTHER more Weſt for John Kent, Chirurgeon: Who dyed 1660.

AT the Weſt End of the Church-yard, a fair Table-Monument ſomewhat antient, without any Inſcription or Coat of Arms.

THERE be many other raiſed Tombs lately made in the ſame Church-yard. One of the laſt, on the North Side, is for Sarah Hill, Widow of the Rev. John Hill, of Worceſterſhire, who died December 18, 1715, the 87th Year of her Age.

Reader, if thou wouldſt know her Character, examine all the Duties of Nature and Religion: Which, as conſcious of the End of her Being, ſhe fulfilled. And then go, and do thou likewiſe.

To all the reſt, we ſhall add this Inſcription upon a Head-Stone in the Eaſt Part of the Churchyard:

PENINNAH JUCKES.

A Maid near eighteen, we have laid in this Green,
To reſt herſelf here a ſhort Space:
And after that Time, this Roſe in her Prime,
Shall riſe up again by God's Grace.
Anno 1716.

To the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of Hackney, but eſpecially to the pooreſt Sort of People, that maintain their Livelihood by Carriage of Burthens to the City of LONDON: All Bleſſing from the Fountain above and below, be multiplied upon you.

I DAVID, by the Permiſſion of God, Biſhop of Bangor, ſome Time your unworthy Paſtor, in Teſtimony of my unfeigned Chriſtian Love to you, as to the Place where I was ſo much beholden unto you all, do earneſtly intreat you to accept and take in good Part, this Mite of 30 l. according to my poor Eſtate; which I have ſent unto you by my worthy Friend Mr. Richard Davies, to be employed for continuing and everlaſting repairing (I hope) to Poſterity, of the Cauſeway, or Footway leading from Clopton and Hackney Church unto Shoreditch. Which poor Mite of 30 l. I deſire may be employed or laid out on ſome proportionable Parcel of Ground, Tenement, or yearly Rent-charge, or otherwiſe, by my loving Acquaintance, Mr. Richard Davies, Mr. George Robins, and Mr. Roger Jones, as ſoon as poſſible may be: But with the Approbations of my Right Worthy Friends, Sir William Bulſtrode, Mr. John Baily, Mr. John Milward, and Mr. William Cheney, or by any four of theſe Men.

And likewiſe my Deſire and Requeſt is, that the ſaid yearly Rent, iſſuing out of the ſaid Lands, Tenement, or Rent-charge, may be, by Order of the Veſtry, yearly paid unto the Church-wardens, for the Time being, of the ſaid Pariſh: And the Church-wardens to be accountable thereof.

And laſtly, my earneſt Deſire is, that according to my ſaid Truſt, the ſaid Rent, with its Profits, or Increaſe, at every three or four Years, being accounted for by itſelf, and particularly reſerved for that Uſe, may be employed every third or fourth Year at the fartheſt, for the ſufficient Repair of the ſaid Way. Conceiving, for divers Reaſons, that it will not be requiſite to repair it oftener. Wherein I do earneſtly deſire the Vicar for the Time being, in the Bowels of Charity, to have a ſpecial Care to accompliſh this my Requeſt.

Provided always, that if there be a Surpluſage remaining of the ſaid Rent, after the Repair or Mending of the ſaid Way at the Term aforeſaid, that then the ſaid Money and Surpluſage ſhall be diſtributed by the Diſcretion of the Vicar, Church-wardens, and four of the antienteſt ſubſtantial Pariſhioners, among them of the pooreſt Families, that have the greateſt Charge of Children: Alſo, likewiſe provided, that if it may appear that the ſaid 30 l.

it ſhall revert and be for the Uſe of the Poor of the Town of Denbigh, where I was born.

Your Faithful Friend and

JOHN Pope, Citizen and Barber, by his Will, dated 1437, gave to the Maſters and Governors of the Houſe of Lepers, called Le Lokes at Kingſland, without LONDON, an annual Rent of 6 s. 8 d. iſſuing out of certain Shops and Tenements ſituate in Shetebone (Sherebone-lane) in St. Mary Abchurch Pariſh, towards the Suſtentation of the ſaid Houſe at Kingſland for ever. The following is

An ABSTRACT, or brief Relation of the two Manors or Lordſhips of Stebunhith, alias Stepney, and Hackney, Suburbs North Eaſt in the County of Middleſex; with the free Cuſtoms, Benefits and Privileges to them belonging; and how they are holden by the Copyhold Tenants of the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth. With ſome other eſpecial and remarkable Notes, both of reverend Antiquity and modern Memory.

Concerning the INDENTURE of COVENANTS, &c.

WHEREAS (of late) Differences have ariſen between the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the Manors of Stepney and Hackney, and his Lordſhip's Copyhold Tenants of the ſaid Manors, for and concerning ſome of the Cuſtoms, Benefits, and Privileges of the ſaid Tenants; It has now pleaſed the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, in Conſideration of Three Thouſand Pounds of lawful Money of England, in the thirtieth Year of the Reign of our late Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, by the Copyholders of the ſaid Manors, to the Right Honourable Henry Lord Wentworth (his Lordſhip's Father) then ſatisfied and paid: As alſo of other Three Thouſand and Five Hundred Pounds more, to him the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth now paid, by Indenture bearing Date the twentieth Day of June, in the fifteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King James, of England, France and Ireland, and of Scotland the fiftieth, made between him the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the ſaid Manors on the one Part, and Sir John Jolles, Kt. and Alderman of LONDON, and divers other of the Copyhold Tenants of the ſaid Manors (whoſe Names are particularly in the ſaid Indenture recited) on the other Part: For the appeaſing and final End of the ſaid Differences, and for Prevention of the like, and all other which (in Time to come) might happen, ariſe or grow betwixt the ſaid Lord, his Heirs or Aſſigns, Lords of the ſaid Manors, and the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs or Aſſigns, do covenant, grant, conclude, and fully agree to the Effect following: That is to ſay,

Imprimis, That the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth is, and until a perfect Act of Parliament ſhall be had and made, (whereby all the Liberties, Privileges, Benefits, Cuſtoms, Immunities, Diſcharges, Additions, Alterations, Enlargements, Matters and Things, in the ſaid Schedules to the ſaid Indenture annexed, mentioned, ſhall be for ever confirmed) confirmed) ſhall be and continue ſeized of a good, abſolute and indefeaſible Eſtate of Inheritance in Fee-ſimple to him and his Heirs for ever in Poſſeſſion of, and in the ſaid Manor, and either of them, and of the Copyhold Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments of the ſaid Copyhold Tenants before-mentioned, Parties to the ſaid Indenture. And that he now has, and then ſhall have, full Power and lawful Authority, to ratify, confirm, eſtabliſh, and make good, all and ſingular the Covenants, Articles, Alterations, Enlargements, free Cuſtoms, Immunities, Diſcharges and Agreements contained in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules, or either of them, to the ſaid Copyhold Tenants reſpectively, and to their ſeveral and reſpective Heirs and Aſſigns, of and in the ſeveral and reſpective Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof they are ſeized of any Eſtate by Copy or Court-Roll.

And that the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs, Aſſigns, and all other Lords of the ſaid Manors, ſhall for ever hereafter obſerve, perform, fulfil, allow, ratify, make good and keep all the ſaid Articles, Certainty of Fines, Uſages, Cuſtoms, Privileges, Benefits, Immunities, Diſcharges, Compoſitions and Agreements in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules contained: And ſhall not at any Time hereafter levy, take, require, or demand any other Fines, Suits, Cuſtoms, Works or Services, or in any other Manner, than in the ſaid Schedules are ſpecified; and the Rents which for the ſaid Copyhold Tenements, by the Space of two Years now laſt paſt, have been yielded and paid by the Copyhold Tenants thereof. And alſo, that the ſaid Tenants, their Heirs and Aſſigns ſhall for ever hereafter peaceably and quietly have, hold, maintain, and enjoy their ſeveral and reſpective Copyholds, with their Appurtenances, according to the ſeveral Grants thereof to them made; and under the ſeveral Rents for the ſame reſpectively, now due and payable according to the true Meaning of the ſaid Indenture and Schedules, without Let, Suit, or Hindrance, Interruption, Alteration, Queſtion, or Contradiction whatſoever of him the ſaid Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Aſſigns, or under any other claiming any Eſtate, Right, Title, Uſe, Intereſt, Office, Profit, Charge, or Demand, under his Lordſhip, his Heirs or Aſſigns, or under the ſaid Henry Lord Wentworth, deceaſed.

And that the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Aſſigns has not, nor hereafter ſhall grant or convey, ſevered from the Manor thereof, the ſame is now holden; any of the Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments of the ſaid Copyholders, for any other Eſtate or Term, other than by Copy of Court-Roll, according to the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, except the Freehold to be ſevered, at the Deſire of ſuch Perſon, as then ſhall be Copyholder thereof reſpectively: And that the Certainty of Fines, free Cuſtoms, Immunities, Liberties, Privileges, Articles, Diſcharges, and Agreements in the ſaid Schedules contained, for and concerning the ſeveral Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof the ſaid Parties to the ſaid Indenture are Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders; ſhall (for ever) be, and be had, uſed, accounted, adjudged, taken and enjoyed, as the true Cuſtoms, Uſages, Privileges, Immunities, Diſcharges, and Liberties, of and within the ſaid Manors, and either of them, not to be violated, altered, changed, or denied by the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them now or hereafter, at any Time or Times in any wiſe being.

Item, That for the better ratifying, eſtabliſhing, confirming, ſtengthening, perfecting, and making good of all and ſingular the ſaid Articles, Covenants, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Uſages, Cuſtoms, Enlargements, and Alterations of Uſages and Cuſtoms, Compoſitions, Liberties, Privileges, Freedoms, Immunities, Diſcharges, Matters and Things in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules contained, and for the ſetting forth of what Eſtate the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, is now and then ſhall be ſeized of the ſaid Manors and Premiſes, upon a Bill of Complaint againſt his Lordſhip, in his Majeſty's Court of Chancery to be exhibited; his Lordſhip will appear, and make ſuch Anſwer, and further ſuch Proceedings, that thereupon a perfect Decree (with the free Conſent and Agreement of his Lordſhip) may be had, and there enrolled againſt his Lordſhip, his Heirs and Aſſigns: By which the ſaid Articles, Covenants, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Uſages and Cuſtoms, and all the Compoſitions, Liberties, Privileges, Freedoms, Immunities, Diſcharges, Matters and Things in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules, or any of them contained, ſhall be decreed, ratified, eſtabliſhed and made good, and put in Uſe, uſed and enjoyed for ever.

That he the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth his Heirs and Aſſigns, at his and their own proper Coſts and Charges, will procure at the firſt Seſſion of the next Parliament of our Sovereign Lord the King's Majeſty, his Heirs or Succeſſors, one Statute or Act of Parliament, by Force whereof the ſaid Articles, Covenant, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Uſages, Cuſtoms, Compoſitions, Enlargements and Alterations of Uſages, Cuſtoms, Compoſitions, Liberties, Privileges, Benefits, Freedoms, Immunities, Diſcharges, Matters and Things in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules, or either of them expreſſed, ſhall be eſtabliſhed, ratified, enacted and confirmed to be, and to continue for ever of Force, and to be put in Uſe, and uſed for ever hereafter, in ſuch State, Manner and Form, Quality, Condition, and Degree, as the ſame are in the ſaid Indenture or Schedules, or any of them expreſſed, for and concerning the Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof they now are Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders. Towards the Charges of procuring of which the ſaid Act of Parliament, the ſaid Tenants are to pay to the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Executors, within one Month next after the obtaining and paſſing thereof, the Sum of twenty Pounds.

That he ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs and Aſſigns, at any Time within five Years next enſuing the Date of the ſaid Indenture, before ſuch Act of Parliament, as aforeſaid, had and obtained, at the Coſts in the Law of the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, or ſome of them, upon Requeſt made to him the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Aſſigns, by the ſaid Sir John Jolles, Kt. and Alderman of LONDON, William Gough, Edmund Barber, John Egleſfield, Iſaac Cotton, Thomas Beſt, Richard Hoskins, George Saris, Henry Dethick, John Howland, Thomas Yardly, John Lowden, Richard Cheyney, Greſham Hoogan, William Palmer, Nicholas Dickens, Nicholas Diggins, Peter Summer, John Bennet, Richard Edwards, Michael Bonner, and Nicholas Hollam, or any ten of them, or any ten of the Heirs or Aſſigns of them, ſhall and will make, do, acknowledge, execute and ſuffer all and every ſuch further Acts, Deeds and Aſſurances, for better ſettling, aſſuring and confirming of the Uſages, Cuſtoms, Benefits, Liberties, Privileges, Immunities, Diſcharges, Certainty of Fines, Compoſitions, Agreements, Matters and Things in the ſaid Indenture and Schedules contained, as by them, or any ten of them ſhall be reaſonably deviſed, adviſed and required. That every one of the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs and Aſſigns, ſhall and may freely hereafter from Time to Time, grant, leaſe or demiſe by Deed or otherwiſe (without Licence or Copy of Court-Roll) ſuch ſuch or ſo much of their ſaid Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, to ſuch Perſon and Perſons, and for ſuch Term and Eſtate, not exceeding one and thirty Years and four Months, in Poſſeſſion from the Time of the making of any ſuch Grant or Demiſe, as to them, and every, or any of them reſpectively ſhall be thought fit or neceſſary, without any Forfeit of Eſtate, Seizure, Claim, Diſturbance, Denial or Impeachments of his Lordſhip, his Heirs or Aſſigns, or of any of his or their Officers. So always that ſuch Grant, Leaſe and Leaſes ſo to be made, be at the firſt or ſecond general Court, (for the Manor whereof the Lands or Tenements ſo happening to be granted, leaſed or demiſed are Parcel) to be holden next after the making thereof, be publiſhed in open Court of that Manor, before the Homage there, and a Remembrance thereof to be required to be made in the Rolls of the ſaid Court, for the Date, Term and Quantity of Lands, Cottages or Tenements ſo granted, leaſed or demiſed; which Remembrance the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth covenants and grants for him, his Heirs and Aſſigns, to and with the ſaid Sir John Folles, and the reſt of the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, upon the Tender of a Certainty thereof in Writing, to the Steward, or Deputy Steward of that Manor for the Time then being, together with Six-Pence in Money, for the entering thereof, ſhall be in the Court-Rolls of that Manor duly, and in convenient Time, and without Delay enrolled, and a Note thereof delivered by the Steward or his Deputy, to the Party ſo leaſing, or any for him, without any other Conſideration, Fee or Reward, to be given or paid for the ſame.

That whereas the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, by his Highneſs's Letters Patents under the Great Seal of England, dated the nineteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign of England, and forty eight of Scotland, has obtained Licence to grant to ſuch of his Majeſty's Liege-People as he ſhall think fit, Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, Parcel or reputed Parcel of the ſaid Manors: To hold to them, their Heirs and Aſſigns (in free and common Socage) reſpectively, of his ſaid Manors of Stepney and Hackney, by ſuch and the ſame Rents and Services, and other Profits, as in the Conveyances thereof ſhall be expreſſed, and not to hold of the King in Capite, nor of any of his Majeſty's Honours, or Manors in Knights-Service, as by the ſaid Letters Patents more at large may appear.

Now if the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth ſhall not at the firſt Seſſion of the next Parliament procure ſuch an Act of Parliament to be good and effectual in Law for the Purpoſes aforeſaid: Then his Lordſhip will at all Times, after the End of the ſaid firſt Seſſion of the ſaid next Parliament, upon reaſonable Requeſts, and at the Coſts of the Tenants (whom it ſhall concern) their Heirs or Aſſigns, make, do and execute ſuch reaſonable Acts, Devices, and Aſſurances in Law, whereby the ſaid Copyholders, their Heirs or Aſſigns reſpectively, ſhall hold and enjoy their, and every of their ſaid Copyholds, Meſſuages, Houſes, Lands, Cottages and Hereditaments, with the like Ways, Eaſements, Commons and Commodities, as are now thereto belonging, or now therewith uſed or enjoyed. And the Freehold and Inheritance thereof reſpectively to them and to their reſpective Heirs and Aſſigns for ever, to be holden for ſuch of the ſame Manors, whereof the ſame is now holden in free and common Socage, for and under the ſeveral and reſpective yearly Rents for all Services and Demands, as they or any of them do now ſeverally and reſpectively pay for the ſame, as by them, or their Council learned, ſhall be reaſonably deviſed and required.

That the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs and Aſſigns reſpectively, ſhall and may for ever hereafter, without any Lett, Impediment, Interruption, Denial, or Contradiction of his Lordſhip, his Heirs or Aſſigns, or any claiming under the ſaid Lord Henry Wentworth, deceaſed, not only during the Time they ſhall be Copyholders, but alſo afterwards, when they have obtained the Freehold and Inheritance of their ſeveral and reſpective Copyholds, peaceably hold and enjoy ſuch and the like Commons of Paſture, and in ſuch Manner, in all the Commons, Waſtes and commonable Places of the ſaid Manors, as they or any of them heretofore have had, uſed, held, taken, or enjoyed, or might lawfully have taken or enjoyed. Nevertheleſs it is agreed, That neither the ſaid Indenture and Schedules, nor any Covenant therein contained, ſhall in any wiſe extend or enure to the Benefit or Advantage of any other Copyhold Tenants of the ſaid Manors, other than the Copyhold Tenants named Parties to the ſaid Indentures, their Heirs and Aſſigns, and that for ſuch and the ſame Lands, Tenements, Cottages, and Hereditaments, with the Appurtenances only, as they or any of them now hold, or claim to hold, by Copy of Court-Roll of the ſaid Manors, or one of them, as by the ſaid Indenture (whereunto Relation be had) more plainly and at large appears.

Memorandum, That the ſaid Indenture of the twentieth of June, together with a Duplicity thereof, were acknowledged by the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, the twenty firſt Day of July, 1617, before Sir Matthew Carew, Knight, to be enrolled, and is enrolled in the Chancery accordingly. The one Part of which Indentures is left in the Cuſtody of the Company of Goldſmiths in the City of LONDON, and the other in the Cuſtody of the Brethren of the Trinity Houſe at Radcliff, in Truſt, and to the Uſe of the ſaid Copyhold Tenants, named Parties to the ſaid Indentures.

The ninth Day of July, 1617, in the ſaid fifteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth acknowledged a Statute of the Sum of Twelve Thouſand Pounds of lawful Money of England, to Alexander Preſcot and John Gore, Aldermen of LONDON, Thomas Jones, Common Sergeant of LONDON, Francis Fulner and George Whitmore, Eſquires, and Robert Mildmay, Grocer, in Truſt for, and to the Uſe of the Copyholders named in the Indenture, and thereof is a Defeaſance by Indenture, dated the ſame Day, to this Effect, viz. That if the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth do perform the Covenants and Agreements contained in the aforeſaid Indenture of the twentieth of June: Then the ſame Statute to be void, and that the ſaid Conuſees ſhall deliver up the ſame Statute to the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs, Executors, Adminiſtrators or Aſſigns, ſo ſoon as the ſaid Act of Parliment ſhall be procured, according to the Intent and true Meaning of the ſaid recited Indenture.

To this End, the ſaid Statute and Defeaſance are left in the Chamber of the City of LONDON, to be kept in ſuch Sort as that the ſaid Conuſees may have the ſame to be delivered according to their Covenant. And the Chamberlain of the ſaid City has charged himſelf with the Receipt thereof, by Order of the Court of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, 1617, Sir John Leman, being then Mayor, and Maſter Cornelius Fiſh, Chamberlain.

IN Trinity Term, in the ſaid fifteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, to a Bill of Complaint was by the Copyholders, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture Indenture of the twentieth of June, exhibited againſt the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, in his Majeſty's High Court of Chancery; whereto the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth did appear, and by his Anſwer confeſſed the Contents of the ſaid Bill to be true. Whereupon, a perfect Decree (with the free Conſent and Agreement of the ſaid Thomas Lord Wentworth, bearing Date the two and twentieth Day of July, in the ſaid fifteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King James) was obtained. And by the ſame, the ſaid free Cuſtoms, Orders, Immunities, &c. and all and whatſoever contained in the ſaid Indenture of the twentieth of June, and the Schedules unto the ſame Indenture annexed, are for ever eſtabliſhed and confirmed. The ſaid Decree is likewiſe there enrolled. The true Copy of the ſaid Schedules followeth.

The SCHEDULES containing the free Cuſtoms, Orders, Immunities, Diſcharges, Benefits, and Privileges of the Manors of STEPNEY, alias STEBUNHITH and HACKNEY, in the County of Middleſex, agreed unto, approved, allowed and ratified, as well by the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the ſaid Manors; as alſo by his Lordſhip's Copyhold or Cuſtomary Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture, whereunto thoſe Schedules are annexed: By which all and every the ſame Copyholders, or Cuſtomary Tenants, their, and every of their Heirs and Aſſigns, are to hold, uſe, and enjoy, inherit, alien, demiſe, or diſpoſe all and every, or any of the ſaid Lands Meſſuages, Tenements, Cottages, and Hereditaments, which they, every or any of them reſpectively do hold, claim, or enjoy, by Force, or Pretext of any Grant heretofore made by the Copy of Court Roll of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, the Day of the Date of the ſaid Indentures: That is to ſay, the twentieth Day of June. in the Years of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord James, by the Grace of God, of England, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. the fifteenth, and of Scotland the fiftieth.

Theſe COPYHOLDS are of Inheritance, held of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Cuſtom.

Imprimis. By the Cuſtoms of the ſaid Manors, and either of them, all the Copyhold Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, which the particular Perſons, (named Parties to the Indentures, whereunto theſe Schedules are annexed) do hold or enjoy, and (Time whereof the Contrary hath not been within the Memory of Man) have been Copyhold and Cuſtomary Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments of Inheritance, demiſed and demiſeable, by Copy of Court Roll of the Manors aforeſaid, or one of them reſpectively, according to the Cuſtoms of the Manor whereof the ſame are holden. And all Copies of Court Rolls of the ſame Manors, and either of them, by all the Time aforeſaid, for the ſame Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, have been made, and ought to be made, to hold of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Cuſtom of the Manor whereof the ſame is holden, by the Rents and Services therefore due and accuſtomed. And all the ſaid Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments have been paſſed, and are to paſs and go from ſuch Perſons, as (according to the Contents of theſe Schedules) have Power, and are enabled to make Surrenders to any other Perſon or Perſons by Way of Surrender, to be made to the Hands of the Lord, by the Acceptance of the Steward of the Manor, or his Deputy for the Time being, in Court or out of Court; or by the Acceptance of the Reeve of the Manor, whereof the ſame are holden, or by his Deputy within the ſame Manor, or elſewhere, in Preſence of ſix cuſtomary Tenants, or by any Headborough of ſome Townſhip or Hamlet within that Manor, in Preſence of ſix cuſtomary Tenants in or out of the ſame Manors; which Surrender or Surrenders have been, and ſhall, and may be to the Uſe of any Perſon or Perſons, and their Heirs for ever, in Fee-tail, or for Life or Lives, with Remainders, or without Remainders, as Lands may be aſſured by the Courſe of the common Laws of this Realm, or elſe to the Uſe of the laſt Will and Teſtament of the Surrenders, or of any other Perſons, according to the Intent and Limitation of ſuch laſt Will and Teſtament.

QUIT-RENTS are to be paid Yearly at Michaelmas.

Item. The Rents of all the Tenants both Freeholders and Copy-holders, which hold any Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, are yearly payable only at the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, to the Lord and his Heirs, the ſame to be collected by the Reeves of the ſaid Manors, (ſeverally and reſpectively to be yearly choſen, as hereafter is expreſſed) or their Deputies: And all and every the ſaid cuſtomary Copyhold Tenants to pay the ſeveral yearly Rents, now yearly due and payable for their ſeveral Copyholds. And if any of the ſaid Copyholds, for which any intire Quit-Rents is now paid, ſhall hereafter come into ſeveral Hands, the Rents thereof ſhall then be appointed by the Homage, at the Court of the Manors whereof the ſame are holden, and ſo much only as by Homage ſhall be appointed to be paid, (pro rata) ſhall be paid to the Lord for the Time being.

At what Court TENANTS are bound to appear.

Item. All and every Copyhold Tenant of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, which now be, or hereafter for the Time being ſhall be, ought to appear yearly at two ſeveral general Courts holden for the Manor, whereof his Lands or Tenements are holden, upon Warning, as hereafter followeth: And alſo ſo many of them, at all other ſet or appointed Courts, ſet, appointed, and kept for the ſaid Manor whereof their Lands are holden, under the Number of eighteen, as ſhall be (for that Purpoſe) eſpecially warned thereunto by the Reeve, or his ſufficient Deputy for the Time being. And the ſaid Tenants ſhall do their Suits and Services according to their Tenures, except they be eſſoined, licenſed, or have ſome other lawfull Excuſe, upon the Pain hereafter following. Which two general Courts have been commonly kept, (and are to be kept yearly) the one of them on Tueſday, the ninth Day after Eaſter-Day; and the other, about the Feaſt of St. Andrew the Apoſtle, upon reaſonable Warning; that is to ſay, in the Churches and Chapels, within the ſaid Manors, openly upon the Sunday Sevennight, or Sunday Fortnight before the Day of ſuch Courts to be holden.

TENANTS failing to appear, and not eſſoined, or reaſonable Excuſe, ſhall be amerced.

Item. If any of the Copyhold, or cuſtomary Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, do, or ſhall make Default of their Appearance at any of the ſaid two general Courts,

to

to which their Suits ſhall be due; or if ſuch Copyhold Tenants, as ſhall be eſpecially and lawfully warned to appear at any of the ſaid Courts (in Form aforeſaid) yearly to be holden, do make Default (to which the ſaid Suit is or ſhall be due) and Warning openly given (as aforeſaid) of the Day and Place of the holding of the ſame General Courts, and upon ſpecial and lawful Warning to be given for the ſaid ſet or purchaſed Courts: That then they that ſhall ſo make Default (except they be eſſoined, or have ſome other lawful or reaſonable Excuſe) ſhall be amerced by the Homage of the ſaid Court, to be taxed and afferred by two Afferrors of the ſaid Court; that is to ſay, by two Tenants of the Homage, or of either of them for the Time being, hath always uſed to chuſe, and ſhall chuſe one for the Lord, and the Reſidue of the Homage have choſen, and hereafter ſhall chuſe the other.

What the TENANTS are to be allowed at ſet COURTS.

Item, if any Tenant be ſummoned to appear at any ſet Court or Courts to be holden within the ſaid Manors, or in any of them, and doth appear upon the ſaid Summons, he ought, and is to have for his Pains four Pence, and his Dinner, or eight Pence and no Dinner; which ought and is to be paid (by the ſaid Cuſtom) by ſuch Perſon or Perſons, who ſhall be the Cauſe that any ſuch Tenants do appear for his or their Matter: So it be not any Matter or Cauſe that concerneth an Enquiry or Preſentment to be made, only for the Lord for the Time being, his Heirs and Aſſigns.

The like Allowance for View, Partitions, and other Summons.

Item, the Copyhold Tenants of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, ought to have every of them like Allowance, upon every View by them to be made, and upon every Partition by them to be made, or upon other Summons to appear betwixt Tenant and Tenant, when they be appointed thereunto by Precept from the Steward of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them for the Time being, or by his ſufficient Deputy.

How TENANTS may be righted againſt Encroachments, Annoyances, &c.

THE Homage of the Court of the ſaid Manors, or of any of them, may appoint ſix or ſeven Tenants, upon any Complaint to them made, by any Perſon or Perſons, being Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them in open Court; that he or they be wronged by any Incroachment, or any other Annoyance to their Copyhold Tenements, which Tenants ſhall (after the ſaid Court) view the ſame Incroachment, Annoyance, and Impediment, or Place whereof any ſuch Complaint ſhall be made. And thereupon, to preſent or notify the ſame by a Day to the Steward, or to the Homage at the next General Court; that there may be ſet a Pain or Amerciament, or both, for the ſame, by the Homage at the ſaid next Court, according to the Quality of the Offence.

The Homage at every General Court is to preſent deceaſed TENANTS.

Item, the Homage of either of the ſaid Manors, are to make Preſentment at every General Court to be holden for the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, of all the Cuſtomary or Copyhold Tenants, that they ſhall know ſhall be deceaſed after the Court then laſt paſt, or at any Time before the ſaid Court, whoſe Deaths were not then found and preſented, and that held any Copyhold, or Cuſtomary, or reputed Copyhold or Cuſtomary Lands or Tenements of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them. And alſo (as near as they can) preſent what Lands every of them died ſeized of, and of what Eſtate, and when he died, and who is the next Heir or Heirs to the ſame Perſon or Perſons ſo dying ſeized, and of what Age or Ages the ſaid Heir or Heirs ſhall then be of, as near as they can.

Alſo they muſt preſent the Deaths of FREEHOLDERS, &c.

Item, the Homage likewiſe ought to preſent the Deaths of the Freeholders, and when they died, and who be their next Heir or Heirs, and the Ages of their Heirs, which held any Lands or Tenements of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, and the Nature of their Tenures, ſo near as they can: To the Intent the Lord may have his Relief, which is but the Value of one Year's Quit-Rent, of the Tenements holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them by Socage Tenure.

What ſhall be done, if the next HEIR be not known.

IF the Homage at any of the ſaid Courts of either of the ſaid Manors, ſhall not know who is next Heir or Heirs to any of the ſaid Cuſtomary Tenants ſo dying ſeized, when they ſhall make their Preſentments; that then they ſhall make their Preſentment ſo accordingly, and then upon the ſaid Preſentment at the next General Court then after, the Steward of the ſaid Manors of either of them, or his Deputy for the Time being, within the ſaid Preſentment ſhall ſo be made, ſhall cauſe a Proclamation to be made in open Court, to the Intent every ſuch Heir or Heirs may have Knowledge to come, and take up the Lands and Tenements of his or their Anceſtors; and ſo the Steward or his Deputy ſhall cauſe a Proclamation to be made, from General Court to General Court, until three open and publick Proclamations be made in full Court, at three General Courts: Which General Courts (by the ſaid Cuſtom) are uſed to be holden commonly one half Year after another, or thereabout: So that from the Preſentment made by the ſaid Homage, of the dying ſeized of the ſaid laſt Tenant, unto the laſt Proclamation, ſhall be fully two Years.

And if there ſhall come no Heir of the ſaid Lands or Tenements, nor any for him or them, before the End of the Court next after the Court whereat the laſt of the ſaid three Proclamations ſhall be made, to make his or their Claim, and prove himſelf, or themſelves to the Homage of the Court in ſuch Sort as They, or the greater Part of Them ſhall allow of, to be the next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood to the ſaid Tenant deceaſed, or to have Title to the Lands and Tenements, nor to ſhew and prove, as aforeſaid, who is or ought to be next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood to the ſaid Tenant deceaſed, or next Heir or Heirs expectant, upon any Eſtate determined: Then the Lord of the Manor, whereof the ſame Land is holden for the Time being, ſhall and may, after the next Court, next after the ſaid three Proclamations ſo to be made, ſeize the Lands and Tenements, which were the ſaid Perſons ſo dying ſeized, whoſe next Heir or Heirs, or ſuch as ſhall have Title thereunto cannot be found, or ſhall not come and make his or their Claim and Proof as aforeſaid: And the ſame Lord then to make the Iſſue and Profits thereof to his own Uſe until ſuch Perſon or Perſons ſons come, that ſhall prove him or them next Heir or Heirs to the ſaid Perſon or Perſons ſo dying ſeized. And if none ſhall come in within three Years next after the third and laſt Proclamation made as aforeſaid, that ſhall and can convey and prove him or them to be next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood, or ſhew or prove, who is or ought to be next Heir or Heirs, or to have Title as next in Remainder or Reverſion as aforeſaid; that the ſaid Lands and Tenements be forfeited, or ſhall eſcheat unto the Lord of the ſaid Manor or Manors for the Time being.

Except, that if the ſaid Land and Tenements ſhall or ought immediately to deſcend, remain, revert, come to any Woman Covert, or Infant within the Age of one and twenty Years, or to any Perſon or Perſons being in Priſon, or any Perſon or Perſons not of Sanæ Memoriæ, or that ſhall not be within the Realm at the Time of the Death of the ſaid laſt Tenant dying ſo ſeized, or at the Time of the firſt, ſecond and third Proclamation to be made as aforeſaid; that there in every ſuch Caſe, the Lord (for the Time being) ſhall have but the Profits of the ſaid Lands and Tenements, until ſuch Perſons, or his or their Heir or Heirs ſhall come and make their Claim: So that the ſaid Claim be made by the ſaid Woman, or her Heirs, within five Years next after the Death of her ſaid Husband, or by her Huſband and herſelf during Time of her Coverture: And by ſuch Perſon being within Age, or his Heirs, before he ſhall or ſhould accompliſh his Age of one and twenty Years: And by the Perſon of Non Sanæ Memoriæ, within five Years next after he ſhall recover, and be of Sanæ Memoriæ; and by the Heir of ſuch Perſon of Non Sanæ Memoriæ, within five Years next after the Death of his ſaid Anceſtor, or before: And by the ſaid Perſon that ſhall ſo be out of the Realm, or his Heirs, within five Years after he ſhall return; or if he ſhall not return within five Years after his Death: And by the ſaid Perſon or Perſons in Priſon, within one whole Year next after his or their Enlargement from ſuch Impriſonment.

No Dower for Women, nor Courteſy of England for Men.

Item, In the ſaid Manors, or either of them, Women ought not to have Dowers of any cuſtomary Lands or Tenements within the Manors aforeſaid, nor any of them: Nor Men to have any Eſtate as Tenants, by the Courteſy of England.

Estates of Inheritance ſhall deſcend according to Gavelkind.

Item, If any ſhall be ſeized of any cuſtomary Lands or Tenements, holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, of an Eſtate of Inheritance, and ſhall have two Sons, or three Sons, or more; or having no Sons, ſhall have divers Daughter; or having neither Sons nor Daughters, ſhall have divers collateral Heirs in one Nearneſs of Blood; or that are to make their Reſort from thoſe that were of the ſame Nearneſs of Blood to the Tenant dying: They ſhall be all Coheirs to their ſaid cuſtomary Lands and Tenemehts, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind.

Touching Deſcents where the Tenant left Iſſue.

Item, If any Man or Women die ſeized (as aforeſaid) of any cuſtomary Lands or Tenements of any State of Inheritance, holden of the ſaid Manors or of any of them, and ſhall have Iſſue two or three Sons, or more, whereof one or two or more of them ſhall be married, and have Iſſue in the Life of their Father or Mother, and ſhall die before his or their Father or Mother; or having no Sons, ſhall have divers Daughters, whereof one or more ſhall be married and have Iſſue, and die in the Life of the Father or Mother; that then the ſaid Iſſue ſhall inherit, and be Coheir with the ſaid Son or Sons, Daughter or Daughters that ſhall ſurvive his, her or their ſaid Father or Mother that ſo ſhall die ſeized as is aforeſaid, whether the ſaid Iſſue be Male or Female, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind.

How Lands ſhall deſcend to thoſe of the whole Blood, where the Tenant left no Issue.

Item, If any Perſon or Perſons die ſeized as aforeſaid, and ſhall leave behind him neither Son nor Daughter, then the next of his or their Kin (being of the whole Blood) ſhall be Heir or Heirs to the ſaid Perſon or Perſons ſo dying ſeized; that is to ſay, his, her or their Brother or Brothers, Brother or Brothers Children, or Childrens Children, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind, &c. as long as any of that Iſſue ſhall be alive, being of the whole Blood. And in Default of ſuch Iſſue, the Siſter and Siſters Children, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind, &c. ſo long as any Iſſue ſhall be alive, and of the whole Blood; and for Lack of ſuch Iſſue, the Uncles and their Iſſues, being of the whole Blood, ſo long as any Iſſue ſhall be living: And in Default of ſuch Iſſue, the Aunts and their Children, ſo long as any ſhall be living of the whole Blood; and for Lack of ſuch Iſſue the next of Kin of the whole Blood, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind.

Males and Females of one Womb cannot join to be Coheirs.

Item, If any Perſon ſo dying ſeized as aforeſaid, without Iſſue of his Body, and having divers Brothers of the whole Blood, whereof the one or ſome of them ſhall have been married, and ſhall have Iſſue, and after Iſſue had, ſhall die, before the ſaid Brother dying ſeized as aforeſaid; that then the Iſſues of the ſaid Brother or Brothers, ſo dying before him that died ſeized, as aforeſaid, ſhall join and be Coheir with his Brother or Brothers that ſurviveth the Brother that ſo died ſeized, as aforeſaid, whether the ſaid Iſſue be Males or Females. But Males and Females of one Belly or Womb cannot join to be Coheirs together: So that the Courſe of Deſcents is to be obſerved by the ſaid Cuſtom, according to the Cuſtom and Nature of Lands in Gavelkind.

Touching Descents.

Item, Likewiſe ſhall the Iſſue of the Daughter, that ſhall die in the Life of the Father or Mother, be Coheir with the Aunt that liveth, being of the whole Blood.

Descents.

Item, Likewiſe ſhall the Uncles, and the Uncles Brothers Children (being of the whole Blood) be Coheirs together as aforeſaid.

Descents.

Item, Likewiſe ſhall the Aunts, and the Aunts Siſters Children join and be Coheirs as aforeſaid, and ſo forth of all other further Degrees, of all collateral Heirs, being of the whole Blood, which may convey themſelves to be any Couſins, and Heirs of the whole Blood to any Perſon or Perſons dying ſeized of any of the aforeſaid cuſtomary Lands or Tenements, according to the Cuſtom of Gavelkind.

How COPYHOLDERS of Inheritance may ſurrender.

ITem, By the Cuſtom of the ſaid ſeveral Manors, every Copyholder of Inheritance in Fee Simple, may ſurrender his ſaid Copyhold Lands and Tenements, or any Part or Parcel thereof unto the Lord, to the Uſe of any Perſon or Perſons, and to his and their Heirs for ever, or to his or their Heirs of his or their Bodies, or any otherwiſe in Taile, or for Life, or Lives, or Years, or to any Perſon or Perſons, and his or their Heirs: To the Intent the ſaid Copyhold Tenant may declare his laſt Will and Teſtament upon the ſame Lands and Tenements, or to any other Uſe or Uſes, unleſs it be to any Corporation or Corporations, or Bodies Politick or Corporate. And every Copyholder in Tail, or for Life, Lives or Years, of either of the ſaid Manors, may in like Manner (by the Cuſtoms of the ſaid Manors and of either of them) ſurrender their Copyhold Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Part thereof, according to the Nature of their Eſtates; ſo the ſame Surrender be made according to the Cuſtom concerning Surrenders, as afore in theſe Preſents is ſpecified, or hereafter enſueth. And all the ſame Perſons, to whoſe Uſe every Surrender ſhall be made, are to have their Copies made to hold of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Cuſtom of the Manor, whereof they have been holden by the Rents and Services therefore due and accuſtomed. Upon every of which Surrender, the Fine and Fines for the ſame hereafter expreſſed, is by the ſaid Cuſtom to be paid, and to be entered into the ſeveral Copies or the Margents of them.

SURRENDERS taken by the Headborough or Reeve, in Preſence of ſix TENANTS.

ITem, By the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, every Surrender taken out of the Court by the Headborough or Reeve, or his Deputy, and in the Preſence of ſix Cuſtomary Tenants of the Manor, of which the ſaid Lands or Tenements ſurrendered ſhall be Parcel, witneſſing the ſame Surrender of any Perſon or Perſons, of his or their Cuſtomary Lands or Tenements, holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them. And being of the full Age of one and twenty Years, or upwards (except Women Covert-baron, and ſuch as are not of perfect Mind) to the Uſe of any Perſon or Perſons; are, and ought to be as good, as if it were taken in open Court by the ſaid Steward of the Manors, or of either of them; ſo that ſuch Surrender be by the Homage preſented, as hereafter followeth.

Surrender of WOMEN Covert-baron, in Extremity of Sickneſs.

ITem, The Surrender by a Woman Covert-baron, being of the Age of one and twenty Years, made together with her Husband, of the Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, whereof ſhe is ſeized or eſtated; is, and ſhall be a good Surrender of her Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof ſhe is ſeized and eſtated; and ſhall be a good Surrender of her Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of the ſame; the ſame Surrender being made in her Extremity of Sickneſs, or Likelihood of Death, by the Acceptance of the Reeve of the Manor, whereof the Lands and Tenements ſo ſurrendered, are Parcel, and his Deputy, or either of them, in the Preſence of ſix Cuſtomary Tenants, or by the Acceptance of the Headborough, in the Preſence of ſix Cuſtomary Tenants. But if any ſuch Woman Covert-baron, ſo ſurrendering, do after that recover her Health, and do not at the next General Court then following ratify and confirm the ſame, before the Steward or his Deputy, in the Preſence of the Homage, then the ſame Surrender is and ſhall be void. And all other Surrenders made by any Woman Covert-baron, except before the Steward of the Manor, or his Deputy, where ſhe ſhall be ſolely examined, or in Extremity of Sickneſs, as is aforeſaid, are and ſhall be void.

All SURRENDERS, taken by the Reeve or Headborough, muſt be preſented at the firſt or ſecond next General Court.

ITem, All Surrenders taken of Women, as aforeſaid, or of Men by the Reeve, or his Deputy, or by a Headborough for the Time being, and in the Preſence of ſix Cuſtomary Tenants, as aforeſaid; ſhall be, and ought to be, by the Homage preſented, at the firſt or ſecond next General Court, holden for the Manor whereof the ſame is holden, after the taking thereof; or within one Year and a Day next after the taking of the ſame Surrender, if any ſuch General Court be holden within a Year and a Day next after the ſame Surrender ſo taken: Or elſe if no ſuch General Court be holden within a Year and a Day; then to be by the Homage preſented at the next General Court to be holden for the ſame Manor, next after the ſame Year and Day; is and ſhall be a good Surrender, as if the ſame had been taken by the Steward or Deputy of that Manor; or Woman examined, as aforeſaid, in open Court, or otherwiſe. All Surrenders taken by the Reeve or his Deputy, or by a Headborough, and in the Preſence of ſix Tenants, and not preſented by the ſaid Homage in Manner and Form aforeſaid, are and ſhall be void. But when any Surrender ſhall be made by any Perſon, to the Uſe of his or her Will and Teſtament, to the Intent that he or ſhe may thereby, or thereupon, make and declare his or her laſt Will and Teſtament; that Surrender is to be preſented at the firſt or ſecond Court General of that Manor, happening next after the Deceaſe of the Party ſo ſurrendering perfectly known, and not before. But if the ſame be not at the firſt or ſecond Court (next after Death of the ſame Party) preſented; or if the ſame Party hath before (in his Life-time) made any other Surrender of the ſame Lands or Tenements, and the ſame to be preſented; then the ſaid Surrender, to the Uſe of ſuch laſt Will and Teſtament, is, and ſhall be void.

The HOMAGE muſt write Billa Vera upon their Preſentments and good Surrenders.

ITem, The Homage muſt write Billa Vera upon every Surrender by them preſented, when they find the ſame Surrenders agreeable to the Cuſtom. And alſo upon every other of their Preſentments, ſhall make Billa Vera, when they be agreable to the ſaid Cuſtom: Or elſe, if the ſaid Homage receive any Surrender, or other Bills to them exhibited, which be doubtful or repugnant to the Cuſtom of the Manor whereof the Land is holden, upon every ſuch Surrender or Bill, Ignoramus ſhall be made, or the like Superſcription, to the Intent it may be known to be doubtful or naught, or elſe return the ſame naughty Surrenders or Bills back again, to the Parties that exhibited the ſame.

What WOMEN COVERT-BARON may do.

ITem, Every Woman being Covert-Baron, of the Age of one and twenty Years, or upwards, having any cuſtomary Lands or Tenements to her or her Heirs for Life, Lives, or Years, and holden of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, may, together with her Husband, (by the Hands of of the ſaid Steward, or his ſufficient Deputy) ſurrender all her ſaid Lands and Tenements, Intereſt and Term of Years, to the Uſe of her ſaid Husband, or to any other Perſon or Perſons at their Will and Pleaſure, ſo as ſhe be ſolely and ſecretly examined before the Steward, or his ſufficient Deputy.

SURRENDERS taken out of Court by the Steward, or his Deputy.

Item, All Surrenders taken out of the Court by the Steward of the ſaid Manors, or of any of them, or his ſufficient Deputy, of any Perſon or Perſons, being of the full Age of one and twenty Years or more, and of Sanæ Memoriæ, of any of their cuſtomary Lands and Tenements holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, be good by the Cuſtoms of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them; and the ſame ought to be publiſhed and notified to the Homage at the next General Court, or elſe Surrenders are alſo void.

The FINES are certain, and not arbitrary.

Item, All the Fines upon Admittances for any the now Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, of all and every the Perſons named Parties to the ſaid Indenture, holden by Copy of Court-Roll, are and ought to be certain, and not arbitrary, or at the Will of the Lord. And the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, ought to have and take Fines upon Admittances, as hereafter follows, and not other or greater; that is to ſay, upon the Admiſſion of the Heir or Heirs, after a Deſcent for every Acre of Land (of what Nature and Kind ſoever) ſixteen Pence, and ſo after that Rate, for greater or leſs Quantities of Land. And upon Admiſſion of one Perſon only, after any Surrender, the like Sum of ſixteen Pence for every Acre; and ſo after that Rate for every greater or leſs Quantity of Land: But if more than one Perſon be admitted after or upon any Surrender, then every of the ſame Perſons are to pay half ſo much as one Perſon ought to pay, and not more. Likewiſe upon Admiſſion of the Heirs or Heir, after a Deſcent for every Meſſuage cuſtomary, with the Courts, Yards, Eaſements, Orchards, and Gardens, thereunto belonging, for a Fine, the Sum of thirteen Shillings, four Pence, and not more. And for a Dwelling-Houſe, called a Tenement, with the Courts, Yards, Orchards, Eaſements, and Gardens thereunto belonging, the Sum of ten Shillings, and not more. And for a Cottage, uſed for a Dwelling, with Eaſements and Gardens thereunto belonging, or without Garden, and not demiſed for more than three Pounds by the Year, the Sum of twenty Pence. But for a Building, not uſed for a Dwelling-Houſe, ſo much only as according to the Quantity of the Land after the Rate of ſixteen Pence the Acre. And for greater Cottages uſed for dwelling, and which ſhall be let for above three Pounds by the Year, with the Courts, Yards, Orchards, and Eaſements thereunto belonging, the Sum of ten Shillings And the like is of Meſſuages, Tenements and Cottages hereafter to be built. And upon or after any Surrender, at the Admiſſion, the like Fines are to be paid for one Perſon: But if any Surrender be made by any Perſon or Perſons, to a Man and his Wife, then a whole Fine is to be paid for the Husband, and half a Fine is to be paid for the Wife. And if more Perſons be admitted upon one Surrender, then every of the ſame Perſons are to pay for Fine, half ſo much as one Perſon ought to pay, and not more.

All Acres to be accounted, according to the Statute or Ordinance, De terris menſurandis, and Orchards and Gardens not belonging to ſuch Meſſuages, Tenements or Cottages, are to pay as Lands, according to the Quantity thereof, according to the Rate aforeſaid. And Parts of Meſſuages, Parts of Tenements, and Parts of Cottages, are to pay for Fines reſpectively (in regard of the Whole) according to the Rate of the Whole. And all Fines paid are to be ſet down and expreſſed in the Copy of the Court-Roll thereof, or in the Margent of the ſame Copy. And if any Queſtion or Doubt ſhall hereafter ariſe, about the diſcerning and true Eſtimation what, or which be, or ought to be accounted a Meſſuage; and what, or which, a Dwelling-Houſe, called a Tenement; and what, or which, a Cottage, the ſame is to be referred to the Homage of the Manor at the next General Court, and by the ſame to be tried, ordered, determined, and preſented, and according to ſuch Preſentments, Fines are to be paid.

If the LORD refuſe to admit, then, &c.

Item, If the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, or his or their Steward (for the Time being) ſhall refuſe to admit any Perſon or Perſons, to whom or to what Uſe ſuch Surrender (as in the precedent Article is expreſſed) ſhall be made, or ſhall refuſe to admit ſuch Perſon or Perſons, to whom any of the ſaid Copyhold, or cuſtomary or reputed Copyhold, or cuſtomary Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments ſhall deſcend, according to the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, and true Meaning of theſe Schedules: Then the Perſon ſo not admitted, paying or tendering to the Lord or his Reeve, Fine or Fines for the ſame (according to the true Meaning of theſe Schedules) ſhall and may into ſuch Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, ſo ſurrender or deſcended, reſpectively enter; and the ſame quietly have, hold, and enjoy as freely, and in ſuch Sort, as if he or they had been thereunto lawfully admitted, and not otherwiſe.

SURRENDER to make the Wife a Jointure.

Item, If any Man make a Surrender, only to the Intent to make his Wife a Jointure, or to aſſure it to his Wife for Term of her Life, or during her Widowhood, not altering the Eſtate of the Inheritance; then for the Fine of the ſame, or any Admittance thereupon, there ſhall be paid but half a Fine for the ſame Things ſo ſurrendered: That is to ſay, half ſo much as one Perſon ſhould pay upon Admittance, according to the true Meaning of theſe Schedules. And the like is to be uſed where the Husband and Wife make a Surrender of the Lands of the Wife; to the End only to make an Eſtate thereof to the Husband jointly with his Wife, or to the Husband for Term of his Life in Poſſeſſion or Remainder. And likewiſe (by the ſaid Cuſtom) for every Tenant that ſhall not be admitted in Reverſion or Remainder expectant, upon the Eſtate of any particular Tenant for Life, in Taile or for Years, granted by the Copy; the ſame is but half ſo much as it is upon other Admittances, upon Alienations, Surrenders, or dying ſeized as aforeſaid.

DUTIES to the HOMAGE and Tenants for Bills and Surrenders.

Item, Every Perſon that exhibits or delivers any Surrender, or Bill to the Homage, ought to give and pay to the ſame Homage, for every ſuch Surrender or Bill, four Pence, and every of the ſaid ſix Tenants, and alſo the Headborough or Reeve (which ſhall be at the taking of any Surrenders Surrenders as aforeſaid) ought to have four Pence a-piece of the Parties that make the Surrender, if the ſame Surrender be taken within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them. But if they go out of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, for the taking of the ſame; then to have eight Pence a-piece, and their Charges, if they ſhall go further off. And the Party that procures the ſaid Surrender, ought to give to the ſaid Tenants four Pence, beſide the ſaid Fees, which four Pence is to be delivered with the ſaid Surrender, or elſe he that brings in the ſaid Surrender, without the ſaid four Pence, ſhall pay it of his own Purſe to the Homage.

Though an HEIR be admitted, yet upon a new Claim, the HOMAGE ſhall enquire, &c. for a CO-HEIR.

Item, If it chance at any Time, upon the Death of any Copyholder, or cuſtomary Tenant, that there is an Heir or Heirs found, and preſented by the Homage, and after is or are admitted to the Lands or Tenements of the ſaid Copyholder, and at that Time no other Heirs ſhall be known; and after it ſhall chance that one other comes and claims to be Co-heir with the ſaid Heir that is admitted; then the Homage ought thereof to enquire, and if they find his Claim true, they ought to preſent the ſame. And then he or they ſo claiming, ſhall be likewiſe admitted, and pay his Fine, and have his Part of the Premiſſes, notwithſtanding the former Admiſſion.

Where TENANTS are admitted, and after that another claims the Whole: The HOMAGE is not bound to enquire, but he is driven to his Suit.

Item, If any Man be admitted to any Poſſeſſion, or to any Reverſion or Remainder of any Lands or Tenemenrs, whether they be to him deſcended as ſhall be ſuppoſed, or to him ſurrendered by any other Perſon, and after that comes another Perſon or Perſons, who pretends a Title to the whole Premiſes, or any Part thereof, and deſires that the Homage may enquire thereof: In this Caſe the ſaid Homage is not bound thereof to enquire; but he or they are driven to his or their Suit or Plaint, whether his or their Title be right or wrong; except in ſuch Caſe where any Perſon or Perſons ſhall claim as in the next precedent Article. And yet if any ſhall require the Homage, to find whether he or they were the Son or Daughter, or Sons or Daughters of ſuch a one or no, and the Homage knowing, or well informed of the Truth, that he or they ſhall be the Son, or Sons or Daughters of him or her, that died ſeized of the Lands then in Queſtion; the Homage ought therein to preſent the Truth: But not to preſent, whether he or they ought to have the Premiſes, or any Part thereof, to which another Perſon is already preſented. But in ſuch Caſe, he or they ſhall be driven to his or their Suit or Plaint, as aforeſaid, for Recovery of their ſaid Right, if any Right they have; except in ſuch Caſe where any Perſon or Perſons ſhall claim, as in the next precedent Article.

How LANDS deſcended are to be taken up.

Item, After the Death of every Perſon, being a cuſtomary Tenant of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, the next Heir or Heirs ought to come and take up the Lands and Tenements, whereof his or their Anceſtors ſo ſhall die ſeized, of what Age ſoever he be. And if he or they be of the Age of fourteen Years or upwards, he is to be admitted in his own Perſon, within a convenient Time after he or they ſhall be preſented. Or elſe if he or they be under the Age of fourteen Years, then to come and take it up by his Guardian, until he be of the Age of fourteen Years, as aforeſaid, and to pay for his Fine, according to the Rates expreſſed in theſe Schedules; and the Guardian to pay but three Shillings and four Pence at the moſt for his Fine for the Guardianſhip, or leſs, as the Steward or his Deputy ſhall think fit. And for Lands deſcended from the Part of the Father; the next Couſin of the Part on the Mother, not able to inherit thoſe Lands, ought to be Guardian. And if the Lands came from the Part of the Mother, then the like Couſin of the Part of the Father ought to be Guardian, if that Perſon will accept thereof. And upon their Refuſal, or not praying to be admitted Guardian at the firſt or ſecond Court after that Infant ought to be admitted; then may the Steward admit any other of the Kindred of the Infant (to whom his Lands cannot deſcend) to be Guardian. And if none of the Kindred will accept of the Guardianſhip, then may another be admitted. And every Guardian ſhall account to the Heir of the Profits, and repair the Copyhold Tenements of him whoſe Guardian he is: And upon Admittance be bound to the Lord for the Time being, with Condition for Performance thereof, in ſuch Sum as the Homage of the ſaid Court, or the greater Part thereof ſhall like of. And of the Lands of every Infant under fourteen Years of Age, that ſhall be a Purchaſer; a Guardian ſhall be admitted, and ſhall ſo demean himſelf in ſuch Manner, as for the Guardian of an Infant (having Lands by Deſcent) is limited and appointed.

They to whoſe Uſe LANDS are ſurrendered ought within three Years after the Preſentment take them up.

Item, Every Perſon to whoſe Uſe any of the ſaid Lands or Tenements ſhall be ſurrendered, ought to come within three Years after the ſame be preſented, and take up the ſame by himſelf, if he be of Age, and to be admitted as aforeſaid, and to pay his Fine, or elſe by his Guardian, as is aforeſaid.

The LORD may diſtrain for the FINES, or by Default of Diſtreſs, ſeize the Lands.

Item, If any of the ſaid Heirs, Aliens or Guardians, do not pay their Fines within one Month after the ſame Fines be extracted, and the Extracts delivered to the Reeve or his Deputy, for the gathering thereof, and by them or either of them demanded; then it ſhall be lawful for the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manor or Manors for the Time being, or his or their Officers to diſtrein, and avow as for Rents: And for Want of Diſtreſs, to ſeize the Lands and Tenements, for which the ſaid Fine or Fines are to be paid, and to enjoy the ſame to his or their own Uſe, until he or they ſhall be fully ſatisfied, and paid the ſaid Fine or Fines to be paid by him or them that ſo ought to pay the ſame.

The like he may do for Non-payment of the QUIT-RENT.

Item, If any Cuſtomary or Copyhold Tenant of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, ſhall not pay his Rents for his Copyhold, for which the ſame is due, and demanded by the ſaid Reeve or his Deputy, then it ſhall be lawful for the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manor or Manors, for the Time being, or his or their Officers, to diſtrein and avow. And for Want of ſufficient Diſtreſs, to ſeize the Lands and Tenements, out of which the ſame ought to be paid, and to take and enjoy joy the Rents, Iſſues and Profits of the ſame to his or their own Uſe, until he or they ſhall be fully ſatisfied and paid the ſame Rents by him or them that ſo ought to pay the ſame.

Who ſhall be the GUARDIAN

Item, That when any Tenant dies ſeized, leaving his Heir under the Age of fourteen Years, the next of the Kin (to whom the ſaid Lands and Tenements cannot deſcend) ſhall have, if he ſhall require it, the Cuſtody of the Heir, and of his Lands and Tenements, committed to him for the Uſe of the Heir, until he come to the Age of fourteen, as is aforeſaid, and then he to chuſe his own Guardian, and the former Guardian at any Time after (upon reaſonable Requeſt) to yield Account to the Heir of the Profits of his Lands received.

TENANTS may let Leaſes for one and thirty Years, and four Months, without any Licence or Fine.

Item, If any Perſon or Perſons be diſpoſed to let his or their Cuſtomary Lands, or Tenements to any other Perſon or Perſons, and to their Executors and Aſſigns, for the Term of one and thirty Years, or leſs; the ſame Perſon or Perſons have, and ſhall have full Power and Authority, to ſet or let to Farm, his or their Copyhold Lands or Tenements to any Perſon or Perſons, their Heirs, Executors and Aſſigns, for the Term of one and thirty Years, and four Months or leſs, in Poſſeſſion from the Time of the making thereof in Writing, without any Licence to him or them to be granted, and without paying Fine to the Lord, or incurring any Forfeiture or Seizure of or for the ſame; ſo as the ſame Leaſe do not exceed one and thirty Years and four Months, from the Time of the making thereof; but ſuch Leaſe is and ought to be preſented to the Homage of the Manor, whereof the Lands or Tenements ſo leaſed are held, within one Year after the making thereof, or elſe the ſame Leaſe ſo made and not preſented as aforeſaid, ſhall be void and of none Effect.

Either Manor is upon every Change of LORD, to pay five Pounds for Recognition-Money.

Item, The Cuſtom of the Manor is, to give to the Lord of every of the ſaid Manors, upon the Change of every Lord, at the next Court after the firſt Entry, bona fide, ten Pounds of lawful Money of England, that is to ſay, out of each Manor five Pounds for the Recognition and acknowledging the Service, which is to be levied and collected by the Reeve for the Time being, amongſt all the ſaid Copyholders of the ſaid Manors reſpectively, according to the Rates they ſhall be taxed at by the Homage at the next Court to be holden after the Coming of the new Lord.

How the REEVE of either MANOR is to be choſen.

Item, The Homage of every of the ſaid Manors ought yearly (at the General Court to be holden next after Michaelmas) to elect and chuſe ſeveral Reeves for every of the ſaid Manors; that is to ſay, to elect and chuſe two Cuſtomary Tenants, either of the ſaid Perſons named Parties to the ſaid Preſents, their Heirs or Aſſigns, or of others not named, to bear the Office of the Reeve for each of the ſaid Manors; namely, he that was before in Election (if he be alive) and one other; or if he be dead, two other, to the Intent the Lord of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, or his Steward, may appoint the one of them ſo elected for one whole Year; that is, one to ſerve for each of the ſaid Manors; ſo he be appointed within that Manor of which he is a Tenant, and for which he ſhall be ſo choſen. Which Reeve being ſo appointed, ought to take upon him the ſaid Office for one whole Year then next enſuing, to execute the ſame by himſelf or his Deputy, for whom he ſhall anſwer, and to be ſubject to account and anſwer for the ſame, as in the ſaid Preſents is ſet down.

And if a Copyholder ſhall be duly choſen, and appointed by the Homage to be the Lord's Reeve, as aforeſaid, and (according to his Turn) preſented by the Homage, and ſhall refuſe to ſerve the ſaid Office by himſelf or his Deputy; then every ſuch Perſon ſo refuſing, within the ſaid Manor of Hackney, ſhall pay for a Fine ſix Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence. And every ſuch Perſon ſo refuſing, within the ſaid Manors of Stebenhith or Stepney, ſhall pay for a Fine ten Pounds to the Lord of the Manor, whereof his Lands are holden. And the Homage of the ſame Manor ſhall be charged from Time to Time to chuſe another Reeve, in the Place of him that ſhall ſo refuſe until ſuch Time as (for the ſame Manor) one be choſen that ſhall and will ſerve the ſaid Office. And every Copyholder that ſhall be choſen and appointed to the ſaid Office as aforeſaid, and ſhall refuſe to ſerve the ſame Office, ſhall pay the Fine aforeſaid to the Lord of that Manor for his Refuſal. The one half of all which Fines or Fine of Tenant or Tenants ſo refuſing to accept and execute the ſaid Office of Reeveſhip, according to the true Meaning of theſe Schedules, the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, of whom ſuch Tenant or Tenants ſo refuſing ſhall hold, ought, and ſhall from Time to Time allow to ſuch Perſon or Perſons, as being choſen and appointed to be Reeve, as aforeſaid; and ſhall and will, next after the Refuſal of any one or more of the ſaid Tenants ſo choſen, accept and ſerve the ſaid Office; the Moiety of the ſaid Fine or Fines, reſpectively to be by him defaulked and retained in his Account. And by the Lord of that Manor, upon the ſame Reeves Account (whenſoever he ſhall account for the ſame) to be duly and juſtly allowed.

In what Caſes the LORD may ſeize the Reeves Lands.

Item, If any Copyholder, that ſhall accept, and execute the ſaid Office of Reeve, ſhall refuſe to ſatisfy and pay to the Lord, the yearly Quit-rents and Fines for Admittances upon Alienations or Deſcents, wherewith ſuch Reeve ſhall or may be lawfully charged, by and according to the true Meaning of theſe Preſents; or ſhall refuſe to account with the Lord, within two Months next yearly after Michaelmas, having had the Rental and Extracts of Fines upon Admittances, as aforeſaid, for that Year, by the Space of two Months: Every ſuch Reeves Lands, and Tenements, that ſhall ſo refuſe to account, and pay the ſaid Rents and Fines which he ſhall or may have collected, as aforeſaid, ſhall be ſeized into the Lord's Hand, and the Lord ſhall and may take to his own Uſe the Iſſues and Profits of his ſaid Lands and Tenements, until he ſhall pay to the Lord the Rents and Fines aforeſaid: And until he has alſo ſatisfied and paid for his ſaid Offence, (viz.) being Reeve of Hackney, ſix Pounds thirteen Shillings four Pence, and being Reeve of Stepney, ten Pounds. Nevertheleſs, the Reeve ought not, nor ſhall be charged or chargeable to anſwer any Quit-Rents contained in any Rental or Extracts, tracts, unleſs it appear to him by the Rental of the former Reeve, or otherwiſe be made known to him by ſome of the Lord's Officers, who is the Tenant, or where the Land lies, for and in Reſpect of which the ſame Quit-Rents ought to be paid.

No REEVES, within this Compoſition, ſhall be charged with the Leet, or Court-Baron, otherwiſe than in Article 45, nor provide for any Dinners, except, &c.

Item, No Copyholder of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, being named Parties to the ſaid Indenture, nor their Heirs or Aſſigns, ought or ſhall (at any Time) be charged to collect or gather any of the Amerciaments, Fines, or other Iſſues or Profits of the Courts-Leets, or Courts-Baron, holden within the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, otherwiſe than in the laſt precedent Article is mentioned; nor to provide or allow for any Dinners, either on the Day or Days the Court-Leet ſhall be holden upon, or on the Day or Days of the two General Courts, but are and ſhall be thereof for ever freed and diſcharg'd, except that ſuch Tenant, or his Heirs, ſhall hereafter purchaſe or have other cuſtomary Lands than thoſe that the ſaid Perſons, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture, or ſome one of them the ſaid Perſons do now hold, which ſhall be worth to be ſold (at leaſt) two hundred Pounds of lawful Money of England, or ſhall be of the clear yearly Value of twenty Pounds of like Money.

What TENANTS may be choſen REEVES.

Item, Every one of the ſaid Cuſtomary Tenants, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture, whoſe Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, holden by Copy or Court-Roll of either of the ſaid Manors, are worth ſixteen Pounds of like Money, as aforeſaid, by the Year to be let, or two hundred Pounds to be ſold, by the Eſtimation and Preſentment of the Homage of the ſame Manor, ſhall bear the Office of Reeve, of and for ſuch of the ſaid Manors whereof he ſhall be a Tenant by Copy of Court-Roll, and for which he ſhall be choſen and appointed Reeve, as aforeſaid, when his or their Time and Courſe doth come.

What Allowances the REEVE is to have of the LORD.

Item, Every of the ſaid Reeves is to be allow'd of the ſaid Lords or Lord, for the executing of the ſaid Office for one Year, as follows, viz. The Reeve of Stebenhith, three Pounds ſix Shillings and eight Pence; and ſix Shillings eight Pence more, for and in Reſpect of an Allowance of a Coat Cloth to the ſaid Reeve; and the Reeve of Hackney, fifty three Shillings and four Pence, and ſix Shillings eight Pence more, for and in Reſpect of an Allowance of a Coat Cloth to the ſame Reeve; and all other Commodities due and incident to the ſaid Office for either of them, or uſed heretofore to be paid to the ſaid Reeve, by any of the Tenants of the ſaid Manors reſpectively.

The REEVE to deliver the Rental to his Succeſſor.

Item, The Reeve of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, ſhall at the next General Court, after his Year of Service expired, deliver the Rental by which he made his Account, to the Reeve that ſhall next ſucceed him, upon Pain to be amerced or fined by the Homage, if he ſhall not ſo do.

What the COPYHOLDERS may freely do without Forfeiture.

Item, All the Cuſtomary Tenants of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, may break and dig their Copyhold Grounds holden of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, at his or their Will and Pleaſure, and fell and cut down their Timber and Woods growing, or that ſhall grow upon the ſame, and convert it to their beſt Uſe and Profit, and may alſo ſuffer their Copyhold Tenements and Houſes to decay without incurring any Seizure or Forfeiture of their Eſtates therefore, or other Pain; and may take and pull down their ſaid Tenements, and erect or ſet them up again, either where they ſtood before, or upon any other Lands holden by Copy of Court-Roll of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them; but they may not, or ſhall not take or pull them down, to ſet them (or any Part of them) upon their own Freeholds, or upon the Freeholds of any other.

COPYHOLDERS may lop Trees growing upon the Waſte before their Houſes.

Item, Every of the ſaid Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture may lop and ſhred all ſuch Trees as grow before their Houſes or Tenements upon the waſte Ground, and convert the ſaid Trees ſtand for the Defence of their Houſes, Yards or Gardens: And alſo they may dig Gravel, Sand, Clay and Lome upon the ſaid waſte Grounds, to build or repair any of their Copyhold Tenements within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them, without any Licence, ſo always as every of the ſaid Copyholders do fill up ſo much as ſhall be digged by him or them.

Letting of LANDS for more than thirty one Years and four Months, is a Forfeiture.

Item, If any Perſon or Perſons, being Tenant Cuſtomary, ſhall (without Licence by Indenture, or other Writing, or otherwiſe) let his ſaid Cuſtomary Lands or Tenements for more than one and thirty Years and four Months, it ſhall be a Forfeiture of his Eſtate, by the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, being found and preſented by the Homage, or elſe otherwiſe lawfully and ſufficiently proved.

For what Offences theſe COPYHOLDERS may forfeit their Eſtates.

Item, For Treaſon or Felony whatſoever, that ſhall be committed by any Copyholder of the ſaid Manors, or of any of them, for which he ſhall be lawfully attainted, he ſhall forfeit Copyhold Lands and Tenements to the Lords of the ſaid Manor; and for all other Offence or Offences, Act or Acts whatſoever, for which a Freeholder ought (by the common Laws of the Land) to forfeit his Freehold Lands and Tenements: There a Copyholder of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, ſhall forfeit, as a Freeholder ought to forfeit, in like Caſe, his Freehold. But if a Copyholder be outlawed for any Cauſe, ſaving Felony or Treaſon, the Lord ſhall not have the Iſſue or Profits of his Lands. And if a Copyholder make a Feoffment of his Copyhold, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for Life or Lives, by Deed or without Deed, by Livery and Seiſin thereupon, or ſhall ſuffer a Recovery at the Common Law, levy a Fine, or willfully refuſe or deny to pay, do or perform his Rents, Fines, Suits, Cuſtoms and Services at any Time due to the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either either of them for the ſaid Copyholds: The ſame willful Refuſal being preſented to the Homage, the ſame ſhall be holden and reputed a Forfeiture of his Eſtate, whatſoever he ſhall have by Copy of Court-Roll, at the Time of any ſuch Act committed or done; in ſo much of his or their Copyhold Lands and Tenements, as he ſhall have committed by any ſuch Act; and only for ſo much of his Lands and Tenements out of which the ſaid Quit-Rent and other Duties is demanded and ſhall be due, and willfully denied by the ſaid Tenants, as aforeſaid. Or if any Copyholder ſhall in the Lord's-Court, or elſewhere in any Court of Record, diſclaim to hold his ſaid Copyhold Lands and Tenements of the Lord of the Manor, whereof his Lands and Tenements are holden, or ſhall (by pleading in the Lord's Court, or other Courts of Record) willfully claim their Copyholds to be Freeholds, or willingly and wittingly plead in any Real Action at the Common Law in chief as a Freehold Tenant, or ſhall willingly and wittingly do any other Act or Things, in or concerning his now Lands and Tenements, which ſhall be a Diſſeiſin or Diſinheritance of the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, their Heirs or Aſſigns other than ſuch Acts, as in theſe Articles are eſpecially mentioned (or diſpenſed withal) that then he ſhould forfeit his and their Eſtate, of and in the ſaid Lands and Tenements ſo diſclaimed, to be holden or claimed to be Freehold; or for which he ſhall plead in Chief, or do any ſuch Act or Thing, as is aforeſaid. Finally, the Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, ſhall have all ſuch other Forfeitures, Iſſues, Profits and Advantages of the ſaid Copyholds, as ſhall grow due to him by any Statute-Laws of this Realm, being not againſt and contrary to theſe Articles and Cuſtoms here expreſly ſet down.

The Act or Neglect of the TENANT for Lives or Years, ſhall not prejudice thoſe in Remainder.

Item, If any Perſon or Perſons, having any Eſtate of any Copyhold Lands or Tenements, holden of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, for Term of Life or Lives, or for Term of Years, or (in the Right of their Wives) of any Eſtates, although he, ſhe, or they, ſhall do or ſuffer, or neglect to do any Act or Acts during the Time aforeſaid, in or upon the ſaid Copyhold Lands and Tenements, which may or ſhall be contrary to the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, or either of them. The ſame Act or Acts ſo being done, ſhall not be prejudicial or hurtful to the next Perſon or Perſons to whom the ſaid Cuſtomary Lands or Tenements ſhould or ought to remain, revert, or come, nor to the ſaid Wife or her Heirs, not being Party in Court, or conſenting in Court to the ſaid Act or Forfeiture. Nor that the Lord of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, ſhall take any longer Advantages, Iſſues, or Profits of the ſame Copyhold Lands or Tenements, than during the Time of ſuch Eſtates as aforeſaid, of the Party committing, doing, or aſſenting to ſuch Act or Acts; ſo that after his or their Deceaſe, or Eſtates determined, the ſaid Lands and Tenements ſhall remain, revert, or come to the next Perſon or Perſons, or to ſuch Perſon or Perſons to whom the ſame ſhould have come or remained, or go or revert immediately after ſuch Eſtate or Eſtates ended or determined; as tho' there had been no ſuch Act or Acts done, contrary to the Tenor or true Meaning of theſe Preſents, by any ſuch Perſon or Perſons.

Private Acts of TENANTS hurt not the Cuſtoms of the reſt.

Item, The particular or private Act or Acts of any Cuſtomary Tenant or Tenants of any of the ſaid Manors, which ſhall happen to be done by, or between them, or any of them, and the Lord or Lords of the ſaid Manors, or either of them, and his or their Reeve, or of either of them, contrary to the Articles and true Meaning of theſe Preſents, neither doth nor ſhall extend to be conſtrued to be a Breach of the antient Cuſtoms of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, to the Hurt or Prejudice of the reſt of the Cuſtomary Tenants, but of themſelves only, doing the ſaid particular Act.

TENANT for Life or Years, making waſte, ſhall be fined by the HOMAGE.

Item, That if any Tenant for Term of Life, or Lives only, or for Term of Years of Cuſtomary Lands, ſhall make any Waſte, then he ſhall be fined by the Homage; the third Part of which Fine ſhall be to the Lord, and the other two Parts ſhall come to him in the Reverſion or Remainder of the ſaid Copyhold.

The LORD may diſtrain, but not ſeize.

Item, the Lord, for Non-payment of Amerciaments, may diſtrain his ſaid Tenants, Parties to theſe Preſents, and avow for the ſame as for Rents: But he cannot ſeize any of his or their Cuſtomary Lands or Tenements, Parties to theſe Preſents, for Non-payment thereof, until he be payed.

How PARTITION is to be made between Co-heirs, Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in common.

Item, Upon the Admiſſion of any Coheirs, Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in common, if they cannot agree to occupy their Lands and Tenements, or to make Partition among themſelves; then he or they that be grieved, may (by the Cuſtom of either of the ſaid Manors) have a Precept from the Steward, directed to ſeven Cuſtomary Tenants, or more, of the ſaid Manors within which the ſaid Lands and Tenements do lie: And they ſhall make Partition thereof, and the ſame return to the Steward of the ſaid Manors again, to be enrolled in the Court Rolls of the ſaid Manors, whereof the ſaid Lands or Tenements be holden. Whereupon the ſaid Heirs ſhall go to the Steward of the ſaid Manor, within which the ſaid Lands or Tenements ſhall lie; and then elect and chuſe their Parts in Form following:

That is to ſay, The youngeſt Son to chuſe firſt, and then he that is next to the youngeſt to chuſe next, and ſo after that Rate unto the eldeſt (how many ſoever) which eldeſt ſhall chuſe laſt. And likewiſe the ſame Order is to be obſerved amongſt Daughters, if there be no Sons, and amongſt all other Degrees of Heirs, touching the Cuſtomary Lands and Tenements holden of the ſaid Manors, or either of them. And upon every ſuch Partition, they ſhall pay for a Fine to the Lord, two Shillings and Six Pence, or leſs, at the Diſcretion of the Steward, according to the Quantity of the Lands or Tenements ſo parted between Tenants in common and Joint-Tenants; for the like Fine the ſaid Diviſion to be by the ſaid Tenants, without Election of the Parties themſelves, but by caſting of Lots, if they cannot otherwiſe agree.

COPYHOLDERS ſhall pay but a Penny for Poundage.

Item, if any Cuſtomary or Free Tenants Cattel, or the Cattel of their Farmers, be brought to the Lord's Pound, the ſaid Tenant, or his Farmer, ſhall pay for all his Cattel (if they be a hundred Heads, or upward or under) for the Poundage thereof, but one Penny. And he that is no Tenant, ſhall pay for every Diſtreſs of Cattel ſo pounded, four Pence.

CATTEL

CATTEL impounded to be delivered by two COPYHOLDERS.

Item, If any Cattel be impounded within the Lord's Pound, by any Perſon or Perſons, being a Cuſtomary Tenant or Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, for any Treſpaſs committed or done within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them, upon their Copyholds; that all ſuch Cattel being ſo impounded, may by two of the ſaid Cuſtomary Tenants, of ſuch of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, wherein the ſaid Treſpaſs ſhall be committed, which will anſwer for ſuch Damages and Coſts as ſhall be recovered in the ſaid Court, againſt the Owners of the ſame Cattel for the ſaid Treſpaſs, be delivered out of the ſaid Pound, unto the Owner of the ſaid Cattel, by the Cuſtom of the ſame Manors, and of either of them.

No Suits for Title of COPYHOLDS out of the Lord's Court, without Licence.

Item, No Cuſtomary Tenant ſhall ſue, vex, or trouble any other Cuſtomary Tenant, for any Title of Lands or Tenements, lying and being within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them, being Copyhold Lands or Tenements of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, out of the Lord's Court, without the ſpecial Licence firſt had and obtained of the Lord of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, or of his Steward for the Time being. If any Perſon do the contrary, he ſhall have his Lands or Tenements ſeized into the Lord's Hands, until he pay a Fine to the Lord for the ſame Offence, viz. ſuch Fine as ſhall be ſeized by the Homage at the next General Court of the ſaid Manor.

CATTEL offending, ſhall be driven to the LORD'S POUND.

Item, That no Cuſtomary Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, for any Offence to be done by any Man's Cattel, within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them, ſhall drive the ſame Cattel to any Foreign Pounds, but to the Lord's Pound, being within the ſaid Manors, or in either of them: If any Man do the contrary, to be amerced at the next General Court, by the Homage; ſo always as there be a ſufficient Pound of the Lord's there.

How Stakes, Marks, and Mears, between TENANT and TENANT ought to be ſet.

Item, That no Tenant, or any other Perſon, ſhall ſet any Stake, Mark, or Mear, between Tenant and Tenant, or between Tenant and any other Perſon that lieth next to him, without the Parties do thereunto agree, unleſs an Order be appointed by the Homage, or the greateſt Part of them, that it may be firſt viewed by twelve Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, where the Stake or Mear is to be ſet; and there to ſet the Stake or Mear (indifferently) between both the ſaid Parties, and ſo to continue it, upon Pain of Amercement by the Homage.

DRIVERS of Commons, when to be choſen.

Item, The Homage do, and ſhall yearly uſe at the next General Court, holden upon the Tueſday, the ninth Day next after Eaſter-Day, to elect and chuſe out of the Hamlets within every of the ſaid Manors, certain Cuſtomary Tenants, to be Drivers and Viewers of the Waſtes and Commons of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, for one whole Year. Which Tenants ſo elected, have Authority (by the ſaid Cuſtom) to drive the Commons at any Time when they find it ſurcharged, and to impound the Cattel by them ſo taken; and no other to drive the ſaid Common, than the Perſons that were ſo choſen as aforeſaid.

How ſurcharging the COMMON is to be remedied.

Item, If by their driving, the ſurcharging cannot be remedied, then they ought to inform the Homage thereof at the next Court, that they may amerce the Offenders, whether the Offenders be Tenants or no Tenants. And alſo to put a Pain or Amerciament upon their Heads, that they ſhall not likewiſe offend.

The DRIVERS ſhall account to the Homage.

Item, If the ſaid Drivers receive by the ſaid Poundages, any more Money than they ſpend in Travel, the reſt ſhall be employed to the ſcowring of the Common Sewers, which be upon the ſaid waſte Ground and Commons, and laying of Bridges over the ſaid Common Sewers; and ſhall make their Account (in that Behalf) to the Homage at the General Court, when the Year (for which they were choſen) ſhall expire.

The Homage may make BY-LAWS, which ſhall bind the Tenants.

Item, The Copyhold and Cuſtomary Tenants may make By-Laws at their General Courts, when Need ſhall require, which Cuſtom ſhall be ſo continued. And the ſaid By-Laws ſo by them made, ſhall bind all the Copyhold Tenants of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, ſo the ſame be not contrary to the true Meaning of theſe Articles.

RECOVERIES may be ſuffered to barre ENTAILS.

Item, By the Cuſtom of the ſaid Manors, and of either of them, Tenants in Tail of Cuſtomary Lands and Tenements, may ſuffer common Recoveries within the ſaid ſeveral Manors, with ſingle or double Vouchers; or (by Agreement) forfeit the ſaid Lands and Tenements into the Lord's Hands, for the cutting off the Eſtate Tail: Which Cuſtom (by theſe Articles) ſhall have ſtill Continuance, and ſuch Recoveries and Forfeitures, are and ſhall be good to barre the ſaid Entail.

TENANTS not appearing at Set Courts, ſhall not be amerced above Four Pence.

Item, Whenſoever there ſhall be any Court, or Courts Baron (or other than the ſaid two General Courts) kept within the ſaid Manors, or either of them; no Copyholder ought or ſhall be amerced above the Sum of four Pence, for any Default of his Appearance at any the ſame Court or Courts, except the ſaid two General Courts: Neither ſhall incur any Forfeiture, or Seizure of his Copyhold Lands or Tenements, or any other Damage for any ſuch Default. And the ſaid Amerciament to be taxed by the Aſſurers Tenants of that Court.

The STEWARD'S Fees.

Item, The Steward or his Deputy, is to have ſuch Fees and Allowances, as hereafter is expreſſed, viz. for every Surrender taken out of the Court five Shillings, and nothing for any Surrender taken in Court. For every Woman Covert-baron, that ſhall be examined, ſix Shillings and eight Pence; for every Admittance of every Perſon, two Shillings; for entering every Surrender, and and making the Copy of Court Roll thereupon, ſix Shillings and eight Pence; for every Precept for a View of Partition, and entering the ſame, and the Return thereof upon the Court Roll, and the Copy thereof, two Shillings and Six-pence: And if it exceed two Sheets of Paper, then for every Sheet over and above two Sheets, twelve Pence more. For ſearching the Court Rolls for every Year, four Pence. For every purchaſed Court, thirteen Shillings and four Pence. For entering a Note of a Leaſe, granted of any Lands or Tenements, containing the Date, Quantity of Lands or Tenements, and Certainty of Term, and to whom the ſame ſhall be granted, and for a Note thereof to the Party, ſix Pence. For theſe Things before expreſſed, the Steward ſhall have only ſuch Fees as before is declared; and for all other Things, he ſhall have as formerly hath antiently been uſed, and no more.

BUILDINGS to be erected, ſhall pay Fines, as thoſe already built.

Item, All Meſſuages, Tenements, and Cottages, that ſhall hereafter be built upon any the Copyhold Lands, whereof the Cuſtoms are hereby meant to be declared, ſhall be held and enjoyed by the Copyhold Tenants thereof, under the ſame Cuſtoms and Articles herein declared, as the Lands whereon they ſhall be built are holden and enjoyed; but ſhall pay ſuch Fines therefore, as is before expreſſed or declared for Meſſuages, Tenements, and Cottages, that ſhall be new built.

The LORD ſhall not ſever from the Manor any of theſe COPYHOLDERS, to any Perſons in Fee Simple, or other Eſtate of Freehold.

Item, The Lord of the ſaid Manors, or of either of them, their Heirs or Aſſigns, ſhall not at any Time hereafter grant, or convey (ſevered from the Manor whereof the ſame is now holden, or ought to be holden) any of the Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, whereof any of the ſaid Perſons, named Parties to the ſaid Indenture hereunto annexed, is now Copyholder or Cuſtomary Tenant, to any Perſon or Perſons in Fee Simple, Fee Tail, or for Term of Life, or other Eſtate of Freehold, or for any Eſtate or Term, other by Copy of Court Roll, according to the Cuſtoms of the ſaid Manors, and true Meaning of theſe Preſents, and the Indenture whereunto the ſame are annexed; except the Freehold to be granted or ſevered, at the Petition and Deſire of ſuch Perſon or Perſons as then ſhall be Copyholder thereof, according to the true Meaning of theſe Preſents.

And if the Lord hath granted away the Freehold of any the Copyhold Lands or Tenements, whereof the Cuſtom is hereby meant to be declared; he ſhall get and take the ſame back again; and the ſame ſhall (notwithſtanding ſuch Grant or Alienation) be annexed to the Manor whereof it was, or is held, and ſhall be held and enjoyed by the Tenant, his Heirs and Aſſigns thereof, by Copy of Court Roll of the ſame Manor, under the Rents, Services, and Cuſtoms in theſe Articles expreſſed, and not otherwiſe; and alſo, that the Lord ſhall admit by his Steward or his Deputy, all ſuch Tenant and Tenants that ought of Right to be admitted upon the Preſentment of the Homage.

The PARISH of St. MARY at ISLINGTON.

WINDING Weſt from the Pariſh of Hackney, by Dorleſton and Kingſland, Wards in the ſaid Pariſh, is Iſeldon, corruptly and commonly called Iſlington, placed pleaſantly upon a Hill; whence is a fine Proſpect of LONDON, on the North Weſt Side of which it is ſituated.

THE Church here is on the North Weſt Side of the Town; the firſt Foundation of which is unknown; but the preſent Structure is ſuppoſed to be about 230 or 40 Years ago. The Gallery was built Anno 1663, the Fire of LONDON three Years after not having Power thus far Northward. The preſent Altar-piece was made in 1671.

As to the Nature and Order of the Building; the Walls are Brick and Boulder Roof cover'd with Tile, and the Columns (which ſupport it) and Arches are Gothical; the Windows of the modern Gothick; the Floor paved with Stone and Tile, which is higher by two Steps at the Altar, than in the Body of the Church, which has three Iſles. It is built directly Eaſt and Weſt, as appears by an Erect direct South Dial on the Tower, whereon is this Motto:

Dum ſpectas fugit Hora.

As to the Ornament, it cannot be expected any conſiderable ſhould be in ſo old and decaying a Structure: But what is there to be found, is agreeable enough.

THE Roof is divided into Pannels, and (over the Chancel) painted. Here are good Pews of Oak, and the Church is wainſcotted in many Places about ſeven Feet high; but higher round the Communion-Table, painted Olive Colour, and the Mouldings gilt with Gold, adorned alſo with a Cornice at the Eaſt End, in the Middle whereof is a Glory; over which is a ſpacious Window, (wherein appears the Ruins of fine Glaſs Painting) between the two Tables of the Decalogue, depencill'd in black Letters on the white Wall.

THE Dimenſions are, Length 92 Feet, Breadth 54, Altitude 28, and that of the Tower 74 Feet, in which are ſix Bells to ring in Peal.

MONUMENTS.

ON the South Wall, near the End of the South Iſle, is a very ſpacious coſtly Marble Tomb and Monument of white and veined Marble, adorned with two Columns, and their Entablament, of the Corinthian Order; alſo pyramidal Figures and thoſe of the Lady, lying on her Left Side under an Arch, as reading; and of eleven Children in a kneeling Poſture, in the Front of the Tomb lower; alſo Enrichments of Cherubims, Fruit and Leaves, partly gilt, and the whole encloſed with Iron Rail; with this Inſcription:

Wiſe, loving, liberal, religious, juſt:
Thoſe Graces fill'd the Soul of him whoſe Duſt
Lies here intomb'd all that Praiſe can bring forth.
There are not Words enough t'expreſs his Worth
For his good Works, this Stone cannot compriſe
Half the Particulars of his Pieties:
What Goodneſs ever was is, and to come,
In mortal Man, that makes up his juſt Sum.

Now croſſing over the Thames at London-bridge, the next Pariſh, not yet ſpoken of, within the Bills of Mortality, is,

The PARISH of St. MARY at Rotherhith.

THE Church here is ſo called as being dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and Rotherhith (or rather Red-roſe-haven, becauſe the Sign of the Red-roſe was there) is added to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches dedicated to the ſame Saint.

No Hiſtory gives an Account of its firſt Foundation; it had a general Repair in 1687, which coſt upwards of 1200 l. and it was intirely rebuilt in 1714.

THE old Church was deſcended into by Steps, and was not ſufficient to contain the numerous Inhabitants; and notwithſtanding the coſtly Repair before-mentioned, it ſtanding low, and near the Banks of the River Thames, was often overflowed, whereby the Foundation was rotted, and the Church in ſo great Danger of falling, that the Inhabitants could not, without Danger of their Lives, aſſemble to hear Divine Service therein; which occaſioned them to obtain a Brief, Anno 1710, to enable them to take it down and rebuild it, which was done accordingly, and finiſhed Anno 1714, as is ſaid before.

THIS Pariſh conſiſts of Abundance of Seafaring Mens Families, which increaſes the Poor there exceedingly; ſo that in 30 Years the Aſſeſſments for the Poor were advanced in the Year 1710 from 80 l. to above 700 l. per Ann.

MONUMENTS.

In the South Iſle, on the Wall of the old Church was this Inſcription:

Poſt tenebras, ſpero Lucem.

Next without this Wall are buried Brian, Richard, and Marke, Alice, and Elizabeth, the three Sons and two Daughters of Nicholas Reynolds, Citizen and Goldſmith of LONDON, and of Elizabeth his Wife. The forenamed Elizabeth their younger Daughter married to Robert Wheatley, Salter, the 20th Day of Auguſt, 1593, and died the 18th of September, in the ſame Year.

Theſe Bloſſoms young and tender, loe,
Blown down by deadly Wind,
May urge the riper Sort to know,
Like Blaſt ſhall them out find.

For Fleſh, as Graſs, away doth wither,
No Age can it eſchew;
The Young and Old decay together,
When Death ſhall them purſue.

No Parents, Friends, or Advocate,
Can him intreat to ſpare
The Fair, the Fine, or Delicate,
For Threats he doth not care.

Let that moſt certain Statute made
By God our heavenly King,
All Men aſſure, and eke perſwade,
Death ſhall them equal bring.

Poſt Mortem, Vitam Æternam.

In the Middle Iſle of this Church is thus written:

Trinitas in Unitate.

Here lies buried the Body of Richard Hills, Mariner, one of the eldeſt Brothers and Aſſiſtants of the Company of the Trinity, and his two Wives; who, while he lived in this Place, gave liberally to the Poor, and ſpent bountifully in his Houſe; and after many Troubles, being of the Age of 80 Years, and upward, departed this Life without Iſſue, upon the 16th of February, 1614.

This was made at the Charge of Robert Bell.

Tho' Hills be dead, Hill's Will and Act ſurvives,
His Free-School, and his Penſion for the Poor,
Thought on by him, perform'd by his Heir,
For eight poor Seamens Children, and no more.
1627.

On the Outſide of the North Wall is a Monument bearing the Figure of a Ship at Sea; under it the Portraiture of him for whom it was erected, with his Wife, ſix Sons and four Daughters; the Living and the Dead diſtinguiſhed by Death's Head, which the Buried ſeem to bear in their Hands, and under them this Inſcription:

Here beneath lyeth interred the Body of Capt. Anthony Wood, who departed this Life the 24th of Auguſt, 1625, being the 40th Year of his Age, and had Iſſue by his Wife, Martha Wood, ſix Sons and four Daughters.

In the Chancel:

A little Monument againſt the Wall, and this Epitaph:

Roger Tweedy, Eſq; was interred in the Middle Iſle of this Church, in the Year 1665. He gave by Will two Shillings every Lord's-Day for ever, to be diſtributed among 12 poor Seamen, or Seamens Widows, in Bread, the Officers of this Church to take Care to diſtribute it; and thoſe neareſt of Kin to him to enquire of its Diſpoſal, and if not performed according to the Will to take it into their Hands.

In Commemoration of Mr. Roger Tweedy:

Who living, was Landmen's, Counſellor, Seamens Glory,
Schiſm's Scourge, and Truth's living Story;
His Soul a Ship with Graces fully laded,
Thro' Surges deep did plow, and ſafely waded.
With Principles of Faith his ballanc'd Mind,
Did ſteddy ſail 'gainſt Blaſts of boiſterous Wind, &c.
At Rotherhith he did at length arrive,
And to their Port his Tribute freely give;
And in this Port he did at Anchor ſtay,
Hopefully expecting Reſurrection's Day.

On

On the North Side of the Church, in the Church-Yard, is a Tomb with this Inſcription:

As the Earth the Earth does cover,
So under this Stone lies another.

Here lyes interred in this Vault the Body of Capt. Thomas Stone, Junior, of this Pariſh: He departed this Life the 9th of Auguſt, 1666, and had to Wife Agnes, which ſurviveth:

To you that live poſſeſs'd, great Troubles do befal,
Where we that ſleep by Death, do feel no Harm at all.
An honeſt Life does bring a joyful Death at laſt,
And Life again begins when Death is over-paſt.
Death is the Path to Life, and Way to endleſs Wealth,
The Door whereby we paſs to everlaſting Health.
Theſe forty Years and two have paſſed here my Life,
And eighteen Years thereof thou, Agnes, wert my Wife.
My loving Wife, farewel, God guide thee with his Grace;
Prepare thyſelf to come, and I will give thee Place.
Acquaintance all, farewel, and be aſſur'd of this,
You ſhall be brought to Duſt, as Tho. Stone here is.

On a Tomb-ſtone, on the South Side of the Church in the Cœmetery, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Anne Blake, late Widow of Capt. John Blake, of Rederiffe, who departed this Life the 21ſt of October, Anno 1681, and in the 65th Year of her Age; and with her lye buried four Sons and two Daughters.

In Jettepore the Head, in Calebar the Heart,
The Body here intomb'd muſt meet, tho' far a-part.

A Hatchment for Mr. Thomas Lewſley and Anne Lewſley, 1698.

On the South Wall a ſmall Hatchment for Mr. John Roupe, 1678.

WE come next to

The PARISH of St. MARY at Newington.

THE Church here is ſituated on the Weſterly Side of Newington-butts, in the County of Surrey, and Dioceſe of Wincheſter, at the South End of Blackman-ſtreet, Southwark, and without the Walls, Liberty, and Freedom of LONDON.

THERE is no Author gives any Account of its firſt Foundation, but it is very old; the laſt Church here was built of Brick and Boulder, and the North Gallery in it was erected at the Expence of Sir Hugh Brawn, about the Year 1600, it was repaired in 1705; but upon a Sunday, in the Month of July, 1715, in the Time of Divine Service, there happened a ſudden Rupture in the Wall, which put the Congregation, then aſſembled, into ſuch a general Conſternation that they all ran out, and many in making their Eſcape, were bruiſed and trodden under Foot, and received great Hurt. And upon a careful Review of the Church by experienced Workmen, (the Structure being very antient) it was found ſo much decayed in the Pillars, Walls, and Beams, and in the Roof and Foundation, that notwithſtanding the Sum of 850 l. laid out in Repairs by the Pariſh, the ſame could not any longer be ſupported: And ſo, Anno 1720 all was taken down, and rebuilt from the Foundation; for which the Pariſh got a Brief, wherein the Charge was ſaid to amount to 926 l. and upwards.

THIS Pariſh is called Newington-butts, becauſe there were in antient Times Shooting-butts in this Place, and this Name diſtinguiſhes it from Stoke-Newington in Middleſex.

MONUMENTS.

On the North Side of the Church, near the Eaſt End, is a ſpacious marble Monument of the Corinthian Order, adorned with Columns, Entablature, and the Figures of himſelf, two Wives, four Sons and ſix Daughters, and all in a kneeling Poſture, and this Inſcription:

Deo Viventium, Pietati Sacrum.

Sir Hugh Brawn, Knight, the ſole Founder and Adorner of this Iſle; and, for the Space of 22 Years, the whole Ornament of this Pariſh, religious towards God, and reſpectful of the Poor, determining to provide againſt the Day of his Death, deſires here to repoſe his Body, in a happy Hope of a glorious Reſurrection.

Reader, it pleas'd th'Almighty to infuſe
Sence of his Goodneſs in my fleſhly Heart;
Faith quicken'd Love, Love did his Church-work chuſe;
Both jointly here do ſhew themſelves in part.
His be the Glory, Peace (Soul Sabath) mine;
Prayer, Thankſgiving, Uſe, Example, thine.

Short

Short was my Stay,
Longer is my Reſt,
God took me hence
Becauſe he knew it beſt.

Ah! cruel Death, why did's thou uſe thy Power,
To crop the Hopes of this my blooming Flower.

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Adcock, who departed this Life December 13, 1724. Aged 39 Years.

Alſo ſix pretty Infants dear
Lie ſleeping with their Mother here.
Ceaſe dear Friends, and weep no more,
We are not loſt, but gone before.

To perpetuate the Memory of Dorothy and Elizabeth, Wives of Robert Tedſtell, was this Monument erected.

One died January 19, 1724, } Aged {24} Yrs.
The other died Oct. 28, 1725, } {28}

Entomb'd here lyes Youth, Beauty, Virtue, Wit,
Till they appear at the Tribunal Great:
Till in laſt Sound the dreadful Trumpet ſpeaks,
When Judgment calls and quickned Nature wakes,
Fearleſs, ariſe, they ſhall on Chriſt rely;
Through him Death's Sting, Grave's Victory to defy.

The PARISH of St. MARY at LAMBETH.

IN Lambeth is a moſt magnificent and antient Palace belonging to the Archbiſhops of Canterbury, adjoining to which, on the South Weſt Side, is the Church; it is in the County of Surrey, in the Dioceſe of Wincheſter, near the Thames, being diſtant croſs that River, from Weſtminſter-Abbey, 750 Yards, and directly croſs the River, from the South Part of Weſtminſter, 350 Yards.

IT is called St. Mary's, being dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin, and Lambeth (as the great Camden ſaith) from Lamehithe, i. e. a dirty Haven, famous for the Death of Canutus, the valiant King of England; but ſince the Year 1183, more ſo from the Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Palace; Baldwin, A. B. exchanging with the Biſhop of Rocheſter at that Time.

IT is probably of an antient Foundation, having been for ſo many Years the Seats of Biſhops, who ſeldom reſide where there is no Church. Mr. Weaver has it, That Hubert, Archbiſhop of Canterbury (who died in the Year 1205, July the 13th) finiſhed a Collegiate Church at Lambeth, of Canons Regular, begun by Baldwin his Predeceſſor; which on Complaint of the Monks of Canterbury to the Pope, was pulled down.

THE preſent Structure appears antient, and was ſo as to require a new Roof over the middle Iſle, and a Reparation of the Walls, Anno 1681; by which, and ſome other Circumſtances, it cannot be ſuppoſed leſs than 200 Years old. The North Gallery was given by Mr. Roger Jeſton, in the Year 1615. But the preſent North Gallery was erected at the Charge of the Pariſhioners, in 1705; and the South Gallery in 1699. The Church was laſt beautified and adorned in the ſaid Year 1705, with Wainſcot, Painting, Carving, &c. hereafter accounted for.

As to the Nature and Order of the Building, the Church within is pleaſant, the Walls are built of Boulder, with ſome Brick and Stone rendered over (except the Tower) with a Finiſhing; the Floor pav'd with Stone, and the Roof covered with Lead; the Baſes of the Pillars are Octogonal; the Arches, and moſt of the Windows, are of the modern Gothick Order; the Floor of the Chancel is two Steps higher than that of the Church, and there are three Iſles; the Eaſt End of the North Iſle is called Howard's Chapel, (ſome of the Duke of Norfolk's Family being bury'd there) and that of the South Iſle, Leigh's Chapel, Sir John Leigh, Son of Ralph Leigh, Eſq; Lord of the Manor of Stockwell, and his Lady, being there buried. Here is alſo a Tower and Turret.

THE Church is ornamental; the Roof over the Nave is ceiled with Plaiſter, but the Side-Iſles with Timber; the Walls moſtly wainſcotted about ſeven Feet high, and higher about the Altar; the Pews are new fronted with Oak; in the the North and South Iſles; the Galleries have alſo Oak Bolection-work Fronts; and over the Entrance into the Chancel, is a ſpacious Piece of Ornament, i. e. the Decalogue between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, the two firſt ſupported by Moſes and Aaron in their Habits, the latter ſuſtained by two Angels. Immediately over the Commandments is a Glory ſurrounded with Cherubims, all finely done between two Columns, of the Corinthian Order. Above theſe are the King's Arms, adorned with Cupids between the Portraits of two Fames well painted, the one ſounding a Trumpet, the other holding a Flaming Heart.

THE Altar-piece is light Cedar-colour, adorned with carv'd Pilaſters (having gilded Capitals); and Entablature and Compaſs-Pediment, of the Corinthian Order; under which Pediment is a Glory, and theſe Words in Capital Characters, Lift up your Hearts; and on the Cornice, at each End of the Pediment, is a Vaſe or Lamp, the whole being incloſed with Rail and Baliſter.

IN the Eaſt Window is painted

I.H.S.

Or, Jeſus Holy Saviour; and over the Pulpit, in the Glaſs, the Effigies of a Pedlar and his Dog, who gave (beſides the following Gifts) one Acre of Land, on Condition the ſaid Picture be from Time to Time kept in good Repair.

DIMENSIONS of the Church and Chancel; Length 111 Feet, Breadth 53, Altitude about 38, and that of the Tower 87, to the higheſt Part of it.

THERE is no Table of Benefactors, but the Principal to the Poor are as follow:

Mrs. Oakley, in Bread, per Ann. for ever 13 l.
Mr. Smith per Ann. 12 l.
Capt. Forſter gave 50 l. or twenty Three-penny Loaves every firſt Sunday in the Month.
Mrs. French the Uſe of a Pall.
Mrs. Baſton the Uſe of another, computed together at about 12 l.
Mr. Soldwel in Cloth, 6 l.
Ralph Snow, Eſq; gave the Ornamental Painting, and the Altar-piece, and a Branch.
Mr. Eſton gave 100 l.
Mr. Walker 18 l. per Ann.
A Pedlar, beſides an Acre of Land valued per Ann. at 6 l. gave alſo to the then Archbiſhop 100 l.
To the Rector, 20 l.
To the Clerk and Sexton, each 10 l.
Mrs. Tredeſcant gave, for Leave to erect a Monument, 50 l.

MONUMENTS.

On the North Side, on a Marble Table, is the following Inſcription:

Here under this Tomb lyeth buried the Body of Thomas Clere, Eſq; Son of Robert Clere in the County of Norfolk, Knt. Which Thomas deceaſed the 14th Day of April, An. Dom. 1545, on whoſe Soul, and all Chriſtian Souls, Jeſus have Mercy.

And upon a Table hung up was an Epitaph made by the Right Noble Henry Earl of Surrey, being thus written:

Epitaphium Thomæ Clere, qui fato functus eſt 1545, auctore Henrico Howard Comite Surrey. In cujus fœlicis ingenii ſpecimen & ſingularis Facundiæ Argumentum, appenſa fuit hæc Tabula per W. Howard filium Thomæ nuper Ducis Norfolciencis, filii ejuſdem Henrici Comitis.

Norfolk ſprung thee, Lambeth holds the Dead,
CLERE, of the County of Cleremont, thou Height:
Within the Womb of Ormond's Race thou bred,
And ſaw'ſt thy Coſin crown'd in thy Sight:
Shelton for Love, Surrey for Lord thou chace,
Ah! me, whilſt Life did laſt the League was tender,
Tracing whoſe Steps, thou ſaweſt Kelſal baſe,
Landerſley burnt and batter'd Bulleyn render.
At Muttrel Gates, hopeleſs of all Recure,
Thine Earl, half dead, gave in thy Hand his Will.
Which Cauſe did thee this pining Death procure,
Ere Summers four Times ſeven thou couldſt fulfill.
Ah! CLERE, if Love had booted, Care or Coſt,
Heaven had not won, nor Earth ſo timely loſt.

In the Chancel on the North Side, is an old Tomb, on which was this Inſcription, long ſince obliterated:

Sub Pedibus ubi ſtatis jacet Corpus Magiſtri Hugonis Peyntwin, Legum Doctoris, nuper Archiep. Cant. Reverendiſſimorum Patrum, Dom. Johannis Morton Cardinalis, Henrici Dene, & Willielm. Warrham Curiæ Archiep. Audien. Cauſarum Auditoris. Qui obiit VI. die Auguſti, Anno Dom. MDIIII. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus. Amen.

On a Flat Stone before the Communion-Table, within the Rails, is thus written:

Volente Deo.

Hic jacet Richardus Bancroft, S. Theologiæ Profeſſor, Epiſcopus Londinenſis primo, deinde Cantuarienſis Archiepiſcopus, & Regi Jacobo à Secretioribus Conſiliis. Obiit ſecundo Novembris, Anno Dom. 1610. Ætatis ſuæ 67.

Volente Deo.

On another Flat Stone is thus written:

Here lyeth the Lady Elizabeth Howard, ſome Time Counteſs of Wiltſhire.

On the South Side

Lyeth the Body of Sir Noel Caroon, Ledger Ambaſſador for the States of Holland, with his Arms and Hatchment; as namely, his Creſt, Helmet, Arms, Sword, Gantlet, and Spurs.

In the South Chapel is a fair Monument of Marble engraven as followeth:

Here Lyeth Sir John Leigh, Knight of the Bath, Son of Ralph Leigh, Eſq; Lord of the Manors of Stockwell and Levehurſt, and Dame Iſabel his Wife, Daughter of Otwell Worſley. Which Sir John deceaſed the 17th Day of Auguſt, Anno Dom. MDXXIIII. And the ſame Iſabel deceaſed the 18th Day of April.

On the upper End on the Wall, a Monument as followeth:

Here lieth the Body of John Arundell of Gwarnicke, in the County of Cornwall, Eſquire, Sonne and Heire of Roger Arundell, of the ſaid County, Eſquire, of an antient, honourable, and faire deſcended Family, who died the 25th of May, 1613, without Iſſue, and in the 56th Yeere of his Age.

Sape & prævale.

ARMS here: Sable, three Chevronelles Argent.

In the ſame Place, near the laſt, a Monument in Memory of John Gofton, Eſq; but nothing notable in the Inſcription.

Ob. May 1686. Aged 70 Years.

ARMS: A Unicorn's Head erazed, quartered with Ermin. No Colours.

On

On the North Side of the Choir is this Inſcription, againſt the Wall near the Rails, with the Effigies half Way:

Neere to this Place lyeth interred the Body of Robert Scot, Eſquire, deſcended of the antient Barons of Bawery in Scotland. Hee bent himſelf to travell, and ſtudy much, &c. And, amongſt other Things, he invented the Leather Ordnance, and carried to the King of Sweeden 200 Men; who, after two Yeeres Service, for his Worth and Valour, was preferred to the Office of Quarter-Maſter General of his Majeſties Army; which he poſſeſſed three Yeeres. From thence, with his Favour, he went into Denmarke, where he was advanced to be General of that King's Artillery. There being adviſed to tender his Service to his own Prince, which hee doing, his Majeſty willingly accepted and preferred him to be one of the Gentlemen of his moſt Honourable Privy Chamber, and rewarded him with a Penſion of 600 l. per Annum.

This deſerving Spirit, adorned with all Endowments befitting a Gentleman, in the Prime of his flouriſhing Age, ſurrendered his Soul to his Redeemer, 1631.

Of his great Worth to know who ſeeketh more,
Muſt mount to Heaven, where he is gone before.

In France he tooke to Wife Anne Scot, for whoſe Remembrance ſhe lovingly erected this Memorial.

Arms are: Or, three Lions Heads erazed Gules; impaled with Vert a Greyhound ſpringant Argent.

Overagainſt the other, in the ſame Iſle, lieth the Body of Elizabeth Bayly, late Wife of John Bayly. Obiit June 24, 1629. Ætatis ſuæ 25.

Reader, tread ſoft, under thy Foot doth lye,
A Mother buried with her Progeny:
Two Females and a Male, the laſt a Sonne,
Who with his Life, his Mother's Thred hath ſpun,
His Breath her Death procur'd (unhappy Sinne,
That thus our Joy with Sorrow uſhers in.)
Yet he being loth to leave ſo kind a Mother,
Changes this Life to meet her in another.
The Daughters firſt were robb'd of vital Breath,
The Mother next in Strength of Yeeres met Death,
The Father's only Joy, a hopeful Sonne,
Did loſe his Life when Life was ſcarce begun.
If harmleſſe Innocence, if loyal Truth,
Found in a conſtant Wife combin'd with Youth;
If a kind Husband's Prayers, or Father's Teares
Could have prevail'd, they had liv'd many Yeeres.
But theſe all fayling, here rak'd up in Duſt,
They wait the Reſurrection of the Juſt.
A Husband's Love, a Father's Piety,
Dedicates this unto their Memory:
And when he hath his Debt to Nature paid,
In the ſame Grave himſelf will then be laid,
That altogether, when the Trumpe ſhall ſound,
Husband, Wife, Children, may in Chriſt be found.

On the South Side of the Choir, a ſmall Marble Monument, with this Inſcription:

Here lyeth four Feet Diſtance from this Wall the Body of William Suthes, Gentleman, a Man adorned with the Gifts of Grace, Art, and Nature. By Grace he was religious and charitable; he was in Maſonry exquiſite; by Nature he was human and affable. He, by God's Appointment, changed his human Life of Miſery for a glorious Immortality, on the 5th of October 1625. His ſorrowful and grateful Wife, Mrs. Anne Suthes, as a loyal Teſtimony of her Love to her deceaſed Husband, cauſed this Monument to be erected for an Exemplary of his Worthineſs and her Affection. He was Maſter Maſon of Windſor-Caſtle, a Citizen and Goldſmith of London, and an Aſſiſtant of the ſaid Worſhipful Company. He left three Sons, towardly and hopeful, to be each of them Imitators of their Father's Virtues, John, James, and Matthew. And herein the Reader may ſee expreſs'd the Goodneſs of the deceaſed Husband, and the Thankfulneſs of a ſurviving Wife.

He now ſings praiſe among the Heavenly Hoſt,
To God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt.

Arms: Sable, on a Bend between two Cottiſes Argent, three Martlets Gules: Impaled with Barry of eight, Or and Sable; three Eſcutcheons Ermin.

Other antient Monuments there have been in this Church; as of Katharine Howard, one of the Siſters and Heirs of John Broughton, Eſq; and Wife of L. William Howard, one of the Sons of the High and Mighty Prince L. Thomas, Duke of Norfolk. She deceaſed April the 23d, 1535.

In Howard's Chapel:

Good Dutcheſs of Norfolk, the Lord have Mercy upon thee: Which dyed at Lambeth the laſt of November . . . . .

On a Table:

Farewel, good Lady and Siſter dere,
In Earth we ſhall never mete here;
But yet I truſt, with Godis Grace,
In Haven we ſhal deſerve a Place:
Yet thy Kindneſſe ſhal nere depart,
During my Life out of my Heart.
Thou waſt to me both fare and nere,
A Mother, a Siſter, a Frende moſt dere;
And to al thy Frendes moſt ſure and faſt,
When Fortune had founded the froward Blaſt.
And to the Powre a very Mother,
More than was known to any other.
Which is thy Treſure at thys Day
And for thy Sowle they hertily pray.
So ſhall I do that here remayne;
God thy Sowle preſerve from Payne.

By thy moſt bounden Brother,

Henry Lord Stafford.

The PARISH of CHRIST-CHURCH in Surrey.

THIS is the laſt Pariſh within the Bills of Mortality. The Church here takes its Name from being dedicated to our Saviour CHRIST, purſuant to the Deed and Direction of the Founder.

IT is ſituated at the South End of Bennet-ſtreet, on the South Side of Upper-Ground, in the County of Surrey, and within the Dioceſe of Wincheſter.

THE Pariſh was taken, by Act of Parliament, out of St. Saviour's, commonly called St. Mary Overree's Pariſh, it being that Part called the Liberty of Paris-garden; of this we have ſpoken before in Vol. I. Pag. 806 and 807. Mr. John Marſhal was the Founder and Endower of the Church, which was built and finiſhed in the Year 1671, the Steeple in the Year 1695, and the Altar-Piece in 1696.

THE Church is well built of Brick, and ſo is the Steeple, conſiſting of a Tower and Spire. The Roof is ſupported by Pillars of the Tuſcan Order, and here is a Gallery built at the Weſt End End, at the Charge of Mr. Richard How; and the Floor of the Chancel is four Steps higher than that of the Nave of the Church.

As to the Ornamental Parts, it is wainſcotted round about ſix Feet and an half high, with Deal, and pewed with that and Oak.

THERE is likewiſe an Altar-Piece very neat, having the Commandments in Gold on Black, and the Creed and Lord's Prayer done in Gold on Blue, upon four Pannels, moulded round between as many Pilaſters, of the Corinthian Order, with the Entablement. And on a Window in the Middle, is painted the King's-Arms, with the Supporters, Creſt, and Motto. And Northward of that is the Biſhop of Wincheſter's Arms, being Ruby, two Keys linked together in a Bend, the one Topaz, the other Pearl, and a Sword interpoſing between them Saltireways of the third, hilted of the ſecond, impaled with Pearl, a Lion Rampant, Diamond crown'd with a Ducal Coronet; and for the Creſt a Mitre. Likewiſe theſe Arms Southward from the King's: Argent, a Chevron, lettiſed Sable, between three Bucks Heads caboſſed Gules, and for the Creſt a Greyhound ſegreiant Argent. And theſe Words under the Arms, John Marſhal, Founder and Endower of this Church 1671. And above the Window, in large Gold Letters on Black, the Words of 1 Cor. xi. 25, 26. and Anno Dom. 1696.

HERE are two Wainſcot inner Door-caſes, of the Corinthian Order; and over the Door near the South-Eaſt Corner of the Church, are theſe Words, Noſce Teipſum. Over the other Door that opens Southward, the Words in Pſal. lxxxiv. ver. 1. And over the North Door, theſe Words, Cave! Deus videt.

ON the North Side of the Church, on the Wall, are the Words of Pſal. cxxxii. 7, 8, 9. alſo of Pſal. xxvii. 4. And on the South Side, the Words in Heb. x. 24, 25. and in Nehemiah xiii. 11. Alſo by the Pulpit, theſe Words: Verbum Dei manet in Æternum. And thoſe in 1 Cor. ix. 16. Prov. xiii. 13.

BY the Chriſtening Pew, where is a Marble Font, but without Cover, the Words in Rom. vi. ver. 3.

The following were worthy BENEFACTORS to this Church.

Mr. William Angell, gave the Ground of the Church and Church-yard.

Mr. John Marſhall, the whole and ſole Founder of this Church, alſo ſettled upon the Miniſter 60 l. per Ann. for ever.

Stay, Reader, gaze, admire,
And paſs not ſlightly ore
The Caſket of his Corps,
Embalmed in this Flore.
Let his induſtrious Hand,
Paterne of Paternes be;
And blazon forth his Worth
To al Poſteritie.
And let his oft Footſteps
Unto this ſacred Place,
Be pious Clues to guide
Thee to like holy Trace.
Let him in Peace reſt here in Peace,
Till God of Peace return:
And give him Peace, that loved Peace,
And call him from his Urne.

Unto the Worldly Wiſe,
Death doth apologize.

Suſpend

Suſpend thine own By-thoughts :
His Thoughts did ever aim at Good :
Had I forborne, they had
At full been better underſtood.

The Figure of Death lying under theſe Lines.

A very fine Monument is lately erected in this Church, in Memory of the late Earl of Warwick and Holland, on which is the following Inſcription :

Hoc ſubter marmore conduntur exuviæ
Edvardi Henrici, Comitis de Warwick & Holland,
Baronis Rich, & de Kenſington,
Adoleſcentis nobiliſſimi,
Propriis tamen, quam majorum virtutibus, clarioris.
Inerat illi jam a pueritia,
In vultu ipſo, in voce, geſtuque corporis,
Virile neſcio quid, & plenum dignitatis.
Miram ſane ingenii ubertatem
Excoluit, atque promovit optima diſciplina ;
Omnem doctrinam liberalem ab eo perceptam
Illuſtravit
Nativa quaedam, & quae virum nobilem deceret, eloquentia.
Ita natus, ita educatus, quam primum in lucem proceſſit.
Dignus extemplo viſus eſt,
Quem in amicitiam cooptarent homines primarii ;
Neque erat in amicitia jucundior quiſquam, aut cordatior.
Ad aulam acceſſit,
Sereniſſimo Regi Georgio primo
A cubiculo, & brevi acceptiſſimus ;
Hoc ſibi merito non ultimae ducebat laudi
Principi placuiſſe
Non minus acri ad judicandum, quam ad favendum prono.
Tam aperta illi faciliſque
Ad maxima quaeque cum pateret via,
Cum nihil ei defuit ad ſummam laudem, niſi longa vita ;
In medio aetatis & fortunae curriculo,
Gravi febre correptus,
Spes audentiſſimas amicorum prope jam ratas
Immatura morte fruſtratus eſt.
Obiit die Aug. 16^to. anno 1721. aetat. 24.

Which may be thus tranſlated :

Under this Stone, are depoſited the Remains of Edward-Henry, Earl of Warwick and Holland, Baron Rich, and of Kenſington, a moſt noble Youth ; yet more illuſtrious by his own Accompliſhments, than by thoſe of his Anceſtors. Even from his Youth, in his very Appearance, in his Voice, and in his external Deportment, ſomething becoming a Man, and expreſſive of his Worth might be diſcerned. The admirable Copiouſneſs of his Genius, he cultivated and promoted by the beſt Literature, having attain'd a Knowledge of all the Parts of liberal Education, he adorn'd them by a certain innate Eloquence, and ſuch as befitted a Man of Quality. Thus deſcended, thus educated, as ſoon as he enter'd into publick Buſineſs, he was inſtantly found worthy to be admitted into the Friendſhip of Men of the beſt Figure ; and never was there in Friendſhip, one more pleaſing, or ſincere. He came to Court, as a Lord of the Bed-chamber, and became ſhortly very dear to his moſt ſacred Majeſty King George I. He juſtly thought of this, as not the meaneſt Part of his Praiſe, to have been acceptable to a Prince, who was no leſs accurate in diſtinguiſhing Merit, than ready to advance it. Having ſo open and eaſy a Proſpect to the Height of Dignity, when nothing was wanting in his Courſe to attain it, but Length of Life ; in the Midſt of his Youth and Fortune, falling ſick of a violent Fever, the moſt flattering Expectations of his Friends, now on the Point of being accompliſh'd, were fruſtrated by his untimely Death. He died Auguſt 16, in the Year 1721, of his Age 24.

In the Church-yard are the following Inscriptions :

Here lyes the Body of William Partridge, who died November 24, 1726 ; aged 51 Years.

Here lyeth the Body of Mary, the Wife of John Cornforth, who dyed July 1, 1728 ; aged 54 Years.

Alſo two Children, John and Mary, of the Pariſh of St. George's Hanover-ſquare, by Hyde Park-Corner.

Here lyes the Body of Mr. William Heaton, who departed this Life March the firſt, 1728-9 ; aged 45 Years.

Mrs. Suſan Wingfield, died July 9, 1729, in the 58th Year of her Age.

Here lyes the Body of Mary, Daughter of Robert and Sarah Young, late of the Pariſh of St. James's Weſtminſter, who departed this Life the 7th of October 1729 ; aged 22 Years.

Here lyes the Body of Tho. Marſhal, Son of John and Avis Marſhal of this Pariſh. He departed this Life the 7th of March 1733-4 ; aged 12 Years.

Mr. John Francis, of Clare-market, Fiſh-monger, died April 10, 1734 ; aged 45 Years.

Since Death will never be denied,
But doth the deareſt Friends divide,
Lord grant that we may meet again,
In Heaven for ever to remain.
A careful Man, a Husband dear,
A faithful Friend lyeth here.

Here lyes the Body of Mr. James Biggins, of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the 11th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1734, in the 50th Year of his Age.

MDCCXIII

At the Head of this Tomb, upon the Ground, lyes a black Marble Stone, over the Body of the ſaid Biſhop's Brother.

Sir Francis Child, Knight, late Alderman of LONDON, lyes alſo buried in this Church-yard, under a black Marble Stone, encloſed with an Iron Paliſado. The Inſignia of the L. Maior, viz. The Sword and Mace engraven on the North and South Sides; and his own Coat of Arms, and his Lady's at the Head and Feet. The Words of the Inſcription are as follow:

In a Vault under this Tomb is depoſited the Body of

Sir Francis Child, Kt. and Alderman, and Preſident of Chriſt Church Hoſpital in LONDON,

Who departed this Life, October the 4th, 1713. Ætat. 71. He was Lord Maior in the Year 1699: And in the Year 1702, he was choſen one of the four Citizens, to ſerve for the ſaid City in the firſt Parliament of the Reign of Queen Anne.

He married Elizabeth, the only Daughter and Heireſs of William Wheeler, Goldſmith. By whom he had 12 Sons and 3 Daughters. The Bodies of his Sons James and William, and of his Daughter Martha, Wife of Anthony Collins, Eſquire, are removed from the Church into this Vault.

Near the Weſt Door is a Grave-Stone, with the following Inſcription:

In hopes of a joyful Reſurrection:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Rench, late Gardiner of this Pariſh, he departed this Life the 31ſt day of March, 1728, in the 98th Year of his Age.

Chriſt was to me as Life on Earth,
And Death to me is Gain;
Becauſe I truſt in Chriſt alone
Salvation to obtain.

Prepare to follow me.

Another, near the laſt, thus inſcribed:

Here lyeth the Body of Nicholas Nayler, who departed this Life, September the 23d, 1734. Aged 52 Years.

Pale viſag'd Death has took a Husband kind,
A faithful loving Friend; left mourning Wife behind.

PUTNEY.

OF the Bridge over the Thames, between this Town and Fulham, we have already given ſome Account. VOL. I. Page 42.

IN the Church at Putney are the enſuing Monuments.

This Monument is in the Chancel on the North Side, and hath this Inſcription:

Memoriæ Sacrum.

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Luſher, of Putney, in the County of Surrey, Eſq; who married Mary, the ſecond Daughter of George Scot, of Stepleford Tauney in the County of Eſſex, Eſquire. He departed this Life the 27th of September, Anno 1615. Ætatis ſuæ 30.

What Tongue can ſpeake the Vertues of this Creature,
Whoſe Body faire, whoſe Soule of rarer Feature?
He liv'd a Saint, he dy'd a holy Wight,
In Heaven, on Earth, a joyful heavy Sight:
Body Soule united, agreed in one,
Like Strings well-tuned in an Uni-ſone.
No Diſcord harſh this Navel could untie,
'Twas Heaven, the Earth this Muſicke did envie.
Wherefore may well be ſaid, he lived well;
And being dead, the World his Vertues tell.

Though Richard Luſher ſleepeth in the Duſt,
He ſleeps in Hope, and hopes to live again;
His Soul in Heaven is waking with the Juſt,
And wakes in Joy, being freed from Senſe of Pain.
Bones, take your Reſt, your Soul in Heaven attends,
The bleſt Re-union of two loving Friends.

Marito dilectiſſimo, Maria Luſher, conjux Mœſtiſſima, in perpetuum Amoris Teſtimonium, hoc Monumentum plorans poſuit.

Mary, (by her firſt Match married Luſher) Daughter of George Scot, Eſq; deſcended from John Scot, Lord Chief Juſtice of England in the Reign of King Edward the Third; and after Wife to Thomas Knivet, deſcended from John Knivet, Knight. Lord Chief Juſtice in the ſame King's Reign, and Lord Chancellor of England.

To Thomas Knivet.

That you have laid my Body here,
By that firſt Side I lov'd ſo dear,
I thank you, Husband: That the Poor
Are ſtill your Care, I thank you more.
Theſe laſt I charg'd you with alive,
Being done, I reſt, while you ſurvive.
But yet I have another Boon,
When Fate ſhall come, (as come full ſoon
It will, and will not be deny'd)
That you would cloſe my other Side.
Y'ave thought it worthy to be read
You once were ſecond to my Bed;
Why may you not like Title have,
To this my ſecond Bed, the Grave?
This Stone will cover us all three,
And under it we ſhall be free
From Love, or Hate, or leaſt Diſtruſt
Of Jealouſy to vex our Duſt:
For here our Bodies do but wait
The Summons for their glorious State.

On the ſame Monument is this Inſcription:

Later MONUMENTS erected in this Church of Putney are theſe that follow:

On the North Side, next the Pulpit, one for James Martin of LONDON, with this Inſcription:

D. O. M. S.

Hic ſitus eſt JACOBUS MARTYN Londini oriundus, ejuſdem Civitatis Municeps, & Ornamentum non vulgare. Facultate ſua tam ſollicitè diligens, ut Procurator Dei viſus ſit. In omni Contractu tam feliciter fecundus, quaſi a Deo fidelis agnitus. Moribus ſine fuco, & fallaciis, & ab omni faſtu alieniſſimus: Pietate inſigni, ſuper ævum Fide, & ſupra Fidem Charitate. Quam vivus aſſiduè exercens, ipſa morte extendebat.

Upon the ſame Stone are theſe Engliſh Verſes added in his Praiſe:

Bleſſings and Vertue here do ly,
Examples for Poſterity.
His Piety no Faſhion had,
But ſcrup'lous Care t'avoid the Bad.
His Hope did then moſt firm appear,
When Death, fierce Champion, drew near.
His Faith was ſuch as would have ſtood
An Abraham's Trial wrote in Blood.
His Charity above them all:
Yet neither fond nor prodigal.
His Dealing, Friendſhip, Moral Parts,
Shewed his own, won others Hearts.
He was and is, take him in Groſs,
The common Love, the common Loſs.
James Martyn ſaid, his Name alone,
Is all, both Epitaph and Stone.

Sæculum æternitate commutavit Decembr. 2° Anno Dom. 1651, Ætatis ſuæ 54.

Next, on the ſame Side, is a white Marble Pillar, thus inſcribed:

Sir Thomas Dawes, Knt. dyed Friday the 5th of December 1655.

And underneath, upon the ſame Pillar:

Dame Judith Dawes, the 28th of Jan. 1657, ſlept here with her Husband: To whoſe Memory ſhe erected this Pillar.

Next to this, on the ſame Side, is a middle ſized Monument, thus inſcribed:

Near to this Place lyes the Body of Sir Robert Wymondeſolde, who departed the 28th of July, 1687, in the 24th Year of his Age: Together with three of his Sons, Thomas, William, and Robert, who dyed all Infants.

On this Side near the Communion-Table, an Inſcription on a white Marble for Andrew Welch, Merchant, departed the 2d of June 1704, in the 30th Year of his Age.

Over-againſt it, a ſmall white Monument for Tho. Paine, Eſq; Sergeant at Arms for 36 Years to the Crown. Departed the 25th of December 1698, in the 66th Year of his Age.

Near to it, another Oval Monument, with this Inſcription:

In Putney Church-Yard:

Here lyeth the Body of Anne Beſt, Wife of Richard Beſt, who departed her Life the 11th Day of June, Anno Dom. 1719, aged 46 Years.

And alſo her four Children, John, Elizabeth, Richard and William.

Frances Legg, Daughter of Richard and Anne Beſt, died Auguſt the 2d, 1730. In the 24th Year of her Age.

Here lyeth the Body of William Button, late of this Pariſh, who died the 18th Day of Aug. 1734, aged 62 Years.

As you are now, ſo once was I,
And as I am, ſo muſt you be,
Therefore prepare to follow me.

WANDSWORTH.

IN the Church at Wandſworth, are the enſuing Monuments:

In the Chancel:

On the North Side of the Communion-Table lyeth a flat Stone, on which in a Braſs Plate is this Inſcription:

Under a Stone, within this Place,
Doth lie John Powel, who for the Space
Of thirty Years before his Death,
Did ſerve the Queen Elizabeth:
And to King James, of worthy Fame,
For nine Years more he did the ſame.
And when the Years of ſeventy four
Were now come to an End,
Into the Hands of God above,
His Soul he did commend.

Obiit 26. die Junii
Anno Dom. 1611.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall is the Figure of a Man kneeling, and under him is thus written:

Here lyeth the Body of Henry Smith, Eſq; ſome Time Citizen and Alderman of LONDON, who departed this Life the 30th Day of January, Anno Dom. 1627, being then near the Age of 79 Years; who while he lived gave unto theſe ſeveral Towns in Surrey following, One Thouſand Pounds a-piece, to buy Lands for Perpetuity, for the Relief and Setting the poor People on Work in the ſaid Towns, viz. To the Town of Croydon one thouſand Pounds; to the Town of Kingſton one thouſand Pounds; to the Town of Guilford one thouſand Pounds; to the Town of Darking one thouſand Pounds; to the Town of Farnham one thouſand Pounds; and by his laſt Will and Teſtament did farther give and deviſe, to buy Lands for Perpetuity for the Relief, aud ſetting their Poor on Work, unto the Town of Rigate one thouſand Pounds; and unto this Town of Wandſworth, wherein he was born, the Sum of five hundred Pounds, for the ſame Uſes as before: And did farther bequeath one thouſand Pounds, to buy Land for Perpetuity, to redeem poor Captives and Priſoners from the Turkiſh Tyranny: And not here ſtinting his Charity and Bounty, did alſo give and bequeath the moſt Part of his Eſtate, being to a great Value, for the purchaſing Lands of Inheritance for ever, for the Relief of the Poor, and ſetting them on Work.

A Pattern worthy the Imitation of thoſe whom God hath bleſſed with the Abundance of the Goods of this Life, to follow him herein.

A Monument in the South Iſle on the Eaſt Wall, with this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Edward Snow of Chickſands in the County of Bedford, Eſquire: in Memory of whom, Em his Wife, Daughter to William Byne, in the County of Suſſex, Eſquire, erected this Monument: He had Iſſue Elizabeth, Alice, and Sarah. He deceaſed at the Manour of Alfarthing, Anno Dom. 1587.

He and his Wife are kneeling before a Desk, and three Children underneath.

A Monument of a Woman kneeling, againſt the Eaſt Wall, North of the Communion-Table, and this Inſcription:

Suſanna Powell, late of Wandſworth, Widow, Daughter of Thomas Hayward of Wandſworth, Yeoman of the Guard unto King Henry the Eighth, King Edward the Sixth, to Queen Mary, and to Queen Elizabeth (of ever precious Memory) and Wife unto John Powell of Wandſworth, Gentleman, who was Servant to Queen Elizabeth. This Suſanna Powell was a gracious Benefactor unto this Town of Wandſworth. She lived a Widow the Space (almoſt) of twenty Years, deceaſed the 19th Day of February, 1630; and at her Death bequeathed by her Will, unto 24 poor Widows of this Town of Wandſworth for ever, four Pence in Bread, and four Pence in Money, to be diſtributed every Lord's Day, 12 on one Sabbath, and 12 another, for ever, at the North Door of the Church at Wandſworth.

She alſo bequeathed 40 Shillings every Year, for ever, to put forth a poor Man's Child an Apprentice, with divers other loving Remembrances unto her good Friends and Neighbours. Theſe foreſaid Donations are to iſſue out of the Benefits and Profits of the Rectory of Wandſworth.

This was deſired to be recorded, that God might be glorified, the Memorial of the Juſt might be bleſſed, and the Living ſtirred up to ſuch like good Works of Piety and Compaſſion.

MORE,

To this Church, for the Communion-Table, two Flagon Pots of Silver, Price xx l. and upwards.

To releaſe poor Priſoners out of Priſon, on the Day of her Burial, xx l.

To the Poor of the Pariſh of Putney, long before ſhe deceaſed, 50 l.

To the poor Houſholders of Wandſworth, for many Years before her Death, towards Payment of their Rent, per Ann. 5 l.

There are alſo (beſides the former) theſe more antient, and other more modern Monuments in Wandſworth Church:

In the Chancel:

Hic jacet Sepultus Robertus Knaresbrough, Gen. nuper ſervus ſereniſſimæ Dominæ nuper Reginæ Elizabethæ, & olim hujus Eccleſiæ Patronus. Qui obiit 11 die Januar. Anno Salutis 1611.

Before the Table, without the Rails, the Figure in Braſs of a Knight, the Head torn off. A narrow narrow Liſt round about the Stone, with an Inſcription partly gone, viz.

Hic jacet Richardus ..... Serviens Regis Henrici Quinti poſt Conqueſtum ad Arma. Qui obiit M.CCCC.XX. Cujus anime..... Amen. Pater noſter.

On the South Side of the Rails, a ſmall Braſs Plate, with this Inſcription:

Pray for rhe Sowle of Mr. Wheddon .... who deſſeſſed the xxiiii of ..... in the Year of our Lord God CCCCCXX. upon whoſe Sowle Jeſu have Mercy. Amen.

On a fair Stone before the Table is this Inſcription in a Braſs Plate.

Hic jacet Richardus Breame, Gen. oriundus de Comitat. Suffolciæ; qui diu & fideliter inſervivit Dominæ Elizabethæ Reginæ; & poſtea Domino Jacobo Regi. Et deinde Senectute provectus, & multis Morbis gravatus, placidè & quietè de vita mortali in immortalem emigravit, Anno Ætatis ſuæ 62, & Salutis humanæ 1610. Jan. 2. Richardus Filius poſuit Pietatis ergô.

Entering into the Chancel, upon a Stone, a Braſs Plate thus inſcribed:

Depoſitum Henrici Smith, Senatoris Londinenſis.

And in another Braſs Plate, on the ſame Stone, theſe Verſes:

Mole ſub hac quæris Quis conditur, optime Lector,
Cujus & qualis, quantus in Orbe fuit?
A dextris muri ſtatuam tu cernere poſſis,
Oranti ſimilem, marmore de Pario.
Subter quam ſtatuam cernatur Tabula ſculpta,
Auratis Verbis quæ tibi cuncta notant.

A very fair Monument on the North Wall, with the Heads of Sir Tho. Broderick, and his Lady Katharine, with a large Inſcription in Latin. He died Anno 1641. Ætat. 46. She dyed 1678.

In the Body of the Church:

Againſt a Pillar, a ſmall white Stone thus inſcribed:

Nicolas Tonnet having lived in this Pariſh of Wandſworth about fifty Years, and by his hard Labour and good Husbandry, with God's Bleſſing, gathered together a conſiderable Sum of Money; out of Regard to the Poor of his Pariſh, where he earned the ſame, in his Lifetime gave into the Hands of the Church-Wardens 200 l. Sterling. Which they carefully laid out, with the Conſent of the Veſtry, and others in the Pariſh, in a Mortgage on ſeveral Houſes in St. Giles's in the Fields, paying the yearly Intereſt thereof to the ſaid Nicolas Tonnet during his Life: And after his Deceaſe, the Profits thereof to remain to the Uſe of the Poor of the ſame Pariſh for ever, according to his own Direction and Appointment. And being a Proteſtant of the French Nation, hath alſo given 200 l. in like Manner, to the Uſe of the Poor of the French Proteſtants Church in LONDON.

To the End that this exemplary Charity may be remembered, and thankfully acknowledged, and for inciting others, whom God ſhall bleſs with the Goods of this World, according to their Abilities, to remember the Poor; this is ſet up at the Charge of the Church-Wardens, May 29, 1681.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Thomas Tayer, Senior, aged 101 Years: Buried the 13th December. 1653. Alſo the Body of Thomas Tayer his Son, aged 78, buried the 14th Jan. 1662. both of Rants, in Northamptonſhire, Eſqrs.

On the North Window, a ſmall Monument for Tho. Moſeley, Reader of this Pariſh; and for his Son-in-law William Taton, and his Grand-child. He departed the 13th of January, 1681.

On the North Wall, is a Table of Benefactors, both to the Uſe of the Church, and to the Uſe of the Poor.

South Iſle.

On a Plate fixed in a flat Stone, is this Inſcription:

Of your Charity, pray for the Soule of Elizabeth Gale, Widow: The which deceſſed in this Paryſh the 21ſt Day of January, MVCXLV. Upon whoſe Sowle, and al Chriſten Sowles, Jheſu have Mercy. Amen.

Lower on a black Marble:

D. C.

This Stone doth tell, the Children and the Mother,
That liv'd and dy'd all in one Year together:
The Children firſt Death did deprive of Life,
Yet ſtaid not here, but took away the Wife.
Inſatiate Death, not with the Fruit content!
But thy laſt Malice on the Tree haſt ſpent.
Her virtuous Life it needleſs were to praiſe,
That's ſtill the Gloſs to cover vicious Ways:
I'll ſay but this, that all who knew her well,
For Life, for Death, will ſay ſhe did excel.

It is a middling handſome Monument, the Letters are in Gold.

Another Monument againſt the North Wall of the Chancel, with this Inſcription:

To Henry Huſſey, Eſq; his loving Wife Judith Paget hath erected this Monument. He was born at Slinkfold in Suſſex: He was Clerk of the Spicery to Queen Elizabeth and King James, and lived in the Court 35 Years. He deliver'd his Soul to God the 23d of May, 1611, in the 64th Year of his Age. His Body lyeth buried here, waiting for a joyful Reſurrection.

Beſides theſe, are many other Monuments of the Dead, ſome more antient, ſome more modern, viz.

In the Chancel.

On the Ground, on a Braſs Plate, this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Ratcliff, late of Batterſey, Gent. who deceaſed the 8th of July, 1587.

On the Stone was the Figure of a Man, but the Braſs torn off.

On the North Side of the Table, a Braſs Plate very Antient, thus engraven:

Undre this Stone John Stanley lyeth.
Pray for hym and Kateryn hys Wyf.
For ſuch Gooden God hem ſent,
They gaf to the Chirch with good Entent.
For that, for their Solles doon pray,
Chriſt guyte ther Mede at Domys Day.

A fair Marble Stone thus inſcribed:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Charles Chappel, Son of Mr. John Chappel, who was Prebendary of Salisbury fifty Years. He departed this Life the 6th of February, 1685, in the .... Year of his Age. He married Mary, Daughter of Sir Alexander Radclyff, Kt. of the Noble Order of the Bath: By whom he left one Daughter, viz. Anne, aged ſeven Years.

Next to this, the Figures of two young Men in Braſs; and betwixt them, on a Braſs Plate, theſe Words:

As we were, ſo are ye:
As we are, ſo ſhall you be.
Your ſelves by us ſee here, which lie,
Who dyed to live, though born to die.

And on another Plate under this, thus written:

Hereunder lie buried Rowland and William Prat, two of the Sons of Jacob and Margaret Prat, of Barmondſey in the County of Surrey.

An old Braſs with three Lines; and another Braſs with Arms. The Inſcription is as followeth:

Hic jacet Robertus Moro de Devonio, quondam de Interiori Templi. Qui obiit 7mo die menſis Septembr. Anno Dom. MCCCCLXVIII. Cujus anime propicietur Deus. Amen.

South Iſle. South Wall.

A Woman kneeling againſt a Desk, and this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Hillary, late the Wife of Thomas Hillary, Gent. both deceaſed. Whoſe Love, Piety, and Charity to the Poor, deſerveth never to be forgotten. She dyed an old Woman, childleſs, the 10th Day of September, Anno Dom. 1592.

Roland Benſon, Gent. being her Kinſman, and brought up by her, (who likewiſe departed this Life the 9th Day of October, 1606, and lyeth buried hard to this Church Wall) carefully in his Life-time, at his Coſt, provided this Monument, to ſhew his Thankfulneſs unto her; and for her Remembrance.

Edwardus Randolph, Armig. eorum Con. hoc Monumentum poſt eorum mortem confici fecit.

Lower:

Near this Place are buried the Bodies of Nicolas Wyld of London, Merchant, and Inhabitant of this Pariſh, and Elizabeth his Wife. With whom he lived 35 Years in Marriage, and had four Sons and five Daughters by her. One of which Sons, viz. John was buried by them. Elizabeth his Wife dyed the 1ſt of April, 1688, aged 58. And the ſaid Nicolas Wyld departed this Life the 15th of April, 1693, being the 73d Year of his Age.

Next, a very fair Monument of white Marble: On the Top of all, an Head of Sir Edward Wynter curiouſly cut. This is the Epitaph:

P. M. S. Edwardi Wynter, Equitis. Qui adhuc puber ex patria proficiſcens in Orientalibus Indiis Mercaturam feliciter exercuit, magnas Opes comparavit, majores conflaturus, ſi non ſpreviſſet. Ibidem ſplendidè vixit, & honorificè poſt annos 42 Angliam reviſit. Uxorem duxit Emmam filiam Richardi Howe, Armigeri, Norfolciens. Deceſſit Martii 22, Anno ætatis 64. Anno Domini, 1685-6.
Poſuit marito optimè de ſe merito ux. mœſtiſſima.

Born to be Great, in Fortune as in Mind,
Too great to be within an Iſle confin'd:
Young, helpleſs, friendleſs, Seas unknown he try'd:
But Engliſh Courage all thoſe Wants ſupply'd.

A preg-

A pregnant Wit, a painful Diligence;
Care to provide, a Bounty to diſpenſe,
Joyn'd with a Soul ſincere, plain, open, juſt,
Procur'd him Friends, and Friends procur'd him Truſt.
Theſe were his Fortune's Riſe, and thus began
This hardy Youth, rais'd to that happy Man.
A rare Example, and unknown to moſt,
Where Wealth is gain'd, and Conſcience is not loſt.
Nor leſs in martial Honour was his Name,
Witneſs his Actions of immortal Fame.
Alone, unarm'd, a Tyger he oppreſt,
And cruſht to Death the Monſter of a Beaſt.
Thrice twenty mounted Moors he overthrew,
Singly on Foot; ſome wounded, ſome he ſlew;
Diſpers'd the reſt. What more could Sampſon do?
True to his Friends, a Terror to his Foes.
Here now in Peace his honoured Bones repoſe.

Under theſe Verſes is writ,

VITA PEREGRINATIO.

The Repreſentation of both theſe his Exploits are engraven on the Monument.

In this South Iſle is a flat Stone, with an Inſcription; under which lyeth the ſaid Edward Wynter.

On another Stone, on a Braſs Plate, the Figure of a Man in a Gown, and a Woman, both ſtanding, with their Hands together, and this Inſcription:

Under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Richard Turk, late of this Pariſh: Who deceaſed the 17th Day of December, An. Dom. 1570. Leaving to Goddes Mercy Bridget his Wife, of whom he had three Sons and two Dowghters. His Sowl reſteth with God.

In the Middle Iſle:

A little Stone, with the Figure of a young Woman in Braſs, and this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Agnes filia Johis. Reynold, Magiſtri Scholar. Sti. Pauli. Que ob. 2do die Octobr. An. Dni. M CCCC XLIIII.

Lower lyeth interred William Kent, Gent. late of this Pariſh: Who departed the 17th of April 1705, aged 47: And three Children.

Upon a Table hanging on a Pillar is this Inſcription:

On the South Side of the Chancel lyeth buried Henry Sayer, Gent. who dyed in Novemb. 1619. John, Son of Henry, dyed in November 1628, and Rebecca his Wife; and John, Son and Heir of the ſaid John, dyed Decemb. 31, 1666; and Mary his Wife dyed the 14th of May, 1659; and Samuel, Rebecca, and Edward, Brothers and Siſter of the ſaid John; and three Children of John Sayer, Gent. (now living, 1706) lie buried in the Middle Iſle near this Place.

North Iſle.

On a Braſs Plate are theſe Words:

Hugh Morgan, late of Batterſey, Eſq; ſleepeth here in Peace: Whom Men late did admire for worthful Parts. To Queen Elizabeth he was Chief 'Pothecary, till her Death.

And in his Science as he did excell,
In her high Favour he did always dwell.
To God religious, to all Men kind,
Frank to the Poor, rich in Content of Mind.
Theſe were his Virtues, in theſe dyed he,
When he had liv'd an hundred Years and three.

On the ſame Stone another Plate, thus inſcribed:

Hic jacet venerabilis vir Hugo Morgan: Moriebatur 13 die September, Anno Dom. 1613. Cui Robertus Morgan Generoſus, ejus ex fratre nepos ſaxum hoc amoris ergô poſuit.

In the Church-yard.

Here lyes interred the Body of Mrs. Mary Skeat, who departed this Life the 10th Day of December 1734, in the 69th Year of her Age.

THIS Church hath a fine Eaſt Window of painted Glaſs, wherein is Queen Elizabeth's Arms, and on each Side thereof the Arms of the St. John's, a noble and antient Family in this Pariſh. Under which Coats are three Pictures: The firſt is of the Lady Margaret, with this Inſcription:

Margaret Beauchamp, (Grandmother to King Henry VII.) from Patſhul, Grandiſon, and Tregoze, Anceſtors to the Family of St. John of Lidiard Tregoze, and Bletſo, ſecond Earl of Bolingbroke.

The Second, of King Henry VII. with this wrote under:

King Henry VII. Grandſon to Margaret Beauchamp, Wife to Sir Oliver St. John, Anceſtor to the Family of St. John of Lidiard Tregoze, &c.

The Third of Queen Elizabeth, with this Inſcription:

Queen Elizabeth, Daughter of K. Henry VIII. by a Daughter of Thomas Bullen, Earl of Wiltſhire, Great Grandfather of Anne, Daughter of Sir Tho. Leighton, Wife of Sir John St. John of Lidiard Tregoze, &c.

IN this Church is a new Gallery, built Anno 1705, by Sir Walter St. John, for the Boys of his School, founded in the Pariſh, for teaching of twenty-eight Children. It is endowed with Lands in Peckham.

CLAPHAM.

FROM Batterſey we next take our Courſe to the Pariſh of Clapham, ſituated upon a fine Riſing, whence is a pleaſant Proſpect over the the River Thames, upon Chelsea, and the Places on that Side. Here divers Citizens have chosen Mansions for their Country Retirements.

In the Church are these Monuments erected, for pious and dutiful Respects to the Dead, whose Bodies are here reposited.

In the Chancel:

Within the Rails of the Communion-Table is a flat Stone, covering the Body of John Thomson, Esq; who departed the first of March 1665, aged 71. And the Body likewise of Abraham Babington, Gent. Feb. 7, 1681; and Elizabeth his Wife, May 9, 1689.

Under another flat Stone within the Vault lie the Body of Sir Laurence Bromfield, Knt. who deceased the 20th of June 1668. And also his Grand-children, Charles Corbet, and Thomas Corbet, the former dying 1660, the latter 1667.

Against the North Wall a little Monument, with these Words:

Hannah Lister: Dear Wife! dyed 1695, and left six Children in Tears for a most indulgent Mother.

She was Daughter and Heir of Tho. Parkinson of Carleton in Craven.

On a Brass Plate fastned to a flat Stone before the Rails, is this Inscription:

Gulielmus Glanvil, Generosus, Mercator Exoniensis fessus itinere (quoad Londinum suscepit) necnon Febris violentia fatigatus, hic requiescit, Anno Dom. 1647. Et Ætatis suæ 57.

Quis jacet hic quæris? Tibi supra scripta loquuntur.
At qualis vixit, te sua fama docet.
Neglexit moriens jactans Encomia Marmor.
Nam bene qui vixit sat sibi laudis habet.

North Isle.

Against the South Wall, a Monument of a Man in a Crimson Gown, and a Woman, both kneeling before two Desks; behind the Man a Son, and under him these Verses:

Ingenium, Eloquium, Doctrina, Scientia, Virtus,
Si vitam tribuunt, Clerce, perennis eris.
Invida mors habeat Corpus, sed mente superstes,
Invisus nulli, Clerce, perennis eris.
Ob. Martii 12° An. Ætatis suæ 52.

Under her:

Casta, pia, & prudens, conjux Elenora relicta:
O! tali conjux quam bene juncta viro?
Consortes gemina Omnipotens vos prole beavit,
Sit proles felix, sit benedicta Deo.

At the upper End of this Isle is erected a very noble Monument, raised from the Ground to some Height, where appear two Effigies in white Marble, lying along, being a Man in Armour, and a Woman by him. On the South Side of the Basis of this Monument is this Inscription:

Domini Richardi Atkins de Clapham in Com. Surrey, Militis & Baronetti. Qui obiit 19 Aug. An. Chr. 1689. Et Dominæ Rebeccæ mœstissimæ ejus Relictæ; Filiæ & Cohæredis Edm. Wright alias Bunckley, de Swarely in Com. Middlesex. Equitis Aurati. Ex qua decem suscepit Liberos, Filios, nempe, duos, Filias octo; viz. Annabellam & Rebeccam quæ (una cum Henrico) cælebes obierunt, duas filias abortivas; unumq; filium & filias quatuor superstites; scil. Ricardum, Mariam, Agneteus, Elizabetham & Rebeccam.

The Inscription on the North Side of the Tomb is this:

D. Richardus Atkins, Baronettus, (filius & hæres dicti Richardi) duxit in uxorem Elizabetham filiam Thomæ Bide de Ware Park in Com. Hertford. Militis.

Maria Atkins, Reverendo in Christo Patri Gulielmo (Moreton) Episcopo Kildarensi in Hibernia nupta est.

Agnes, Edwardo Atkins, Armigero, filio secundo genito Roberti Atkins de Saperton in Comit. Glocester. Militis Balnei, se Connubio junxit.

Elizabetha, Thomæ Tooke de Wormley in Com. Hertford. Armigero, desponsata est.

Et Rebecca, Wolstano Dixie, Armigero, (filio & Hæredi Apparenti D. Beaumontis Dixie de Bosworth in Com. Leicestr. Baronetti) se Matrimonio copulavit.

There farther belongs to this Monument three other curious Figures in white Marble, placed against the East Wall, somewhat advanced, which were Sir Richard's three deceased Children.

Under the first, which is a Female Child, holding between both her Hands a Death's Head, is this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body of Rebecca, the Daughter of Sir Richard Atkins of this Place, Kt. and Bart. by Dame Rebecca his Wife. She departed this Life in the 9th Year of her Age, the 10th Day of June 1661.

Reader, survey with piteous Eye,
The Mercileſs Hand of Destiny:
Which, from a tender Parent's Breast,
With Fury tore this welcome Guest:
Still culling out the fairest Gem,
T'adorn his mighty Diadem.
But Heaven concern'd to hear those Cries,
Which did perform her Obsequies,
In Compensation, gave no less Than everlasting Happiness.

Under the second Figure which is a Lady sitting, having a Book in her Left Hand, with her Finger in it, and an Handkerchief in the other Hand) is thus written:

Here lyeth also the Body of Annabella, the Daughter of the aforesaid Sir Richard; who dyed at Paris, January the 1st, in the 19th Year of her Age, and interred here, Anno 1670.

Could Tears have ſav'd her precious Life, no doubt
A general Deluge had been poured out:
Or could the Skill of all the Learned have Prevail'd but to reprieve her from the Grave;
Mankind had ne'er permitted ſo much Worth,
To their great Loſs to vaniſh from the Earth.
She dyed young; not that ſhe really cou'd,
Be weary yet ſo ſoon of doing Good:
But fit for Heaven, ſhe without Pretence,
Might juſtly ſcorn a meaner Reſidence.

The third Figure is a Man ſitting in Armour, having a Commanding Staff in his Hand: Of whom is this Account given underneath:

And alſo the Body of Henry, the eldeſt Son of the aforeſaid Sir Richard. He departed this Life the 5th of February, 1677. Ætatis ſuæ 24.

That Miroir of all Youth, whoſe Genius ſtood
So happily diſpos'd towards all that's good:
And who could never, for the baſe Delight
Of filthy Sin, find any Appetite:
Here reſts in Peace, until the Day ſhall come,
When Men muſt all receive their fatal Doom:
Then he, attired like a wedding Gueſt,
Shall be admitted to the Bridegroom's Feaſt:
Mean Time it ſhall be my continual Strife,
Next unto Chriſt to imitate his Life.

In the Church-Yard,

Are ſeveral Monuments, one on the South by the Wall, bearing this Inſcription:

Conditur hoc tumulo Reverendi viri Sam. Symonds Eccleſiæ Anglicanæ Presbyteri, admodum pii, probi, prudentis, fidi animo quo digna fuit, & quod diu deperiit, ad Beatorum Conſortium conceſſit 30 Jan. Anno Dom. 1699, & peregrinationis ſuæ 45.

Mary, John, Sarah, Anne, Elizabeth, Martha, and William; he departed this Life Sept. the 17th, 1728, in the 82d Year of his Age.

Suſanna Stevens, who departed the 20th of September, 1728, aged 36 Years.

Beneath this Stone lyes interred the Body of John Ridlough, who died the 1ſt of July, in the 42d Year of his Age, 1729.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Martha Cox, late Wife of Mr. Thomas Cox of this Pariſh, who departed this Life March the 27th, 1732, aged 71 Years.

Alſo the Body of Mr. Thomas Cox, who departed this Life September 10, 1733, in the 73d Year of his Age.

CAMBERWELL.

SOmewhat farther on this Side is ſituated the pleaſant Town of Camberwell, where the antient worſhipful Families of the Scots and Bowyers now (or lately) inhabited, with divers other fair Seats. This Pariſh takes in Peckham and Dulwich, famed for its purging Waters and the College.

THE Church is antient, and adorned with many Monuments for Remembrances of the Dead:

In the Chancel:

On the North Side, againſt the Wall, is an antient Monument raiſed from the Ground; where, on a Plate of Braſs, is the Effigies of a Woman kneeling, her Hands together, with a long Pair of Beads hanging at her Girdle, and reaching to the Ground; and a Man in Armour alſo kneeling, Hands together; Labels of Braſs proceeding out of their Mouths, but torn away. Coats of Arms, ſome remaining, and ſome torn off. The Arms are, On a Feſſe three Boars Heads couped. Behind the Woman kneel ſeven Daughters; behind the Man four Sons.

The

The Plate underneath them was thus inſcribed, in the old Black Letter:

Of your Charite pray for the Sowl of John Scot, Eſquier, and one of the Barons of the Eſcheker, which John deceſyd the vi. Day of September, in the xxiiii Yere of the Reygne of our Soveraign Lord King Henry the VIII. and in the Yere of our Lord God xv c and xxxii. on whoſe Sowles Jeſu have Mercy - - - - Amen.

By this Eaſtward, againſt the Wall, on a Braſs Plate, is a Man in a Gown, kneeling, and eight Sons kneeling behind him; and a Woman kneeling, with four Daughters behind her. The Inſcription:

Here lye buried the Bodies of John Bowyer, Eſquire, and Elizabeth his Wife, one of the Daughters of Robert Draper, Eſquire. They had Iſſue eight Sons and three Daughters, and John dyed the xth of October, 1570; Elizabeth after married William Foſtar, Eſquire, who had Iſſue by her, one Son and one Daughter, and dyed April 27, 1605.

On the South Side of the Table, againſt the Wall, a ſmall Monument plated:

Here lyeth the Body of Mathye Draper, Eſq; who was married unto Senſe Blackwell, Daughter of William Blackwell, of LONDON, Eſq; who dyed without Iſſue the 21ſt Day of July, in the Year of our Lord God 1577; his Picture and her's kneeling.

Next to this, Weſtward, againſt the Wall, on a very old Monument, is the Effigies of a Man and a Woman in Braſs, kneeling; behind him five Sons, behind her five Daughters, and this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Rycus Skynner, & Agnes uxor ejus. Qui quidem Rycus, ob. 3d die Januar. Ann. Dom. MCCCCVII. Agnes vero ob. V°. die Martii Ann. Dom. MCCCCLXXXXIX. Quorum - - - - [Here muſt needs be a Miſtake in the Date.]

Juſt over this is an Inſcription, engraven in Stone:

Here lies interred the Body of Dame Anne Vernon, deceaſed the firſt of March, 1629, Wife ſhe was to Sir Robert Vernon, Kt. Clerk of the Green Cloth to his Majeſty, and Mother of ſeven Children to her Husband, yet living.

Her virtuous Life and godly End, God grant they all may imitate: That as ſhe is departed in Peace, by God's Mercy, and through Chriſt's Merits, they may all at the laſt Day meet again in Joy.

Chancel, South Wall:

A handſome Monument there advanced ſome what higher for Dame Heſter Bowyer, late Wife of Sir Edmund Bowyer of this Pariſh, Kt. and eldeſt Daughter of Sir Anthony Aucher, Knight.

There was a happy Sympathy between the Vertues of the Soul and the Beauty of the Body of the excellent deceaſed Perſon. She lived an holy Life, and dyed the Death of the Righteous, Decemb. 19, 1665.

A good Life hath but few Days, but a good Name endureth for ever.

Sir Edmund alſo (as he deſired) lyes here by his moſt loving and well-beloved Wife. Likeneſs begat Love, and Love Happineſs; true Here, compleat in Heaven, where they reap the Fruit of Faith and good Works; he dyed the 27th of Jan. 1681, aged 67.

Tam pios Cineres nemo conturbet.

In the Middle Iſle:

Before the Communion-Table, the Figures of a Man and Woman in Braſs, praying; the Arms and Inſcription torn off.

By this Stone, another with the Figure of a Child in Braſs, but torn off with the Epitaph; only a Part of the Label remains, containing theſe Words: Sancti Innocentes, orate pro nobis.

Lower in this Iſle, an antient Figure of a Man in Braſs, and thus written:

Hic jacet Mighel Skenner, Generoſ. qui ob. die . . . . . Novembr. Anno Dni. Millimo CCCCLXXXX VII. Cujus anime propitietur Deus. Amen.

Lower, under a fair Marble Stone, are buried four Sons of Robert Maddocks, Eſq; and Anne his Wife, Roger, Richard, Robert, Roger, and afterwards was buried by ſhe.

Margaret Dove, Wife to John Dove, Daughter of Thomas Kelette of Surrey, Gent. and had Iſſue by the ſaid John five Sons and four Daughters, and deceaſed the 22d of April, 1582.

North Iſle:

A Monument againſt the Wall of a Woman kneeling, with a Book before her. She was Jane, the Daughter of Sir Thomas Hunt, and Wife of Thomas Grimſton. By whom ſhe ſeems (for the Inſcription is obſcure) to have had ten Sons and three Daughters.

When twenty Years and - - - - Days were ſpent
In wedlock Bands, and loyal Love's Delights;
November 12 Day then ſhe was content
This World to leave, and give to God his Right
Her 63 Year ful complete and ended,
Her Soul to God, to Earth her Corps commended.
Ann. Dom. 1604.

On a Braſs Plate:

Here lies buried the Body of Thomas Muſchamp, Gent. youngeſt Son of Francis Muſchamp, Eſq; married Elizabeth the Daughter of Thomas Nayler of Standiſh in the County of Lancaſter, Gent. who departed this Life, in certain Hope of a joyful Reſurrection, the 3. Day of May. Anno Dom. 1637. For whoſe Memory, Elizabeth his loving Wife, cauſed this Memorial, &c.

Engraven upon the ſame Stone:

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Pearſe, the Widow of John Pearſe; Gent. and Daughter of Francis Muſchamp of this Pariſh, deceaſed, Eſq; who departed this Life the 14 of May, 1694. Aged 84. And her dear Son George Pearſe, Gent. April 29, 1685. Aged 48.

Henry Duntet, born at Horſham in Suſſex; dyed Novemb. 20, 1600.

On a Pillar, between the Middle Iſle and North Iſle, is erected a decent Monument, upon which is the following Inſcription:

This Momument is erected in Memory of the vertuous Mrs. Joanna Vincent, by her moſt ſorrowful Husband Thomas Vincent, Eſq; one of the Juſtices of the Peace of this County, and Alderman of the City of LONDON. To whom ſhe was Wife twenty Years; and by whom he had five Sons and nine Daughters: The laſt, finiſhing her Mother's ſhort, but pious, Courſe; made Death her Triumph, not her Conqueror, in the 27. Year of her Age, the 22. Febr. 1654.

She

She was one of the Daughters of Thomas Burgeſs of Horly in the County of Surrey.

In her Grave, at the Foot of this Pillar, is interred Vincent Blayney, Son to Richard and Elizabeth Blayney: He was Son to Henry Lord Blayney; and ſhe the eldeſt Daughter of Thomas and Joanna Vincent. He was born the 17th, and buryed the 29th of March, 1654-5. O Lord, how glorious art thou in thy Saints!

What Solomon ſcarce found, was truly here;
And Time to come will hardly find her Peer:
For all the Vertues now in one you find,
One of ten thouſand, ſhe excell'd her Kind.
Her vertuous Life, if writ, might t'all Inſtruction give;
To be a Wife, a Mother, Friend, and teach them live.

VINCENTI corona dabitur.

South Iſle.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, a Monument for Robert Waith, Gent. Pay-Maſter of the Navy, to King Charles the Second; who dyed the 28th of Octob. 1685. And Elizabeth his Wife, who dyed the 13th of April, 1667. And Rob. Waith, Gent. their eldeſt Son, the 16th of Decemb. 1686.

Againſt the South Wall in this Iſle, a fair large Monument, thus inſcribed:

D. O. M.

Here ſleeps, in Hope of Reſurrection, the Body of Sir Peter Scot, Kt. who having lived deſired and beloved both of his Friends and Neighbours, deceaſed the 28th of June, 1622, and in the —— Year of his Age. He married Elizabeth, eldeſt Daughter of Edmund Kederminſter, Eſquire, one of the Six Clerks of Chancery; and left behind him one Son and three Daughters, with their moſt ſorrowful Mother; who, among other Teſtimonies of a pious Affection to his Memory, conſecrated this Monument in her Tears.

Here might be Praiſes, but he needs not them;
Thoſe Puffs the Vertuous and the Dead contemn;
For ſuch are better pleaſed good to be,
Than to be called ſo; and ſuch was he.
This then for Oſtentation raiſe we not,
Nor out of Fear his Worth may be forgot;
But that the Readers, and the Paſſers by,
Reflecting on the Shrine of Death an Eye,
May mind their own, So neither will the Coſt
Seem vain, nor the Beholder's Labour loſt.

Next adjoining on this Wall:

GREENWICH.

THE next is Greenwich, a Town on the Bank of the River Thames.

HERE the Kings of this Land had a fair Palace and Park on a Hill adjoining to it: Part of which is turned into a vaſt Structure of Charity for the Reception and Harbouring of ſuch who have ſerved in the Royal Navy or Merchant-Ships; and by Reaſon of Wounds, Loſs of Limbs, or Age, are diſabled. Of this Hoſpital we have already ſpoke, Vol. I. Chapters VI. and XIV.

THE Church of Greenwich is a very handſome New Building, it is dedicated to St. Alphage, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who is ſaid to have been kill'd by the Danes in the very Place where the Church is built.

PRAYERS are ſaid here twice every Day; that is, in the Morning between Ten and Eleven, and at Night between Six and Seven: And 12 Monthly Sermons are preached here on the Wedneſdays before the firſt Sundays in each Month. For both which, by a Collection made in the Pariſh, is paid 30 l. per Annum.

THERE be two Free-Schools in this Pariſh, one founded by Sir William Boreman, Kt. for twenty Boys, who are to be boarded as well as taught. For which Uſe there is a large Houſe appropriated for the Maſter and Scholars. The Boys wear Green Coats and Caps. This School is but of late Foundation, of thirty Years and upwards. For which the Founder left an Eſtate in Houſes about the Church for ever. It was founded by Sergeant John R..... The preſent Schoolmaſter is Mr. William Herringham, who hath a Salary of 20 l. a Year. Theſe Boys wear Grey Coats.

O mea Sara, oculis multo mihi Charior ipſis
Deſeris (heu!) viduum cur ita Sara, virum?
Tu ſecura manes, portu requieſcis Amæno,
Non tibi fraus, moribus nec mala obeſſe valent.
Tu pace æterna frueris, in vivis ovaſque,
Quippe tibi eſt terris gratior Aula Dei.
Conjux ipſe tuus maneo vivoque ſuperſlex
Mœſtificis plenus ſollicitudinibus.
Spera tamen tempuſque brevi (mea ſacra) futurum eſt
Cum te viſurus ſim, velin acre poli.
Cuncta tibi ſcio ſalva manent, vereque Beata es,
Cui mors vita fuit, vitaque more viret.
Eheu! quam noſtræ eſt evanida gloria vitæ
Certa dies nobis nulla, nec hora datur
Stare decet vigiles, vigiles ergo, ſemperque paratos,
Ne mors incautos nos inopia premat.
Ecce rei teſti, ſacra hic Blomera jugali
Franciſco Hettono Conſociato Thoro,

COLLEGE at Greenwich.

THERE is at Greenwich a handſome College built fronting the Thames, for the Maintenance of 20 poor Men and a Maſter, founded and well endowed by Henry Earl of Northampton, and committed by him to the Care of the Worſhipful Company of Mercers of LONDON.

In this College is a Chapel, where the Body of the ſaid noble Peer is laid, whoſe ſaid Body, together with his Monument, was lately tranſlated by the ſaid Company from the Chapel of Dover-Caſtle hither, where is a coſtly Mauſolæum erected for him.

There is a black Marble Sarcophagus, reſting upon Pedeſtals. Four Figures in white Stone, on the Corners of the Fabrick, reſembling the four Cardinal Virtues. On the Top of all is the Figure of the Earl kneeling: His Hands claſped, his Sword by his Side, with his Robes of the Garter on. It is placed on the South Side of the Communion-Table. There is an Inſcription on this Side, viz.

Inclytus hic Comes tria Hoſpitalia fundavit, & latifundiis dotavit, unum Greenwici in Cantio: In quo xx egeni, & Præfectus: Alterum Cluni in Comitat. Salopiæ, in quo xii egeni cum Præfecto: Tertium ad Caſtrum Riſing in Comitat. Norfolciæ, in quo xii pauperculæ cum Gubernatrice in perpetuum aluntur.

On the Wall South, by the Tomb:

Deo Patri Domini noſtri Jheſu Chriſti, Omnipotenti, Glorioſo, ſempiterno, & Primæ Trinitatis individuæ Perſonæ, Henricus Howardus trinæ & unius Majeſtatis Cultor obſequentiſſimus Feſto quo natus erat B. Matthiæ Apoſtoli, devotiſſimè ſua manu poſuit, Anno Domini 1613, Februarii die 25°.

Upon the Weſt Side is this Inſcription:

Johanne Griffitho huic Comiti ab Epiſtolis curante, Poſitum.

On the North Side of the Chapel is another Inſcription, ſhewing the Removal of this Monument and the Body of the Earl from the Chapel of Dover Caſtle (of which he was Conſtable) to this Chapel, by the Company of Mercers, William Ivat, Eſq; Maſter.

Upon a flat Stone in this Chapel:

Here lyeth buried the Body of Robert Gilbert, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, who was the Son of Thomas Gilbert of Weſt-Beer in Eaſt-Kent, Gent. and Anne his Wife, who was the eldeſt Siſter unto George Fitz-Gerald Earl of Kildare in Ireland; which Robert was late Warden of this College ſeveral Years, and dyed May 28, 1689, aged 63. In Memory of whom, his Son Robert Gilbert cauſed this Stone to be laid.

CROSSING again over the River Thames at Greenwich, we come to

POPLAR and BLACKWALL.

POPLER, or Poplar, is ſo called from the Multitude of Poplar Trees (which love a moiſt Soil) growing there in former Times; and there are yet remaining in that Part of the Hamlet which borders upon Limehouſe, many old Bodies of large Poplars ſtanding, as Teſtimonials of the Truth of that Etymology.

To

To Poplar adjoineth Blackwall, a notable Harbour for Ships, ſo called, becauſe it is a Wall of the Thames, and diſtinguiſhed by the additional Term Black, from the black Shrubs which grew on it, as on Black Heath, which is oppoſite to it on the other Side of the River: [Or, perhaps, from the Bleakneſs of the Place and Situation.]

The Manor of Poplar did belong to the Crown, as ſome have informed; but now it is in the joint Poſſeſſion of Thomas Middleton and William Benſon, Eſquires.

Poplar and Blackwall, which make one of the Tower Hamlets, is about ſeven Miles in Circumference; for about four of which, it bordereth on the Thames.

The fertile Soil of the Marſh here is much admired, uſually known by the Name of the Iſle of Dogs. Of this Place we have ſpoke before in Book I. Chap. VI. Vol. I. and there given ſome Account how it came to be ſo called; but others ſay it had this Name, becauſe, when our former Princes made Greenwich their Country Seat, and uſed it for Hunting, (they ſay) the Kennels for their Dogs were kept on this Marſh; which uſually making a great Noiſe, the Seamen and others thereupon called the Place The Iſle of Dogs; though it is not an Iſle, indeed ſcarce a Peninſula, the Neck being about a Mile in Length.

There is in this Marſh, juſt oppoſite to Greenwich, an Houſe, called, The Chapel Houſe; where are the Remains of a Chapel built of Stone. And near this are Foundations of Houſes found; and ſometimes Hooks of a great Size, as though of ſome great Gate, taken up. Which maketh it probable, that hereabouts were Inhabitants formerly; perhaps Fiſhermen, or ſuch as had their Livelihood from the Water: And that, by ſome Inundation, or the Unhealthfulneſs of the Situation, they left thoſe Parts at length, for ſome more ſafe and commodious Settlement.

Such is the Fertility of this Marſh, that it produceth Sheep and Oxen of the largeſt Size, and very fat. They are brought out of other Countries, and fed here. I have been aſſured by a Grazier of good Report, (ſaith the Reverend Dr. Woodward) that he knew eight Oxen ſold out of this Marſh for 34 l. each. And all our Neighbourhood know, that a Butcher undertook to furniſh the Club at Blackwall with a Leg of Mutton every Saturday throughout the Year, that ſhould weigh 28 Pounds, the Sheep being fed in this Marſh, or he would have nothing for them; and he did perform it.

Some other Matters of Remark happening here at Poplar, may be added. In the Time of the Elder Sir Henry Johnſon, Kt. Ship-builder, an Horſe belonging to his Ship-yard, was wrought there 34 Years, driven by one Man: And he grew to that Experience, that at the firſt Sound of the Bell, for the Men in the Yard to leave off Work, he alſo would ceaſe labouring; and could not, by any Means, be brought to give one Pull after it. And when the Bell rang to Work, he would as readily come forth again to his Labour, which was to draw Planks, and Pieces of Timber, from one Part of the Yard to another.

A Perſon lately living in this Hamlet, having a great Concern for the Safety of a Ship that was like to break her Back at Blackwall, had his Blood and Spirits ſet into ſuch an extraordinary Ferment, or Ebullition rather, by the Fear of her Miſcarriage, that by the Violence of it, the Tops of the Nails of his Hands and Feet were caſt off to a great Diſtance from their natural Situation, and ſo remained to his Death. And many Perſons now living have atteſted the ſame.

A Sperma Ceti Whale was landed here not long ago; which, had the Owner known the Value of it, for making from the Blubber thereof (as they call it) Parma Ceti, might have brought him incredible Gain.

There is, in the Border of this Hamlet towards Bromley, a large Copperas Work; wherein a great Quantity of Copperas is made every Year.

Now for the Chapel of Poplar, and the Foundation, and of the Hoſpital, and the ſeveral Benefactors to that, and to the Poor of that Part of Stepney Pariſh, the following is an Account, given in a Letter from the late Miniſter thereof, Dr. Joſiah Woodward.

" I very willingly reply, Sir, to your Letter " of the 13th Inſtant, wherein you deſire an Ac- " count of the pious and charitable Benefactions " in this Hamlet, becauſe ſome of them deſerve " to be better known. And here it is but juſt " that I begin with the Society of the Eaſt India " Company, not only becauſe of my particular " Obligations to that honourable Body, but alſo " becauſe their Bounty is the moſt conſiderable " of any, tho' it be not confined to this Hamlet.

" Our Chapel, which is very large and com- " modious, was built on their Ground in the " Year 1654, partly by the voluntary Contribu- " tions of the Inhabitants, Mr. Gilbert Dethick " leading the Way by the Gift of one hundred " Pounds, and others of the Inhabitants follow- " ing, according to their Ability and Diſpoſi- " tion. But this pious Work was chiefly ad- " vanced by thoſe very worthy Gentlemen, Mr. " Maurice Thompſon, from whom the preſent " Lord Haverſham is deſcended; and Mr. Tho- " mas Tomlins, whom I muſt by and by men- " tion again; who partly by their own Bounty, " but chiefly by their earneſt Application to " wealthy Perſons of their Acquaintance, carried " on this noble Building to its Perfection, at the " Coſt of above Two Thouſand Pounds, as it is " uſually computed. And at the preaching of " the firſt Sermon in this Chapel, our aforeſaid " Benefactor, Mr. Thompſon, gave an uncommon " Inſtance of his great Humility and Piety, in " that he condeſcended to go into the Clerk's " Desk, and there named and ſet the Firſt Pſalm " that was ſung in this Chapel. And though " ſome, perhaps, thought that he did a Thing " too mean for his Quality, as the Dancing of " King David before the Ark was cenſured of " old; yet the great Honour, whereby God has " ſince diſtinguiſhed his Poſterity, may ſerve to " demonſtrate the ſure Accompliſhment of God's " Promiſes of exalting the Humble, and honour- " ing thoſe that honour him. But to return to " our Benefactors:

" Ever ſince the Building of this Chapel, the " Eaſt India Company has been pleaſed to grant " to the ſeveral Miniſters that have officiated " therein, (of which, by the Providence of God, " I am the Fourth) the Yearly Allowance of " twenty Pounds, as Miniſter of this Hamlet, " with a convenient Dwelling-houſe, Garden, " and a Paſture-Field of about three Acres: But " they could never yet be prevailed with to grant " this otherwiſe than during their Pleaſure; tho' " for Want of a ſettled Endowment, which the " Lord Biſhop of LONDON did very lately " importune, by his Letter to them, the Conſe- " cration of this very decent Chapel has been " hitherto deferred.

" About the ſame Time that our Chapel was " built, it pleaſed the Eaſt India Company to " erect a School here for the Education of the " Children of ſuch Seamen as are or have been em- " ployed in their Service, to the Number of 24, " endowing it with twenty Pounds a Year, and " a Dwelling-houſe for the School-maſter. They " alſo erected an Alms-houſe about the ſame

" Time,

" Time, for fourteen Seamen diſabled in their " Service by Age or Accidents; to each of which " they allot particular Penſions, according to " their Circumſtances; as they do likewiſe to " many others, who are not lodged in their " Alms-houſe; they that have leaſt having the " Allowance of two Shillings and Six Pence a " Week, with half a Chaldron of Coals for the " Winter, and a ſuperadded Bounty at Chriſt- " mas, when the Gentlemen of the Committee " come down hither to diſtribute an hundred " Pounds, and ſometimes much more, to the " Widows and Orphans of ſuch Seamen as have " ſerved them; which has been their Practice " for many Years paſt.

" In the Year 1665, Mr. John Weſt gave a " Rent-Charge of twelve Pounds a Year, to be " diſtributed among twelve poor Men, and as " many poor Women of this Hamlet, at the " Yearly Feaſt of our Bleſſed Saviour's Nativity.

" Some Time before this, Capt. John Crou- " thers gave an Houſe, now divided into three " Tenements, for the Uſe of the Poor of this " Hamlet for ever, with a Weekly Allowance of " Bread.

" In the Year 1669, Capt. William Curtis be- " queathed a Rent-Charge of ſixty Pounds a " Year, for the Releaſe of poor Priſoners, the " Relief of aged People, the placing out of poor " Children to Trades, and a weekly Diſtribution " of Bread, for the Benefit of the Poor in the " Hamlets of Poplar, Limehouſe, Ratcliff, and " Mile-end for ever.

" Here is an Alms-houſe for eight poor Wi- " dows, which was formerly called Col. Blunt's " Alms-houſe, but ever ſince it has been rebuilt " by Capt. Harman; it has been uſually called " by his Name.

" In the Year 1676, our aforeſaid Benefactor, " Mr. Tomlins, gave 25 l. to remain as a Fund, " for buying of Coals for the Poor of this Ham- " let in the Summer, that they might have them " at the prime Coſt in the Winter.

" The elder Sir Henry Johnſon, beſide his " Contribution towards the Building of our Cha- " pel, was pleaſed to beautify it with Painting " ſoon after that it was finiſhed; and at his " Death bequeathed an Alms-houſe for ſix poor " Shipwrights of this Hamlet, with a Weekly " Allowance of Bread to the Poor.

" Mrs. Eſther Hawes, beſides Communion- " Plate, which ſhe gave for the Uſe of our Cha- " pel, erected alſo here a very convenient Alms- " houſe in the Year 1686, for ſix poor Widows, " appointing one Pound ten Shillings a Year to " be paid to each of them.

" These, Sir, are the Names of all our Be- " nefactors, that I can find either in the Table " that is hanged up in our Chapel, or by En- " quiry among our Inhabitants. But for the En- " couragement of more ſecret Charity, permit " me to add, that I received the laſt Year one " Hundred Pounds from a bountiful Benefactor, " whoſe Name I am not like to know, till the " publick Reward of private Alms be given by " the Judge of all. I was ordered to diſtribute " it among the poor Widows and Orphans of " ſuch Seamen as had ſuſtained Loſs in the Ser- " vice of the Old Eaſt India Company, which " I did accordingly diſtribute.

" And as to this Private Charity, which ſome " unknown Perſons belonging to the ſaid Com- " pany have given, it may truly be ſaid, that I " and a Friend of mine have diſtributed within " the Compaſs of a few Years, at the leaſt Eight " Hundred Pounds to the Widows and Orphans " of Seamen that uſed thoſe Voyages.

" At Limehouſe there is a pretty Work-houſe " ſet up lately by Charity for Children, to keep " them to honeſt Labour.

This Chapel of Poplar, within the Pariſh of Stepney, contains three Iſles.

On the Eaſt Window, over the Communion-Table, are the Arms of Sir John Gaies, Knt. ſome Time Mayor of the City of LONDON, and Alderman Abdy, who ſeemed to have been at the Charge of that Window, and (it is likely) Benefactors towards the Building of the Chapel.

There is likewiſe a painted Coat of Arms in the Glaſs of the Eaſt Window of the North Iſle, inſcribed:

William Dethike, dyed Aug. 22, 1655.

And in another Window in this Iſle, the Dethik's Coat, with the following Inſcription:

Inſignia Gilberti Dethike, Armigeri, (filii Gulielmi Dethike equitis aurati) a cujus Beneficentia fundamentum accepit hoc Sacellum, Anno 1654.

On a Window in the South Iſle is the Coat-Armour of Maurice Thompſon, Eſq; 1657, a worthy Benefactor: Of whom it is remembered, that when this Chapel was firſt opened, and dedicated to the Service of God, himſelf ſet the Pſalm before the Sermon. There is alſo in this Window another Coat of Arms, whereof the Name is gone, viz. Argent, a Bend Azure, between three Oak Leaves proper.

In the North Iſle theſe Perſons lie buried under flat Stones with Inſcription:

The ſaid William Chriſtmas, 1702; aged 77.

Tho' Bodies ſleep in Duſt, yet Souls not few,
Gliſter in Glory: So muſt Bodies too;
Which ſown in Weakneſs, ſhall be rais'd in Power:
We therefore wait for that triumphant Hour.

In the Church-yard ſeveral fair Tombs: One for Capt. Curtis, with this Inſcription:

William Curtis, of this Pariſh, Gent, warns you to Repentance.

Whiles you can, before this Bed on you have Pow'r,
Make your Calling and Election ſure.
Fix your Mind on the Day of Doom,
Be always waiting 'till your Change do come.
That ſo through Chriſt you rais'd may be,
To heavenly Joys, and bleſt Eternitie.

Deceaſed this Life the 27th of Septemb. 1669.

Thomas, Son of Thomas Wharton and Mary his Wife, 1703.

Alſo Agnes Wharton, Relict of Will. Wharton, of Waitby in the County of Weſtmoreland, 1704. Aged 76.

John Akers, late of Limehouſe, deceaſed.
Approaching now to th' Age of fifty ſeven,
In Spirit tranſlated was from Earth to Heaven:
To th' Spirits of juſt Men join'd, which perfect are,
And while enjoying Bliſs and Glory there,
Behold! his mortal Fleſh interred reſteth here;
Sleeping in Jeſus, hoping to ariſe,
Immortal Life t'aſſume among the Wiſe,
To ſhine, tho' now to Death become a Sacrifice.

Reader:
Do juſt Mens Spirits, which here imperfect are,
Perfect commence at Death? Believe them ne'er,
Who ſay, their Souls do die, or elſe lie ſleeping here.
The former being Scripture in my Senſe,
Diſproves the latter by juſt Conſequence.

Thomas Hopkinſon, 1679. And John his Brother, and Alice his Wife.

St. LEONARD's BROMLEY.

HERE in this Church, while it was Part of the Monaſtery of St. Leonard, was buried a right noble Perſonage, (if we may believe one of our Antiquaries) namely, Earl John de Bohum, Son of Humphrey, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, Lord of Brecknock, and Conſtable of England. And there is, this Day, a large Stone lying in the Body of the Church, having formerly much Braſs, now torn off, containing the Effigies of a Man a Woman, and much ornamental Work over their Heads. They ſeem to be ſome Nobleman and his Wife interred in this religious Houſe; perhaps the ſaid Earl and his Lady.

BUT how to reconcile the ſaid Antiquary with an elder than he, viz. John Leland and the Monaſticon Anglicanum will not be eaſy; for Weaver writes, that this Monaſtery was repleniſhed with white Monks, and founded by King Henry II. in the 23d of his Reign. Leland and the Monaſticon report it a religious Houſe for Nuns. And here again, the two laſt differ in the Founder. Leland, as we are told by a late Author, makes the Founder to be that William, Biſhop of LONDON, that lived in the Conqueror's Time; but the Tenour of a Confirmation of this Priory by King Stephen (extant in the Monaſticon) ſeems to make it to be founded and endowed by one Chriſtiane de Sumeri and her Son.

In the Chapel of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary within the Clauſtrum (Cloiſters) of this Nunnery, was interred Elizabeth Siſter to Queen Philippa, and one of the Daughters of William Earl of Henault. Her Will bears Date Anno 1375, wherein ſhe gave a Ring to Sir Thomas de Wodeſtok.

In this Church of St. Leonard lay interred Elizabeth, Wife of Thomas Torell of the County of Eſſex; ſhe dyed Anno 1375: Alſo Joyce, the Wife of Sir Hugh Blunt, Kt. according to the Regiſter, viz. Jocoſa quondam Dni. Hugonis Blunt, Mil. by her laſt Will, Anno 1375, ordered to be buried in Prioratu Sti. Leonardi de Stratford at Bow.

Richard Goſſelyn, Citizen and Ironmonger, by his laſt Will bequeathed ten Marks for mending the Highway at Bromley, reckoning from the Houſe of Stephen Miller, uſque ad Domum Monialium de Stratford, i. e. unto the Houſe of the Nuns at Stratford.

Robert Sudbury, Gent. of the Pariſh of Bromley, in the County of Middleſex, by his Will, Oct. 5, 1484, gave to the High Altar of Paddyſwyk, for Tithes forgot, 20 d. Item, To Katharine, Prioreſs of the Houſe of Nuns of St. Leonard of Stratford at Bow, and the Convent, if they ſhall ſuffer his Body to be buried where his Executors ſhall diſpoſe it, his Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Leonard in the Eaſt Part of Eaſtcheap, LONDON, on Conditition they keep his Anniverſary on the Day of his Obit.

Richard Baynard of Meſſing, Eſq; gave by Will, An. 1432, to the Abbeſs and Convent of Barking, five Marks, to pray for the Souls of Katharine and Iſabel, his Daughters; and to the Nuns of Stratford, 40 s. to pray for his Soul, and the Souls of Johan and Johan, his Wives; and five Marks to pray for his Soul, and Iſabel Doreward's Soul.

William Gobyonne, buried in the Church of Brambeley in Stratford at Bow, 1435.

Againſt the South Wall, next the Eaſt Part of the Church, is a very fair Monument of Mr. Jacob, ſome Time Proprietor of this Manour, and his Wife.

They are repreſented both kneeling: Over his Head is writ, Abraham Jacob, Armiger; over her's, Maria Conjux: Under him, Obiit 6°. Maii, A. D. 1629. Ætat. ſuæ 56. The Inſcription as follows:

Hic Tumulus,
Parentes optimi, cum prole numeroſa hon veſtræ virtutis, ſed Doloris mei Monumentum eſto.
Quàm uterq; erga Deum pius.
Quàm Regi ſuo obſequiens & commodus.
Quàm amicis fidus.
Quàm patris utilis.
Quam pauperibus benignus.

Here is the Repreſentation of a Vine, on the Leaves whereof are inſcribed the Names of his Children, whereof ſome were married and ſome unmarried at the Time of the Erection of this Monument: The Names of thoſe that were married, and their reſpective Husbands, are expreſſed, with their Coats of Arms, born Baron and Femme, viz.

1. Henry Rolt married Ellen Jacob.
2. George Bury married Mary.
3. John Jacob married Elizabeth Halliday.
4. Thomas Wilmer married Elizabeth Jacob.
5. Robert Scylliard married Barbara Jacob.

The Children of Henry Rolt and Ellen are expreſſed to be Mary, Ellen, Thomas, and Elizabeth.

George Bury, by his Wife Mary, had Jacob, George and John.

John Jacob, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Suſan and Jacob.

Thomas Wilmer, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Thomas, Jacob and Mary.

The Names of the unmarried Children:

Inſcription on the Vine Leaves are theſe; Francis, the firſt Son; Richard the third Son; Henry, the fourth Son; Abraham, the fifth Son; Robert, the ſixth Son; Darcy, the ſeventh Son, and Frances the fifth Daughter.

Next Jacob's Monument, on the Weſt againſt the Wall, is the Monument of Roberts, another Proprietor of the Manor, and theſe Inſcriptions:

In this Vault lyeth the Body of Dame Margaret Roberts, Daughter of Mr. William Amy, Merchant, in Exon, and late Wife to Sir John Roberts of Broomly, Bart. by whom he had four Sons and five Daughters; all which dyed in their Infancy. She departed this Life, September the 21ſt, An. Dom. 1690; in Memory of whom, her Husband cauſed this Monument to be erected.

Here only is reſerved her pious Duſt,
Until the Reſurrection of the Juſt.

In the ſame Vault alſo lyeth Sir John Roberts, Bart. Patron of this Church, who dyed the 14th of Decemb. 1692; to whoſe Memory his Relict, Dame Deborah Roberts, being his ſecond Wife, cauſed this Inſcription:

Tho' Death the Body in the Grave doth bind,
The nobler Soul is free and unconfin'd:
And both ſhall reign with Chriſt,
When by his Power enjoyn'd.

In this Monument of Roberts are repreſented two Women ſitting in a mourning Poſture, with Palms in their Hands. The Coat is Baron and Femme. Baron, quarterly, 1. Or, a Lion rampant, Gules. 2. A Bow extended in Feſſe, with an Arrow upon it in Pale. The Third as the Second, and the Fourth as the Firſt.

Next downwards, againſt the ſame South Wall, is the fair Monument of the Ferrers. Here you ſee a Man and Woman half Way, well cut in Stone; both laying one Hand upon the ſame Death's Head, and in the other holding a Book. The Epitaph this:

Here lyeth the Body of William Ferrers, the only Son and Heir of William Ferrers, Eſquire, late Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, who took to Wife Jane, one of the Daughters of Sir Peter Van-lore of LONDON, Knight; by whom he had one Child. His Wife and Child both dyed before him, and he departed this Life a Month before his Father. He was a Gentleman of a religious Soul towards God, and a ſweet Behaviour towards Men. And his Death was, by his Kindred, and generally all, much lamented. He dyed the 25th of Auguſt, 1625, and left his Uncle, Thomas Ferrers, his Executor, who to the Memory of him hath erected this ſmall Monument.

In this moſt pure and bleſſed Shade,
(Such by the ſacred Aſhes made,
That here inhabit muſt) does lye
The Man, whoſe Vertues cannot dye.
His Alms, his Prayers, his Piety,
Have ſent his Soul above the Sky.

Nature full well had taught his Wife,
To ſum his Hours in pious Life:
To God, to Friend, to Poor, to all,
She was as good as we dare call
Frail Fleſh: Good Paſſenger give Praiſe
To them who liv'd ſuch happy Days.

His Coat was, Argent, a Bend Gules, charged with three Horſeſhoes, Or, between two Bendlets, Azure.

The Epitaph for the Child of the ſaid Ferrers was:

As Nurſes ſtrive their Babes in Bed to hie,
When they too liberally the Wantons play;
So, to prevent his future grievous Crimes,
Nature, his Nurſe, got him to Bed betimes.

In the ſame Church was this written in a Place where Bread was ſet to be diſpoſed of to the Poor:

This Bread is given to the Poor, for the Honour of God, and to the Memory of William Ferrers, the Younger, by Thomas Ferrers, his Executor.

In the Chancel ſtill, upon the Ground, on a Braſs Plate:

Of your Charity pray for the Soul of Roger Horton, Citizen and Goldſmith of LONDON, and Margaret his Wife; which Roger deceaſed the 15th Day of January, A. Dom. MCCCCCLVI, on whoſe Soul Jeſu have Mercy.

The Effigies in Braſs on this Stone, is a naked Man, only wrapt in a Sheet, holding his Hands together in a praying Poſture.

The Coat of Arms on the Stone is the Goldſmiths Arms impaled with that of the Fiſhmongers.

Near adjoining, on the Ground, a Man in Braſs between his two Wives:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Graye, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, the eldeſt Son of Alexander Graye; he had two Wives, Elizabeth and Barbara; he had Iſſue by his firſt Wife, four Sons and two Daughters; Elizabeth dyed the 5th Day of Jan. 1580; the ſaid Thomas dyed the 30th of Jan. 1590, when he had lived 62 Years.

Next

Next this, on the Ground, another Stone with Effigies in Braſs:

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Michael Barker, Gentleman, who having lived 62 Years a quiet Life in very honeſt Fame, dyed in the Faith of our Saviour Chriſt the 16th Day of Aug. 1699, leaving only one Daughter.

Againſt the North Wall in the Chancel, neareſt the Eaſt:

Here underneath lyeth, in Hope of a bleſſed Reſurrection, the Body of Sir Richard Munden, Kt. one of his Majeſty's Captains at Sea, who having been (what upon publick Duty, and what upon Merchants Accounts) ſucceſsfully engaged in fourteen Sea Fights, after ſeveral conſiderable Exploits, and ſingular Services performed to his King and Country (whereof that of taking St. Helena, is not to be forgotten) dyed in the Prime of his Youth and Strength, in the 40th Year of his Age, June the 2d, A. D. 1680.

He had to Wife Mrs. Suſanna Gore, by whom he left one Son Richard, born ſince his Father's Death, and five Daughters, Suſanna, Elizabeth, Dorothy, Anne and Rachel.

Think, Reader, how every Man, even at his beſt Eſtate, is Vanity, Pſal. xxxix. 5.

The Shield is bore Baron and Femme. Baron quarterly, 1. Parted per Croſs, Gules and Sale, the Croſs engrailed, Argent, charged with five Lozenges, Azure. Upon a Chief, Or, two Legs of a Crane erazed, Vert. On a Canton Ermin an Anchor, Or.

STRATFORD Le BOW.

A Little Way from Bromley, by the great Road leading into Eſſex, ſtands the Church or Chapel of Stratford, called The Bow, from the Bow, or arched Bridge over the Ley, formerly belonging to the Mother Church of Stepney, but ſome Years ago made a Pariſh diſtinct by Act of Parliament.

In the Chancel of this Church, againſt the North Wall, is this Monument:

Near this Place lyeth the Body of Mr. Thomas Jordan, of London, Merchant, who married Katharine, the only Daughter of Richard Whitlock, of London, Merchant: By whom he had Iſſue five Sons and nine Daughters; of which he left living two Sons and five Daughters. He finiſhed his Courſe the 62d Year of his Age, and yielded up his Spirit unto God April the 9th, 1671, bequeathing his Body to the Earth, to wait for a bleſſed Reſurrection.

The Memory of the Juſt ſhall be had in everlaſting Remembrance.

A Hatchment hangs up here, Baron and Femme. Baron, Sable, three Bells Argent, Femme, Argent, a Chevron Gules, charged with three Cinquefoils, between as many Gauntlets of the Firſt.

A Stone in the Chancel for James Harriſon, Eſquire, departed the 3d of June, 1669, having lived in this tranſitory Life 67 Years.

A Table hanging up in the ſame Chancel, againſt the North Wall:

In Memory of Rachel Wilmer, Daughter of Mr. George Wilmer of Stratford-Bow, in the County of Middleſex, Eſquire, who departed this Life the 25th of Sept. 1670, in the 24th Year of her Age.

On the Top of the Table divers Coats quartered; the firſt, Gules, a Chevron, Arg. between three Spread Eagles, Or.

At the upper End of the South Iſle, on the Wall, is this Inſcription:

Here-under lyeth buried Grace, the Daughter of John Wilſon, late Alderman of LONDON, and, while ſhe lived, the Wife of John Amcotte of the ſame City, Fiſhmonger; by whom ſhe had two Sons, Hammond and Harry, and a Daughter named Grace, the Mother deceaſed the 13th of July; and her Son Hammond deceaſed the 6th of Auguſt following, A. D. 1551, and lyeth buried with his Mother.

Whoſe Death and vertuous Ends have yee in Remembrawns, calling to the living God for the Forgiveneſs of your Sinns.

Amcotte's Coat of Arms was in eight Quarters; the firſt, A Tower between three Cups with their Covers; the ſecond, A Feſſe Gule, between three Eſcalops of the ſame, &c.

In

In the North Iſle, againſt the Eaſt Wall, is a very fair Monument of white Marble with a large Inſcription of a Maid, Daughter and Heir of Mr. Coburne, a Brewer; who being to be married to one Mr. Wollaſton, dyed of the Small-Pox on the Day appointed for her Wedding. The Epitaph is very long, framed by her Lover in Latin, and is thus put into an Engliſh Dreſs, by a Gentleman named Joſh. Squier.

Know, Stranger, underneath this pious Stone,
Alicia Coburne's into Aſhes gone.
Who half an Orphan at her Birth became,
And in ten Months ſhe loſt the filial Name.
Yet thriving in a better Stepdame's Care,
(Who leſs the Nature than the Name did bear:)
E're fifteen flow'ry Springs her Age had paſt,
She was with all the Virgin-Glories grac'd.
Within, her Mind with Heavenly Gifts adorn'd,
Her Life to all the Rules of Vertue form'd.
Without, unblemiſh'd Rays of Beauty ſhone,
So powerful, that where ſhe came ſhe won.
And where ſhe won, ſo gentle and ſo mild,
She triumph'd, and her Captives lov'd to yield.
Her eaſy Soul, which Men Good-Nature call,
To all was grateful, and belov'd of all.
The Joy and Darling of the Family,
The promis'd Glory, and their Hope was ſhe.
Such was her Vertue, and her beauteous Form,
(And who would wonder theſe prevail'd to charm?)
When ſhe her faithful ..... did gain.
Who coming ſaw, and having ſeen was ſlain.
His Liberty was ſlain, and with it dy'd
All Hopes of Joy but in this beauteous Bride;
Aſſociate of his Life, and of his Bed.
Now all Things happily did ſeem to move,
And equal were their mutual Flames of Love:
The Flames which inward burn'd, and fiercely ſtrove.
A Covenant eternal was begun;
The Nuptial Day did leſs'ning backward run:
On which their whole Delight and Hope were plac'd,
Both eager of the Joys which ſeem'd to haſte.
When the fair longing Maid a black Diſeaſe,
Leſs kindly than th'expected Arms, did ſeize.
With hateful Stains her beauteous Face o'erſpread;
What lovely found her living, left her dead.
She dy'd; and all with ſympathizing Grief,
Deplor'd her Fate, and wiſh'd, too late, Relief:
And Oh! in theſe her mourning Friend was chief.
And here, upon the promis'd nuptial Day,
Her lifeleſs, yet ſtill lovely, Body lay:
Preferring thus, before the kindeſt Breaſt,
Good Abraham's Boſom and eternal Reſt.
Where now entranc'd in endleſs Joy ſhe lies,
'Till all the Juſt from Sleeps of Death ariſe.
Then only ſhall more beauteous Bodies ſhine,
More perfect Vertue thou ſhalt ſee than thine:
And Love more pure, and violent, and free,
Than thine to me, or mine has been to thee.
'Till then this Monument ſhall here remain,
Imperfect Shadow of the Giver's Pain.
Thy Memory, bleſt Virgin, here ſhall live;
And here his Love, who does but half ſurvive.

There is one Monument more in this Church; and that is of Mrs. Coburne, late Brewer in Bow, the Mother-in-Law of the before-mentioned Alice, who lately died, and, being the Daughter of Clergyman, and ſome Time Miniſter of Bow, was a moſt noble Benefactor, leaving the Main of her Eſtate, which was large, to charitable religious Uſes; whoſe Gifts, by her laſt Will, were to be ſet down particlarly in the Inſcription on her Monument, inſtead of a flattering Epitaph; which Inſcription is in theſe Words:

In Memory of PRISCA COBURNE, Widow, who lieth buried in the Iſle near this Pillar, and dyed the 13th of November MDCCI. And by her Will dated the 6th of May 1701, gave the Charities following:

To the poor Inhabitants of this Hamlet, who have no Penſions, to be paid as the Will mentions, per Annum 20 l.

To the Miniſter of Bow for the Time being, per Annum 20 l.

To the Clerk of this Chapel for the Time being, per Annum 4 l.

To a creditable Man and his Wife, to inſtruct the Children of the poor Inhabitants of this Hamlet, not exceeding Fifty in Number at one Time, in the Principles of the Church of England, per Annum 50 l.

ALL which Charities are charged on all her Meſſuages and Lands within this Hamlet (except the Meſſuage, Coach-houſe, and Stable, given to Mr. Hardeſty, her Executor): And alſo on all her Meſſuages and Lands in Stratford-Langthorne; and her Farm in Bocking in Eſſex, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades; the Surplus of the Rents and Profits whereof (if any be) are to be applied for the placing out of the ſaid Children to honeſt Trades or Employments.

THE Manor of Bocking Hall, and all her Eſtates in Bocking aforeſaid, (except the ſaid Farm in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades) which were at her Death in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of John Maryon, Tho. Ruggles, ... Smyth, Tho. Clayton, Samuel Carter, Henry Whitehead, and Joſeph Harridance, at ſeveral yearly Rents, amounting to 341 l. per Annum, are for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen of the Church of England; and for placing out ſuch Children to honeſt Trades and Employments.

ONE Meſſuage, and all her Lands in Layer Marley [Marney] and Wigborough in Eſſex, in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of Mary Odye, Widow, and Benjamin Handler, at ſeveral yearly Rents, amounting to about 105 l. and her Wood Land, called Longwood, for the Relief of ſuch poor Perſons of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, LONDON, who ſhall be judged incurable.

AND her Manor of Covil Hall, with the Manor-houſe and Lands in White Roothing in Eſſex, in the Poſſeſſion of Richard Bankes, at the yearly Rent of 110 l. for the Relief of poor Seamens Widows, inhabiting within the Pariſh of Stepney.

AND directed two Thirds of the Surplus of her Perſonal Eſtate, after Payment of Debts and Legacies, to be diſpoſed of by her ſaid Executor in ſuch Charities as he ſhall think fit.

So that this Town of Bow hath received conſiderable Benefit of late, by the good Providence of God, as alſo have the other neighbouring Pariſhes, from this charitably diſpoſed Gentlewoman, Priſca Coburne, Widow, a Brewer, and Inhabitant of the ſame Town. She was the Daughter of one Foſter, ſome Time Miniſter of Bow: Who by her laſt Will and Teſtament, dated May the 6th 1701, 13 W. 3. gave theſe Legacies following, (as they were extracted out of her ſaid Will) viz.

SHE willed thirty Miniſters of the Church of England, of good Reputation, to be invited to her Burial, and to each of them a Mourning Hat-band, Scarf and Gloves, and a good Ring of 20 s. Value.

SIXTY poor Women of the Hamlet of Bow, and twenty poor Women of the Pariſh of St. Leonard Bromley, to attend her Funeral in Mourning Gowns, and ten Shillings a-piece in Money; and her her Executor to pay for the Uſe of their Gowns, during their Attendance.

All her Tenants to be invited to her Funeral: And to each of them Gloves, and a Gold Ring of 20 s. Value.

Such ſingle Women as were Victuallers, and the Wives of ſuch Victuallers who were Cuſtomers to her at her Death in her Brew-houſe Trade, to be invited to her Funeral; and to have each a Ring of 10 s. Value.

Her Executor, as ſoon after her Deceaſe as conveniently, to cauſe the upper Part next the Roof of the Chapel of Bow, to be plaiſtered, ceiled, and wainſcotted, in a decent Manner, and a Monument to be erected over or near her Grave; and a Marble Stone erected near the ſame, and engraven thereon, in legible Characters, an Account of the ſeveral Charities herein after-mentioned; and of the Eſtates by her ſubjected to the Payment thereof.

And beſides many Legacies to private Perſons, ſhe gave to the Poor of the Hamlet of Bow 20 l. to be diſtributed on the Day of her Interment, or as ſoon as the Executor ſhall think fit.

To Thomas White, the preſent Miniſter of Bow, and to ſuch Miniſters as ſhall ſucceed him, and preach at the Chapel in Bow for the Time being, and be elected thereunto by the Majority of the Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet, who pay to Church and Poor, and to their Succeſſors for ever, one Annuity or Yearly Rent of 20 l. to be iſſuing out of all her Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the ſaid Hamlet, and not otherwiſe diſpoſed of in her Will, and to Stratford Langton, and her Farm in Bocking in Eſſex, &c. to be paid unto ſuch Miniſter half yearly for the preaching of four Sermons in every Year in the ſaid Chapel of Bow on the Days following: On Friday next before Eaſter, commonly called Good Friday; Aſcenſion-Day, commonly called Holy Thurſday; the 24th of Auguſt, commonly called St. Bartholomew Day, being her Birth-Day: And the 30th of January yearly for ever.

To the Poor of the Hamlet of Bow, another Annuity or yearly Rent of 20 l. to be iſſuing out of the ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. and to be paid to the Chapel-Warden and Overſeer of the Poor of the ſaid Hamlet, to be by them diſtributed yearly among the Poor of the Hamlet, and have great Charges of Children to maintain, and have no Penſion from the Hamlet, on the ſeveral Days before-mention'd, by 5 l. on each Day.

To the preſent Clerk of the Chapel of Bow, and his Succeſſors, Clerks of the ſaid Chapel, for ever, one Annuity of 4 l. to be iſſuing out of her Meſſuages and Lands laſt mentioned, and to pay him or them on the four Days before-mentioned, at 20 s. each Payment, free of all Taxes and Deductions; ſo as ſuch Clerk or Clerks do take Care to clean the Monument or Stones that ſhall be placed over or near her Corpſe, and preſerve her Bones from being taken out of the Ground where ſhe ſhould be interred.

To Robert Hardeſty, of the Middle Temple, LONDON, Gent. [her ſole Executor] and his Aſſigns, during the Time of his natural Life, ſhe gave all her ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the Hamlet of Bow, and now in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades, upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that he and they do, from and after her Deceaſe, take Care they be kept in good and tenantable Repairs; and that the clear Rents and Profits of the ſaid Premiſes be in the firſt Place applied to the Payment and Diſcharge of the ſaid ſeveral Annuities charged thereupon. And that the Overplus of the ſaid Rents and Profits be applied for the Maintenance and Support of ſome fitting and creditable Man and his Wife, who will take Care to teach and inſtruct the Children, Male and Female, of ſuch poor Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet of Bow, who ſhall not be of ſufficient Ability to give them Learning and Education at their own Coſt and Charges, in the Rudiments and Principles of the Church of England; and ſhall teach the Male Children to Read, Write, and caſt Accompt; and the Female Children to Read, Write, and work at their Needle, or otherwiſe, as they find them qualified: And ſhall take Care to have all the ſaid Children duly brought to Church to hear Divine Service, and to have them duly catechiſed, &c. The Executor to ſee good Orders and Rules made and ſet up for the Government of ſuch Children; the Number of them not to exceed 50 at any one Time.

And for the Encouragement of ſuch Maſter and his Wife, ſhe appointed they ſhould be allowed out of the Rents and Profits, the yearly Sum of Fifty Pounds, and that the Surplus of ſuch Rents, if any were, ſhould be applied for the placing out of ſuch Children to ſome honeſt Trades and Employments, by the Conſent of the Executor, Miniſter, Chapel-warden, and Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet.

And to render this Charity the more ſerviceable for the Ends aforeſaid, ſhe left it to the Diſcretion of her Executor to add this her Charity to the Revenue of the Free-School already erected at Bow by Sir John Jolls, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON, or to keep and uſe it ſeparate and apart from that Charity, as in his Diſcretion might moſt tend to the Benefit of the poor Children of the ſaid Hamlet, and no other.

The Reverſion of her ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, &c. expectant upon the Death of the ſaid Robert Hardeſty, ſhe gave unto the Miniſter of Stebunhith, alias Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matſelon, alias Whitechapel, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar; and to the Church-wardens and Overſeers of the ſaid Hamlet of Bow, for the Time being, and their Succeſſors for ever, upon the like Truſt, and the ſame Intents and Purpoſes, as ſhe gave them to the ſaid Robert Hardeſty and his Aſſigns, during the Term of his natural Life.

She gave unto the ſaid Robert Hardeſty, and his Aſſigns, her Manor of Bocking, alias Bocking-hall, the capital Meſſuage called Bocking-hall, with the Rights, Members, and Appurtenances thereunto belonging: Her Meſſuage, Lands and Tenements, now in the Poſſeſſion of Thomas Ruggle. Her Meſſuage, Lands and Tenements in the preſent Poſſeſſion of Francis Smith. And all other her Meſſuages and Lands in Bocking, now in Mortgage to her from Sir William Barker, Bart. for a Term of 500 Years, (except the Farm now in Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades.) The Inheritance of which ſaid mortgaged Premiſes was ſince decreed to her by the High Court of Chancery: To hold to the ſaid Robert Hardeſty, and his Aſſigns, for and during ſo many Years of the ſaid Term as he ſhall happen to live; upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that he ſhall apply the clear Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of the Clergy of the Church of England, and for placing out of any Child to ſuch Trade or Employments, ſo as no one Clergyman's Widow be allowed more than 5 l. in any one Year, or more than 10 l. be allowed for the placing out of any Child to ſuch Trade or Employment: And all the ſaid Term of Years in the ſaid mortgaged Premiſes, from and immediately after the Death of Robert Hardeſty, ſhe gave and deviſed unto the Governors of the Charity for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen, and their Succeſſors for ever, upon the like Truſts, and to the ſame Intents and Purpoſes.

She gave alſo to Rob. Hardeſty, her Meſſuage and Farm, Wood-Lands, and other Lands and Hereditaments, in the ſeveral Pariſhes of Layer Marly [Marny] and Wigborough in Eſſex, with the Premiſes (except the Wood-Lands then in her own Poſſeſſion) in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of ..... Oddy, Widow, and Benjamin Handler: Upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, do from and after her Deceaſe, employ the clear Rents and Profits for the Relief and Maintenance of ſuch poor Perſons who ſhall be brought to the Hoſpital of St. Bartholomew, LONDON, for Cure of the reſpective Maladies and Infirmities they labour under, and ſhall be there found and adjudged incurable, and in human Probability, deſtitute of all Means to gain a Livelihood by their own Labour: For whoſe Relief (as ſhe was credibly informed) no Charity had been hitherto given. And the Reverſion of her ſaid Meſſuage, Lands, &c. laſt mentioned, from and immediately after the Death of the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, ſhe gave unto the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, and their Succeſſors for ever, upon the like Truſt, and to the ſame Uſes.

SHE gave her Manor of Covil-hall, with the Rights and Members, and her Meſſuage, Lands and Tenements, &c. lying in the Pariſh of White Roding, alias White Roothing in Eſſex, all the Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief and Support of poor Seamens Widows, inhabiting within the Pariſh of Stepney, as ſhall be recommended from Time to Time to the Miniſters of the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney, or of the reſpective Chapels within the ſame, or to the Church-wardens or Chapel-wardens, to be fit Objects of Charity; to be given them in ſuch Proportion as the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty ſhall think fit, not exceeding 50 s. to any one Widow in any one Year. The Reverſion of the ſaid Meſſuage, &c. after Robert Hardeſty's Death, to the Miniſters of Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matfelon, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar, and to the Church-wardens, Chapel-wardens, and Overſeers of the Poor of the ſame.

THAT as ſoon as the Value of her whole perſonal Eſtate could be adjuſted, and the ſame could be got in, and a true State could be taken thereof, two Parts of the Surplus thereof to be laid out and diſpoſed by her Executor in the beſt Charities he could be informed of; and the remaining third Part of the Surplus ſhe gave to her ſaid Executor for his own Uſe.

THIS charitable Gentlewoman lies buried in Bow Church, with a fair Monument, in Memory of her and her liberal Benefactions.

THERE is a fair Alms-houſe now lately built near Bow by the Company of Drapers of LONDON, upon a Gift of an Eſtate of about 180 l. per Ann. bequeathed to them in Truſt for that Purpoſe, by Mr. Edmundſon, a Sail-Maker, ſome Time ſince deceaſed. It is ſituated in a Field on the Right Hand of the Road coming from LONDON, on a Piece of Ground there, about three Quarters of an Acre more or leſs, which coſt the Company 195 l. It fronts Sir John Jolls his Alms-houſe, belonging to the ſame Company, and is to conſiſt of twelve Rooms. To which belongs a Chapel and Gardens. There is a very good Water that ſerves the old Alms-houſe, which will ſupply the New.

THE Reverend Mr. White, late Miniſter of this Church, Rector of Stepney, and Lecturer there for many Years, lies buried in this Church, under a fair black Marble Stone, with this Inſcription, compoſed by one who ſome Time was his Friend, and well acquainted with him:

Quicquid mori debuit Reverendi viri THO. WHITE, A. M. Cathedralis Eccleſiæ Litchfieldenſis Prebendarii, Parochialis Stepneiæ Rectoris, hic ſitum eſt. Vixit ſuis Præſidium, pauperibus Levamen, Eccleſiæ & Reip. Ornamentum. Vixit, Heu! Exceſſit Paſtor vigilantiſſimus, Conjux fidiſſimus, Amicus conjunctiſſimus. Heu! Fuit.

Obiit 6ta Kal. Mar. Anno MDCCIX.
Ætat. 67.

THERE was an antient Cuſtom for the Inhabitants of this Town of Stratford at Bow, to go in Proceſſion to the Church of St. Peter Weſtminſter, all through the City of LONDON, at Whitſuntide, in Token of ſome Dependance of this Town upon that Church. This they got themſelves releaſed of, in the Days of King Henry VIII, by a Licence or Toleration obtained from Thomas, Biſhop of Weſtminſter, That they ſhould not be obliged to come in ſolemn Proceſſion to the Cathedral Church of Weſtminſter, in the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, being accuſtomed ſo to do of old. The like Proceſſions the Pariſhes of Stepney and Whitechapel performed: And the like Letters of Licence were granted by the ſame Biſhop, to the Rectors and Pariſhioners of thoſe Pariſhes.

In the Records of the Tower, Mention is made in the Reign of King Edward I. of two Bridges in the Road between this Town and Weſt-Ham, and for their Reparation and Foundation, viz. De Reparatione & Foundatione pontium inter Villas de Stratford & Weſt-Ham, viz. Chaneres Bregge, & Lekke Bregge.

WEST-HAM.

A Mile from Stratford-Bow, in the Road into Eſſex, is Stratford-Langton, or Langthorn, lying in the Pariſh of Weſt-Ham, a Place much frequented for Country-Houſes of wealthy Citizens, and the Habitations of ſuch other of them who cannot enjoy their Health in LONDON. The Pariſh is called Weſt-Ham, in Diſtinction from another Ham on the Eaſt. In the Church are theſe Monuments of Note.

MONUMENTS.

In the Chancel upon the Pavement:

Henry Fallowfield, Merchant of LONDON, deceaſed the 4th of May, 1566, aged 54. having a ſtedfaſt Hope of a joyful Reſurrection in the laſt Day.

On the Side of the Communion-Table is buried Henry Amcott and Katharine his Wife; he dyed 1583.

Under the Communion-Table is the Monument of Mr. John Shipman, who dyed An. 1583.

On the North Side of the Communion-Table, againſt the Wall, is a very fair Monument (with two Marble Effigies) of Sir Thomas Foot, Kt. and Bart. late Alderman and Lord Mayor of LONDON, in the Year 1650; dyed Oct. 12, 1688, in the 96th Year of his Age; together with the Body of Elizabeth his Wife, who dyed Octob. 6, 1667, in the 74th Year of her Age: They had four Daughters; the firſt married to Sir John Cutler of LONDON, Knt. and Bart. the ſecond to Arthur Onſlow of Clandon in the County of Surrey, Bart. the third to Sir

Sir John Lewis of Ledſtone in the County of York, Kt. and Bart. the fourth to Sir Francis Rolle of Tuderley in Hampſhire, Kt.

Againſt the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel is a Monument for John, eldeſt Son of Robert Faldo, Eſq; who dyed May the 22d, An. 1613. Francis, fifth Son of Robert Faldo, dyed An. 1632.

John Fawcet, Gentleman, married to Jane, the ſecond Siſter of the ſaid Francis, dyed An. 1625.

William Fawcet, the only Son of John and Anne his eldeſt Daughter, 1636.

In a Side Chancel is a fair Monument with the Effigies of William Fawcet of Upton; his Mother was a Daughter of ——— Arnclif of York. He endowed with an honeſt Salary a Chapel of Haughton Gil, and built there a Free-School, and gave 20 s. for a yearly Sermon on the 5th of November; he dyed May 18, 1631, aged 60.

William Toppesfield, a Juſtice of Peace, who married his Widow, ſet up this Monument in the Year 1636.

On the Pavement, under a fair Marble Stone, is buried James Wittewrongle, the Son of James Wittewrongle, a Fleming, a ſingular Friend to the Miniſters of the City, a Mecænas of ſtudious Youth, a Favourer of Piety and Learning, dyed the 5th of June, Anno 1622, aged 64.

Sir Robert Smith, Knt. and Bart. dyed the 13th of June 1669, being 75 Years of Age; and Judith, his Wife, departed in the Year 1653, aged 48.

Mrs. Jane Pyot, Daughter of Sir Robert Smith, Bart. Wife of Mr. John Pyot, dyed 1684, aged 28.

In one of the Side Chancels lies Thomas Salter, Citizen of LONDON, and departed June the 12th, 1640.

On the Wall is engraven:

Thomas Rookes, Eſq; Captain of the Trained Bands of this Hundred; deſcended of the antient Family of the Rookes of this Pariſh; he gave a yearly Contribution of 5 l. to this Pariſh for ever; he had two Wives and ſeven Children, and dyed Oct. 5, 1630.

Thomas Staples of Weſt-Ham, Tanner, deceaſed the 22d of July, 1592; he gave 20 s. a Year for ever, to the Poor of the Pariſh; his Effigies in Braſs ſtill remains, with his four Wives, Anne, Margaret, Deniſe, and Alice.

Thomas Wilmer, ſecond Son of George Wilmer of Weſt-Ham, Eſquire.

At the lower End of the Church Nicholas Avenant lyeth, with a Table-Monument ſet over him, Citizen and Merchant-Tayler of LONDON, who gave 5 l. 4 d. for ever, to be diſtributed in Bread upon every Sunday after Morning Prayer; he dyed in July 1599; his Wives were Katharine and Margaret.

There is alſo an antique Table-Monument, that joins to the Veſtry, and ſtands juſt behind Sir Thomas Foot's Monument: There is no Inſcription, but no Queſtion was ſet up for one of the Abbots of Stratford. There are theſe Coats of Arms upon the Monument; An Angel with a Croſs on his Head, holding an Eſcutcheon on his Breaſt, with both his Hands, with a Chevron charged with three Tuns, as it ſeems, between as many Garbs: The Colours not viſible.

Another bearing, Three Coats Palewiſe; the firſt is, A Pal, charged with Croſſes, and a Croſier; the ſecond, Three Eagles Heads erazed; and third, the former Coat mentioned that was held by the Angel.

At the Head of the Monument is a Man, as it ſeems, cloathed in a Surplice, ſtanding in a Glory, his Hand advanced a little towards his Breaſt: On the left Hand is ſomething like a Chalice, or rather a Bottle, ſtanding upon his Hand.

On the North Side of this Monument is the Coat of Arms of LONDON, that is, The Red Croſs and the Dagger; and in another Place the Arms of the Goldſmiths, as being probably a Member of that Guild or Fraternity; for thoſe Companies were founded commonly in Religion. In another Place ſtands the Croſs, with the Crown of Thorns hanging upon the upper Part of it. And in a fourth Place on this North Side are the three Coats impaled, as before is mentioned; the firſt is, Gules, a Pal, charged with Croſſes Patee Sable. Over the Pal, another open Croſs, the loweſt Point thereof Flowry. The three Eagles here are in full Proportion, not their Heads erazed, as above.

On the oppoſite Side of the Chancel, againſt a Pillar, is a fair Monument, erected by the Reverend Mr. Buckridge, to the Memory of all his Children deceaſed; with the Figures of his Son in a Gown, and his Daughter, both kneeling: And of another Daughter advanced on the Top of the Monument, alſo kneeling; beſides the Heads, in Marble, of four more dying young, this Inſcription, viz.

Near this Place lie interred the Bodies of Amhurſt, eldeſt Son of Nicholas and Eleonora Buckridge, A. M. and Fellow of St. John's College, Oxon, who dyed March 22, 1709, in the 29th Year of his Age; and of Elizabeth their eldeſt Daughter, who dyed September the 27th, 1698, in the 16th Year of her Age; and of Eleonora their ſecond Daughter, who dyed April 4, 1710, in the 26th Year of her Age; and of Annabella their third Daughter, who dyed about 11 Months old; and of Anne their fourth Daughter, who dyed in the 6th Year of her Age; and of Nicholas their ſecond Son, who dyed about two Months old; and of William their third Son, who dyed about 11 Months old.

Of theſe, Amhurſt and Eleonora lived to be remarkable for their great Dutifulneſs to their Parents, for their moſt affectionate Kindneſs to and Fondneſs for one another, and for their being inoffenſive and obliging to every Body. Theſe both died of the Small-Pox in 13 Days Time one after the other. And whether the Grief of Eleonora for her Brother's Death, or the Small-Pox, contributed moſt to her Death, is uncertain: They were, indeed, lovely and pleaſant in their Lives, and but a very little divided in their Deaths.

And to their dear Memory is this Monument erected.

In the Church-Yard:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Sarah, Wife of John Hayſe of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the 5th of December, 1724, in the 45th Year of her Age.

Near this Place lyes the Body of William Cooke, who departed this Life the 24th of Sept. 1728, aged 62 Years:

Alſo,

Anne, his Wife, who departed this Life the 30th of Septem. 1727, aged 64 Years, and eight of their Children.

Here lyeth the Body of Moulton Frument, Wife of Simon Frument, who died the 2d of Aug. 1734, aged 33 Years.

I, in my Youth was ſnatch'd away,
Therefore repent, make no Delay.
A loving Wife, and tender Dear,
A vertuous Woman lieth here.

Here lyeth the Body of Edward, Son of Thomas and Elizabeth Frument, of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the 9th of November, 1719, in the 15th Year of his Age.

Cut down in Youth's gay charming Time,
I left the Pleaſures in their Prime;
But leaving Earth, Heaven to obtain,
This early Change is my great Gain.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Thomas Frument, late of this Pariſh; he departed this Life, Octo. 4th, 1724, aged 48 Years.

Stop, Paſſenger, and with Amaſement ſee
The mournful Relicts of Mortalitie.
Under this Stone our Brother now doth rott,
But his good Actions ne'er will be forgot.

Mr. Ralph Perin departed this Life Decemb. 18, 1733, aged 61 Years.

Stay, Reader, ſtand and ſpend a Tear,
And view the Duſt that ſleepeth here;
And while thou view'ſt the State of me,
Think on the Glaſs that runs for thee;
For I alone in Chriſt do Truſt,
To raiſe in Number with the Juſt.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mr. Robert Watts late of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the 27th Day of Septem. Anno Dom. 1730. Ætatis ſuæ 56.

Here lyeth the Body of Anne Story, Daughter of Gabriel and Katharine Story, of St. Paul's Shadwell, who departed this Life the 27th of November, aged 12 Years.

Here lyes interred the Body of Charles Wilkeſon, who departed this Life, May the 16th, 1725, aged 25 Years.

Did unto all as he would be done by,
Modeſt in Behaviour;
Courteous to all Men,
And patient under Afflictions.

Here lyes the Ruins of an honeſt Mind
In this dark Cell to be confined:
Stay, Reader, ſtand and ſpend a Tear,
And think of me, and how I came here;
Being with much Grief whelmed o're,
By the Uſage of my Fellow-Creatures,
Which ſo concerned my poor Soul
That cauſed my Life to pay for all;
And as thou reads the State of me
Think on the Glaſs that runs for thee.
In Chriſt alone I put my Truſt
To riſe in Judgment with the Juſt;
Think on't with Joy; here but his Body lies,
For Wilkeſon is fled, and triumphs in the Skyes.

St. MARY LOW-LEYTON.

NORTH from Stratford-Langton, about a Mile and an half, lies the Pariſh of Low-Leighton, or Leyton; the Manor or Lordſhip whereof formerly belonged to the Abbot of the ſaid Stratford; as another great Meſſuage in the Pariſh, now called The Foreſt Houſe, once pertained to another great Abbot on the other Side, namely, the Abbot of Waltham. This Pariſh is waſhed along the Weſt Side of it by the ſweet River of Lee or Ley, (falling into the Thames) which gives the Village its Name. It lies all upon a gentle Riſing, aſcending for two Miles or better, from the ſaid River Eaſtward to the pleaſant Foreſt of Waltham. On which Side lyeth one Ward of the Pariſh, called Leyton Stone, pleaſantly and healthfully ſeated. Low Leyton, planted on the Side of the Hill, as it is lower, ſo it ſtands more warm, and is guarded from the cold North by the Hills of its Neighbour Town of Walthamſtow. Both Parts of this Pariſh are furniſhed with divers fair, and ſome of them, magnificent Houſes, inhabited by divers wealthy Citizens, and other Gentlemen: But eſpecially the antient Manor-Houſe, and Seat of Ruckholts, and the Foreſt-Houſe, loftily ſeated, fronting the Foreſt, whoſe preſent Owner and Inhabitant is Sir John Heathcote, Bart.

To which may be added, the magnificent and beautiful Houſe of Sir Fiſher Tench, Bart. of more modern Erection, adorned with large and moſt delightful Gardens, Plantations, Walks, Groves, Mounts, Summer-Houſes, and pleaſant Canals, ſtored with Fiſh and Fowl, and curious Viſtoes for Proſpect. As alſo the fair and pleaſantly ſeated Houſe of David Ganſel, Eſq; Lord of the Manor of Low Leyton, having a fine Proſpect over the Marſh and River towards Hackney.

In this Pariſh-Church, dedicated to St. Mary, there was, in the Popiſh Times, a Taper of Wax, containing three Pounds, and the Wick to contain half an Ounce, that was burnt before the Image of our Bleſſed Lady, on her five Holidays: And a Glaſs Lamp, and a Gallon of Oil, to burn in the ſaid Lamp, within the ſaid Church, before the Crucifix or Rood there. As alſo, one Pound of Frankincenſe every Year, ad Laudem Dei, & omnium Sanctorum ibidem in eadem Eccleſia in diebus Feſtivalibus per totum annum thuriſicand. as the Record mentions it: And that the Abbot of Stratford, Parſon of the Church, Beatæ Mariæ de Leyton, in the 35th Year of Henry VI. did ſue an Aſſize, and ſet forth, ut ſupra.

In this Pariſh lived ſome Time the Lady Margaret Brian, and ſeems here alſo to be buried; eminent for having been chief Governeſs to the Princeſſes Mary and Elizabeth, and Edward Prince of Wales, Children of King Henry VIII. in their Minorities. Whoſe Will bore Date the 20th of Auguſt 1551, and was proved June 21, 1552, which ran in this Form: "I Dame Mar- " garet Brianne, Widow, in the Pariſh of Ley-
" ton, in the County of Eſſex, &c. make, con-
" ſtitute, and ordain, this my laſt Will and Teſ-
" tament, in Manner, &c." And after divers Bequeſts to her Servants, Eliz. Hall, Will. Watſon, Tho. Lamplaye, Jo. Watſon, Tho. Smyth, ——— Evans, Aoys Dyal, Mary Feſtalf, Eliz. Gray, and others, &c. " And I do moſt hum-
" bly beſeech the King's Majeſty to be good
" and gracious to my Servant Eliz. Dudley, &c.
" And that it may likewiſe pleaſe his moſt ex" cellent Majeſty, towards the Payment of my " Debts, and Reward of my Servants, to give " unto me, or unto my Executrix, [who was the " aboveſaid Eliz. Dudley] the Sum of 35 l. due " unto me at Michaelmas next enſuing, for the " Half Years of mine Annuity, granted unto me
" by the Virtue of his gracious Letters Patents,
" for my poor Service, done as well unto his
" Majeſty in his tender Age, as alſo unto his
" dearly beloved Siſters, the Lady Mary's
" Grace, and the Lady Elizabeth's Grace. And " in Conſideration of my ſaid Service, it may fi" nally pleaſe his Majeſty, to grant unto me, or
" my Executrix, a ſufficient Diſcharge, or Quie-
" tus eſt, for all ſuch Things I had in my Charge
" or Cuſtody, of his Majeſty's, during the Time
" of my daily Attendance upon his Highneſs:
" Having deliver'd the ſame, and every Part
" thereof,

" thereof, to the Hands of Sir Geo. Cotton, and " Jaſper Horſye, Knts, as appears by the ſeveral " Bills under their Hands and Seals, ready to " be ſhewed.

In the Pariſh-Church of Low-Leyton are theſe MONUMENTS.

In the upper Chancel, an antient large Monument againſt the North Wall, with two Arches of the Doric Order, of Architecture: It hath no Inſcription, but Coats of Arms under each Arch, impaled Baron and Femme. Sable, a Bend Argent, charged with three Mullets Gules, between ſix Croſſes Croſlets of the Second. The other Coat impaled is defaced. The Creſt is a Griffin's Head erazed Argent.

Under the other Arch, another Coat impaled: The Coat of the Femme is plain, which is, Gules, a Chevron Ermine, between three Pelicans Or. Which is the Coat of Stone of Holme in Norfolk. The Creſt the ſame as the other. This, I ſuppoſe, was his ſecond Wife.

THIS is ſaid to be the Monument of Sir William Rither, or Rider, Lord Mayor of LONDON, Anno 1600, and dyed Anno 1611. And if ſo, then the Coat of the Baron impaled, which is now not diſcoverable, was, Azure, three Creſcents Or. The Griffin's Head erazed is the Creſt of Rither. This Sir William Rider (who was Lord of the Manor of Leyton Grange) was the third Son of Edward Rither of Leyton in Eſſex, and married Elizabeth Daughter of Richard Stone of Holme in Norfolk. By whom he had two Daughters, Mary and Suſan, Coheirs. The latter married to Sir Thomas Cæſar, Knt. and Mary (the elder) married to Sir Thomas Lake, Knt. ſome Time one of the principal Secretaries of State. To whom, by that Marriage, the Poſſeſſion of the Manor of Low Leyton, or Leyton Grange, ſeems to have come.

BUT before this Family became Poſſeſſors here, Sir Ralph Fitz Warren bought this Manor and Advowſon of the Church in the Year 1545, 37 H. 1. He was Sheriff of LONDON 1528, and Mayor 1536. His Coat of Arms, as it is in Stow, was, a Chevron engrailed, charged with three Griffins Heads erazed, between as many Muſcles. And therefore, perhaps, the Coat on the aboveſaid old Monument in the upper Chancel or Chapel, now ſcarce viſible, were the Griffins Heads, (the Creſt being a Griffin's Head) the Warrens Arms: And he the firſt Erector of that Monument, with the Vault underneath: Built, undoubtedly, in the Popiſh Times, there being two Words on that Monument, viz. MERCY in one Place of it, and JESU in another, with Glories about each Word; which ſtood there of later Times, though now conveyed away. And that Part of the Church was, very probably, a Chapel, or Chantry, for the ſame Sir Ralph. He was a Merchant of the Staple, and Merchant Adventurer, and twice Lord Mayor, and was buried in great Splendor July 16, 1553. with a Standard and five Penons of Arms, a Coat Armour, a Target, a Helmet, &c. twelve Dozen Eſcutcheons, Three Heralds of Arms attending, the Lord Mayor and Sword-bearer, and the four Eſquires, Mourners, and many Aldermen; and fifty Gowns given unto fifty poor Men, of Rats Colour, of Cloth of a Noble a Yard; and a great Dinner, where the Lord Mayor and divers Aldermen dined.

Sir Thomas White, and Joanna his Wife, preſented to the Vicarage Anno 1564. Quære, If Sir Thomas had not this Church and Lordſhip in Right of his Wife, and ſhe Sir Ralph Fitz-Warren's Daughter.

IN the old Chancel, on a Braſs Plate, againſt the South Wall, is this Inſcription for the Lady Kingſton:

If you wil the Truythe have Here lyeth in this Grave
Directly under this Stone
Good Lady Mary Kyngeſtone
Who departed this Lyff, the Truythe to ſay
In the Moneth of Auguſt, the twenty fift Day:
And as I do well remember,
Was buried honourably the fourth Day of September
The Yere of our Lord rekyn'd truely,
MV^{c} fourty and eight varily
Whoſe yerly obyte and Anniverſary
Is determynd to be kept ſure
At the Coſt of her Son Sir Henry Jerningham truely,
Who was at this makyng
Of the Queens Guard cheff Capteyn.

Upon a Braſs Plate on the Floor hard by:

Here lyes interred the Body of Andrew Redich, who deceaſed on the 14th of March 1603.

And againſt the Wall, a ſmall Monument, with theſe Words:

Near to this Monument lyeth the Body of Andrew Redich, the ſecond Son of Ralph Redich, of Mottran in Long Dendal in the County of Cheſter, Gentleman, who had to Wife Margaret Fletcher, Daughter to Ralph Fletcher of Preſcot within the County of Lancaſter, Gent. Which Andrew deceaſed the xiiii Day of March, 1603, being of the Age of 45 Years. The Coat here is a Field Argent, a Lyon Rampant Gules.

Juſt by is a plain Stone, and engraven thereon HENRY PARVYSH, ... of Auguſt 1593. He was an eminent Merchant of LONDON, Owner of the Manor of Ruckholts in the ſaid Pariſh: Whoſe Widow matched to Michael Hicks, Eſq; afterwards Knight. The Poſterity of whom remain there to this Day.

Upon another is a Braſs Plate faſtened with this Inſcription:

Here under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Henry Archer, late of Layghton, Eſq; who deceaſed the 4th Day of October, in the Year of our Lord God 1585, being of the Age of 59.

This Gentleman gave to this Pariſh, wherein he lived, twenty Shillings a Year to be diſpoſed of to ſuch poor People as ſhould be at Church Whitſunday.

One Henry Archer wrote of the Exploits of the Engliſh in thoſe Countries againſt the Spaniard, Anno 1585, which J. Stow made Uſe of in his Annals. In one Page whereof, he thus acknowledgeth:

" Thus far I have received Advertiſement from " my good Friend and dear Kinſman Henry " Archer, one of his Excellency's Guard." And in ſeveral other Places his Name is ſet in the Margin of that Hiſtory.

Next, by the Side of this, a fair Stone, with a Coat of bearing Baron and Femme. The Baron, two Chevrons. The Femme, within a Border with Roundlets, the Field Checky. The Colours appear not, inſcribed thus:

Here lyeth the Body of Lawrence Moyer, Eſq; who dyed the 27th of Auguſt, in the Year of our Lord MDCLXXXV. Aged 77.

Alſo Frances, his late Wife, Daughter of Nicholas Alſey, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON; ſhe dyed Jan. 26, 1586, aged 53.

On the North Side of this Stone, another Stone with a Braſs Plate, containing the Figures of a Man with many Sons behind him; and of a Woman with many Daughters behind her, and underneath this written:

Piæ Memoriæ

Elizæ Wood, dilectiſſimæ Conjugis Tobiæ Wood, Armigeri. Quæ duodena prole ſucepta, ſeptima ſuperſtite, decimaq; tertia in utero matris intumulata quotquot illam nôſſe contigit triſte ſui deſiderium Reliquit; Poſuit.

Then ſhe is brought in ſpeaking to her Husband in theſe Engliſh Verſes:

Wail not, my Wood, thy Tree's untimely Fall
They were but Leaves that Autumn's Blaſt could ſpoil.
The Bark bound up, and ſome fair Fruit withal
Tranſplanted only ſhe exchanged her Soyl;
She is not dead, ſhe did but fall to riſe
And leave the Wood's to live in Paradiſe.

Inſuper & Caro mea requieſcit in pace, Pſal. 16.

Lower in the Chancel Iſle is a plain ſmall Stone with a Plate of Braſs, repreſenting a Female Child, with Hair diſhevelled, ſtanding and holding her Hands in a praying Poſture, and theſe Verſes underneath:

Urſula ſum Luce ſum Gaſparis unica gnata
Urſula virgineis me pia junge choris.

Somewhat higher, in the ſame Iſle, is a large black Marble Stone, containing this Inſcription on a Braſs Plate:

Here lyeth buried, the Body of Sir Edward Holmeden, Kt. ſome Time Citizen and Alderman of LONDON, who took to Wife Dame Elizabeth, and had by her five Sons, viz. Thomas, Thomas, Edward, George, and John, and four Daughters, Mary, Suſan, Elizabeth, and Elizabeth; which Sir Edward dyed the 4th of July, 1616, Ætat. ſuæ 72.

This Holmeden was Sheriff of LONDON in the Year 1598.

On a Braſs Plate over the Epigraph, is the Coat of Arms, Baron and Femme, A Feſſe Ermin, between two Chevronels of the ſame.

A Lion paſſant. The Coat of the Taylors. An Annulet, for Diſtinction. The Creſt, A Tyger's Head, erazed.

Charles Mareſcoe, Merchant, lies under a ſmall Stone, buried in this Chancel, An. 1672, with ſeveral of his Children, as namely, Charles, James, Mary, and Elizabeth.

His better and more laſting Monument is a very ſtately Houſe near Capworth-Street, in the Pariſh, lately built by Mr. David Ganſel, who married Anne, one of his Daughters and Heirs, deceaſed.

In the new Chancel are two very fair Monuments erected againſt the South and North Walls.

That againſt the South Wall is made with two Arches, where are the Effigies of Sir Michael Hicks, Kt. and his Lady, both lying at Length; he in the Habit of a Knight, ſhe with a mourning Veil, leaning their Heads on their Hands: Over the Man is this Epitaph:

In obitum Clariſſ. viri D. Michaelis Hickes, Equitis aurati, &c.

Quæ volui in vita vidi, dulciſſima nuper
Pignora, Conſortem charam, ſortemq; beatæ
Prolis; Erant nati gemini, nota una parenti,
Optabam Chriſtum; hinc morti ſuccumbo, Lubenſq;
Conſortem, Sortem, Natos, natamq; relinquo.

Over her, theſe Verſes:

Me tua mors viduam fecit; tu jam viduatus
Connubium Chriſti, non viduandus habes.
At junctam hoc tumulo me ſponſam rurſus habebis.
Sic tua ſemper ero, quæ tua nuper eram.

This fair Monument originally ſtood againſt the Eaſt Wall in the Old Chancel. Which Wall being to be taken down for the Building of a new Chancel, (that Part of the Church being found neceſſary to be enlarged) the ſaid Monument was carefully taken down, and the new Building being finiſhed, it was ſet up again in the Place where it now ſtands.

Oppoſite againſt this Monument on the North Side, Sir William Hicks, Knt. and Bart. in his Life-time erected that magnificent Monument that appears there for Sir William Hicks, Bart. his Father, for himſelf and his Lady, in three ſtately Marble Statues; he and his Lady ſtanding, and in the Middle between them his Father, with a Truncheon in his Hand, as Lieutenant of Waltham-Foreſt, and one of the Deputy Lieutenants of the County, lying on one Side. The Monument hath this Inſcription:

S.

H. M. uti par eſt, Memoriis dicator,

I. D. Gulielmi Hickes, Barti. filii unici ex Elizabetha Colſtonorum ſtemmate prognata, Michaelis Hickes, Equitis Aurati, viri probi ac prudentis, D. Gulielmo Baroni Burghlæo ſummo Angliæ Quæſtori, quondam a Secretis. Qui vii Idib. Octob. Anno Dom. MDCLXXX, obiit, cum octogeſſimum quartum compleſſet annum.

II. D. Gulielmi Hickes, Equitis aurati & Barti. præfati D. Gulielmi filii natu maximi & Heredis. Qui poſtquam Vicecomitis Eſſexienſ. munus ſplendidè ac fideliter obiiſſet, Eccleſiæ, Principi, ſuis conſtanter ſtuduiſſet, Annos LXXIII, plus minus honorabiliter vixiſſet, April. die 22, Anno Domini MDCCII, fata ceſſit.

III. D. deniq; Marthagnetis D. Gulielmi Hickes Conjugis lectiſſimæ juxta ac piiſſimæ D. Harreii Conysby de North Mimms in Comitat. Hertfordien. Equitis aurati ex antiqua Conysbæorum in Com. Herefordien. proſapia oriundi filiæ, natu maximæ. A qua numeroſam ſucepit prolem, Octo Scil. natos, natáſq; quinque. E quibus Harreius, & Carolus, Maria ac Margareta adhuc ſuperſunt. Illa degens annum ſuæ ætatis . . . . . Ann. Dom. . . . . ad ſuperos evaſit.

Underneath Sir William Hickes, the Elder, is this Inſcription:

Sir William Hickes, Bart. Lieutenant of the Foreſt of Waltham, one of the Deputy Lieutenants of this County of Eſſex, and an antient Juſtice of Peace for the ſaid County; and who, for his Loyalty to King Charles I. in the great Rebellion, underwent much Trouble and Danger, married Margaret, eldeſt Daughter of William Lord Paget of Beaudeſert; by whom he had Iſſue (beſides others that dyed young) Sir Will. Hickes, Kt. and Bart. Sir Michael Hickes, Kt. and Dame Lætitia matched to Arthur Earl of Donegal in Ireland. The ſaid William dying full of Days and Honour, was buried with a Decency due to his Quality, and lyeth in the Chancel; having lived 28 Years after the Deceaſe of his Lady, who dying at Weſtminſter, was interred in the Abbey Church there.

In

In the North Iſle, againſt the Wall, a handſome Monument of white Marble:

M. S.

Not far from this Place, in Hope of a bleſſed Reſurrection lyeth interred the Body of Anne, the ſole ſurviving Daughter and Heir of William Fiſher, Eſq; late of LONDON, Alderman; and the late dear Wife of Nathaniel Tench of LONDON, Eſq; with whom ſhe lived in holy Wedlock moſt piouſly and chaſtly 29 Years and nine Months; and had Iſſue by him eleven Children, viz. eight Sons and three Daughters; three only of which ſurvived her, viz. one Son, Fiſher, and two Daughters, Anne and Elizabeth; ſhe departed this Life the 25th of April, 1696, and in the fifty firſt Year of her Age.

To whoſe dear Memory, her ſorrowful Husband erected this Monument.

And upon the ſame Monnument, Alderman Tench being deceaſed, was inſcribed theſe Words:

And in the ſame Grave, by his particular Direction, lyeth interred the Body of the ſaid Nathaniel Tench; that as in Life, ſo in Death, they might be united in the two States of Life and Death; he departed this Life the 2d Day of April 1710, and in the 79th Yeare of his Age.

In the Church-Yard, Weſt of the Church, in a new Vault, is interred the Body of Dame Elizabeth Hickes, late Wife of Sir Harry Hickes of Ruckolts, Bart. the Daughter of Sir John Holmes, a Flag-Officer in the Fleet in King Charles II's Reign. On a Tomb raiſed over her is this Inſcription:

Hic inferius jacent Reliquiæ Dnæ. Elizabethæ Hickes conjugis Harreii Hickes, Baronettii. Quæ obiit Januaria 14°. Anno Dom. 1705. Ætat. ſuæ 29°. Fœmina venuſtate & moribus, & (quod magis eſt) Virtute & Pietate ornatiſſima: Fidelitate & amore, Marito, conjunctiſſima. Cui Filium unum, & duas Filias peperit. Cognatis ſuis Blanda, pauperibus benefica, Ægrotis medica Amicis fida, Comis omnibus. Morbum diuturnum, Dolores graviſſimos patienter tulit, ſoli nixa Deo. Qui eam, quoniam dignus illâ non erat Mundus in cœlum recepit.

Si Charitas non moritur, æternùm vivet.

P. M. M. P. A. Æ.

Here lyes the Body of William Jackſon of this Pariſh, who died September 10, 1719, aged 54 Years.

Here lyes the Body of George Say, who dyed April the 30th, 1720, aged two Years, and ſix Months.

Here lyeth the Body of Mary the Daughter of John and Anne Hart, who died the 24th of May, 1721, aged 21 Years.

She was { Virtuous in Life, Dutiful to Parents, Modeſt in Behaviour, Courteous to all, And patient under Affliction.

In blooming Years Death with his fatal Dart,
Giving no Warning, pierc'd my tender Heart,
Weep not dear Friends, for to weep is vain,
Your Loſs is not ſo great as is my Gain.

In a Vault beneath this Tomb is depoſited the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth March, the moſt dear and moſt deſerving Wife of Henry March, Eſq; of LONDON, Turkey-Merchant, to whom ſhe bore five Children, Henry, John, Henry-Francis, Mary and Elizabeth, John only ſurviving. She was eldeſt Daughter of Edward Liſle of Crux-Eaſton in the County of Southampton, Eſq; by Mary the only Daughter of Sir Ambroſe Philips, of Carenton in the County of Leiceſter, Kt. being born the XVIth Day of December, MDCXCV, and married the XVth Day of July, MDCCXXI. She dyed the XIth Day of December, MDCCXXVI, juſtly and truly commendable in every Part of Life, amiable for the Graces both of Mind and Body, late much delighted in, now lamented by her Friends.

In this Vault lies the Body of Elizabeth Bertie, ſhe was the only Child of John Hungerford of Doctors-Commons, of the Family of the Hungerford's of Devon and Wilts; firſt married to John Fiſher, Eſq; then to Peregrine Bertie, Eſq; by whom ſhe left a Son Peregrine.

Let it be acknowledged how juſtly in her Life ſhe was beloved and eſteemed, and at her Death much lamented; ſhe dyed October the 1ſt, 1731, aged 45.

In the Chancel of this Church lyes the Body of John Fiſher, Eſq; of this Pariſh, Son and Heir of John Fiſher of LONDON, Merchant, and Deſcendant of the antient Family of the Fiſhers of Brackenthwaite in Cumberland. He was a juſt Man, a conſtant and grateful Friend; he dyed Decemb. 24, 1719, aged 38.

Here lyeth the Body of John Burton, Son of Mr. Hill, and Mrs. Sarah Burton, of this Pariſh; he died April the 26th, 1733, aged two Years, Here lyeth interred the Body of Tho. Baker of Stratford, Apothecary, died Jan. 23 Anno Dom. 1725-6.

I deſire to be diſſolved, and go to my God, for my Soul doth magnify the Lord, and my Spirit rejoiceth in God my Saviour.

WALTHAMSTOW.

A Little North Eaſt of Low-Leyton is the Pariſh of Walthamſtow ſituated, waſhed likewiſe and bounded on the Weſt with the River Ley, from whence the Town gently riſes to the Foreſt.

The Church is fair and large, mounted upon a Hill, conſiſting of three Iſles; that on the North Side built by a great Benefactor to that Pariſh, Sir George Monoux, Alderman and Mayor of the City of LONDON, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. whoſe Coat of Arms ſtill remains in one of the Windows of that Iſle; he built alſo the fair Steeple.

In this Pariſh are divers antient Seats; as Higham-Hall, the Seat of the Rowes, an antient Family; a fair and graceful Houſe in Hoo-Street, inhabited by Joh. Conyers, Eſq; (Patron of the Vicarage) and his Anceſtors.

In the Church are theſe Monument:

In the Middle Iſle there ſtill remain the Monumental Stones of two antient Vicars thereof.

On a Braſs Plate is the Effigies of a Prieſt in his Miniſtring Garment, with a ſhaven Crown, his Hands clapp'd together, and this Inſcription at his Feet:

Hic jacet Dns. Wilhelm. Hyll, nuper Vicarius iſtius Eccleſiæ. Qui obiit vii°. die menſ. Julii, An°. Dni. Mill°. CCCC° LXXXVII. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus, Amen.

William Hyll, Vicar of Walcomſtow in Eſſex, by his Will, dated May 17, 1487, gives to the Church of Walcomſtow, an Acre of Meadow of the Lowhal Hold; upon Condition it be not ſold, but yearly the Profit thereof come to the Church.

Church. Item, He gives to his Couſin James Bryce, a Grove at Leyton-Brigg, with the Croft adjoining, with divers other Parcels of Land in Walcomſtow, and an Houſe to his Relations.

At the Head of this, another Braſs Plate, the Figure of the Prieſt gone. The Inſcription as follows :

Hic jacet Dns. Henricus Crane, quondam Baccalaureus utriuſq; Juris, & Vicarius iſtius Eccleſiæ. Qui obiit xxviii die Octobr. An. Dni. M° CCCC° XXXVI. Cujus animæ popitietur Deus.

To which may be added the Monument of another antient Vicar of this Church, though erected in another Place, being on a Braſs Plate, an Effigies of a Preacher in the Pulpit, againſt a Pillar in the South Iſle, with this Inſcription :

Georgius Johnſon, Verbi & Sacramentorum Miniſter, exceſſit Sept. die 5. Salutis Anno 1576. Ætat. 36. ſedit hic Vicarius anais 10.

The Office ſet by Paſtor true,
(By CHRIST) his Flock to guide,
Is unto them his Faith to preach,
And from it never ſlide.
The Duty to his Flock aſſign'd,
GOD's Word is to obey ;
And on the ſame to ſtay themſelves
With Faith and Hope alway ;
For here on Earth, as Pilgrims ſtrange,
We daily ſeek for Reſt :
Yet finding none becauſe we bee
With ſinful Fleſh oppreſt.
No State on Earth, no Pomp may laſt,
No Fleſh can long endure ;
But being Earth, to Earth ſhall turn :
Of this we be moſt ſure.
Then ſith our Days be full of Ill,
While we do paſs the ſame,
Let us redeem them, doing Good,
Not ſeeking Praiſe ne Fame.
But Glory, Praiſe, and Honour due,
Yield we to God of right :
Whoſe Promiſe is, all Darkneſs paſt,
To give us his true Light.

Out of his Mouth goes a Label with theſe Words :

Poſt tenebras ſpero Lucem.

Before the Communion-Table, within the Rails, upon a fair Marble Stone, covering the Body of Pierſe, ſome Time Biſhop of Bath and Wells, and who lived and dyed in this Pariſh, is this Inſcription :

Hic jacet R. Prælatus, Gulielmus Pierſe. Quia ſede Petriburgenſi ad Bathenienſem Wellenſem tranſlatus fuit, Anno Car. I. 8vo. A qua Temporum iniquitate perturbatus fuit, uſq; ad Reditum Caroli II. Reſtitutus, Templum Cathedrale Wellenſe reparavit, Epiſcopale Palatium exædificavit, cœlis maturus, terris valedixit, An. Ætat. 94. Salutis 1670.

Next to the Biſhop's Stone was another, inſcribed on a Braſs Plate thus :

Margery, late Wife of William Nicolls, and Daughter of Marmaduke Fairbary of Darlington in the Biſhoprick of Durham ; which Margaret dyed the v. Day of April, MCCCCLXI.

O ! Bleſſed Trinity have Mercy on her Soul, Amen.

This Stone is now removed to the South Chancel.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, South of the Altar are two Effigies half Way in Stone, of a Knight and a Lady, and an Account of the Lady underneath engraven in theſe Words :

By Vertue of his Death, that was the Death of Death, and in Vigour of his Reſurrection, and that the Reſurrection and the Life, even her victorious JESUS ; here reſts depoſited, to the aſſured Hope of Immortality and Glory, all that was mortal of that Religious and Chriſtian Matron, Dame Mary Merry, laſt and for ever the moſt deſired Conſort of Sir Thomas Merry of Walthamſtow in the County of Eſſex, Kt. A Lady whom, if either intenſive Piety to her GOD, or extenſive Charity to her Neighbour ; if Faithfulneſs to her Celeſtial, or Fidelity to her Terreſtrial Spouſe ; if the Deſires of her Friends, the Prayers of her Children, or the Tears of the Poor, could have embailed from the common Fatality, ſhe had not, Reader, in theſe periſhable Poſtures, ſtood the ſad Remembrancer of their Loſs, and thy Mortality.

Seeing ſhe is gone, go ſpeed thyſelf frail Duſt, of a Monument of like permanent Vertues : They, they are the likelieſt Morals to tranſmit thy Memory to Poſterity, that have perpetuated hers to Eternity.

By a ſhort Inſcription following, (viz. Thomas Merry, Eques auratus Conſors, &c.) it appears ſhe dyed Anno 1632 ; and he, in his Life-Time, erected it in a dear Remembrance of her.

Under her Effigies the Inſcription is wanting. There are two Heads of Men ſet under him, and two of Women, dreſſed in their Hair, under her : their Children, no doubt.

Under her, likewiſe, beſides the Epitaph above, are added theſe Verſes ſet in Gold, whereof the Tradition is, that Sir William D'avenant was the Compoſer :

Poſteritati æmulæ Sacrum.

Tho' 'tis but vain to raiſe dead Stones to her,
Whoſe Vertues their own live Inſcription were :
Yet, not to envy future Times their Part,
Of what a Wife's Loſs hath gain'd on my Heart,
I have this hardy Pile inſpir'd to mutter,
Plaints that would break a Widow'd Heart to utter.
The Top of conjugal Obedience,
The Pattern of unconquer'd Patience,
The Cloſet of religious Prayer retir'd,
The Altar which devout Zele daily fir'd.
The Life of diſcrete Hoſpitality,
The Soul of Home-affecting Houſewifry,
The rare Example of maternal Care,
Dead in this one Urn, and con . . . . . are.
Preſs gently, Earth, and keep each Grain in Truſt,
'Till Heaven re . . . . . it of this rich Duſt.

On the North Side of the Communion-Table, is an antient fair Table Monument of Sir George Monox, Knt. and his Lady; the Braſs Plates pulled off. A Label with theſe Words on a Braſs Plate, coming out of his Mouth, O Lord, ſhew thy Mercy upon us. Another Label with theſe Words out of hers, O Lord, give to us thy Salvation. This Gentleman (who lived at Moons) was the noble Benefactor before ſpoken of, and was the Founder of the Hoſpital and School ſituated in the Church-yard : And alſo endowed them well ; but much of the Endowment withdrawn. For the Recovery of which, Endeavours have been made more than once, at Commiſſions for charitable Uſes ; But as yet to none Effect.

Lower

Lower down on that Side of the Chancel, is a very fair Monument arched over: Where is the Effigies of a Lady upon her Knees: And this Inſcription:

Sir EDWARD STANLEY erected this Monument for a Teſtimony of his Love which he bear to his Wife, Lady LUCIE, and his four Daughters deceaſed.

Two other Effigies of Women praying, and this written between them:

The Souls of the Saints live.

On the other Side of the Monument:

THONAS STANLEY, Knt. ſecond Son of Edward Earl of Derby, L. Stanley and Strange, deceaſed, from the Family of the Stanleys; married Margaret Vernon, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir George Vernon of Nether Haddon in the County of Derby, Knt. by whom he had Iſſue two Sons, Henry and Edward: Henry dyed an Infant. Edward ſurvived, (to whom theſe Lordſhips deſcended) and married Lady Lucie Percy, ſecond Daughter to Thomas Earl of Northumberland: And by her he had Iſſue ſeven Daughters, and one Son. She and her four Daughters, Arabella, Mary, Alice and Priſcilla, are interred under a Monument in the Church of Walthamſtow in the County of Eſſex. Thomas, her Son, dyed an Infant, and is buried in the County of Lancaſter. The other three, Petronella, Frances, and Venetia, are living.

Another Stone, and two Braſs Plates of a Man and Woman, with another Braſs Plate underneath both, and theſe Latin Verſes inſcribed:

Filia PORTERI, Thalamis Sociata, ſed HALO,
  Granta me genuit, nunc tegor hoc tumulo.
Quatuor en! natos, natas totidémq; relinquo,
  Nunc quoq; cum Chriſto, qui vocat, ecce, migro.
Terra fui, Cinis & Pulvis: tamen iſta reſumo,
  Cum ſanctis vivens judice læta Deo.
Vos orate, pii Lectores, quilibet ergo;
  Dicat quiſq; pius, Propitiato Deus.
1588.

In the North Chancel, a Stone with a Braſs Plate, and this inſcribed on it:

Here lyes the Corps of Thomas Brown,
  Eſquire, engrav'd in Ground;
Whoſe cunning Skill and Conſcience eke,
  The Chequer Court doth ſound.
A Man who living fed the Poor,
  And feaſted Friend and Foe:
Did Good to many, Hurt to none,
  And feared God alſo.
Yet dreadful Death bereft his Life,
  His Body turn'd to Duſt:
His Soul with God, I hope, doth reſt,
  And reign among the Juſt.
24th of Decemb. 1582.

Againſt the North Wall in this Chancel, on a Braſs Plate, is this Memorial of Will. Rowe, of the antient Family of the Rowes of this Pariſh:

Adieu, great Soul, whoſe living Glories ſtand,
And proudly their own Monument Command:
Who never ſtruggled to reſign his Breath,
Tho' he, like Fate, could once diſtribute Death.
The Fierceneſs of his untam'd youthful Age,
Vertue and manly Reaſon did aſſwage.
Dangers to him ſuch pleaſing Forms did bear,
His Looks in Fight ſo unconcerned were,
That he poſſeſt a Peace, tho' deep engag'd in War:
And when his frozen Limbs had loſt their Fire,
Spurr'd with a noble and a brave Deſire,
Like Cæſar, with his Eyes could Victory inſpire.

Another for Sarah Reeve, Daughter of John Reeve, Grocer of LONDON: Departed September 18, 1704.

Faithful and ſincere;

as

as a Companion
Chearful and agreeable;
as a Neighbour
Generous and ſociable;
as a Pariſhioner
a zealous Promoter of the Intereſt,
Quiet and Happineſs of this Village;
The Place wherein he delighted whilſt living,
and deſired to be buried,
when dead.
Obiit 11°. Die Maii, 1733. Ætat. 33.

THE chief Houſe in this Pariſh, is Wanſted Houſe, built by the Right Honourable the Earl Tilney, and is a moſt magnificent Structure, being 260 Feet in Length, and 74 in Breadth, raiſed in a moſt elegant Taſte, by the late ingenious Architect Mr. Colin Cambel; the Hall is finely painted by Mr. Kent, and the Gardens belonging to it, are the Admiration and Delight of all Beholders. There is a Baſon before the Houſe, which has the Appearance of a River. The Situation is pleaſant and healthful. It was formerly in the Crown; and here Queen Elizabeth ſometimes came, as did King James I. in the Hunting Seaſon.

IN the old Houſe, pulled down to make Room for the preſent Building, did reſide the Earl of Leiceſter in Queen Elizabeth's Reign; and from hence went General of the Queen's Forces to Tilbury Camp, when the Spaniards in the Year 1588, came with their Fleet to invade the Realm. Upon his Death (which was that Year) it reverted to the Crown. Before this it belonged to Richard Lord Rich, Lord Chancellor to King Henry VIII. And before him this Houſe and Manor came to that King from Giles Heron, a great Man in that Reign, who (for ſome Crime, as is likely) made a Gift thereof to the King: Yet, notwithſtanding, was executed then, or afterwards. For, in an old Writing, that gave Account of all the Manors and Revenues that came to King Henry VIII. from the 3d of his Reign, and ſo onward, among the reſt, is an Houſe and Eſtate thus termed: "A great Meſſuage, "called Naked Hall Hawe, [i. e. Court] and "Lands in Wanſted and Ilford in Eſſex, given "by Giles Heron, Eſq; in the 23d Year of his "Reign, [Ann. 1531.]

Ann. Dom. 1540, Giles Heron was attainted of Treaſon, (no ſpecial Matter being mentioned) and executed at Tyburn.

In Little Ilford Church, which is the next Pariſh, bordering upon Wanſted, there is, or lately was, an old Monumental Inſcription for Thomas Heron, Son and Heir of John Heron, Kt. Treaſurer of the Chamber, who dyed at Aldersbroke, Ann. 1517, which is an antient Seat hard by Wanſted, now poſſeſſed by Sir John Lethieulier, Kt.

IF this Wanſted Place be the ſame with that Naked Hall Hawe, it might antiently well be ſo called, lying ſo naked and open by Reaſon of its Advancement upon Hills, and ſo without the Covering and Shelter of Trees; but had it not loſt that Name long ago, now it muſt; the vaſt and beautiful Plantation of Trees about it, having imparted Cover to it, as well as Ornament.

ABOVE an hundred Years before this, there is Mention made of a Citizen, and ſome Time Sheriff of LONDON, Owner of this Manor of Wanſted, Anno 1442, one Robert Taterſal, who gave his Manor of Wanſted in Eſſex, to his Wife Anne, for her Life; and after to his Son Job Taterſal; and bequeathed 20 s. to ſome of the young Men and Women in the Clothworkers Trade, to feaſt together, and to pray for his Soul: He was buried in St. Swithen's Church. See Vol. I. Book II. Page 480.

STOKE-NEWINGTON.

Stoke-Newington, and Newington-Green, are pleaſantly ſituated, near the great Northern Road, repleniſhed with fine Country Houſes for Citizens, being about three or four Miles from LONDON. The Miniſter's Living has been much augmented by the Rent of certain Houſes, given by Dr. Sympſon, a late Incumbent there.

The Monuments that ſhew themſelves in this Church, are theſe that follow:

In the Chancel:

Againſt the South Wall, a very handſome, large, and ſomewhat antient Monument, with Pillars of different Marble, preſents a Knight kneeling, and a Lady facing him, kneeling alſo; and behind her a Daughter; a Head-Piece behind him. The Epitaph this:

Under him:

Vivo miles ..... Chriſto ductore triumpho,
Stix caro, mors mundus cuncta ſubacta mihi.
Exivi terris feſſus, velut hiſtrio ſcenâ:
Acta eſt ætatis fabula longa meo.
Finis adeſt, clare ſpectantes plaudite, vixi,
Et cum deſiſto vivere, viro magis.

Under her:

Vivo, ſed abſque meo, mors eſt mihi vita, marito:
Cumque viro veris ſum viduata bonis.
Charus eras ſummis imiſque benignus, at uni,
O! mihi quam charus quámque benignus eras?
Rara fuit Pietas; Genus & tibi nobile: Vixi:
Tu cum deſiſtis vivere, vivo minus.

Lower on the Baſe, are theſe Verſes:

Vivo prius durus mutúſque, ſed undique mutor,
Ore Loquax, mollis pectore fio Lapis.
Me tua Mollivit (mi Dudlei) vivida Virtus;
Quæ tam Sancta fuit vita perennis erit.
Et quæ freta viro optato ſimul optima vixti
Tu (neque deſiſtis vivere) vivis adhuc.

Over his Head is writ:

Obiit 29 Decembr. Anno Dom. 1580.

On the Eaſt Wall, North of the Table, is this Inſcription:

Johannes Taverner, natus in Comitat. Hartfordienſi Familia honeſta, Parentibus piis & probis. The Grave is but a Fining Pot
  Unto believing Eyes;
For here the Fleſh muſt loſe its Droſs,
  And like the Sun ariſe;
Since none can ſee God's Face and live
  For me to Dy is beſt.
Through Jordan Streams who would not dive
  To Land at Canaan's Reſt?
Lord let me praiſe thee whilſt I live,
  And praiſe thee when I dye,
And praiſe thee when I riſe again
  To all Eternity.

Had Heav'n commiſſion'd Death to hold his Hand,
And Vertue could the Force of Death withſtand;
This beauteous Virgin had been longer liv'd,
Nor we ſo ſoon of her rich Worth depriv'd.
Her Charming Youth, her Meekneſs, Wit, and Senſe,
Her Charity, her Truth, her Innocence:
But ripe for God, her Soul aſcending flew,
And early bid the ſinful World adieu, &c.

Here lyeth all that was mortal of
The Hon^ble^ Amey Conſtable,
The worthy Daughter of Hugh Lord
Clifford of Chudley, and the much lamented Wife of Cuthbert Conſtable, of Burton Conſtable in Holderneſs, Eſq;
A Lady
Who in the Flower of her Youth employ'd her whole Time and Thoughts
In the Care of her Soul, the Chriſtian Education of her Children,
And an engaging Behaviour to her Husband and Friends:
She was agreeable without Art:
Chearful without Levity:
Grave without Affectation:
Witty without Cenſoriouſneſs:
Obliging to all without Flattery:
Patient and Couragious without Oſtentation:
An Enemy to nothing, but what was vicious or baſe:
A Friend only to Vertue and Truth.
She finiſh'd her Courſe on the 25th of July, A. D.
1731, and the 26th Year of her Age.
Her diſconſolate Husband erected this Monument
Of her uncommon Merit and his irreparable Loſs.

We are now come round into the Town again, for all that Part of it which lies on the North Side of Oxford Road, oppoſite to Hanover and Groſvenor Buildings are in this Pariſh, and not contained within the Bills of Mortality, namely, Cavendiſh-ſquare, with the fine Streets about it. This Square has ſeveral fine Houſes in it particularly, the late Lord Harcourt's, and the late Lord Bingley's. Duke Chandos had deſigned ſomething very magnificent here, on the North Side, fronting Cavendiſh-ſquare; but for ſome Reaſons a Stop was put to it, and there are only the two Wings at preſent to be ſeen.

This new Part of the Town being chiefly the Eſtate of the Right Honourable the Earl of Oxford, moſt of the Streets and Places here are called after his own and Lady's Names and Titles, as, Cavendiſh-ſquare, Henrietta-ſtreet, Wigmore-ſtreet, Mortimer-ſtreet, Holles-ſtreet, Harley-ſtreet; there are beſides, Margaret-ſtreet, Queen-Anne-ſtreet, Chandos-ſtreet, &c. There is a Market-Place and Market-Houſe built ſomewhat on the Eaſtward of Cavendiſh-ſquare, and on the South Weſt, a very neat Chapel for the Uſe of the Inhabitants, where Divine Service is performed on Sundays and Holidays, and Prayers twice every Day. It is computed that there are about 600 Houſes in this Part contiguous to the Liberties of the City of Weſtminſter, but out of the Bills of Mortality.

As we have before given a Liſt of the Members who have ſerved in Parliament for the City of LONDON, the following is a Liſt of the Repreſentatives for the City of Weſtminſter.

The firſt Return Weſtminſter ever made of Repreſentatives to Parliament, was after the Diſſolution of Abbeys; for it is plain, that Anno 33 of King Henry VIII. there was no Return or Summons of Members from it, or Peterborough, or ſeveral Abbey-Towns; ſo we may date their ſending Repreſentatives to be undoubtedly in King Henry VIII's laſt Parliament, begun An. Reg. 33. aforeſaid, or rather in the next convened Parliament, which was in King Edward VI's Reign.

CHAP. VII.

Of divers ROMAN, and other antique Curioſities found in LONDON, before and ſince the Great Fire.

THERE are preſerved either in Publick Repoſitories, or private Collections, many antient Curioſities, found chiefly in digging Foundations for the Rebuilding of LONDON, after the Great Fire in 1666, and caſually at other Times.

IN the Repoſitory of the Royal Society in Crane-Court, there is a large Glaſs Urn, that holds about a Gallon, and hath a few Shivers of Bones in it; it was taken up ſince the Fire in Spittle-fields; the Glaſs is ſomewhat thick, bellying out, and contracting towards the Mouth with a Lip.

BUT the Collection made by the late Dr. John Woodward, Profeſſor of Phyſick in Greſham College, is by much the moſt conſiderable of any: For beſides an antient Marble Buſt of Jupiter, a Marble Head with a Phrygian Tiara, a Grecian Baſſo Relievo, his famous Votive Shield exhibiting the Sacking of Rome by the Gauls; the Emboſſment of which is allowed by the greateſt Judges to be the fineſt and moſt exquiſite that all Antiquity hath left us: Several Icunculi of the Deities, both Egyptian and Roman: A conſiderable Variety of Amulets, Periapta, Phalli, Bullæ, Scarabæi: Gems with hiſtorical Sculpture, Heads, &c. graven upon them: Camei and Intaglia's of Egyptian, Grecian, and Roman Work: Many Roman, Greek, Syrian, and other Medals: Roman Weights: A Roman Semi-Congius: Urns, Lachrymatories, and other Things, procured from Alexandria, Conſtantinople, Rome, &c. And beſides, an antient Roman Altar from the Picts Wall in Northumberland, with a conſiderable Inſcription upon it: Several antient Weapons of Braſs, Thuribula, Pataræ, Urns, &c. found in the remoter Parts of this Kingdom, Cumberland, the Iſle of Man, Yorkſhire, Wiltſhire, Gloceſterſhire, Northampton, Devonſhire, &c. He had a vaſt Variety of antient Inſtruments, Utenſils, Vaſa, and the like, that have been diſcovered in ſeveral Places in and about this City: In particular, ſeveral Veſſels of religious Uſe, and employed in the Sacrifices; as for Example, Præfericula, Simpula, Pateræ, Thuribula, Labra, digged up; together with Horns, Teeth, and other Parts of the Beaſts that were offered in Sacrifice; above twenty ſepulchral Urns, of various Forms and Sizes: Likewiſe, Lanxes, Amphoræ, Crateres, Scyphi, Gutti, Pocula, Ollæ nummariæ clauſæ; Parts of the Plaſmata fictilia, in which the emboſſed Vaſa were molded; and Lamps of various Sorts. The precedent Veſſels are of Pot or Earth; ſeveral of them exceeding fine, well baked, ſome curiouſly glazed, and the Colours very beautiful.

As to their Forms, they are univerſally very elegant and handſome: And indeed the Doctor, the Poſſeſſor of them, well obſerveth, that the Remains of theſe Works of the Romans ſhew them to have been a People of an exact Genius, good Fancy, and curious Contrivance.

'TIS obſervable alſo in this Collection, that the Things are fair, well preſerved, and intire; which, conſidering the great Number and Diverſity of them, how brittle Pots and Glaſſes are, and how liable to be defaced, injured, and daſhed in Pieces, is the more extraordinary.

THERE were likewiſe in his Cabinet of Antiquities, a Glaſs Urn, with a Cover; alſo a Scyphus; divers Ampulæ, Phialæ, and Lachrymatories of Glaſs, that are very fair and perfect. Then there are ſeveral Pieces of Britiſh Money, coined both before and after the Deſcent of the Romans upon this Iſland. As alſo Roman Numiſmata, coined here: (Beſides Saxon, Daniſh, and Norman Coins, which, as well as others, are very fair, and happily preſerved.) Likewiſe, Styles of Ivory, Bone, and Steel: Several Fibulæ, Aciculi, Bullæ, Claves, Armillæ, Annuli, Beads of various Sorts; Aleæ, Teſſaræ, Pectines, Calcaria, Spicula, Jacula. Likewiſe Tiles, Pieces of Lithoſtrata, or teſſellated Pavements of Earth, Glaſs, Paſte, Enamel, and gilded.

So that Dr. Woodward's Muſæum is a Treaſury of all Sorts of Commodities and Utenſils, ſacred and profane, of antient Heathen Rome: As Veſſels for Sacrifice, and for other ſubordinate Uſes in Sacris. Veſſels alſo for Uſes Domeſtick, Sepulchral, Military, Perſonal, for wearing and dreſſing: Alſo divers Pieces of Art relating to Building, or Sculpture, explanatory of ſome Parts of Roman Hiſtory.

BESIDES theſe Remains of Roman Skill and Workmanſhip, here are alſo repoſited ſeveral Gothic hiſtorical Carvings, in Copper, Ivory, and Wood; the Work of ſome of them very good: Impreſſes on Lead, and Leaden Seals, that have been affixed antiently to Popes Bulls; with various other Things, all well choſen, of real Importance, and ſerviceable to ſome uſeful Deſign.

ONE

ONE great Intention of this learned Gentleman in amaſſing together ſo great a Number of theſe Things, and that with ſo great Diligence, Trouble and Expence, was in order to clear and give Light to thoſe antient Writers who mention and treat of them, viz. the Greeks and Romans; which he hath read and ſtudied with great Exactneſs. Another of his Ends herein was, to illuſtrate the Hiſtory and Antiquities of this great and noble City; out of the Ruins of which theſe Things were retrieved, upon the Occaſion of that great Digging, (greater indeed than ever happened from the Foundation of it before) and the Removal of Rubbiſh that was made in all Parts, after the late great Fire. And, indeed, the Medals and Coins, the various Figures, hiſtorical Emboſſments, and Inſcriptions upon the Vaſes, contribute very much to that End. And farther, from the various Places in which the Urns were found repoſited, (which, according to the Laws of the twelve Tables, were to be buried without the Walls) he is able to aſcertain the antient Bounds of this City, whilſt Roman: From ſeveral Things diſcovered in laying the Foundation of St. Paul's Church, to ſhew, not only that there was antiently a Temple there; but alſo, by ſome Inſtances to prove that it was dedicated to Diana, according to the antient Tradition, notwithſtanding what a very learned Antiquary, as well as Divine, has lately offered to the contrary.

INDEED, the far greater Part of theſe Things is ſo very conſiderable, that it would afford much Satisfaction to inquiſitive People, to ſee Icons graved of them; and that the Poſſeſſor could have ſpared ſo much Time, from his Buſineſs and his other Studies, as to have writ his own Obſervations and Reflections upon them.

IN Black Fryars, in clearing away the Rubbiſh, in order to building after the great Fire, they came to a thick Wall, very probably a Part of the Foundation-Wall of the old Fryery. In which Wall was placed ſomewhat like a Cupboard, ſhut; which being opened, in it were found four dead Mens Heads, repoſited in fine Pewter Caſes, made for them; round, only flat on one Side; and a thick Cover of Pewter, having a Ring faſtened on the Top, for the more convenient taking it off, or putting it on. Three of theſe Heads are now loſt, likely enough conveyed beyond Sea, where they may ſerve for Relicks. That which remained is, or was lately, in the Poſſeſſion of Mr. Preſtbury, a Soap-maker in Eaſt-Smithfield, who had it in 1703.

THIS Head had been wrapt in black Silk, which was then grown rotten. The Skin was like a Piece of tanned Leather, or Bacon. The Hair of the Temples yellow, but upon the Head the Hair was red, ſhort and thick, and would not be pulled off. There was a Tonſure, or round bare Place on the Crown of the Head, that beſpake him to have been in Holy Orders: The Noſe flat, as tho' a Piece of it had been cut off; the Mouth gaping; the Teeth in the Head ſound, ten in Number; the reſt had been pulled out; the Feature ſtill diſcoverable. There remained a great deal of Duſt of a browniſh Colour in the Caſe. On the Side of the Cover was ſcratched this Name in a bad Character, I. Cornelius. There was one Corpſe found near it under Ground, without a Head. Theſe ſeem to have been Fryars of this Religious Houſe, or ſome of their Benefactors, or their Saints or Martyrs; whoſe Heads, perhaps, were taken out and ſhewn upon extraordinary Days and Occaſions: And upon the Diſſolution of the Houſe (it may be) here concealed.

NEAR the Foundation of Charing-Croſs, at a great Depth, were Stones found, which ſeem'd to be a Sort of coarſe Marble, of a blackiſh Colour, and cut into ſeveral plain Sides, but irregular. From whence, ſaith Dr. Grew, they may be argued to be very antient. Theſe were given by Sir Joſeph Williamſon, to the Muſæum in Greſham College.

IN Mark-lane a ſtrange Brick was found 40 Years before or better, about 28 Feet deep in the Ground, by Mr. Stockley, while he was digging a Foundation and Cellars for an Houſe which he built for Mr. Woolly. On this Brick was formed Sampſon, with the Jaw Bone of an Aſs in his Right Hand, and his Left Hand lifted up, with two Foxes before him, running together, with Firebrands at their Tails, ſcaring them into high ſtanding Corn hard by. This might have belong'd to the Houſe of ſome Jew dwelling thereabouts; ſignifying, his Malice to ſome neighbouring Chriſtian Merchant that dealt in Corn. For it's remarkable, that near this Place, where this Brick was found, was alſo digged up burnt Wheat, to the Quantity of many Quarters; very black, but yet ſound. Probably it was ſome Granary conſumed by Fire.

BUT take what Mr. Bagford hath writ in his Letter to Mr. Hern of Oxford. "That this "Brick was of a Roman Make, of a curious red "Clay, and in Baſs Relief, and was a Key-Brick "to the Arch; and the burnt Wheat was con- "jectured to have lain buried ever ſince the "burning of the City, 800 Years before; and "that it is preſerved in the Muſæum belonging "to the Royal Society in Fleet-ſtreet; and that "Mr. Waller's Conjecture of it was, that it had "been made and ſet there by ſome Jew, ſet- "tling here, in the Arch of his own Granary.

A Piece of Moſaick Work found deep under Ground in Holbourn, near St. Andrew's Church, inlaid with black, white, and red Stones in Squares, and other regular Figures; in the aboveſaid Muſæum.

IN digging for the Foundation of St. Paul's Cathedral, at the Weſt End, ſince the Fire, was found Variety of Roman ſacrificing Veſſels, whereof a great Quantity of the Fragments were digged up. They were made of a curious red Earth; the Glazing of them ſtill remains, which is curious. They are of divers Shapes and Sizes, as Occaſion ſhould require them to be made Uſe of in their Sacrifices. And in many, the Potter's Name was ſtamped at the Bottom; ſome of theſe Mr. Bagford, a Citizen of LONDON, ſtudious of Antiquities, and eſpecially of ſuch as relate to the ſaid City, took up with his own Hands. Farther, on the South Side of the ſaid Weſt End was found a Potter's Kiln, the Shape of which was circular. In this the aboveſaid ſacrificing Veſſels probably were made. It was near to the Temple where Diana was worſhipped, for the more Convenience of the People that came thither to ſacrifice, that they might be furniſhed with all Sorts of Veſſels they had Occaſion for, at the Time when they made their Sacrifices. And likewiſe thereabouts were found ſeveral Moulds of Earth, ſome exhibiting Figures of Men, of Lions, of Leaves of Trees, and other Things. Theſe were uſed to make Impreſſion of thoſe Things upon the Veſſels. Theſe Moulds are alſo among the aforementioned curious Collections of Dr. Woodward. The Repreſentation of the aforeſaid Pottery, drawn with a Pen, is in the Poſſeſſion of Sir Hans Sloan, Bar. M. D. of the Royal Society, with a Deſcription of it added.

ALSO, at the South End of St. Paul's Church, at the beginning to build it after the Fire, were found ſeveral Scalps of Oxen, and a large Quantity of Boars Tuſks, with divers Earthen Veſſels, eſpecially Pateræ, of different Shapes.

IN Cannon-ſtreet, nigh Buſh-lane, was found pretty deep in the Earth, a large Pavement of Roman man Moſaick Work; Dr. Hook gave a Piece of it to the Repoſitory in Greſham College.

In Goodman's-fields, without Aldgate, was a Roman Burying-Place; for ſince the Buildings thereabouts, 1678, have been found there (in digging the Foundations) vaſt Quantities of Urns, and other Roman Utenſils, as Knives, Combs, &c. which were likewiſe in the Poſſeſſion of Dr. Woodward; ſome of theſe Urns had Aſhes of Bones of the Dead in them, and Braſs and Silver Money; and an unuſual Urn of Copper, curiouſly enameled in Colours, Red, Blue, and Yellow.

In Kent-ſtreet, all along the Gardens on the Right Hand Side of the Road, going out of Town, have been digged up ſeveral Roman Veſſels, as Urns, Ampullæ, and other Things; and among the reſt, an Head of Janus cut in Stone, that is ſtill preſerved, being placed over the Door at the Entry of one of thoſe Gardeners Houſes. Money was offered for this Janus's Head, but it would not be taken, being kept ſuperſtitiouſly, as though it were found by Revelation in a Dream; a Woman, about the Time it was found, dreaming ſhe was brought to Bed of a Child with two Faces.

At Peckham was a very large Urn of Glaſs digged up in the Highway, which is now in Greſham College.

In April, in the Year 1707, divers Roman Antiquities were found in digging by the Wall near Biſhopſgate within: Mr. Joſeph Miller, an Apothecary, living near the Place, while the Labourers were digging for Foundations and Cellars for ſome new Houſes to be built in Camomile-ſtreet, did firſt diſcover ſeveral of theſe Antiquities, which he communicated to Dr. John Woodward of Greſham College aforeſaid, who, according to his wonted Exactneſs, gave this Narration of them in a Letter to Sir Chriſtopher Wren; "About four Foot under Ground was "diſcovered a Pavement conſiſting of diced "Bricks, the moſt red, but ſome black, and "others yellow, each ſomewhat above an Inch "in Thickneſs. The Extent of the Pavement "in Length was uncertain, it running from "Biſhopſgate for 60 Feet, quite under the Foun-"dation of ſome Houſes not yet pulled down. "Its Breadth was about ten Feet, terminating "on that Side, at the Diſtance of three Feet "and an half from the Wall.

"Sinking downwards under the Pavement, "only Rubbiſh occurred for about two Feet, and "then the Workmen came to a Stratum of Clay "in its natural State. In which, at the Depth "of three Feet more were found ſeveral Urns; "ſome of them were become ſo tender and rot-"ten, that they eaſily crumbled and fell to "Pieces. As for thoſe that had the Fortune bet-"ter to eſcape the Injuries of Time, and the "Strokes of the Workmen, they were of diffe-"rent Forms, but all of very handſome Make "and Contrivance, as, indeed, moſt of the Ro-"man Veſſels we find ever are; which is but "one of the many Inſtances that are at this "Day extant of the Art of that People of the "great Exactneſs of their Genius, and Happineſs "of their Fancy. Theſe Urns were of various "Magnitudes, the largeſt capable of holding "three full Gallons, the leaſt ſomewhat above "a Quart. All theſe had in them Aſhes and "Cinders of burnt Bones.

"Along with the Urns were found various "other earthen Veſſels, as a Simpulus, a Patera "of a very fine red Earth, and a bluiſh Glaſs "Viol of that Sort that is commonly called a "Lachrymatory; on this there appeared ſome-"thing like Gilding, very fine.

There were likewiſe found ſeveral Beads, one or two Copper Rings, a Fibula of the ſame Metal, but much impaired and decayed; as alſo a Coin of Antoninus Pius, exhibiting on one Side the Head of that Emperor, with a radiated Crown on, and this Inſcription, ANTONINUS AUG.....

At about the ſame Depth with the Things beforementioned, but nearer to the City Wall, and without the Verge of the Pavement, was digged up an human Skull, with ſeveral Bones that had not been burnt, as thoſe in the Urns had; but for a larger and more ſatisfactory Account of theſe Antiquities, the Reader may ſee the ſaid learned Doctor's Letter, now printed at large by Mr. Hearne, with Leland's Itinerary, in Octavo.

An Elephant's Body was found in a Field near to Sir John Oldcaſtle's, not far from Battlebridge, by Mr. John Coniers, an Apothecary, and a great Searcher after Antiquities, as he was digging there.

Some Years ago, on the South Side of Ludgate, was taken up out of the Rubbiſh a Roman Inſcription, taken Notice of by learned Men.

Coming in at Ludgate, in the Reſidentiary's Yard of St. Paul's, was diſcovered ſome Years ago an Aqueduct, cloſe adjoining to the Wall of the City: And ſuch another, was found after the Fire by Mr. Span in Holiday-yard in Creed-lane, in digging the Foundation for a new Building; and this was carried round a Bath, that was built in a Roman Form, with Niches at an equal Diſtance for Seats.

Anno 1716, in digging for the Foundation of a new Church, to be erected where the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in Lombard-ſtreet ſtood, at the Depth of about 15 Feet, and ſo lower to 22 Feet, were found Roman Veſſels, both for ſacred and domeſtick Uſes, of all Sorts, and in great Abundance, but all broken; and withal were taken up Tuſks and Bones of Boars and Goats. As alſo many Medals, and Pieces of Metals, ſome teſſelated Works, a Piece of an Aqueduct, and at the very Bottom a Well filled up with Mire and Dirt, which being taken away, there aroſe a fine Spring of Water. Dr. Harwood, of the Commons, has been very exact in taking Notice from Time to Time of theſe Antiquities, and has ſorted and preſerved a great many of the moſt curious and remarkable of them, and ſuppoſes, by probable Conjecture, that here was not only a Pottery, but alſo, that on this Place, or near it, ſtood the Temple of Concord, which our Roman Hiſtorians ſpeak of to have been in this City, when called Trinobantum. Theſe Sheards were in ſuch vaſt Quantities, that many Cart Loads were carried away with the Rubbiſh, and the Roads about St. George's Fields in Southwark mended with them.

Anno 1718, in the Month of May, the Workmen pulling down a Wall at Bridewell Hoſpital, found a Gold Ring an Inch and Quarter broad, enamelled; having the Reſemblance of Christ on the Croſs engraved on it with a mourning Heart, and a Pillar with a Cock on the Top: The Inſcription was in Arabick, and ſome Antiquaries, who ſaw it, reckoned it to be 1500 Years ſince it was made.

THE APPENDIX.

WE ſhall now give our Readers, by way of Appendix, an Account of ſome Things which we think neceſſary to be added to the foregoing Books; and of ſome others that have been omitted in their proper Places.

CHAP. I.

Of the VILLAGE of HAMPSTEAD.

THIS Village is ſituated on a high Hill, and on a gravelly Soil, which makes the Air wholeſome, and having likewiſe a delightful Proſpect from moſt Parts about it, is much more frequented by good Company than can be well expected, conſidering its Vicinity to LONDON; but ſuch Care has been taken to diſcourage the meaner Sort from making it a Place of Rendezvous, that it is now become, after Scarborough, Bath, and Tunbridge, one of the politeſt publick Places in England; and to add to the Entertainment of the Company, there is, beſides the Long-Room, in which the Company meet publickly on a Monday Evening, to play at Cards, &c. a new Dancing-Room built this Year, (1735), by Mr. Vipand, the Owner of the other: This Room is 60 Feet long, and 30 Feet wide, well adorned with Chandeliers, &c. The Manner of being admitted into it is by a Ticket, of which every Gentleman who ſubſcribes a Guinea for the Seaſon, has one for himſelf, and two more for two Ladies; all thoſe who have not SubſcribersTickets pay half a Crown each, at their Enterance every Night. And on Sunday Nights in the ſame Room is an Aſſembly, where the Gentlemen and Ladies who lodge in the Town, are entertained with Tea and Coffee, at 6 d. per Head; but no other Amuſements are allowed of on thoſe Nights. Here are about this Town, and on the Heath, a great Number of Houſes belonging to Perſons of good Faſhion, and wealthy Traders of the City; To ſpeak now of, what we ought indeed to have mentioned in the firſt Place, the Church here; it is the moſt ordinary, both as to Strength and Beauty of any in or about LONDON; it has no Monumental Inſcriptions within, but in the Church-Yard are many, as follow:

In Hopes
Of a Blessed Resurrection Underneath
Lies the Body
of
Henry Dottin,
A young Man
Of great Expectation.
For Probity of Manners, and Sweetness of Temper, much to be lamented,
Who was fervent and frequent in Praying
Whom God graciously heared.
In not taking away his Speech, or his Reason,
'till he took him to himself.
And who in his last Agonies, and the Pangs of Death,
Breath'd this Ejaculation.
All this, and more, can I suffer, to live with thee,
O my God!
O God have Mercy upon him, and me,
He enter'd into this Life the XXII of May 1701.
Departed out of it the XXI of June 1721.

Hampſtead is no Pariſh, but the Miniſter of the Place is Chaplain to the Lord, or, as it now happens, to the Lady of the Manor. The Lady of the Manor at this Time is Mrs. Gomes, the Miniſter the Rev. Dr. Warren, who is likewiſe Rector of Stratford le Bow. his two Curates are the Rev. Mr. Watts, and the Rev. Mr. Wright.

HERE is likewiſe a Chapel on what is called the Wells Walk, which was formerly a Dancing Room, but being ſince conſecrated, is let by Mr. Mitchell the Owner of it, to the Doctor who has Divine Service performed in it twice every Sunday, by himſelf or Curates, for which Trouble he is paid by the Advantage he makes of the Seats.

OF the Water here, ſome have a great Opinion; but the Place is but little reſorted to upon that Account, and they are not much uſed at preſent.

He gave by his Will (to the Worſhipful Company of Fiſhmongers, London, whereof he was Warden, for the purchaſing of Lands to be ſettled for the Maintenance of nine or ten ſuch poor Alms-men, as the ſaid Company ſhall from Time to Time nominate for ever) 1800 l. and alſo an Annuity of 50 l. per Annum, which he had during a certain Perſon's Life.

Chap. viii. Pag. 696. Add what follows, to the Account of the Privileges of Black-fryars.

On Thurſday the 10th of July, 1735, came on at the Guildhall, before the Right Honourable the Lord Hardwick, Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, a great Cauſe, where John Boſworth, Eſq; Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, was Plaintiff, and Daniel Watſon, Shalloon and Drugget-ſeller, Defendant; the Action was brought againſt the Defendant by the City of LONDON, in the Name of their Chamberlain, for opening Shop in Black-fryars, and retailing his Goods there, without being a Freeman of the City of LONDON. The Counſel for the Plaintiff were Mr. Serjeant Hawkins, Mr. Serjeant Urling Deputy-Recorder, Mr. Common-Serjeant Garrard, Counſellor Noel, and Counſellor Moreton, who alledged, that Black-fryars actually belonged to the City of LONDON when it was a Monaſtery, and before Trades were ever occupied there; to prove which they produced ſeveral antient Records, viz. a Charter of King Edward I. calling it the Fryars of LONDON; a Record 11 Richard II. calling it the Fryary of LONDON; and another when the Parliament was ſummoned to meet in the City of LONDON, 21 Henry VIII. it was expreſs, begun and held at the Fryars Preachers of the City of LONDON, Nov. 3, 1530, and again, 14 and 15 Henry VIII. the 15th of April, the King went to the Fryars Preachers of LONDON, and ſeveral other Records of this Kind: The Counſel for the Plaintiff likewiſe cited a Parallel Caſe to this, 15 Car. I. when an Action was brought againſt one Philpot, a Shoemaker of Black-fryars, for opening Shop and vending Shoes there without being made Free of the City; and after a fair Trial, by an equal and indifferent Jury of the County of Hertford, a Verdict was given for the City: They then called two or three Officers of the City to prove that they had executed Writs and other Proceſſes in Black-fryars; and then the Counſel left the Iſſue to reſt upon the Record before-mentioned. The Defendant's Counſel pleaded Cuſtom Time out of Mind, and called 11 Witneſſes, who declared they had known Black-fryars, ſome of them 20, 30 Years, and upwards, and that ſeveral Perſons had kept open Shops there unmoleſted, and not Freemen; though ſome of them could not deny but that there had been People ſued, particularly about a Year ago, when a Perſon ſuffered Judgment to go againſt him by Default. Upon the Whole, after a Trial of about five Hours, the Jury, who were all indifferent Perſons, choſe out of the County of Middleſex, after ſtaying out near half an Hour, brought in a Verdict for the Plaintiff, with five Shillings Damage.

Some few Days after this, ſeveral of the Inhabitants of Black-fryars, that were Non-Freemen, petitioned the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, in Behalf of themſelves and others, praying, that as they had ſettled there ſome Time, imagining they might lawfully do ſo, without being free of the City; but finding their great Miſtake, offered each to pay 25 l. for the Freedom of the City, in the following Manner, viz. each of them 5 l. down, and 5 l. per Annum for four Years: But after a long Debate, the Court of Aldermen rejected their Petition.

Here lies the Body of Katharine Heather, Daughter of Edward Heather, who departed this Life the 7th of January, 1697, aged four Years.

O gentle Reader, why ſo late,
Didſt thou knock at this ſtony Gate?
This Door muſt open unto none,
But to my Parents dear alone.
In my cold Bed I'll keep them room,
'Till Chriſt them call from Labour home,
And this long Night a Morning make,
And our dead Duſt to Life awake.

Here alſo lies the Body of Anne, Wife of the ſaid Edward Heather, who departed this Life July 31, 1704.

Cloſe to the North Side of the Church is a neat Tomb of Stone fenced with handſome Iron Rails, and on the North Side thus inſcribed:

On a Grave-Stone in the Church, near the South Door is this inſcription:

Here lies the Body of Margaret, late Wife of John Withie, Citizen and Painter-Stainer, Obiit 1665.

Here lies the cold Remains of her whoſe Life
Was the choice Pattern of a virtuous Wife:
But tho' her Body ſleeps among the Dead,
Her Soul was unconfin'd and quickly fled.
Above the touring Regions of the Air,
Born by the Wings of Charity and Prayer,
And ſealed now in her eternal Reſt,
She ſings her Hallelujahs with the Bleſt.

Againſt the Wall on the Front of the Church, is a neat Marble Monumental Stone, with this Inſcription:

Near this Place

Anno Ætat. ſuæ 50.

Reader, before this Monumental Stone
Two Bodies lye interred that once were one,
Whom Death did for a Time divorce
And now hath married Coarſe to Coarſe,
Their Aſhes meet in Death, and have
For their new Marriage Bed the Grave;
A third they yet expect that Fate,
Nor Time nor Force ſhall violate;
Where both ſhall married and unmarried be,
Not to themſelves, but to Eternity.
Then ſleep, ye happy Aſhes, there,
Nor let a Groan, a Sigh or Tear,
Diſturb your Reſt 'till the glad Noiſe
Of the World wakening Trumpet's Voice
Raiſe you from this dead Sleep, and call
Your Duſt from this ſad Funeral.
To wed their Souls, and Soul and Body bring Unto the Marriage of the Lamb their King.

On the Right Hand of the Communion Table is a Monument with the Effigies of a Woman cut in it, and a Child, with this Inſcription:

If Youth, if Feature, Lowlineſs, or Ought
That in our Sex may Ornaments be thought,
Or thoſe more heavenly Beauty's of the Mind,
As Chaſtity or Meekneſs in our Kind,
To God and Man ſo gracious and approved
Could any Ways impartial Fate have mov'd,

I had

I had not dyed, but Death (alaſs too ſoon!)
Cloſed me in Night an Hower before my Noon;
Then fetch'd my Child, a Mate for me moſt fit,
A Payre of Sayntes that now in Heaven we ſitt.

The four following Parishes lie within the same Limits, but are exempt from the Archdeacon, being Peculiars belonging to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and wholly subject to their Jurisdiction, saving only when the Bishop visits Tam in Capite quam in Membris.

St. Giles without Crip.
Gregory by St. Paul
St. Faith under St. Paul
Helen near Bishopsg.

Note, That in some of the before-mentioned Parishes, which are subject to the Archdeacon of LONDON, there are certain Precincts which are also exempt from his Jurisdiction, and subject only to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, viz. the Precinct of Portpole, in the Parish of St. Andrew Holborn; and the Precinct of Hoxton, in the Parish of St. Leonard Shoreditch: In each of which Precincts they swear one Church-Warden, and prove Wills and grant Administrations.

ALSO in the Precinct of Norton-Falgate, near Shoreditch, (which the Inhabitants say, is in the Parish of St. Faith under St. Paul's) and the Precinct of Goswel-street, in the Parish of St. Botolph without Aldersgate; in both which they prove Wills, and grant Administrations: And lastly, in the Precinct of Islington, were they likewise prove Wills, and grant Administrations; and of late Years did swear one Church-Warden for that Precinct; but now he is sworn by the Archdeacon of LONDON.

CHAP. V.

Of the OFFICERS belonging to the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL.

The PRECENTOR.

THIS Officer is likewise called Cantor, or Chanter of the Church; his Office is chiefly to look after the Singing-men, and Singing in the Choir. He hath under him a Succentor, or Sub-Chanter, who is to officiate for him in his Absence: He is likewise to constitute the Master of the Singing-School. Of all which may be seen at large, in Hist. Paul. p. 244.

THE Precentor hath the Second Stall on the left Side of the Choir, and his Corps is in the Church of Stortford, in Hertfordshire, valu'd at 46 l. per Ann. which Church was of old, it seems, annex'd and appropriated to the Dignity of the Precentor of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, who is Rector and Proprietor of the same, and Patron of the Vicarage.

King John, in the Fifth of his Reign, gave to William de S. Mariæ Ecclesia, Bishop of LONDON, the Church of Shoreditch, near the City, to the Office of Chief-Chanter, or Precentor of this Church, as appears by his Charter, dated at Westminster, the 26th Day of March, in that Year.

SOON after this, the said William Bishop of LONDON, having instituted Benedict de Sansetum into his Office of Precentor, confirm'd the said Church of Shoreditch, with its Appurtenances to him, and his Successors in the said Office.

AFTER this, it seems, this Church of Shoreditch, was alienated from this Office of Precentor and appropriated to the Archdeaconry of LONDON; but when, by whom, or upon what Occasion or Consideration is uncertain; however it

it hath been of antient Time, and is ſtill the Corps of that Archdeaconry.

Ralph, Biſhop of LONDON, petitioned King Edward III. that he might have Licenſe to annex the Church of Hackney, valu'd at 50 Marks, to this Office of Precentor, inſtead of the Church of Stortford, valued at 20 Marks per Ann. for the better Maintenance of that Dignity; which Licence the King granted March 7, 36th of his Reign: But Newcourt ſays, he does not find that it was ever effected.

The TREASURER in the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL.

THE Treaſurer of St. Paul's is to keep the Treaſury of the whole Church, as the Reliques, Books, Veſſels, Veſtments, Chalices, &c. for the true Cuſtody whereof he is bound by Oath to the Dean and Chapter.

UNDER him he hath a Sacriſt for a Coadjutor, whom he is to preſent to the Dean to be approv'd, and admitted by him upon Oath, to be faithful and diligent in his Office, which is to open the Church-Doors at the firſt Ringing of the Bell, every Day, for Morning and Evening Service, and to do ſeveral Things about the Altar, and Things belonging thereunto, too long here to inſert, which if he neglect, he is to be corrected by the Dean and Chapter.

THE Sacriſt hath three Servants under him, called Vergers, which are likewiſe to have Servants under them; theſe are to make clean the Church, toll the Bell, blow the Organ-Bellows, and to do any other ſervile Office in the Church, at the Command of the Vergers, who are to anſwer for their Truth and Fidelity; what farther belongs to the Treaſury, Sacriſts, and thoſe under him, may be ſeen at large in Hiſt. Paul. P. 212.

THE Treaſurer hath the third Stall on the Right Side of the Choir; his Corpſe is in the Church of Pelham and Aldebri, valued at 63 Marks, Secundum taxationem Nerwicen.

Robert de Sigillo, Biſhop of LONDON in King Stephen's Time, gave to one Godfrey certain Churches, namely, Sudminſter in Eſſex, Aldbury, Pelham, Furnel and Pelham-arſa in Hertforſhire, which were ſaid to belong to his own Table; after which, his, the ſaid Biſhop's next and immediate Succeſſor, Richard de Belmeis II. founded and conſtituted this Office of Treaſurer about the Year 1160, make the ſaid Godfrey, to whom thoſe Churches were given, the firſt Treaſurer, and aſſigned the ſaid Churches to the Uſe of him and his Succeſſors in that Office for ever, which was confirmed to the ſaid Godfrey, by Pope Alexander III.

The CHANCELLOR of the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL's.

THE Chancellor of this Church (in old Records, called Magiſter Scholarum) is Scribe or Secretary of the Church and Chapter; for to him it belonged to indict or write the Letters or Epiſtles of the Chapter, and to read before them ſuch as are ſent to them.

HE chiefly keeps the Seal, and Seals ſuch Things as are to be ſealed: He is to take Care that the Leſſons be well and diſtinctly read in the Choir; to teach thoſe that are Ignorant in that Kind; to encourage thoſe that do well, and to correct thoſe that do not. When the Biſhop reads the laſt Leſſon, he is to hold the Book to him.

IN the greater Feſtivals, Sexta Lectio is to be read by the Chancellor. He hath the Chief Authority and Charge Literaturæ (or the Grammar Learning) not only of the Church, but of the whole City, where all the Teachers of Grammar are to be ſubject to him, (whence it was, that in old Time he had the Title of Magiſter Scholarum,) in St. Paul's School, (not that long after founded by Dean Collet;) but that School, which in Old Time did belong to this Cathedral Church, and was endowed by Richard de Belmeis, Firſt Biſhop of LONDON, in the Reign of King Henry I. He is to appoint a fit Maſter, whom he is to preſent to the Dean and Chapter; and is to keep in Repair the Houſe belonging to the School at his own Charge: He is to keep all the School-Books of the Church, and to give an Account of their Number, and of their being perfect and well kept, as often as he ſhall be thereunto required: He is to read to his Auditory, Holy Books, ſuch as tend to the Knowledge of God, and the Inſtitution of good Life and Manners.

THE Maſter of the Grammar School, is to be an honeſt Man, and well learn'd; he is to teach the Boys, eſpecially thoſe of the Church, Grammar and Good Manners, and is to be to them not only a Maſter of Grammar, but of Virtue alſo. In Place of the Chancellor, he is to write down in a Table, or Book, in Order, what every one is to read in the Church. This Maſter is to wear a Habit in the Choir, and to read the Firſt Leſſon.

THE Chancellor hath under him a Scribe, Clerk, or Under-Secretary, who is to regiſter the Acts and Proceedings which concern the Church, keeping a due Order of the Things done, and the Times when.

THE Chancellor hath the third Stall on the left Side of the Choir. His Corps is in the Church of Borham and Yelling, and is valued at 33 l. per Annum.

AS to the Dignity of this Office of Chancellor, it is thus recorded among the Archives of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, at LONDON, in the Vicar-General's Office.

THE Magiſter Scholarum, or Maſter of the Schools (the ſame originally who had afterwards the Title of Chancellor of the Church, as hath been intimated before) and the School of Saint Paul's, were doubtleſs the Chief Maſter, and School in the City; becauſe, from this Magiſter Scholarum, the other School Maſters therein, were to receive their Licence, or Authority, to teach.

TO the Maſter of this School of St. Paul's, (namely) one Hugh, and to his Succeſſors in that Employment; the Firſt Richard de Belmeis, Biſhop of LONDON, in the Time of King Henry I. by his Charter, granted the Habitation of Durandus, at the Corner of the Turret, (that is, the Clocheir or Bell-Tower) where William, Dean of St. Paul's, had placed him, by the ſaid Biſhop's Command, together with the Cuſtody of the Library belonging to this Church.

TO this Hugh, Henry, a Canon of the ſame Biſhop's, that had been bred up under the ſaid Hugh, ſucceeded, and to him the before-ſpecified Biſhop, beſides the Houſe, which the ſaid Hugh enjoy'd, granted a Meadow at Fulham, together with the Tythes of Yelling and Madely.

THIS was that Henry, from whom Henry de Blois (who was Biſhop of Wincheſter from 1129, to 1171, and Nephew to the King) had ſuch Reſpect, that by Virtue of his Legantine-Power, he commanded the Chapter of St. Paul's and William, the Archdeacon, and their Miniſters, by Virtue of their Obedience, that after three Times calling, they ſhould pronounce the Sentence of Anathema againſt all thoſe, who, without Licence of Henry, the Maſter of the Schools, ſhould preſume to teach within the whole City of LONDON, except thoſe who were Maſters of the Schools of St. Mary-le-Bow and St. Martin-le-Grand.

IN farther Augmentation of the Revenues of this Office, Richard Fitz-Neal, Biſhop of LONDON, conſidering, at his firſt coming to that See, that the Maſter of the Schools had but ſmall Profits coming to ſupport his Maſterſhip, reſolved to ſettle a farther Endowment on this Office, whereby the Maſter might receive ſome Benefit, with the Name of his Dignity, which he did ſoon after, by granting him Lands and Tythes of Lands.

AFTER this, Henry de Cornhill, that was poſſeſſed of this Dignity, by the Name of Chancellor, Anno 1217. left his Houſe in St. Paul's Church-yard on the South Side of the Church, to his Succeſſor in that Office for ever, paying a Mark on the Day of his Anniverſary. Witneſs Galfrey, the Dean of St. Paul's, and William of St. Mary Church.

Richard de Graveſend, Biſhop of LONDON, in the Reign of King Edward I. conſidering with himſelf, that tho', in divers other Cathedrals of this Realm, ſome learned Doctors in Divinity had antiently read in that Faculty, but not in this of LONDON, which was more famous than any; ſo that they were conſtrained to produce others from far to that Purpoſe; at his firſt Ordination, by the Conſent of his Chapter, decreed, That the Chancellor of this Church, as a Man moſt proper for ſuch a Service, by Reaſon of his Office, ſhould perform the ſame Lecture, for the Time to come. And that thenceforth none might be ordained Chancellor there, unleſs he were a Maſter or Batchelor of Divinity, and who, by himſelf ſhould perform that Task, or in Caſe he were lawfully hindered, procure another fit Perſon to do it. And for as much as the Revenues belonging to the Chancellor, were not ſufficient Support for the undergoing this Duty, and that of this Office, it appears, that Ralph de Baldock the ſucceeding Biſhop, by his Grant, bearing Date at LONDON, the Morrow after the Feaſt of St. Andrew the Apoſtle, 2 Edward II. by the Advice and Conſent of this Chapter, in farther Augmentation of the Revenues belonging to this Office of Chancellor, gave, and appropriated thereunto, the Church of Yelling, excepting to St. Perchin, payable out of it, for the Maintenance of a Vicar.

PETTY-CANONS.

THE Petty-Canons are twelve in Number; they were called Minor-Canons, ſome of which ought to be Prieſts. They are to be choſen, if it may be, and if any are fit, out of the Miniſters or Officers of the ſame Church. They are to be above all of good Life and Converſation; they ought to have a good Sound, and pleaſant Voice, and to have good skill in Singing.

THESE twelve Petty-Canons had antiently their Habitations in diſtinct Houſes, ſome within the Precinct of the Church-yard, and ſome without; but at length, through the Devotion to God's Service of divers particular Perſons, were reduced together in a common Hall or Refectory, where they uſed to meet and dine, which Hall ſtood on the North Side of the Church, and formerly adjoined to a Place called Pardon Chirchhagh.

TOWARDS the Maintenance of theſe to ſing Divine Service in this Church of St. Paul, for the good Eſtate of King Edward III. and of Queen Philippa his Conſort; as alſo for all their Children during their Lives in this World, and moreover, for their Souls after their Departure hence, and for the Souls of all the Faithful deceaſed; it appears that the ſaid King in the 40th Year of his Reign, gave Licence to one Robert de Keteringham, then Rector of St. Gregor'ys, and others, to grant certain Meſſuages and Lands to the Value of vil. xiii s. iv d. per Annum, to the Dean and Chapter of Paul's. And in 18 Richard II. they obtained the King's Letters Patents to be a Body Politick for the Future, and called the College of the twelve Petty-Canons of St. Paul's-Church, whereof one to be the Warden; as alſo to have a Common Seal, &c. At which Time in Augmentation of their Maintenance, divers Lands and Rents were by the ſaid King's Licence granted to them. And for their better Support, they had in 24 Henry VI. the Church of St. Gregory appropriated to them.

THE Sub-Dean is choſen by the Dean, with the Conſent of the Chapter, out of the Minor-Canons; who, in the Abſence of the Dean, is to ſupply his Place in the Choir, which Office was ordained Anno 1290. Ralph Baldock being then Dean. His Office is to obſerve and take Notice of the Officers of the Church, what every one does in the Choir, and admoniſh and correct thoſe that do amiſs.

THE next Petty-Canons are two Perſons choſen by the Dean and Chapter out of the Minor-Canons, and are called Cardinals of the Choir; whoſe Office is to circumſpect, and note daily all the Defaults and Offences in the Choir, viz. thoſe that come too late, or go too ſoon out of the Choir; alſo thoſe that are obſtinate or negligent, and ſlothful; and to preſent their Names to the Dean and Chapter, on every Sabbath (or Saturday) to be admoniſhed or corrected according to the Nature of their Offence. They are to adminiſter the Sacraments as well to thoſe who are in Health, as to thoſe that are Sick, and in former Times to hear Confeſſions, and to enjoin Penances. And laſt of all to bury the Dead, and to receive ſuch Oblations, and whatſoever ſhall be given them for their Pains.
